Jury Trial Not Required in Civil Contempt Case: O'Neil was enjoined from and held in civil contempt for the unauthorized practice of law. O'Neil appealed on grounds that due process required that he be granted a jury trial on the charges. The Supreme Court disagreed, noting that under federal law, there might be a right to a jury trial in criminal contempt cases that impose serious contempt penalties, but that there is no general federal constitutional right to a jury trial for criminal contempt in federal or state courts. However, O'Neil was charged with civil contempt, not criminal contempt, and the penalty under this section does not provide sanctions that rise to the level of a serious penalty. O'Neil was afforded adequate due process under 3-1-518, including a reasonable opportunity to obtain counsel, to prepare a defense or explanation prior to hearing, to testify in his own behalf, and to call witnesses at the hearing. O'Neil was not entitled to a higher standard of due process that might require a jury trial, and the District Court did not err in holding that a jury trial was not required. Mont. Supreme Court Comm'n on Unauthorized Practice of Law v. O'Neil, 2006 MT 284, 334 M 311, 147 P3d 200 (2006), following Kauffman v. District Court, 1998 MT 239, 291 M 122, 966 P2d 715 (1998).

Improper Filing of Pro Se Motion Considered Direct Contempt — Community Service Penalty Affirmed: Christian's attorney notified him of the intent to withdraw as counsel of record, and Christian subsequently filed a motion to set trial in District Court, with the attorney's name as counsel and signing the motion himself. The court held Christian in contempt for signing the motion pro se in violation of Rule 11, M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), and sentenced Christian to 1,000 hours of community service. Christian petitioned the Supreme Court by writ of certiorari, contesting the contempt order and the sentence. The Supreme Court noted that its review was limited to questions regarding jurisdiction and whether there was sufficient evidence to support the contempt finding. Christian argued that his conduct was at most an indirect contempt and that, as such, procedural due process was violated because there was no charging document filed against him. The Supreme Court disagreed. The offending document was within the immediate view and presence of the District Court and thus constituted direct contempt. The document was contemptuous on its face because Christian was acting as counsel without authority. The sentence was also affirmed. The District Court had considered requiring pro bono service and also noted that jail time was possible, but concluded that extensive community service was the appropriate penalty to dissuade Christian from similar future behavior. Christian's writ of certiorari was denied. Christian v. District Court, 2004 MT 1, 319 M 162, 83 P3d 811 (2004).

Failure to Comply With Dissolution Decree — Incarceration for Direct Contempt Proper: As part of the dissolution decree, the wife was ordered to return a quarterhorse and horse trailer to the husband. However, she sold both horse and trailer and used the proceeds for her own purposes, then failed to inform the husband, counsel, the District Court, or the Supreme Court that she had done so, all the while assuring or leading the respective tribunals to believe that the property would not be sold. The wife's conduct clearly fell within the elements of 3-1-501 regarding deceit or abuse of the process, and the District Court was within its jurisdiction in charging the wife with contempt and sentencing her to 24 hours in the county jail. Lee v. Lee, 2000 MT 67, 299 M 78, 996 P2d 389, 57 St. Rep. 308 (2000). See also In re Marriage of Ensign, 227 M 357, 739 P2d 479, 44 St. Rep. 1146 (1987).

Standard for Review of Family Law Contempt Orders — Jurisdiction and Evidence — Family Law Exception Clarified: The standard for review of contempt orders, pursuant to the granting of a writ of certiorari, is, first, to determine whether the court that found contempt acted within its jurisdiction. For a court to have acted within its jurisdiction: (1) it must have cognizance of the subject matter; (2) it must have presence of the proper parties; and (3) its action must be invoked by proper pleadings and the judgment must be within the issues raised. A court lacks or exceeds jurisdiction by any act that exceeds the defined power of the court, whether that power is defined by constitutional provision, statute, or court rule or under the doctrine of stare decisis. The second part of the standard for review of contempt orders is to determine whether substantial evidence exists to support the court's findings. The family law exception relevant to review on direct appeal of a District Court judgment and orders made in cases of contempt is subject to the same standard of review. (See 2001 amendment to 3-1-523.) Lee v. Lee, 2000 MT 67, 299 M 78, 996 P2d 389, 57 St. Rep. 308 (2000), following State ex rel. Porter v. First Judicial District, 123 M 447, 215 P2d 279 (1950), and Kauffman v. District Court, 1998 MT 239, 291 M 122, 966 P2d 715, 55 St. Rep. 1001 (1998), and followed in In re Marriage of Coward, 2000 MT 128, 300 M 1, 2 P3d 822, 57 St. Rep. 531 (2000). See also In re Marriage of Sullivan, 258 M 531, 853 P2d 1194, 50 St. Rep. 648 (1993).

When Summary Contempt Proceedings Appropriate — Entitlement to Due Process When Instant Action Not Necessary: Regardless of the type of contempt committed, direct or indirect, a court's primary consideration before subjecting a contemnor to summary contempt proceedings must be whether immediate corrective steps are necessary to restore order, maintain dignity and authority of the court, and prevent delay. However, in cases when it is not necessary for a court to take instant action, a contemnor is entitled to a full due process hearing traditionally associated with indirect contempt, a finding that the evidence establishes the contemnor's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt in instances when criminal punishment is a consequence, and a hearing in front of an unbiased court other than the court in which the misconduct occurred. In the present case, an attorney's conduct did not necessitate immediate District Court action, so the Supreme Court remanded the case for a hearing in front of a different judge to ensure the attorney's due process rights. (See 2001 amendment.) Kauffman v. District Court, 1998 MT 239, 291 M 122, 966 P2d 715, 55 St. Rep. 1001 (1998), followed in Lee v. Lee, 2000 MT 67, 299 M 78, 996 P2d 389, 57 St. Rep. 308 (2000).

Application of Both Sanctions Under This Part for Same Contempt Prohibited: The sanctions in 3-1-519 (now repealed) and 3-1-520 may not both be imposed for the same contempt. Huffine v. District Court, 285 M 104, 945 P2d 927, 54 St. Rep. 1065 (1997).

Distinguishing Between Civil and Criminal Contempt: Contempts are neither wholly civil nor wholly criminal, but classification of a contempt as one or the other is crucial, particularly when the person is sentenced to confinement, because the classification determines the procedures that the court must follow. There is nothing inherent in a contemptuous act or refusal to act that classifies it as civil or criminal. Rather, it is the character and purpose of the punishment that the court chooses to impose that serves to distinguish between civil and criminal contempt. If the sanction is intended to force compliance with the court's order, the contempt is properly classified as civil. If the purpose is to punish the contemnor for a specific act and to vindicate the authority of the court, the contempt is criminal. Huffine v. District Court, 285 M 104, 945 P2d 927, 54 St. Rep. 1065 (1997).

Necessity of Criminal Charge and Due Process in Contempt Proceeding Resulting in Criminal Penalty: The District Court stated that the purpose of its sentence for contempt for practicing law without a license was to compel performance and that the court was thus acting under 3-1-520, which allows incarceration until performance occurs. However, in reality, the sentence, 30 days in jail, to be suspended upon paying a $500 fine within 10 days, was punishment for past acts. Therefore, the contempt proceeding was properly characterized as criminal rather than civil because a contempt is classified as criminal if the purpose of the sanction imposed is punishment and civil if the purpose of the sanction imposed is to compel compliance with a court order. A criminal contempt proceeding must be under the procedures in Title 46 to ensure that criminal penalties are not imposed without affording the proper protections. The lower court erred by imposing a criminal sentence when no criminal charges were brought under 45-7-309, creating the crime of criminal contempt, and defendant was not afforded the due process that is guaranteed by the state and federal constitutions. (See 2001 amendment to 3-1-501, 3-1-511, and 3-1-518.) Huffine v. District Court, 285 M 104, 945 P2d 927, 54 St. Rep. 1065 (1997).

Right of Allocution in Summary Contempt Proceedings: Following the rationale in State ex rel. Smith v. District Court, 210 M 344, 677 P2d 589 (1984), the Supreme Court held that in cases of direct contempt, the right to be heard, or right of allocution, should be afforded the accused contemnor in a summary contempt proceeding. The right of allocution is particularly strong when contempt is contained in a brief and the contemnor has no notice that the court considers the brief to be contemptuous prior to receiving the court's written order. Before being sentenced, the contemnor should be afforded the opportunity to explain or excuse the written filing. A trial is not required, but the contemnor should be allowed a reasonable opportunity to defend or explain the actions or present arguments in mitigation. Failure to provide for allocution constituted grounds for vacation of sentence and remand for the opportunity for allocution. (See 2001 amendment.) Malee v. District Court, 275 M 72, 911 P2d 831, 53 St. Rep. 44 (1996), following Groppi v. Leslie, 404 US 496, 30 L Ed 2d 632, 92 S Ct 582 (1971), and U.S. v. Lumumba, 741 F2d 12 (2nd Cir. 1984), and followed in Kauffman v. District Court, 1998 MT 239, 291 M 122, 966 P2d 715, 55 St. Rep. 1001 (1998).

Contempt Punishment Imposing Counseling Costs Affirmed: After finding mother in contempt for consistently frustrating father's visitation and for levying false accusations of sexual and physical abuse against father without reasonable justification, the District Court required her to seek ongoing professional counseling and to bear the costs of that counseling. Mother contended that requiring her to pay counseling costs amounted to an open-ended blank check in contravention of the statutory limitation of $500 on financial punishment for contempt. However, a District Court has equitable powers to punish a party for contempt beyond the confines of 3-1-519 (now repealed). The District Court was warranted in ordering the 2-year therapy requirement because: (1) the evidence supported the finding of contempt; (2) the court acted within its jurisdiction and equitable powers when imposing the punishment; and (3) contempt penalties imposed by the court had largely been previously imposed through separate findings. In re Marriage of Dreesbach, 265 M 216, 875 P2d 1018, 51 St. Rep. 374 (1994).

Nature of Contempt in Criminal Proceedings: Defendant asserted "unlawful predicate for contempt without jury". The court responded that contempt may be punished summarily and that contempt orders are not appealable. St. v. Campbell, 219 M 194, 711 P2d 1357, 42 St. Rep. 1948 (1985).

Contempt Order — Costs Award Proper — Attorney Fees Award Improper: In reviewing a contempt order that arose out of a water rights dispute, the Supreme Court ruled that an award of costs to the irrigation district as the prevailing party was proper, but that an award of attorney fees to the district was not proper. The court reasoned that no applicable statute or contractual provision provided for attorney fees and that the case did not fit within the exceptions recognized in Foy v. Anderson, 176 M 507, 580 P2d 114, 35 St. Rep. 811 (1978). State ex rel. Foss v. District Court, 216 M 327, 701 P2d 342, 42 St. Rep. 845 (1985).

Contemnor to Be Given Opportunity to Explain Conduct: In addition to this section's requirement of an order setting forth the facts of the contempt, the contemnor must be granted an opportunity to explain or excuse himself. However, the opportunity to be heard need not arise in a formal hearing, separate and distinct from the proceeding in which the contempt arose. (See 2001 amendment.) State ex rel. Smith v. District Court, 210 M 344, 677 P2d 589, 41 St. Rep. 385 (1984).

Compensatory Damages Not Authorized: Compensatory damages are not expressly authorized by law under contempt actions. Section 3-1-519 (now repealed) provides the exclusive monetary punishment a court may impose for contempt. Lilienthal v. District Court, 200 M 236, 650 P2d 779, 39 St. Rep. 1711 (1982).

Compensation Not Allowed for Unnecessary or Useless Services — Judge's Discretion: Judge did not abuse discretion in disallowing attorney's claim for services rendered for indigent defendant for time spent asking educational questions on voir dire over repeated protest from the court. Judge has discretion to disallow compensation for substantial time consumed in improper, unnecessary, or useless services. It was, however, an abuse of discretion to reduce compensation for other attorney's wasted time. State ex rel. Stephens v. District Court, 170 M 22, 550 P2d 385 (1976).

Excessive Penalty:

District Court's sentence of 10 days' imprisonment for contempt exceeded jurisdiction of such court (at the time, 5 days was the maximum allowable prison term). Fuchs v. District Court, 153 M 485, 458 P2d 776 (1969).

A judgment pronounced from the bench and imposing an excessive term of imprisonment was harmless error when corrected within the period of a stay of execution granted contemporaneously. Niewoehner v. District Court, 142 M 1, 381 P2d 464 (1963).

Under 3-1-519 (now repealed), one found guilty of contempt of court may be fined and ordered imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding 5 days, a longer term not being permissible except where it is sought to compel payment of the fine or the performance of a required act still in his power.

Imprisonment to Enforce Fine:

The payment of a fine imposed upon one adjudged guilty of contempt may be enforced by imprisonment, and imprisonment in excess of 5 days (under 3-1-519, now repealed) is permissible to compel such payment. State ex rel. Lay v. District Court, 122 M 61, 198 P2d 761 (1948).

Judgment of the District Court in a contempt proceeding arising out of the failure of defendant husband to pay alimony was proper. State ex rel. Murphy v. District Court, 99 M 209, 41 P2d 1113 (1935).

An attorney found guilty of contempt was properly subject to punishment by fine and imprisonment in the county jail until the fine was paid. State ex rel. Coleman v. District Court, 51 M 195, 149 P 973 (1915).

Purge Order: A purge order contained in a judgment for contempt is not coercive and beyond the jurisdiction of the court, since it is for the defendant's benefit. State ex rel. Lay v. District Court, 122 M 61, 198 P2d 761 (1948).

Privileges Denied for Contempt:

While the general rule is that a litigant in contempt of court will be denied any favors or privileges which the court may extend to litigants, it is limited in its application to the proceedings in the cause in which the contempt occurred. Davenport v. Davenport, 69 M 405, 222 P 422 (1924).

On the hearing of an order to show cause why an injunction should not issue, it was error to reject defendant's evidence and issue the injunction because defendant was in contempt for violating a restraining order. Such action on the part of the court was a denial of due process of law. Harley v. Mont. Ore Purchasing Co., 27 M 388, 71 P 407 (1903). See also King Tonopah Min. Co. v. Lynch, 232 F 485 (D.C. Nev. 1916).

Expenses of Proceedings: In the absence of statute on the subject, attorney's fees and other expenses incurred by the owner of a water right in instituting and prosecuting to a successful determination a contempt proceeding for the violation of a decree of court settling his rights are not recoverable as items in an action against the contemner. Dunlavey v. Doggett, 38 M 204, 99 P 436 (1909), distinguished in Smith v. Fergus County, 98 M 377, 39 P2d 193 (1934).

Indemnity for Private Wrong: Contempt proceedings do not furnish a remedy available to the plaintiff for the redress or prevention of a private wrong. Dunlavey v. Doggett, 38 M 204, 99 P 436 (1909).

Improper Penalty: An injunction to restrain a party from working in a mine, imposed as a punishment for an alleged contempt, is void because it attempts to denounce a penalty for a contempt not warranted by 3-1-519 (now repealed). In re Sutton, 26 M 557, 71 P 1131 (1902).

Case Notes

Improper Filing of Pro Se Motion Considered Direct Contempt — Community Service Penalty Affirmed: Christian's attorney notified him of the intent to withdraw as counsel of record, and Christian subsequently filed a motion to set trial in District Court, with the attorney's name as counsel and signing the motion himself. The court held Christian in contempt for signing the motion pro se in violation of Rule 11, M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), and sentenced Christian to 1,000 hours of community service. Christian petitioned the Supreme Court by writ of certiorari, contesting the contempt order and the sentence. The Supreme Court noted that its review was limited to questions regarding jurisdiction and whether there was sufficient evidence to support the contempt finding. Christian argued that his conduct was at most an indirect contempt and that, as such, procedural due process was violated because there was no charging document filed against him. The Supreme Court disagreed. The offending document was within the immediate view and presence of the District Court and thus constituted direct contempt. The document was contemptuous on its face because Christian was acting as counsel without authority. The sentence was also affirmed. The District Court had considered requiring pro bono service and also noted that jail time was possible, but concluded that extensive community service was the appropriate penalty to dissuade Christian from similar future behavior. Christian's writ of certiorari was denied. Christian v. District Court, 2004 MT 1, 319 M 162, 83 P3d 811 (2004).

Contemptuous Pleading or Brief Presented to Unseated Court — Direct Contempt: Malee submitted a brief to the District Court, while the court was not sitting, containing a contemptuous comment about opposing counsel. No accusatory affidavit was filed, nor was a hearing held on the matter. In deciding whether the comment constituted indirect or direct contempt, the Supreme Court held that because the contemptuous pleadings and briefs were in the immediate view and presence of the court or judge at chambers, they were considered direct contempt. The District Court had no need of testimony from third parties, an affidavit of facts, a confession from the contemnor, or other extrinsic evidence to gain knowledge of the offense. A judge's sanctioning authority is not limited to what is seen or heard in person. Contemptuous tactics and arguments can be as easily made on paper as in open court. Malee v. District Court, 275 M 72, 911 P2d 831, 53 St. Rep. 44 (1996), following Brownell v. McCormick, 7 M 12, 14 P 651 (1887), and Kunik v. Racine County, Wis., 946 F2d 1574 (7th Cir. 1991), and overruling contrary holdings in State ex rel. Stagg v. District Court, 76 M 495, 248 P 213 (1926), *Porter v. Nine Days Sufficient to Obtain Counsel in Contempt Proceeding: Unless an act constituting contempt occurs in open court, due process requires that the person charged have the right to be represented by counsel. The right to counsel, however, has generally been held to mean that one charged is entitled to a reasonable opportunity to employ counsel. In this case, a period of 9 days was held to be an adequate opportunity to employ counsel. Marks v. District Court, 239 M 428, 781 P2d 249, 46 St. Rep. 1804 (1989). See Lilienthal v. District Court, 200 M 236, 650 P2d 779 (1982), where a 1-day period was held to provide an inadequate opportunity to employ counsel, and In re Marriage of Prescott, 259 M 293, 856 P2d 229, 50 St. Rep. 801 (1993), in which a 7-day period was held sufficient to provide an adequate opportunity to provide counsel.

Contempt — Affidavit to State Facts: Plaintiff was found guilty of contempt for refusing to allow the wife her court-ordered visitation for Christmas of 1979 and the summer of 1981. The husband contended on appeal that it was error to hold him in contempt for the 1979 violation because it was not mentioned in the affidavit she presented to the court. The Supreme Court agreed, holding that where the affidavit does not include facts constituting contempt, a court is without jurisdiction to address that incident. The 1981 violation was addressed in the affidavit, however, and the District Court found the wife's testimony to be the most credible. By disobeying a lawful order of the court regarding visitation, the husband committed an act of contempt and could be punished therefor. In re Marriage of Milanovich, 201 M 332, 655 P2d 963, 39 St. Rep. 2146 (1982).

Lack of Sufficient Notice — Opportunity to Obtain Counsel Denied: In an action for contempt (not occurring in open court), notice was received on Thursday to defend the action on the following Monday. The District Court was informed that the person charged with the contempt was unable to be represented because he was unable to reach his attorney on such short notice. The court erred in proceeding with the hearing because the notice did not comport with due process requirements affording a person charged with contempt reasonable opportunity to secure counsel and to defend himself. Lilienthal v. District Court, 200 M 236, 650 P2d 779, 39 St. Rep. 1711 (1982).

Constructive Contempt: The District Court ordered two defendants to be taken to Warm Springs for mental evaluation. The County Attorney and a Deputy Sheriff were present when the order was made. The County Attorney, who was not acting under a court order, sent the defendants to Malta where other charges were pending. The County Attorney and the Deputy Sheriff were found in contempt of court. The contempt was committed outside the presence of the court and consisted of violating the order to take the defendants to Warm Springs. In constructive contempt, the essence of whether the court's order has been abused is whether the party accused had knowledge of the order. The record in this case supported the contempt holding, as both parties were present when the order was given. In re the Contempt of Graveley and Hammerbacker, 188 M 546, 614 P2d 1033, 37 St. Rep. 1261 (1980), followed in Marks v. District Court, 239 M 428, 781 P2d 249, 46 St. Rep. 1804 (1989).

Recital of Facts in Order: Order of contempt that failed to specify facts that constituted contempt before the court was deficient under this section, since it did not provide opportunity for appellate review. State ex rel. Shea v. District Court, 156 M 266, 479 P2d 281 (1971).

Affidavit Required:

The filing of a complaint in a civil action containing immaterial and irrelevant allegations of scandalous and defamatory matter concerning the lives and characters of the members of the grand jury constituted indirect contempt. State ex rel. Porter v. First Judicial District, 123 M 447, 215 P2d 279 (1950).

In the case of an "indirect" contempt—one committed without the immediate view and presence of the court—the court or judge acquires jurisdiction only by the filing of an affidavit or statement of the facts. State ex rel. Stagg v. District Court, 76 M 495, 248 P 213 (1926).

In all contempt proceedings not committed in the court's immediate presence, an affidavit is essential. State ex rel. Gemmell v. Clancy, 24 M 359, 61 P 987 (1900).

Sufficiency of Affidavit:

County Attorney's accusatory affidavit was not insufficient because made on information and belief. State ex rel. Porter v. First Judicial District, 123 M 447, 215 P2d 279 (1950).

Affidavit charging contempt was not insufficient by reason of the fact that some of its averments were made on information and belief or some of the violations trivial. State ex rel. Young v. District Court, 102 M 487, 58 P2d 1243 (1936).

A proceeding in contempt must be instituted by affidavit which must state facts sufficient to disclose that a contempt has been committed, no intendments or presumptions in favor of its averments being permissible. State ex rel. Bacorn v. District Court, 73 M 297, 236 P 553 (1925).

A general statement substantial enough to justify a conclusive inference of knowledge and intent in the contemner at the time it was alleged he willfully attempted to influence jurors was sufficient to confer jurisdiction upon the District Court. State ex rel. Webb v. District Court, 37 M 191, 95 P 593 (1908).

Review of Proceedings:

If in adjudging one guilty of contempt the court acts without jurisdiction, the proceedings may be reviewed on certiorari; and in cases where the court acts within jurisdiction but in a manner so arbitrary and unlawful as to be tyrannical, the Supreme Court may intervene by virtue of its constitutional power of supervisory control over inferior courts. State ex rel. Young v. District Court, 102 M 487, 58 P2d 1243 (1936).

On certiorari to review an order of the District Court adjudging one guilty of a direct contempt, the Supreme Court may not look beyond the order adjudging the contemner guilty, which constitutes the record of the case, to determine from the facts whether the judgment was proper. State ex rel. Breen v. District Court, 34 M 107, 85 P 870 (1906).

Discretion of Court: The power of the District Court to punish as contempt disobedience of a lawful order or judgment is not arbitrary; it must be exercised only when the necessity arises and then with intelligent discretion. State ex rel. Middleton v. District Court, 85 M 215, 278 P 122 (1929).

Findings of Fact: While in a proceeding for constructive contempt the affidavit, the process, the answer of the contemner, and the evidence, together with the judgment, constitute the record, the court should make findings of fact in its order of commitment showing as a matter of law that the accused is in fact guilty of contempt. State ex rel. Burns v. District Court, 83 M 200, 271 P 439 (1928).

Recital of Facts in Order:

Where the trial court having had under consideration the question of a direct contempt recites the facts as occurring in its immediate view or presence, the reviewing court cannot look to the counterstatement of the person found guilty but must rely upon the recitation of the court. State ex rel. Hurley v. District Court, 76 M 222, 246 P 250 (1926).

The participial expression "as occurring" is equivalent to "which occurred" and does not merely relate to time and place. State ex rel. Rankin v. District Court, 58 M 276, 191 P 772 (1920).

An order declaring a person guilty of a direct contempt must recite the facts upon which the conclusion that the contemner is guilty is based. State ex rel. Breen v. District Court, 34 M 107, 85 P 870 (1906), distinguished in State ex rel. Cheadle v. District Court, 92 M 94, 10 P2d 586 (1932).

Hearing Required:

A direct contempt may be punished summarily, but a constructive contempt can be punished only after a hearing upon an affidavit showing the facts constituting the contempt and the answer thereto. In re Mettler, 50 M 299, 146 P 747 (1915), distinguished in State ex rel. Cheadle v. District Court, 92 M 94, 10 P2d 586 (1932).

It was improper to refuse to allow relator to move to dissolve a temporary injunction or to be heard in opposition to the motion to continue it on the ground that he was in contempt for violating the injunction when no contempt proceedings had been instituted. State ex rel. Gemmell v. Clancy, 24 M 359, 61 P 987 (1900). See also Harley v. Mont. Ore Purchasing Co., 27 M 388, 71 P 407 (1903).

Notice of Proceedings: In cases where the alleged contempt consists in the violation by a party of an order made in a civil suit still pending, such party is entitled to a separate and distinct notice of the contempt proceedings in order that he may be afforded an opportunity to prepare his defense. State ex rel. Gemmell v. Clancy, 24 M 359, 61 P 987 (1900).

No warrant of commitment can be issued without such previous attachment to answer or notice or order to show cause" and inserted second and third sentences requiring an adequate statement of the charge to accompany the warrant and providing for a hearing under 3-1-518. Lack of Sufficient Notice — Opportunity to Obtain Counsel Denied: In an action for contempt (not occurring in open court), notice was received on Thursday to defend the action on the following Monday. The District Court was informed that the person charged with the contempt was unable to be represented because he was unable to reach his attorney on such short notice. The court erred in proceeding with the hearing because the notice did not comport with due process requirements affording a person charged with contempt reasonable opportunity to secure counsel and to defend himself. Conflicting Evidence Whether Indemnity Note on Bail Bond Considered Valid Contract — District Court's Finding Not Clearly Erroneous: Rohrich signed an indemnity agreement with Anderson, who owned a bail bond business, to secure a bond posted for the release of Brummer. When signing the indemnity note, Rohrich did not question Anderson about the note and signed it without discussion regarding the effect of his signature. The note provided that should Anderson become liable for the forfeiture of the bail bond, the indemnitor would indemnify Anderson, with interest, and also pay reasonable attorney fees in the event that a suit was necessary to collect the amount owed. Brummer subsequently fled the state, and the County Attorney moved for bail forfeiture. The District Court ordered that judgment in the full amount of bail be entered against Brummer and against Anderson as the surety. After Anderson satisfied the judgment, he waited to see if Rohrich would indemnify him, but Rohrich did not do so; therefore, Anderson brought an action to enforce the indemnity note. At trial, Rohrich maintained that the note was blank when he signed it and that therefore he did not sign a valid contract. Rohrich also contended that the date on the note, which was 1 year after Brummer was released from prison, was further evidence that Anderson did not complete the terms of the note prior to Rohrich's signature. Anderson testified that the note did contain all essential terms when Rohrich signed it, and that testimony was affirmed by Anderson's assistant. Anderson also testified that the date was a typographical error and that as a matter of business practice, he would not provide an indemnitor with a blank note. Further, Rohrich was familiar with indemnity notes, having signed notes on three prior occasions with Anderson, including two that he signed for himself. After weighing the conflicting evidence, the District Court ordered Rohrich to pay the full amount, plus attorney fees, interest, and costs. Rohrich appealed, and the Supreme Court affirmed, paying substantial deference to the trial court because as the factfinder, the trial court was in the best position to evaluate the testimony and judge the credibility of the witnesses. Anderson v. Rohrich, 2001 MT 106, 305 M 274, 26 P3d 99 (2001).

Jury Trial Not Required in Civil Contempt Case: O'Neil was enjoined from and held in civil contempt for the unauthorized practice of law. O'Neil appealed on grounds that due process required that he be granted a jury trial on the charges. The Supreme Court disagreed, noting that under federal law, there might be a right to a jury trial in criminal contempt cases that impose serious contempt penalties, but that there is no general federal constitutional right to a jury trial for criminal contempt in federal or state courts. However, O'Neil was charged with civil contempt, not criminal contempt, and the penalty under 3-1-511 does not provide sanctions that rise to the level of a serious penalty. O'Neil was afforded adequate due process under this section, including a reasonable opportunity to obtain counsel, to prepare a defense or explanation prior to hearing, to testify in his own behalf, and to call witnesses at the hearing. O'Neil was not entitled to a higher standard of due process that might require a jury trial, and the District Court did not err in holding that a jury trial was not required. Mont. Supreme Court Comm'n on Unauthorized Practice of Law v. O'Neil, 2006 MT 284, 334 M 311, 147 P3d 200 (2006), following Kauffman v. District Court, 1998 MT 239, 291 M 122, 966 P2d 715 (1998).

Punishment for Contempt by Judge Who Issues Order Not Erroneous Absent Showing of Impartiality — No Due Process Violation: Drew was appointed to represent a criminal defendant but failed to file an amended petition for postconviction relief as ordered. Following several months of missed deadlines, the District Court held that Drew had failed to provide any plausible explanation for the failure to comply with the court's orders. Drew was then removed from the case, charged with contempt, and sentenced to jail time and a fine. The day before the jail term was to begin, Drew filed a writ of certiorari and a motion for an emergency stay order, contending that the District Court's action constituted a deprivation of Drew's due process right, including the right to allocution, a hearing before a neutral magistrate, and the opportunity to present testimony through witnesses by way of defense or explanation. The stay was issued, but in an original proceeding, the Supreme Court disagreed, denied the writ, and lifted the stay. Under this section, the judge who issues a contempt order is authorized to punish the contempt, and the only proviso against the court's punishment authority is if it is shown that the judge would not be impartial. The statute itself provides that the charged person is entitled to a hearing and to examine witnesses and also takes into account the issue of partiality by allowing the charged person to demonstrate that the sitting judge could not be impartial, in which case the neutral magistrate requirement will be imposed. This section contains its own due process safeguards. Thus, due process is not offended by allowing a District Court Judge to preside over a contempt hearing when the contempt arose from violation of an order of that court issued after a hearing on the merits on the subject of the order. In these situations, the judge who conducted the hearing and issued the order retains the authority to punish that violation by contempt proceedings, as long as the other due process protections in the statute and enunciated by the Montana and U.S. Supreme Courts are met and honored, unless it is shown that the judge could not be impartial. Drew v. District Court, 2004 MT 154, 321 M 520, 92 P3d 1195 (2004).

Application of Both Sanctions Under This Part for Same Contempt Prohibited: The sanctions in 3-1-519 (now repealed) and this section may not both be imposed for the same contempt. Huffine v. District Court, 285 M 104, 945 P2d 927, 54 St. Rep. 1065 (1997).

Distinguishing Between Civil and Criminal Contempt: Contempts are neither wholly civil nor wholly criminal, but classification of a contempt as one or the other is crucial, particularly when the person is sentenced to confinement, because the classification determines the procedures that the court must follow. There is nothing inherent in a contemptuous act or refusal to act that classifies it as civil or criminal. Rather, it is the character and purpose of the punishment that the court chooses to impose that serves to distinguish between civil and criminal contempt. If the sanction is intended to force compliance with the court's order, the contempt is properly classified as civil. If the purpose is to punish the contemnor for a specific act and to vindicate the authority of the court, the contempt is criminal. (See 2001 amendment.) Huffine v. District Court, 285 M 104, 945 P2d 927, 54 St. Rep. 1065 (1997).

Necessity of Criminal Charge and Due Process in Contempt Proceeding Resulting in Criminal Penalty: The District Court stated that the purpose of its sentence for contempt for practicing law without a license was to compel performance and that the court was thus acting under this section, which allows incarceration until performance occurs. However, in reality, the sentence, 30 days in jail, to be suspended upon paying a $500 fine within 10 days, was punishment for past acts. Therefore, the contempt proceeding was properly characterized as criminal rather than civil because a contempt is classified as criminal if the purpose of the sanction imposed is punishment and civil if the purpose of the sanction imposed is to compel compliance with a court order. A criminal contempt proceeding must be under the procedures in Title 46 to ensure that criminal penalties are not imposed without affording the proper protections. The lower court erred by imposing a criminal sentence when no criminal charges were brought under 45-7-309, creating the crime of criminal contempt, and defendant was not afforded the due process that is guaranteed by the state and federal constitutions. (See 2001 amendment.) Huffine v. District Court, 285 M 104, 945 P2d 927, 54 St. Rep. 1065 (1997).

Ability to Comply:

Under this section, inability to perform is a good defense unless the inability has been brought on contumaciously by the individual himself. State ex rel. Murphy v. District Court, 99 M 209, 41 P2d 1113 (1935).

Where the evidence in a contempt proceeding does not show that it was within the power of the contemner to perform an act required of him by an order of court or that he voluntarily and contumaciously brought the disability upon himself, he may not be punished by imprisonment in jail until he does perform it. State ex rel. Burns v. District Court, 83 M 200, 271 P 439 (1928).

The commitment of a person to jail for failure to pay alimony under this section is void, where the record shows that at the time of the contempt proceeding it was not within the power of the contemner to comply with the order of the court. State ex rel. Scott v. District Court, 58 M 355, 192 P 829 (1920).

Inability to render obedience to an order of court is a good defense to a charge of contempt. State ex rel. McLean v. District Court, 37 M 485, 97 P 841 (1908).

Case Notes

Contempt Order Including Ancillary Order Affecting Parties' Rights Appealable: The Supreme Court generally rejects the direct appeal of a contempt order in a marriage dissolution case that goes purely to the District Court's contempt power and that does not adjudicate any ancillary matters falling within the District Court's continuing jurisdiction over the rights of the parties. In the present case, in ruling on the wife's request for contempt, the District Court adjudicated additional matters relating to federal preemption of division of the husband's federal disability benefits. Thus, the ruling on the contempt order was appealable. In re Marriage of Lutes, 2005 MT 242, 328 M 490, 121 P3d 561 (2005). See also In re Marriage of Coward, 2000 MT 128, 300 M 1, 2 P3d 822 (2000).

Voluntary Agreement by Spouse to Pay Portion of Federal Disability Benefits as Part of Dissolution — No Contempt When Spouse Fails to Pay Federally Preempted Division of Benefits: As part of the equitable distribution of the marital estate, the husband agreed in the dissolution decree to pay the wife a portion of his federal veterans disability benefits. The husband made the payments for several years, but then stopped making the payments. The wife moved to hold the husband in contempt, but the District Court denied the motion based on In re Marriage of Strong, 2000 MT 178, 300 M 331, 8 P3d 763 (2000), in which it was held that federal law preempts the state from distributing Veterans Benefits Administration benefits as part of the marital estate. The Supreme Court affirmed. Even though the husband violated the terms of the decree by withholding payment of the wife's share of the disability benefits, federal law preempted the District Court from enforcing the decree in regard to division of those benefits, and thus the District Court did not err in refusing to hold the husband in contempt for failing to pay a portion of the benefits to the wife. A District Court may not order the division or allocation of any Veterans Benefits Administration benefits to satisfy any marital obligation, be it maintenance or division of the marital estate, regardless of whether the parties agreed to do so in a property settlement agreement. In re Marriage of Lutes, 2005 MT 242, 328 M 490, 121 P3d 561 (2005).

Failure to Show That Justice's Court Exceeded Its Jurisdiction in Holding Defendant in Contempt in DUI Case — Writ of Review Properly Denied: Schaefer was charged in Justice's Court with repeat misdemeanor DUI per se and sentenced to a chemical dependency course, but he did not complete all conditions of the course, so the court held him in contempt. Schaefer then filed a writ of review in District Court, but the writ was dismissed because the court concluded that a petition for postconviction relief provided Schaefer with a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy, so the court lacked jurisdiction. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed denial of the writ, but not because a petition for postconviction relief was more appropriate, but rather because the Justice's Court properly exercised its jurisdiction and because the conflicting evidence issue of aftercare remained in the exclusive jurisdiction of the Justice's Court. Although the District Court incorrectly found that a writ of review was not appropriate, denial of the petition was nevertheless affirmed because Schaefer failed to satisfy the first prong of the test in 27-25-102 by showing that the Justice's Court exceeded its jurisdiction by holding him in contempt. Schaefer v. Egeland, 2004 MT 199, 322 M 274, 95 P3d 724 (2004).

Misdemeanor Contempt Not Enforceable More Than One Year After Sentence Expired: On April 9, 1998, Dexter was sentenced in Justice's Court to 1 year in jail for third offense DUI. The sentence was suspended on condition that Dexter serve 90 days in jail and pay a $770 fine, but Dexter did neither. Sentence revocation proceedings could have been instituted under 46-18-203 during the time of Dexter's sentence, but were not. About 3 years later, Dexter was arrested on an outstanding warrant after the suspended sentence had expired, and the Justice's Court invoked its contempt powers to sentence Dexter to jail time for failing to fulfill the conditions of the suspended sentence. The Justice of the Peace contended that under 3-10-401, contempt proceedings could be brought at any time, and the District Court concluded that the Justice's Court had the authority to enforce compliance with the lawful sentencing order, but on appeal, the Supreme Court reversed. Under the penalties in 3-1-519 in effect at the time (repealed in 2001), contempt of court constituted a misdemeanor crime, which was required under 45-1-205(2)(b) to be prosecuted within 1 year of commission. The last day on which Dexter could have committed contempt was April 9, 1999, so prosecution was required to be commenced by April 9, 2000. Because the contempt prosecution did not commence until Dexter was arrested on January 23, 2002, the Justice's Court lacked jurisdiction to hold Dexter in contempt for failure to comply with the terms of a sentence that expired in April 1999. Dexter v. Shields, 2004 MT 159, 322 M 6, 92 P3d 1208 (2004). See also Milanovich v. Milanovich, 200 M 83, 655 P2d 959 (1982).

Improper Filing of Pro Se Motion Considered Direct Contempt — Community Service Penalty Affirmed: Christian's attorney notified him of the intent to withdraw as counsel of record, and Christian subsequently filed a motion to set trial in District Court, with the attorney's name as counsel and signing the motion himself. The court held Christian in contempt for signing the motion pro se in violation of Rule 11, M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), and sentenced Christian to 1,000 hours of community service. Christian petitioned the Supreme Court by writ of certiorari, contesting the contempt order and the sentence. The Supreme Court noted that its review was limited to questions regarding jurisdiction and whether there was sufficient evidence to support the contempt finding. Christian argued that his conduct was at most an indirect contempt and that, as such, procedural due process was violated because there was no charging document filed against him. The Supreme Court disagreed. The offending document was within the immediate view and presence of the District Court and thus constituted direct contempt. The document was contemptuous on its face because Christian was acting as counsel without authority. The sentence was also affirmed. The District Court had considered requiring pro bono service and also noted that jail time was possible, but concluded that extensive community service was the appropriate penalty to dissuade Christian from similar future behavior. Christian's writ of certiorari was denied. Christian v. District Court, 2004 MT 1, 319 M 162, 83 P3d 811 (2004).

Time Bar on Writ of Certiorari to Review Contempt Proceedings: In a case of first impression, the Supreme Court was asked to establish a timeframe within which a petition for review of a contempt order must be filed. The issue was whether the time limitation should come from Title 25, which includes the Montana Rules of Civil Procedure and the Montana Rules of Appellate Procedure (now superseded), or from Title 27, which prescribes the various statutes of limitation for the commencement of actions. The court noted that there is no appeal, as such, from an order of contempt in a civil proceeding and that the exclusive method of review of civil contempt orders (with certain exceptions) is through a writ of certiorari or writ of review. That review is generally limited to jurisdictional questions and whether evidence supports the contempt. Therefore, the issue of timeliness for filing a petition for a writ of certiorari or review is not a statute of limitations issue, and to mechanically characterize those writs for the review of contempt proceedings as original proceedings governed by the 5-year statute of limitations in 27-2-231 would be to deny the basic nature of appellate review. Further, petitions for writs of certiorari to review contempt proceedings are fundamentally different from other original proceedings commenced in the Supreme Court and from petitions for writs of supervisory control, which do not so much involve appellate review of and a decision on the underlying proceedings as they involve the court dealing with discreet questions of law during the pendency of the underlying proceedings. Because the timeframe in which to file petitions for writs of certiorari to review contempt proceedings is a procedural issue analogous to the procedure for filing a notice of appeal, the Supreme Court held that Rule 72, M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), former Rule 1, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), former Rule 17, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), and 27-25-103 require that the timeframe for those petitions be determined by the Montana Rules of Appellate Procedure (now superseded). Specifically, pursuant to former Rule 5, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), a petition for a writ of certiorari to review contempt proceedings must be filed with the Clerk of the District Court within 30 days of the date on which the District Court enters the contempt finding, unless the state is a party, in which case the petition must be filed within 60 days of the date on which the District Court enters the contempt finding. This may not be construed to limit the Supreme Court's power to grant writs of supervisory control or to consider applications for other types of original proceedings. The Supreme Court chose not to establish a precedent that allows contempt proceedings to be delayed until the underlying cause is resolved. Jones v. District Court, 2001 MT 276, 307 M 305, 37 P3d 682 (2001), overruling Shaffroth v. Lamere, 104 M 175, 65 P2d 610 (1937), to the extent that Shaffroth holds that the general 5-year statute of limitations in 27-2-231 applies to all writs of review authorized in 27-25-102.

Certiorari to Review Proceedings:

The standard for review of contempt orders, pursuant to the granting of a writ of certiorari, is, first, to determine whether the court that found contempt acted within its jurisdiction. For a court to have acted within its jurisdiction: (1) it must have cognizance of the subject matter; (2) it must have presence of the proper parties; and (3) its action must be invoked by proper pleadings and the judgment must be within the issues raised. A court lacks or exceeds jurisdiction by any act that exceeds the defined power of the court, whether that power is defined by constitutional provision, statute, or court rule or under the doctrine of stare decisis. The second part of the standard for review of contempt orders is to determine whether substantial evidence exists to support the court's findings. The family law exception relevant to review on direct appeal of a District Court judgment and orders made in cases of contempt is subject to the same standard of review. (See 2001 amendment.) Lee v. Lee, 2000 MT 67, 299 M 78, 996 P2d 389, 57 St. Rep. 308 (2000).

In reviewing a contempt citation by Writ of Certiorari, the Supreme Court is limited to the following considerations: (1) whether the lower court had jurisdiction to issue the order; and (2) whether there was evidence supporting the order. State ex rel. Foss v. District Court, 216 M 327, 701 P2d 342, 42 St. Rep. 845 (1985).

The Writ of Certiorari is discretionary and is granted only when there has been a showing that the tribunal making the judgment of contempt acted in excess of jurisdiction. State ex rel. Porter v. First Judicial District, 123 M 447, 215 P2d 279 (1950).

Where in a contempt proceeding relator challenged the jurisdiction of the trial court, certiorari is the proper remedy. Supervisory control concedes jurisdiction. State ex rel. Enochs v. District Court, 113 M 227, 123 P2d 971 (1942).

A judgment or order of the District Court made in a contempt proceeding is reviewable by the Supreme Court on Writ of Certiorari, the review going no further than to determine whether the lower court regularly pursued its authority; the Writ cannot be used to correct errors committed in the exercise of jurisdiction. State ex rel. Murphy v. District Court, 99 M 209, 41 P2d 1113 (1935).

Clarification of Family Law Exception to Supreme Court Review of District Court Contempt Orders — When Writ of Certiorari Required — Ancillary Order Exception: Seeking to narrow and clarify the judicially created family law exception to the writ of certiorari requirement of this section that was expressly extended to dissolution of marriage contempt proceedings in In re Marriage of Smith, 212 M 223, 686 P2d 912 (1984), and In re Marriage of Sessions, 231 M 437, 753 P2d 1306, 45 St. Rep. 744 (1988), and to balance the exception with the statute and longstanding Montana case law generally allowing no direct appeal from a contempt order unless the writ is granted, the Supreme Court concluded that it would be poor public policy to create circumstances whereby a District Court's contempt powers are diminished in any manner by one party's ability to file a direct appeal that in turn frivolously and needlessly delays that party's compliance with the lower court's judgments and orders. To cover contentious disputes that arise in family law, the court created the ancillary order exception, establishing that the family law direct appeal exception applies only when the judgment appealed from includes an ancillary order, meaning an order that determines the rights of the parties as a result of the contemptuous conduct—all under one judgment, that affects the substantial rights of the parties. The ancillary order may result from the proper exercise of the court's jurisdiction, in which case a writ of certiorari would necessarily be denied. However, a lone contempt order, regardless of the underlying law of the case, cannot be reviewed by the Supreme Court on direct appeal. (See 2001 amendment.) Lee v. Lee, 2000 MT 67, 299 M 78, 996 P2d 389, 57 St. Rep. 308 (2000), followed in In re Marriage of DeLude, 2000 MT 75, 299 M 123, 999 P2d 306, 57 St. Rep. 331 (2000). See also *State ex rel. Zosel v. Standard for Review of Family Law Contempt Orders — Jurisdiction and Evidence — Family Law Exception Clarified: The standard for review of contempt orders, pursuant to the granting of a writ of certiorari, is, first, to determine whether the court that found contempt acted within its jurisdiction. For a court to have acted within its jurisdiction: (1) it must have cognizance of the subject matter; (2) it must have presence of the proper parties; and (3) its action must be invoked by proper pleadings and the judgment must be within the issues raised. A court lacks or exceeds jurisdiction by any act that exceeds the defined power of the court, whether that power is defined by constitutional provision, statute, or court rule or under the doctrine of stare decisis. The second part of the standard for review of contempt orders is to determine whether substantial evidence exists to support the court's findings. The family law exception relevant to review on direct appeal of a District Court judgment and orders made in cases of contempt is subject to the same standard of review. (See 2001 amendment.) Lee v. Lee, 2000 MT 67, 299 M 78, 996 P2d 389, 57 St. Rep. 308 (2000), following State ex rel. Porter v. First Judicial District, 123 M 447, 215 P2d 279 (1950), and Kauffman v. District Court, 1998 MT 239, 291 M 122, 966 P2d 715, 55 St. Rep. 1001 (1998), and followed in In re Marriage of Coward, 2000 MT 128, 300 M 1, 2 P3d 822, 57 St. Rep. 531 (2000). See also In re Marriage of Sullivan, 258 M 531, 853 P2d 1194, 50 St. Rep. 648 (1993).

Exception for Contempt Review in Family Law Cases: Although contempt orders are generally final and not reviewable on appeal, except by writ of certiorari, the Supreme Court has created an exception in family law cases. In such cases, the review is limited to examining the record to determine whether the District Court acted within its jurisdiction and whether the evidence supports the District Court's contempt findings. (See 2001 amendment.) In re Marriage of Heath, 272 M 522, 901 P2d 590, 52 St. Rep. 915 (1995), followed in In re Marriage of Nevin, 284 M 468, 945 P2d 58, 54 St. Rep. 981 (1997).

Fabrication of Child Abuse Allegation to Deny Visitation as Contempt: A District Court's belief that mother fabricated an incident of child sexual abuse in order to deprive father of visitation rights granted pursuant to the dissolution decree, a lawful court order, is a sufficient basis for a contempt ruling necessary to preserve the dignity and authority of the court. The District Court properly considered the credibility of the witnesses and the weight to be given their testimony, which are matters not subject to Supreme Court review. Woolf v. Evans, 264 M 480, 872 P2d 777, 51 St. Rep. 355 (1994).

Placement of Child Support in Escrow Pending Modification of Support Order as Contempt of Court — Limited Review of Contempt Order: After Gordon and Annette dissolved their marriage, Gordon made a motion to modify the order for child support payments. Pending judicial action on that motion, he placed the arrearages in escrow with the Clerk of the District Court. The Supreme Court held that the District Court order holding him in contempt for failure to pay the arrearages directly to Annette could be reviewed by the Supreme Court for limited purposes and that the facts supported the District Court's finding of contempt. In re Marriage of Sullivan, 258 M 531, 853 P2d 1194, 50 St. Rep. 648 (1993).

Sanctions and Contempt Imposed on Attorney by City Court Invalid: A City Court imposed sanctions on an attorney for failing to appear to defend a client in a DUI case. The attorney argued that he had been required to attend a hearing in District Court and had diligently tried to inform the City Court of the conflict. The City Court refused to revoke the sanctions, adding instead a contempt charge. The Supreme Court ruled that the sanctions were improper in that the City Court acted arbitrarily in imposing them. The Supreme Court went on to reverse the contempt, finding on the basis that the sanctions did not constitute a lawful order and therefore the attorney could not be found in contempt for failing to pay the sanctions. Doran v. City Court of Whitefish, 239 M 94, 779 P2d 68, 46 St. Rep. 1539 (1989).

Jurisdiction of Contempt Case Not Lost Despite Bankruptcy Filing: A bankruptcy proceeding does not divest a state court of jurisdiction over a contempt matter; it only stays or suspends the contempt proceedings. A writ of certiorari seeking review of a contempt order was denied upon a finding that despite petitioner's bankruptcy filing, the District Court had not lacked or exceeded its jurisdiction. Valley Unit Corp. v. Bozeman, 232 M 52, 754 P2d 822, 45 St. Rep. 860 (1988).

Exception in Review of Marriage Dissolution Proceedings: Although contempt of court orders by a District Court are final and usually unreviewable by the Supreme Court in any manner except by writ of certiorari, an exception is made in dissolution of marriage proceedings. In re Marriage of Sessions, 231 M 437, 753 P2d 1306, 45 St. Rep. 744 (1988). See also In re Marriage of Prescott, 259 M 293, 856 P2d 229, 50 St. Rep. 801 (1993), In re Marriage of Jurgens/Turner, 260 M 528, 861 P2d 186, 50 St. Rep. 1202 (1993), In re Marriage of Dreesbach, 265 M 216, 875 P2d 1018, 51 St. Rep. 374 (1994), and Lee v. Lee, 2000 MT 67, 299 M 78, 996 P2d 389, 57 St. Rep. 308 (2000).

Contempt Order Not Subject to Appeal: A contempt order is not appealable. The power to inflict punishment by contempt is inherent in the courts. This power must be exercised by the courts with the knowledge that it will not be upset on appeal. This is necessary to preserve the dignity and authority of the court. St. v. Campbell, 219 M 194, 711 P2d 1357, 42 St. Rep. 1948 (1985); In re Marriage of O'Neill, 184 M 415, 603 P2d 257, 36 St. Rep. 2154 (1979), following State ex rel. Rankin v. District Court, 58 M 376, 191 P 772 (1920). See also Jones v. District Court, 2001 MT 276, 307 M 305, 37 P3d 682 (2001).

When Issue of Constitutionality Not Properly Before Court: The issue of constitutionality of this section was not properly before the Supreme Court when it was not first raised in the District Court and when a notice of constitutional challenge was not properly filed as required by former Rule 38, M.R.App.P. (now superseded). In re Marriage of Robbins, 219 M 130, 711 P2d 1347, 42 St. Rep. 1897 (1985).

Certiorari — Review of Contempt Order: The judgment and orders of the District Court in contempt cases are "final and conclusive", and no appeal may be taken from them. The Supreme Court will not consider matters of contempt on direct appeal. The proper avenue to use to gain review of a contempt order is a Writ of Certiorari. In re Marriage of Milanovich, 201 M 332, 655 P2d 959, 39 St. Rep. 1554 (1982), followed in In re Marriage of Robbins, 219 M 130, 711 P2d 1347, 42 St. Rep. 1897 (1985), Traders St. Bank of Poplar v. Mann, 258 M 226, 852 P2d 604, 50 St. Rep. 509 (1993), and in In re Marriage of Jurgens/Turner, 260 M 528, 861 P2d 186, 50 St. Rep. 1202 (1993).

Challenge to Contempt Citation Improperly Presented on Appeal: If the Gordons wish this court to consider the propriety of the District Court's action regarding the contempt proceedings and to review any underlying supportive findings, conclusions, or orders, it will be necessary to file an appropriate Writ of Review. In re Gordon, 192 M 499, 628 P2d 1117, 38 St. Rep. 887 (1981).

Record Required for Contempt Review: Defendant was held in contempt of court for failure to comply with a judgment entered against him. Contempt of a District Court is reviewable only by application for a Writ of Certiorari to the Supreme Court. Where an indirect contempt is involved, as here, the Writ would command the District Court to transmit its record of the contempt proceedings. The Supreme Court's review would be limited to an examination of the record to determine whether the District Court acted within its jurisdiction and whether the evidence supported the finding and order of contempt. In this case, no transcript of the contempt proceeding was made. The Supreme Court set aside the contempt order for lack of a record. Schneider v. Ostwald, 190 M 29, 617 P2d 1293, 37 St. Rep. 1728 (1980).

Writ of Certiorari Not Proper — Writ of Supervisory Control Proper: Because the Supreme Court did not have a fully certified transcript of the record and proceedings pursuant to 27-25-202, a Writ of Certiorari was not a proper remedy to review a contempt order. But under Art. VII, sec. 2, Mont. Const., the Supreme Court may exercise supervisory power since the relator is barred from using a Writ of Certiorari. State ex rel. Anderson v. District Court, 188 M 77, 610 P2d 1183, 37 St. Rep. 916 (1980). See also Jones v. District Court, 2001 MT 276, 307 M 305, 37 P3d 682 (2001).

Contempt Proceeding Independent of Civil Matter: The filing of a notice of appeal to review the propriety of a contempt citation does not divest the District Court of jurisdiction over the underlying civil matter. Contempt proceedings are entirely independent of the civil action from which they arise. McPartlin v. Fransen, 178 M 178, 582 P2d 1255, 35 St. Rep. 1191 (1978), following State ex rel. Enochs v. District Court, 113 M 227, 123 P2d 971 (1942). See also In re Marriage of Sessions, 231 M 437, 753 P2d 1306, 45 St. Rep. 744 (1988).

Presumption of Validity: District Court judgments whose prima facie authority extends to questions of the kind purported to have been adjudicated are entitled to every presumption of validity. State ex rel. Enochs v. District Court, 113 M 227, 123 P2d 971 (1942).

Proof Required for Punishment: Contempt proceedings are essentially criminal in character, and before a court may render a judgment imposing punishment for contempt, the evidence must establish the contemner's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. State ex rel. Tague v. District Court, 100 M 383, 47 P2d 649 (1935).

Dismissal of Contempt Proceedings:

An attempted appeal from an order dismissing a proceeding in contempt after a hearing will be dismissed. Hanson v. Hanson, 83 M 428, 272 P 543 (1928).

Where the District Judge dismissed contempt proceedings, holding that he was not authorized to entertain them, mandamus to compel him to hear and determine them was the proper remedy. State ex rel. N. Pac. Ry. v. Loud, 24 M 428, 62 P 497 (1900).

Supervisory Control by Supreme Court:

The only way in which one adjudged guilty of contempt may have the proceedings reviewed by the Supreme Court under Art. VIII, sec. 3, Mont. Const., is by invoking the Writ of Review or, in a proper case, the Writ of Supervisory Control. State ex rel. Burns v. District Court, 83 M 200, 271 P 439 (1928).

If a District Court acts, but in a manner so arbitrary and unlawful as to be tyrannical, the Supreme Court may intervene by virtue of the power of supervisory control. But in such a case the court is limited to an examination of the record to ascertain whether there is substantial evidence to justify the order adjudging the accused guilty. State ex rel. Zosel v. District Court, 56 M 578, 185 P 1112 (1919).

The Supreme Court is not limited to review a judgment of contempt by Writ of Certiorari but may also do so by Writs of Supervisory Control. State ex rel. Sutton v. District Court, 27 M 128, 69 P 988 (1902).

Exclusive Power of Court: Contempt proceedings are sui generis, and for the violation of a lawful judgment of the District Court, that court alone has authority to inflict punishment. State ex rel. Zosel v. District Court, 56 M 578, 185 P 1112 (1919).

Case Notes

Municipal Ordinance Prohibiting Outside Employment by Municipal Judge Void: The city of Bozeman passed municipal ordinance 2.06.050 prohibiting the Municipal Court Judge from obtaining outside employment. The city contended that under 3-6-202, it was allowed to enact an ordinance governing the qualifications of the judge, as long as the ordinance did not violate Art. VII, sec. 9, Mont. Const., and also argued that the ordinance was consistent with 3-1-604, which precludes a Municipal Court Judge from practicing law in that judge's own court. The Supreme Court agreed with the District Court that the ordinance was void because it conflicted with 3-1-604 when read in conjunction with this section. The legislative history also demonstrated that the statutes are intended to allow Municipal Court Judges to practice law in courts other than their own in order to supplement their income. Although the constitutional provision prohibits a District Court Judge from the outside practice of law and 3-6-202 requires a Municipal Court Judge to have the same qualifications as a District Court Judge, qualifications should not be confused with restrictions. Although 3-1-604 does not affirmatively declare that Municipal Court Judges can practice law outside their own courts, its intent is clear. The ordinance conflicted with the statutes and was therefore void. Carlson v. Bozeman, 2001 MT 46, 304 M 277, 20 P3d 792 (2001).

Right of Sitting Judge to Run for Another Judicial Office Without Resigning: Article VII, sec. 10, Mont. Const., providing that one holding a judicial position forfeits that position by filing for an elective public office other than a judicial position, requires a Judge to forfeit his judicial office if he files for either a legislative or executive office. While it does not affirmatively declare that a

Judge does not forfeit his judicial office by filing for another judicial office, that is its intent as shown by the minutes of the Constitutional Convention and that is what it means. Sections 3-1-607 and 3-1-608 forbid what Art. VII, sec. 10, Mont. Const., authorizes and are therefore unconstitutional as being in direct conflict with Art. VII, sec. 10, Mont. Const. DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Jurisdiction of Original Judge Retained Following Motion for Substitution — Applicability of 1985 Law: On March 27, 1987, plaintiff moved for a substitution of judge, but the Clerk of Court did not give notice to either the judge or the opposing parties, nor was a notice of substitution filed as required by 3-1-802, the law in effect at the time the motion was filed. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that 3-1-804 did not apply to the unique circumstances of the case because that statute was not in effect until 3-1-802 was superseded on June 29, 1987. Because the requirements of 3-1-802 were not met, the original judge retained jurisdiction. Also, the judge could not obtain jurisdiction through stipulation of the parties. Daniels v. Thomas, Dean & Hoskins, Inc., 246 M 125, 804 P2d 359, 47 St. Rep. 2293 (1990).

Failure to File Certificate of Good Faith: The defendant, acting pro se, in seeking to have the judge disqualified, did not file a timely and sufficient affidavit alleging facts showing personal bias or prejudice. Therefore, the challenge was properly treated as a preemptory disqualification and his attempt to disqualify the second judge by preemptory challenge was void because defendant had exhausted the one preemptory challenge allowed in a criminal case. St. v. Hoch, 234 M 405, 763 P2d 1119, 45 St. Rep. 2007 (1988).

Disqualification Motion at Sentencing Hearing: Defendant filed a motion to disqualify at his sentencing hearing, which was held later than the statutory 20 days before the original date of trial. The motion was denied by the District Judge, who found that it was not timely filed and that no cause was shown for failure to timely file. Citing St. v. Harvey, 219 M 402, 713 P2d 517, 43 St. Rep. 46 (1986), the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the timeliness of a motion to disqualify a judge for cause is an initial matter for the District Court to determine. St. v. Lattin, 222 M 382, 722 P2d 622, 43 St. Rep. 1349 (1986).

Disqualification Motion Three Months After Judgment: In a per curiam decision, the Supreme Court dismissed as untimely respondent's motion asking the District Judge to disqualify himself when the motion was not made until 3 months after trial and judgment had been entered. Disqualification of Judge Upon Failure of Pretrial Settlement Negotiations: Where a judge is to be the trier of fact and he participates in pretrial settlement negotiations that subsequently fail, he should, upon request, disqualify himself from sitting as the trial judge. Shields v. Thunem, 220 M 449, 716 P2d 217, 43 St. Rep. 518 (1986), followed in In re Marriage of Cole, 224 M 207, 729 P2d 1276, 43 St. Rep. 2136 (1986).

Allegations of Improper Conduct of Counsel — No Disqualification of Judge: In statements made to a presentence investigator and ultimately to the District Judge, Gleed alleged improper conduct by his trial counsel. On appeal, he argued that the seriousness of the charges could have caused the judge to take a negative view in sentencing him and that therefore the judge should have disqualified himself. The proper procedure for disqualifying a judge is outlined in 3-1-802; however, none of the circumstances for disqualification were present in this case. Gleed did not follow the statutory procedure for disqualification, nor did he attempt to have his sentence reviewed by the sentence review division under Title 46, ch. 18, part 9. Instead, he raised the issue on appeal, alleging in a conclusory fashion that the judge was biased against him. The Supreme Court held that there was no merit to Gleed's argument that the judge was biased and should have disqualified himself. Sentence was affirmed. St. v. Gleed, 220 M 56, 713 P2d 543, 43 St. Rep. 169 (1986).

Disqualification Motion Ten Days Before Trial: This section requires that a motion to disqualify a judge be filed not less than 20 days before the original date of trial. Where defendant filed a motion just 10 days prior to the rescheduled trial date, the District Court was correct in denying the motion. St. v. Harvey, 219 M 402, 713 P2d 517, 43 St. Rep. 46 (1986).

Affidavit Alone Not Sufficient to Disqualify Judge for Bias: On August 31, the petitioner filed a petition for dissolution of marriage and child custody. A judge was assigned to the case that day. When, on September 12, the petitioner filed a motion for substitution of the judge, it was denied as untimely because unless a peremptory challenge is filed within 10 days of the date the judge is assigned, the party's right to move for peremptory substitution of the judge is considered waived. The petitioner then, on September 15, filed an affidavit for disqualification of the judge for bias. At the subsequent disqualification proceeding, the petitioner failed to present evidence to demonstrate bias. His motion was properly denied because he did not satisfy the requisite burden of proof by raising a strong presumption of actual bias. In re Marriage of Gahr, 212 M 481, 689 P2d 257, 41 St. Rep. 1879 (1984).

No Explicit Authority for Award of Attorney Fees in Disqualification Action: As there is no provision in this section that allows a judge to award attorney fees to a party or damages to a nonparty, such award is improper. Unless a statute provides explicitly for an award of attorney fees to the prevailing party, a court cannot make such an award. In re Marriage of Gahr, 212 M 481, 689 P2d 257, 41 St. Rep. 1879 (1984).

Lower Court Judge Sitting on Lower Court Case in Which He Was Involved: On appeal from dismissal of a disqualification hearing, the court rejected appellant's contention that under this section a lower court judge may not sit on a lower court case when he rendered or made the judgment. The section applies to trial court judges substituting for appellate judges. The court also rejected appellant's attempt to analogize that the judge should be disqualified for bias. Under 46-16-304 (renumbered 46-16-115), the judge could not sit as a juror on the case because he was an adversary in a federal case instituted by the appellant. Thus, appellant argued the judge should be disqualified to sit as a judge. The court, however, held that disqualification for cause is controlled by this section and not by other MCA sections by analogy. Downs v. Smyk, 211 M 374, 685 P2d 347, 41 St. Rep. 1424 (1984).

District Judge Who Had Represented Petitioners in Criminal Case — Disqualification Required in Postconviction Relief Proceeding Involving Same Criminal Case: A petition for postconviction relief was filed in the District Court before a judge who, 7 years earlier, had been involved as defense counsel in the preliminary stages of the criminal prosecution. The petition was denied, and petitioners appealed. The Supreme Court ruled that the District Judge had committed error in not disqualifying himself. The case was remanded for a postconviction hearing before another District Judge. St. v. Hintz, 205 M 295, 667 P2d 434, 40 St. Rep. 1280 (1983).

Relinquishment of Jurisdiction — Reassumption of Jurisdiction: A District Court Judge experiencing a heavy workload invited a second judge to assume jurisdiction. The second judge assumed jurisdiction; defendant moved for substitution of another judge, and a third judge assumed jurisdiction. State then moved for substitution of another judge, and the original judge, no longer under a disability of heavy workload, by order reassumed jurisdiction. Where there are no problems involving two judges concurrently having jurisdiction, the original judge is not prevented from reassuming full jurisdiction by timely order showing that the prior reason for relinquishing jurisdiction was removed. State ex rel. McKendry v. District Court, 201 M 244, 653 P2d 847, 39 St. Rep. 2085 (1982).

Application to City Court Judges: A defendant in an action involving dog licensing citations in City Court submitted an affidavit of disqualification of the City Judge because of bias and prejudice. City Court Judges can be disqualified for cause under this section, even though it does not specifically refer to them. State ex rel. Joslyn v. City Court, 198 M 223, 645 P2d 428, 39 St. Rep. 884 (1982).

Two Judge Disqualifications Unavailable to Postconviction Petitioner: Although a postconviction petition filed under the provisions of Title 46, ch. 21, is civil in nature, the petitioner is not entitled to two substitutions of presiding judges as allowed in 3-1-801 (superseded by 3-1-802). An applicant for postconviction relief is directed by the more specific provisions of the postconviction statute to bring the petition in the Supreme Court or in the court that sentenced him. A specific statute controls over a general statute. Coleman v. St., 194 M 428, 633 P2d 624, 38 St. Rep. 1352 (1981).

Timeliness of Motion to Substitute Judge: On appeal from his conviction for sexual intercourse without consent and for sexual assault, the defendant claimed that the District Judge's refusal to grant his motion for substitution of a judge was error. Although he was on notice that a particular judge would preside over the proceedings both before and after the severance of the codefendants' cases, the defense motion was not filed until 52 days after the defense was informed which judge had been assigned to the case. The substitution motion was clearly untimely, as defense had 10 days after learning of judge's assignment in which to file its motion. The defense urged that the filing of a separate information after severance of a criminal trial revived the right to peremptorily disqualify the judge. The Supreme Court noted that no authority for that argument was cited and said it found none to support it. St. v. Camitsch, 192 M 124, 626 P2d 1250, 38 St. Rep. 563 (1981). (Annotator's note: Case decided under 3-1-801, which was superseded by 3-1-802, but which had same filing period for substitution motion as 3-1-802.) See also In re S.L.T., 215 M 289, 697 P2d 472, 42 St. Rep. 366 (1985).

Affidavit of Actual Prejudice — Jurisdiction to Proceed: Where a defendant previously convicted of deceptive practices and the sale of unregistered securities filed an affidavit alleging specific acts of prejudice against him by a court scheduled to preside over a postconviction relief hearing, and another court found there existed no actual prejudice on the part of the first court, the first court erred in then proceeding with the postconviction relief hearing. The Supreme Court's rule on disqualification is clear that when an affidavit alleging actual prejudice is filed, the trial court may proceed no further. At that point the case comes under the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, and the power to assign a judge to hear the Court, and the power to assign a judge to hear the disqualification motion rested solely with the Chief Justice of the Montana Supreme Court. St. v. Duncan, 191 M 253, 623 P2d 953, 38 St. Rep. 202 (1981). (Annotator's note: Case decided under 3-1-801, which is superseded but is substantially similar to 3-1-802 in portions relevant to this case.)

Disqualification of Judge After Entry of Findings and Conclusions: Defendants filed affidavits of disqualification of the District Judge in a property dispute case after the entry of the judge's findings of fact and conclusions of law. Defendants contend that this precludes the judge from entering judgment in accordance with his findings and conclusions. The disqualification was attempted under section 93-901, R.C.M. 1947 (superseded by this section), which was in effect at the time. The findings and conclusions entered by the judge, prior to the filing of the affidavit of disqualification, expressly directed that a judgment be prepared "in accordance with" the findings and conclusions. Under these circumstances, the judgment was a part of the findings and conclusions. Accordingly, although the disqualification prevented the District Judge from ruling on posttrial motions under Rules 59 and 60, M.R.Civ.P., and from withdrawing the findings and conclusions previously entered, it was not effective to prevent entry of judgment in favor of plaintiff in accordance with findings and conclusions entered prior to the filing of the affidavit for disqualification. Macpherson v. Smoyer, 191 M 53, 622 P2d 188, 37 St. Rep. 2079 (1980).

No Duty to Inform Defendant of Procedure: Defendant was acting as his own counsel. The District Court Judge had no duty to inform him of the law concerning disqualification. Defendant was aware of who was presiding and failed to challenge him within the proper time limits. The Judge properly denied the affidavit because it was not timely. The Judge could not be disqualified for cause after the time limit because defendant's affidavit alleging bias was not accompanied by a certificate of good faith, as required by statute. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698, 37 St. Rep. 760 (1980).

Disqualification of Trial Judge: Membership on a commission which drafted Montana's criminal code did not per se constitute grounds for disqualification of a trial Judge for cause, nor did the acquisition of information during the plea bargaining process or the drafting of preliminary instructions to the jury. Whatever knowledge the Judge obtained was during the course of legal proceedings in the case and not from any outside source. As long as the Judge's preliminary instructions are a correct statement of the law, it is immaterial whether they are drafted by the Judge or given over the objections of one or both adversary counsel. None of these things will support a disqualification. St. v. McKenzie, 186 M 481, 608 P2d 428, 37 St. Rep. 325 (1980).

Conviction Overturned When Rule on Disqualification and Substitution of Judges Not Followed: No published local court rule was discovered, so the Supreme Court rule on disqualification and substitution of Judges applied. There was no evidence that Judge Freebourn (the original Judge) specifically called in Judge Olsen or that Judge Olsen filed an acceptance of jurisdiction as required by the Supreme Court rule. Judge Olsen decided the case. The conviction was overturned because Judge Olsen was presiding in violation of the rule and did not have the power to hear the case. St. v. Daugherty, 184 M 474, 603 P2d 1041, 36 St. Rep. 2180 (1979).

Applicability of Supreme Court Order: When the filing date of the original complaint preceded the effective date of the Supreme Court order for disqualification and substitution of Judges, that order is inapplicable. Town Pump, Inc. v. District Court, 180 M 358, 590 P2d 1126, 36 St. Rep. 282 (1979).

Statutory Time Limit: Under former law, any attempt to disqualify a District Judge more than 3 days after notification that he had assumed jurisdiction was a nullity and did not have the effect of depriving the Judge of jurisdiction. Town Pump, Inc. v. District Court, 180 M 358, 590 P2d 1126, 36 St. Rep. 282 (1979).

Filing Motion for Disqualification Before Motion for New Trial: A Judge may be disqualified after return of verdict but before new trial motion was made. State ex rel. Bellon v. District Court, 140 M 447, 373 P2d 314 (1962); Russell v. Sunburst Ref. Co., 83 M 452, 272 P 998 (1928); Hill v. Nelson Coal Co., 40 M 1, 104 P 876 (1909); State ex rel. Carelton v. District Court, 145 M 287, 400 P2d 648 (1965), where the doctrine was criticized and the statute was considered improperly construed when disqualification is permitted pending a motion for a new trial. And, see State ex rel. Wilson v. District Court, 143 M 543, 393 P2d 39 (1964), where the Supreme Court refused to follow the interpretation given the civil statute and declined to permit the disqualification of a Judge in a criminal case following verdict and before hearing upon a motion for a new trial.

Case Notes

Failure of Judge to Recuse Based on Prepetition Consultation Not Grounds for Equitable Relief: The wife, following a dissolution proceeding, contended that the judge should have recused herself based on a prepetition consultation with the wife prior to the judge's taking the bench and sought relief under Rule 60(b), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20). The judge did not recall the consultation and stated that the consultation had no effect on the dissolution proceedings. The Supreme Court found no impropriety and affirmed. The wife could not prove that she was entitled to relief under Rule 60(b)(2) because the consultation could not be considered newly discovered evidence, nor was the wife entitled to relief under Rule 60(b)(6) because she was not prevented from presenting her case for reasons of fairness or equity because the judge was never Judge's Alleged Interest in Outcome of Case — Off-the-Record Discussion — Failure to Recuse or Grant Mistrial Not Error: In a situation in which a judge, upon assuming the bench, referred several cases to other attorneys, including the plaintiff's attorney in this case, on a fee-splitting basis, the judge did not abuse his discretion by not recusing himself or by not granting a motion for mistrial. Defendant failed to demonstrate that the judge had any interest in the outcome of the case or that the judge and plaintiff's attorney had engaged in any wrongdoing. Further, when defendant failed to ask the court to admonish the jury or to question it to determine if anyone overheard off-the-record discussion between counsel and the judge, defendant failed to preserve the right to appeal the issue. Lutz v. Nat'l Crane Corp., 267 M 368, 884 P2d 455, 51 St. Rep. 810 (1994).

Disqualification in Malpractice Action of Judge Who Represented Plaintiff in Underlying Matter: A judge who had represented plaintiff on the underlying guardianship accounting matter prior to the time that the attorney being sued for malpractice began to represent plaintiff as to the accounting should have disqualified himself from presiding over the malpractice action. A judge may preside over a matter involving a former client if the action over which the judge presides involves a matter different from the one as to which the judge represented the client. In this case, the malpractice action is technically a separate action from the underlying accounting proceeding; however, the malpractice action arose from the legal representation in the accounting proceeding. Default judgment for plaintiff for failure of attorney to plead or in any manner appear was reversed and remanded for a ruling, before another judge, on attorney's motion for relief from judgment for excusable neglect. Shultz v. Hooks, 263 M 234, 867 P2d 1110, 51 St. Rep. 34 (1994), overruled in In re Marriage of Markegard, 2006 MT 111, 332 M 187, 136 P3d 532 (2006), to the extent that Shultz states that subsection (3) of this section precludes a judge from sitting on a case in which the judge has rendered services for a person before an action is filed or has acted as a party's attorney in a separate related case.

Judge Involved in Pretrial Negotiations That Ultimately Fail — Disqualification Upon Request: The Supreme Court held that although it approved of the lower court's attempt to mediate a settlement between the parties, the judge should have disqualified himself when requested by one of the parties because the pretrial negotiations ultimately failed. Schellin v. N. Chinook Irrigation Ass'n, 257 M 262, 848 P2d 1043, 50 St. Rep. 260 (1993).

Disqualification Unwarranted but Writ of Supervisory Control Granted Because of Aura of Possible Bias: Defendant mining company sought a writ of supervisory control disqualifying a presiding judge based on the fact that: (1) the judge's son was employed by plaintiff's counsel of record as a legal intern; and (2) the judge knew and associated with the partners of that counsel's law firm on a social basis, in particular at a university football game where he was invited to the firm's stadium box for a drink and conversed only about football. The Supreme Court found these facts insufficient to disqualify the judge under the criteria of this section. However, the court exercised its power of supervisory control under Art. VII, sec. 2, Mont. Const., to disqualify the judge because the facts when viewed in light of other circumstances, including the appearance of another attorney from the law firm as a witness and a newspaper article describing the meeting at the football game, rendered the realization of the standard that a judge's conduct should be free from the appearance of impropriety a virtual impossibility. Washington v. Mont. Min. Properties, Inc., 243 M 509, 795 P2d 460, 47 St. Rep. 1366 (1990).

Attorney General's Opinions

When Substitute Justice of the Peace May Be Called — Reliance on Letters of Unavailability: How a substitute Justice of the Peace is selected depends on the reasons for the absence of the sitting Justice of the Peace. If the sitting Justice of the Peace is disqualified pursuant to 3-1-805 or this section, only another Justice of the Peace may be called in and the substitute may not be a person qualified pursuant to 3-10-231(2). If the sitting Justice of the Peace is sick, disabled, or absent, another Justice of the Peace or City Judge may be called in if available or a person may be called in who is qualified pursuant to 3-10-231(2) if another Justice of the Peace or City Judge is not readily available. If the sitting Justice of the Peace is on vacation or in training, the substitute is to be chosen in the same manner as if the sitting Justice of the Peace is sick, disabled, or absent, as long as there is not another Justice of the Peace from the county of the sitting Justice of the Peace. In determining who is available to act as a substitute, the sitting Justice of the Peace may rely on letters from other Justices of the Peace and City Judges that they are unavailable. However, after a reasonable time, the sitting Justice of the Peace should contact those who wrote the letters to determine if they are still unavailable. 48 A.G. Op. 11 (2000). See also 40 A.G. Op. 26 (1983), and Potter v. District Court, 266 M 384, 880 P2d 1319 (1994).

Such motion must be filed, with the required filing fee, within twenty (20) days after a new trial has been ordered by the district court or after the remittitur has been filed with the district court clerk. No right of further substitution shall arise in cases remanded by the supreme court which call for additional hearings, but not a new trial"; and made minor changes in phraseology.

Case Notes

Sentencing Judge to Preside Over Postconviction Proceedings: A District Court judge was substituted for the original judge early in Jordan's criminal proceedings and ultimately sentenced Jordan. When Jordan petitioned for postconviction relief, the original judge handled the proceedings and dismissed Jordan's petition. The Supreme Court held that the sentencing judge should preside over postconviction proceedings. Substitution of a trial judge does not suddenly evaporate in subsequent postconviction proceedings involving the same parties, witnesses, and factual background as the underlying case from which a judge was previously removed. In this case, the original judge's substitution in Jordan's criminal action also prevented the original judge from presiding over Jordan's postconviction proceedings. The postconviction claim was remanded for consideration by the sentencing judge. Jordan v. St., 2007 MT 165, 338 M 113, 162 P3d 863 (2007), following Coleman v. St., 194 M 428, 633 P2d 624 (1981).

Validity of Search Warrant Issued by Previously Substituted Judge: A search warrant was issued by a judge who had previously been substituted from the case. Defendant contended that the warrant was void ab initio because the substituted judge had no jurisdiction to issue the warrant. The Supreme Court disagreed. Pursuant to 46-5-220, a search warrant may be issued by any District Judge within the state. The judge therefore had general authority to issue the warrant, and the warrant was not void. St. v. Dasen, 2007 MT 87, 337 M 74, 155 P3d 1282 (2007), distinguishing Erickson v. Hart, 231 M 7, 750 P2d 1089 (1988), and St. v. Vickers, 1998 MT 201, 290 M 356, 964 P2d 756 (1998).

Right to Substitute Judge Not Considered Structural Issue of Constitutional Dimension — No Ineffective Assistance of Trial Counsel for Failure to Move for Automatic Substitution of Trial Judge: In a petition for postconviction relief, Swan contended that trial counsel rendered ineffective assistance by failing to move for an automatic substitution of the trial judge and that this structural error entitled Swan to a new trial. However, structural error is typically of constitutional dimensions, precedes the trial, and undermines the fairness of the entire trial proceeding. Although lack of an impartial judge would be considered a structural error, failure to exercise the statutory right to substitute a trial judge is not of constitutional dimension and is not presumed prejudicial. Having failed to establish that counsel's failure to timely move for an automatic substitution of the trial judge was an error of constitutional dimension, Swan's postconviction argument failed. Swan v. St., 2006 MT 39, 331 M 188, 130 P3d 606 (2006), following St. v. Peplow, 2001 MT 253, 307 M 172, 36 P3d 922 (2001).

No Entitlement to New Judge on Resentencing: Although a disparity exists in law regarding whether a defendant is entitled to a new judge on remand for resentencing, the disparity issue was not briefed, and the Supreme Court declined to address it. Nevertheless, defendant in this case was not entitled to a new judge on remand under either standard, so that request was denied. St. v. Mason, 2003 MT 371, 319 M 117, 82 P3d 903 (2003).

Period for Substitution of Judge in Criminal Cases to Run From Time of Personal Service of Information on Defendant: On September 4, while incarcerated, Dusek was served by the state with a criminal information, supporting affidavit, and motion and order for leave to file direct and was arraigned on the same day. On September 9, Dusek filed for substitution of judge, but the motion was denied because the District Court concluded that both the state and Dusek had been notified of which judge had been assigned to the case on August 26, when the date for the arraignment was set, and on August 27, when the bail hearing was set. Under that rationale, Dusek's motion on September 9 was beyond the 10-day limit for requesting substitution pursuant to this section. The Supreme Court concluded that the District Court was proceeding under a mistake of law because the plain meaning of this section provides that the right of substitution extends for 10 days after service of an order to show cause, information, or other initiating document, not from the time that a defendant receives notice of assignment of a judge. Further, service means personal service upon a defendant at the instigation of the state, so service cannot be satisfied by a defendant obtaining a copy of the information through other means such as discovery. If, as in this case, personal service does not occur until arraignment, then the 10-day period for substitution does not begin to run until the arraignment. State ex rel. Dusek v. District Court, 2003 MT 303, 318 M 166, 79 P3d 292 (2003).

Supervisory Control Accepted When District Court Proceeding Under Mistake of Law Regarding Time Period for Substitution of Judge: The exercise of supervisory control was appropriate when the District Court was proceeding under a mistake of law regarding the period of time within which a motion must be filed for substitution of a judge pursuant to this section. State ex rel. Dusek v. District Court, 2003 MT 303, 318 M 166, 79 P3d 292 (2003).

Petition for Postconviction Relief Required to Be Filed in Sentencing Court — General Provisions Regarding Substitution of Judge Inapplicable in Postconviction Proceedings: Harris moved to substitute the judge in a proceeding for postconviction relief, citing this section, which allows each adverse party one substitution of a District Judge in civil and criminal proceedings. The motion was denied, and Harris appealed. The Supreme Court held that the general provisions of this part do not apply to the substitution of a District Judge in postconviction proceedings because the more specific provisions of 46-21-101 require that petitions for postconviction relief be filed in the court that imposed the sentence. Harris v. St., 2003 MT 258, 317 M 406, 77 P3d 272 (2003).

Motion to Modify Child Custody Not Considered New Proceeding Vesting New Right to Substitute Judge: More than 19 months after commencement of a dissolution action, the father petitioned to modify the parenting plan, at which point the mother moved for substitution of the presiding judge, contending that the petition for modification was a new action entitling her to a change of venue to her latest county of residence. The District Court denied the substitution motion, and the Supreme Court affirmed. A motion to modify child custody is not considered the commencement of a new proceeding and cannot result in the vesting of a new right to substitute a District Court Judge. In re Marriage of Toavs, 2002 MT 230, 311 M 455, 56 P3d 356 (2002).

Joined or Substituted Party Denied Substitution Without Cause Once Thirty-Day Deadline for Original Parties to Substitute Judge Has Passed: Mattson filed a complaint against Montana Power Co. and, more than 30 days following service, moved without objection to join PPL Montana, LLC (PPL), as an additional party defendant. PPL moved to substitute the District Court Judge without cause, but the motion was denied, so PPL appealed, citing Challinor v. Glacier Nat'l Bank, 266 M 396, 880 P2d 1327 (1994), for the proposition that this section entitles each party in a civil or criminal suit to one judicial substitution and contending that the statutory exclusion from the right of substitution pertained only to voluntary intervenors. The Supreme Court affirmed, clarifying Challinor and Taylor v. Matejovsky, 261 M 514, 863 P2d 1022 (1993), to the extent that those cases infer that each adverse party is entitled to one substitution without cause. This section effectively affords an original party 30 days from service of summons to move for substitution, but once the time has expired for the original parties to move for substitution, subsequently joined parties may not move for substitution without objection. Mattson v. Mont. Power Co., 2002 MT 113, 309 M 506, 48 P3d 34 (2002).

Limitation on Right of Subsequently Joined Party to Substitute Judge Without Cause Not Violative of Substantive Due Process: Mattson filed a complaint against Montana Power Co. and, more than 30 days following service, moved without objection to join PPL Montana, LLC (PPL), as an additional party defendant. PPL moved to substitute the District Court Judge without cause, but the motion was denied. PPL contended that this section violated substantive due process by distinguishing between three classes of parties—original parties, subsequently joined parties and intervenors, and third-party defendants—and that no rational basis existed for treating the three classes of parties differently for purposes of substituting a District Court Judge without cause. The Supreme Court disagreed and affirmed. Because the state may not use its power to take unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious action against an individual, a statute must be reasonably related to a permissible government objective in order to satisfy the guarantees of substantive due process. In this case, there is not only a rational basis for distinguishing the classes, but responsible judicial administration requires doing so. Subsequently joined parties and intervenors often appear at a much later stage of the proceedings, and to allow a joined or substituted defendant to remove the presiding judge without cause, after the judge has presided over the case for what could be a substantial period, would disrupt the continuity of litigation, precipitate delay, cause duplication of effort, and waste time and expense while providing little corresponding benefit. The right of a subsequently joined party to move for substitution for cause is preserved under 3-1-805. Mattson v. Mont. Power Co., 2002 MT 113, 309 M 506, 48 P3d 34 (2002).

No Error in Denial of Request for Substitution of Judge Following Remand: Defendants appealed a District Court summary judgment, and the Supreme Court concluded that the trial court ruling was not appealable, dismissed the appeal without prejudice, ordered the District Court to vacate its prior findings, conclusions, and order, and remanded the matter to the District Court for an evidentiary hearing pursuant to the parties' stipulation. On remand, defendants moved for substitution of the judge. The District Court concluded that the Supreme Court's dismissal was not a reversal of the summary judgment ruling, so defendants were not entitled to substitution of the judge. Defendants appealed, contending that the remand effectively set aside the District Court's prior judgment, allowing substitution of the judge under this section. The Supreme Court held that its orders did not involve any judgment on the merits or reverse the summary judgment ruling, thus there was no basis for defendants to seek substitution of the District Court Judge, and the District Court did not err in denying the request for substitution. Williams v. Schwager, 2002 MT 107, 309 M 455, 47 P3d 839 (2002).

Cases Involving Multiple Parties — Showing of Adversity Required to Trigger Independent Right of Substitution: To invoke the right of substitution in cases involving multiple parties, the moving party must demonstrate adversity with a coparty to the action that has already exercised its right of substitution. To conclude otherwise based on the language in subsection (1)(c) of this section, which refers to the right of any party to substitute a judge, would effectively nullify the adversity requirement. The adversity requirement must be satisfied before reaching the classification and timeliness requirements in subsection (1)(c) of this section. The determination of adversity is based solely on the allegations set forth in the complaint. In the present case, rather than demonstrating adversity between the defendants, the complaint simply alleged that all the defendants were privy to and part of a strategy to transfer corporate assets without shareholder approval, which indicated that plaintiffs lumped all defendants together for purposes of culpability without demonstrating adversity. Although the District Court used the term "hostility" rather than "adversity", the court nevertheless properly interpreted this section in requiring adversity among the codefendants in order for the right of substitution to be exercised. Goldman Sachs Group, Inc. v. District Court, 2002 MT 83, 309 M 287, 46 P3d 606 (2002).

Right of Substitution in Cases Involving Multiple Parties — Supervisory Control Appropriate: The question of whether a District Court properly interpreted this section, to require a defendant to demonstrate its adversity to another defendant that had already exercised its right of substitution in order to invoke an independent right of substitution, was an issue of both first impression and statewide importance. Based on these extraordinary circumstances and a particular need to keep an injustice from occurring, the Supreme Court accepted supervisory control to address the issue. The District Court's interpretation was held to be proper. Goldman Sachs Group, Inc. v. District Court, 2002 MT 83, 309 M 287, 46 P3d 606 (2002).

Time Limits Applicable to Request for Substitution of District Judge: Under this section, a party who files an initiating document has 10 consecutive days after service of that document to move for substitution of the presiding judge, but a party who is served with a summons has 30 consecutive days thereafter to move for substitution of the presiding judge. If no motion for substitution has been filed within the time period applicable to the particular party, that party no longer has a right of substitution. In re Marriage of Archibald, 1999 MT 258, 297 M 20, 993 P2d 653, 56 St. Rep. 1030 (1999).

Ineffective Assistance Claims Denied — No Prejudice Shown Under Strickland Test: Applying the Strickland test for determining effectiveness of counsel, the Supreme Court dismissed defendant's claims that he was ineffectively represented at trial, during the penalty phase proceedings, and during the course of direct appeal, including claims based on: (1) failure to object to prosecutor's statements that defendant was intoxicated at the time of the crime, when that was in fact true, and to object to an intoxication instruction that was based on statutory language; (2) failure to object to closing arguments during which the prosecutor portrayed himself as the victim and narrated in the first person (following U.S. v. Necoechea, 986 F2d 1273 (9th Cir. 1993)); (3) failure to object to the lack of corroborating evidence regarding a witness's testimony when the objection lacked merit and would have been properly overruled (following St. v. Rodgers, 257 M 413, 849 P2d 1028 (1993)); (4) failure to investigate and pursue a mental defect defense after defendant's own psychologist of choice found him capable of going to trial (see Harris v. Vasquez, 949 F2d 1497 (9th Cir. 1990)); (5) failure to move for a substitute judge when there was no reasonable probability that the outcome of the trial would have differed with another judge presiding; (6) failure to request a change of venue absent evidence of juror bias and failure to adequately voir dire the jury when there was no reasonable probability that the outcome of the trial would have differed had voir dire been conducted more thoroughly; (7) ineffectiveness in investigating a witness's background when counsel's investigation fell within the wide range of competent assistance; (8) failure to investigate defendant's suicide attempt; (9) failure to object to certain jury instructions allowing inference of the existence of the requisite mental state from the acts of the accused (following St. v. Cowan, 260 M 510, 861 P2d 884 (1993)); (10) failure to object to instructions setting out the elements of aggravated kidnapping when defendant did not specify which of the alternatives in the instruction were objectionable (following Schad v. Ariz., 501 US 624, 115 L Ed 2d 555, 111 S Ct 2491 (1991)); (11) failure to object to the absence of Native Americans on the jury when, given recent census data, counsel could not have demonstrated that Native Americans were underrepresented on the panel; and (12) failure to object to the presence of armed officers in the courtroom (following Holbrook v. Flynn, 475 US 560, 89 L Ed 2d 525, 106 S Ct 1340 (1986)). Kills On Top v. St., 273 M 32, 901 P2d 1368, 52 St. Rep. 608 (1995).

Authority of Replacement Judge to Reset Execution Date: McKenzie argued that the judge presiding over the resetting of McKenzie's execution date had no jurisdiction to do so because the original presiding judge or that judge's successor did not enter an order conferring jurisdiction. However, 46-19-103 rather than this section controls in this situation. Section 46-19-103 reposes the act of setting the execution date and signing the death warrant in the court in which the defendant was sentenced. Because both judges preside in the same district, resetting of the execution by the subsequent judge was proper and the requirement in this section, which relates to the substitution of District Court Judges, did not apply. St. v. McKenzie, 271 M 32, 894 P2d 289, 52 St. Rep. 312 (1995).

Judge May Preside Over Second Capital Case When Judge Sentenced Defendant to Death in Previous Case: Langford, imprisoned on a capital offense and sentenced to death, was tried for a second capital offense stemming from a homicide during a prison riot. Langford alleged that the trial judge had erred in not recusing himself since he had previously sentenced Langford to death in an unrelated case. The Supreme Court held that Langford waived his right to one substitution by failing to file in time, that he had failed to file his affidavit alleging bias in time, and that there was no appearance of impropriety for a trial judge to preside over a potential capital case when the judge had previously sentenced the defendant to death in an unrelated case. St. v. Langford, 267 M 95, 882 P2d 490, 51 St. Rep. 962 (1994), distinguishing Shields v. Thunem, 220 M 449, 716 P2d 217 (1986).

No Waiver of Judicial Substitution Until Completion of Service of Process: Each adverse party in a civil or criminal case is entitled to one substitution of a District Court Judge. Under this section, a motion for substitution must be brought within 20 consecutive days after service of summons. The judge for whom substitution is sought has jurisdiction to determine timeliness, and if the motion is untimely, that judge shall issue an order declaring the motion void. While the time period for exercising the right of substitution is not clear with regard to multiple defendants, the Supreme Court held that the phrase "after service of summons" contemplates that the time should run from the completion of service of process. The right of any party to move for judicial substitution, whether the party is one named in the original complaint or in any complaint amended without order of the court, is not waived until a judge is assigned to a cause for 20 consecutive days after all of the defendants have been served. Consequently, a motion made by any party within 20 days after completion of service of process is timely. Thus, it was error for a District Court to dismiss a motion for substitution made 3 days after summons was served on a codefendant, and because the court was without jurisdiction to act on the merits of the case after the timely filing of the motion, subsequent court actions were vacated and the case remanded for a new hearing after substitution of the judge. Challinor v. Glacier Nat'l Bank, 266 M 396, 880 P2d 1327, 51 St. Rep. 863 (1994), clarified in Mattson v. Mont. Power Co., 2002 MT 113, 309 M 506, 48 P3d 34 (2002), regarding the inference that "each" adverse party, not just an original party, is entitled to one substitution without cause because once the time has expired for the original parties to move for substitution, a subsequently joined party may not move for substitution without objection. In response to Challinor, the Supreme Court recognized that such a time period for substitution could result in misuse in multiple party actions or proceedings and thus adopted an amendment to subsection (1)(c) of this section, effective February 1, 1995. See In re Rules for Disqualification & Substitution of Judges, 51 St. Rep. 1123 (1994).

Timely Substitution — Error in Disallowing Motion: When a motion for substitution of a judge was made within the time allowed and granting of the motion would not have had the effect of causing a violation of the statute in question, it was error for the trial court to disallow exercise of the statutory right to substitution of the judge. Once the motion was timely filed, the judge was without jurisdiction to act on the merits of the case, and a subsequent order by the judge was vacated. Taylor v. Matejovsky, 261 M 514, 863 P2d 1022, 50 St. Rep. 1434 (1993), clarified in Mattson v. Mont. Power Co., 2002 MT 113, 309 M 506, 48 P3d 34 (2002), regarding the inference that "each" adverse party, not just an original party, is entitled to one substitution without cause because once the time has expired for the original parties to move for substitution, a subsequently joined party may not move for substitution without objection.

No Substitution of Judge Upon Remand for Resentencing: This section does not allow for substitution of a District Court Judge when a cause of action is remanded for resentencing. On resentencing, a defendant is not entitled to a new judge or to move for substitution of a sentencing judge. St. v. Willson, 250 M 241, 818 P2d 1199, 48 St. Rep. 907 (1991).

Jurisdiction of Original Judge Retained Following Motion for Substitution — Applicability of 1985 Law: On March 27, 1987, plaintiff moved for a substitution of judge, but the Clerk of Court did not give notice to either the judge or the opposing parties, nor was a notice of substitution filed as required by 3-1-802, the law in effect at the time the motion was filed. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that this section did not apply to the unique circumstances of the case because that statute was not in effect until 3-1-802 was superseded on June 29, 1987. Because the requirements of 3-1-802 were not met, the original judge retained jurisdiction. Also, the judge could not obtain jurisdiction through stipulation of the parties. Daniels v. Thomas, Dean & Hoskins, Inc., 246 M 125, 804 P2d 359, 47 St. Rep. 2293 (1990).

Motion to Reinstate Original Judge Denied: Upon remand of the first case, the defendant moved for substitution of the original judge and the motion was granted in contravention of this section. This section was subsequently amended and applied retroactively to a period commencing before the second judge denied the plaintiff's motion to reinstate the first judge. Under the amended statute, the defendant's motion to remove the first judge was proper. Young v. Flathead County, 241 M 223, 786 P2d 658, 47 St. Rep. 226 (1990).

Timely Motion for Substitution — No Jurisdiction for Order: Defendant timely moved for substitution of a District Judge under 3-1-802 (superseded by 3-1-804 in 1987); therefore, subsequent findings and order by that judge were made without proper jurisdiction. Erickson v. Hart, 231 M 7, 750 P2d 1089, 45 St. Rep. 388 (1988).

Case Notes

Right to Substitute Judge Not Considered Structural Issue of Constitutional Dimension — No Ineffective Assistance of Trial Counsel for Failure to Move for Automatic Substitution of Trial Judge: In a petition for postconviction relief, Swan contended that trial counsel rendered ineffective assistance by failing to move for an automatic substitution of the trial judge and that this structural error entitled Swan to a new trial. However, structural error is typically of constitutional dimensions, precedes the trial, and undermines the fairness of the entire trial proceeding. Although lack of an impartial judge would be considered a structural error, failure to exercise the statutory right to substitute a trial judge is not of constitutional dimension and is not presumed prejudicial. Having failed to establish that counsel's failure to timely move for an automatic substitution of the trial judge was an error of constitutional dimension, Swan's postconviction argument failed. Swan v. St., 2006 MT 39, 331 M 188, 130 P3d 606 (2006), following St. v. Peplow, 2001 MT 253, 307 M 172, 36 P3d 922 (2001).

Limitation on Right of Subsequently Joined Party to Substitute Judge Without Cause Not Violative of Substantive Due Process: Mattson filed a complaint against Montana Power Co. and, more than 30 days following service, moved without objection to join PPL Montana, LLC (PPL), as an additional party defendant. PPL moved to substitute the District Court Judge without cause, but the motion was denied. PPL contended that 3-1-804 violated substantive due process by distinguishing between three classes of parties—original parties, subsequently joined parties and intervenors, and third-party defendants—and that no rational basis existed for treating the three classes of parties differently for purposes of substituting a District Court Judge without cause. The Supreme Court disagreed and affirmed. Because the state may not use its power to take unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious action against an individual, a statute must be reasonably related to a permissible government objective in order to satisfy the guarantees of substantive due process. In this case, there is not only a rational basis for distinguishing the classes, but responsible judicial administration requires doing so. Subsequently joined parties and intervenors often appear at a much later stage of the proceedings, and to allow a joined or substituted defendant to remove the presiding judge without cause, after the judge has presided over the case for what could be a substantial period, would disrupt the continuity of litigation, precipitate delay, cause duplication of effort, and waste time and expense while providing little corresponding benefit. The right of a subsequently joined party to move for substitution for cause is preserved under this section. Mattson v. Mont. Power Co., 2002 MT 113, 309 M 506, 48 P3d 34 (2002).

Denial of Motion to Disqualify Judge Proper Absent Failure to Allege Bias or Prejudice: Plaintiff's attorney moved to disqualify a District Court Judge. The motion was denied, and the court went on to assess sanctions against the attorney for discovery abuses. The attorney contended on appeal that when he filed the motion to dismiss, the court was divested of jurisdiction to order sanctions under this section. The Supreme Court disagreed. Failure to allege bias or prejudice in the motion to dismiss rendered the motion inappropriate and without merit, and denial of the motion was not error. Dambrowski v. Champion Int'l Corp., 2000 MT 149, 300 M 76, 3 P3d 617, 57 St. Rep. 581 (2000).

Case Remanded to Different Judge to Eliminate Any Question of Impropriety: The wife asked that the District Court Judge be disqualified because a newspaper article criticizing the judge cited his handling of her divorce case. The newspaper had also printed the judge's letter and her letter replying to the article. The Supreme Court held that it did not find it necessary to rule on the disqualification issue but stated that on remand, the case was to be heard by a different judge. In re Marriage of Miller, 239 M 12, 778 P2d 888, 46 St. Rep. 1471 (1989).

Failure to Follow Statutory Procedure — Motion to Disqualify Properly Denied: On the opening day of trial an attorney verbally moved for a District Court Judge to remove himself for cause based on an off-the-record comment by the judge 3 weeks before trial that he was acquainted with the parents of one of the parties 13 years earlier. Failure to follow the procedure outlined in this section, coupled with counsel's failure to act immediately, warranted denial of the motion for disqualification. In re Marriage of Eklund, 236 M 77, 768 P2d 340, 46 St. Rep. 194 (1989).

Motion for Disqualification Not Filed Within Statutory Limit: Under former 3-1-802, defendant claimed he was unable to make a motion to disqualify the District Court Judge because the motion had to be filed not less than 20 days before trial, and defense counsel was substituted at a later date so as to preclude the motion to disqualify. However, while the case was pending, 3-1-802 was superseded by this section, which requires a 30-day filing. The change was effective September 1, 1987. Defense counsel was substituted September 29, 1987, and hearing was set for November 4, 1987. Therefore, counsel had 5 days in which to properly file for disqualification. St. v. Shaver, 233 M 438, 760 P2d 1230, 45 St. Rep. 1617 (1988).

When Substitute Justice of the Peace May Be Called — Reliance on Letters of Unavailability: How a substitute Justice of the Peace is selected depends on the reasons for the absence of the sitting Justice of the Peace. If the sitting Justice of the Peace is disqualified pursuant to 3-1-803 or this section, only another Justice of the Peace may be called in and the substitute may not be a person qualified pursuant to 3-10-231(2). If the sitting Justice of the Peace is sick, disabled, or absent, another Justice of the Peace or City Judge may be called in if available or a person may be called in who is qualified pursuant to 3-10-231(2) if another Justice of the Peace or City Judge is not readily available. If the sitting Justice of the Peace is on vacation or in training, the substitute is to be chosen in the same manner as if the sitting Justice of the Peace is sick, disabled, or absent, as long as there is not another Justice of the Peace from the county of the sitting Justice of the Peace. In determining who is available to act as a substitute, the sitting Justice of the Peace may rely on letters from other Justices of the Peace and City Judges that they are unavailable. However, after a reasonable time, the sitting Justice of the Peace should contact those who wrote the letters to determine if they are still unavailable. 48 A.G. Op. 11 (2000). See also 40 A.G. Op. 26 (1983), and Potter v. District Court, 266 M 384, 880 P2d 1319 (1994).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 61 made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1991 Amendment: In (1), in first sentence, inserted "the workers' compensation judge, or the chief water judge", inserted third sentence requiring meeting to be held in compliance with 3-1-1007, and in fourth sentence inserted "or chief justice", after "within" substituted "the time period established under 3-1-1007" for "30 days after the resignation date has been verified by the chief justice, or within 30 days after the date of the vacancy if no notice of intent to resign is given", and after "appointment" inserted "to the vacant position"; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) The commission shall meet to prepare and submit to the chief justice of the supreme court a list of not less than three or more than five nominees for appointment to fill any term or vacancy for the chief water judge. The list must be submitted at least 30 days prior to a new term or within 30 days from the date of a vacancy"; in (2) inserted "letters and public comments received regarding the nominee" and inserted second sentence requiring report to give specific reasons for recommending each nominee; and made minor changes in style.

1987 Amendments: Chapter 344 in (1) inserted first sentence requiring the Judicial Nomination Commission to meet as soon as possible after verification of a proposed resignation date and "If no notice is given" at beginning of second sentence; at end of second sentence deleted "on the supreme court or district court"; inserted "The commission shall" at beginning of third sentence; in third sentence substituted "after the resignation date has been verified by the chief justice, or within 30 days after" for "from" and after "vacancy" inserted "if no notice of intent to resign is given"; and made minor changes in phraseology.

Chapter 651 inserted (2) requiring a Commission meeting to prepare and submit a list of nominees to fill a Chief Water Judge's term or vacancy; and at beginning of (3) substituted "Any" for "The" and after "report" deleted "to the governor".

1993 Amendment: Chapter 377 in (1)(a), at beginning, deleted "Each nomination" and inserted exception clause; in (1)(a)(i), at beginning, inserted "each appointment", after "confirmed" deleted "as an appointment", and after "senate" deleted "but a nomination"; in (1)(a)(ii), at beginning, inserted "an appointment", after "effective" deleted "as an appointment", and before "session" inserted "special or regular legislative"; at beginning of (1)(b) substituted "If the appointment is subject to senate confirmation under subsection (1)(a) and is not confirmed" for "If the nomination is not confirmed" and near end substituted "appointment" for "nomination"; inserted (2) that read: "(2) The following appointments are not subject to senate confirmation, and there must be an election for the office at the general election immediately preceding the scheduled expiration of the term or following the appointment, as applicable:

(a) an appointment made while the senate is not in session if the term to which the appointee is appointed expires prior to the next legislative session, regardless of the time of the appointment in relation to the candidate filing deadlines for the office; and

(b) an appointment made while the senate is not in session if a general election will be held prior to the next legislative session and the appointment is made prior to the candidate filing deadline for primary elections held pursuant to 13-1-107, in which case the position is subject to election at the next primary and general elections"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 15, 1993.

1987 Amendment: In (1), throughout subsection, substituted "nomination" for "appointment" and in first sentence inserted "as an appointment" after "confirmed" and after "effective"; and inserted (2) providing that no nomination is effective unless a vacancy occurs.

When Judicial Appointee to Run for Election: An individual appointed by the Governor to the office of District Judge need not run in the general election in the year in which Senate confirmation takes place if, at the time of confirmation, the filing date for judicial candidates has passed. (See 1993 amendment.) 41 A.G. Op. 52 (1986).

Appointment of Judges: The Senate confirmation of an individual appointed by the Governor to the office of District Judge is required before that office may be placed on the ballot for election. (See 1993 amendment.) 37 A.G. Op. 115 (1978).

3-1-1014. Duration of appointment — election for remainder of term.Compiler's Comments

1993 Amendment: Chapter 377 in (1) substituted first sentence that read: "If an appointment subject to 3-1-1013(1) is confirmed by the senate, the appointee shall serve until the appointee or another person elected at the first general election after confirmation is elected and qualified" for "An appointee confirmed by the senate serves until the next succeeding general election"; inserted (2) and (3) that read: "(2) If an appointment is subject to 3-1-1013(2), the appointee shall serve until the day before the first Monday of January following the first general election after appointment. The candidate elected at that election holds the office for the full term to which elected or for the remainder of the unexpired term, as applicable.

(3) If an incumbent judge or justice files for election to the office to which the judge or justice was elected or appointed and no other candidate files for election to that office, the name of the incumbent must nevertheless be placed on the general election ballot to allow voters of the district or state to approve or reject the incumbent. If an incumbent is rejected at an election for approval or rejection, the incumbent shall serve until the day before the first Monday of January following the election, at which time the office is vacant and another selection and appointment must be made"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 15, 1993.

Case Notes

Term of Office Unaffected by Tenure of Appointed Officer: The fact that an appointed officer's tenure necessarily extends beyond the end of a statutory term or impinges on the following term does not lengthen or shorten the term of office. (See 1993 amendment.) State ex rel. Racicot v. District Court, 243 M 379, 794 P2d 1180, 47 St. Rep. 961 (1990), following State ex rel. Olsen v. Swanberg, 130 M 202, 299 P2d 466 (1956).

Attorney General's Opinions

Tenure of Judge Nominated When Senate Not in Session — Succession in Cases of Overlapping Terms: When the tenure of an individual nominated by the Governor to fill a vacancy in the office of District Court Judge runs into a next term of office, this fact does not shorten the length of the next term. At the next general election for District Court Judge, a successor is elected to serve the remainder of the unexpired term of office. (See 1993 amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 31 (1987).

Term of Judge Nominated When Senate Not in Session: If the Governor nominates an individual to fill a vacancy in the office of District Court Judge when the Senate is not in session, the individual serves until the end of the next legislative session. If confirmed at the next session, he or she continues to serve until the next general election for which the statutory filing deadline has not passed. (See 1993 amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 31 (1987).

When Judicial Appointee to Run for Election: An individual appointed by the Governor to the office of District Judge need not run in the general election in the year in which Senate confirmation takes place if, at the time of confirmation, the filing date for judicial candidates has passed. (See 1993 amendment.) 41 A.G. Op. 52 (1986).

1981 Amendment: Inserted "Except as provided in 3-1-1107 and 3-1-1121 through 3-1-1126" at the beginning of (1); combined (1) and (2) relating to confidentiality and privileged communications regarding proceedings and filed papers; and added a provision in (2) that the Judicial Standards Commission shall make rules for the enforcement of confidentiality consistent with this part.

Commissioner Correction: The exception clause added to subsection (1) by the 1981 amendment did not include section 8 of the amending session law chapter, which corresponds to 3-1-1126. The Code Commissioner included 3-1-1126 in the clause because it had been section 7 of the introduced bill, which was included in the clause; when section 7 was renumbered section 8 during the legislative process, the exception clause, by apparent oversight, was not changed accordingly.

Jurisdictional Challenge to Judicial Standards Commission's Authority to Recommend and Supreme Court's Authority to Impose Costs and Attorney Fees in Judicial Discipline Case: In Harris v. Smartt, 2002 MT 239, 311 M 507, 57 P3d 58 (2002), Smartt was ordered to pay all costs of a judicial ethics proceeding. Pursuant to the order, the Judicial Standards Commission assessed Smartt $52,539.02. Smartt challenged the assessment. The Commission contended that Smartt was precluded from challenging the award because he failed to object to the Commission's recommendation or to the court's order. The Supreme Court disagreed. A party can never waive or consent to subject matter jurisdiction when there is no basis for the court to exercise jurisdiction. Thus, a jurisdictional challenge cannot be waived and may be raised at any time, so Smartt's challenge was allowed. Harris v. Smartt, 2003 MT 135, 316 M 130, 68 P3d 889 (2003). See also Balyeat Law, PC v. Pettit, 1998 MT 252, 291 M 196, 967 P2d 398 (1998).

No Authority of Judicial Standards Commission to Recommend and Supreme Court to Order Payment of Costs and Fees in Judicial Discipline Case: In Harris v. Smartt, 2002 MT 239, 311 M 507, 57 P3d 58 (2002), Smartt was ordered to pay all costs of a judicial ethics proceeding. Pursuant to the order, the Judicial Standards Commission assessed Smartt $52,539.02. Smartt challenged the assessment on grounds that it exceeded the Commission's authority because the constitution does not grant the Commission authority to adopt rules to assess costs and fees. Smart also asserted that the Supreme Court exceeded its limited constitutional authority in matters of judicial discipline by awarding costs and fees. The Supreme Court agreed. The constitution is very explicit as to what sanctions the Supreme Court may impose upon recommendation of the Commission and does not authorize the imposition of the prosecution's costs and legal fees. Rather, the essential functions of the Commission must be paid by the state. Thus, the prior order requiring Smartt to pay the costs of prosecution was vacated. Harris v. Smartt, 2003 MT 135, 316 M 130, 68 P3d 889 (2003).

Judicial Standards Commission Proceedings Not Violative of Constitutional Confidentiality Provisions: Records of the Judicial Standards Commission are confidential until the filing of a formal complaint. After a formal complaint is filed, certain papers, proceedings, and records of proceedings become accessible to the public. In order to protect the reputation of innocent judges wrongfully accused of misconduct, to maintain confidence in the judiciary by avoiding premature disclosure of alleged misconduct, and to encourage retirement as an alternative to costly lengthy formal proceedings and to protect Commission members from outside pressures, a complaint against a judicial officer is confidential until the Commission finds good cause to order a hearing, at which time the Legislature has determined that the public's right to know outweighs the individual judge's right to privacy. In this case, defendant argued that the Commission unlawfully provided copies of an investigation file to its members and the prosecutor, who in turn filed it as an exhibit during the formal hearing, making the matter a public record. The investigation file was never admitted into evidence during the hearing; however, it was included in the bound volume of prosecution exhibits. Defendant did not object at the hearing to inclusion of the file with other admitted exhibits, and thus waived any argument on appeal concerning a breach of privacy. Harris v. Smartt, 2002 MT 239, 311 M 507, 57 P3d 58 (2002).

Authority of Judicial Standards Commission: Where the Judicial Standards Commission adopted in its rules power to investigate complaints on the basis that a judge had engaged in "conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute", the court held the Commission in so acting would exceed its authority, since the Montana Constitution and statute did not provide that such described conduct would be grounds for action by the Commission. Rather, the constitution requires the more serious complaint of "misconduct in office" to provide a basis for action by the Commission. State ex rel. Shea v. Judicial Standards Comm'n, 198 M 15, 643 P2d 210, 39 St. Rep. 521 (1982).

Necessity of Verified Complaint: The Judicial Standards Commission initiated an investigation upon receipt of a letter from a retired District Judge, contrary to its own rules and the statute (which, prior to a 1983 amendment requiring only a "written complaint") required that such investigations be initiated by a verified complaint. It argued that because the Montana Constitution prescribed its investigative authority and granted rulemaking power to implement its authority, the Legislature was without power to specify the procedure by which it exercised such authority. The court disagreed, finding that under Art. V, sec. 13(1), Mont. Const., the Legislature has broad powers relating to removal of public officers and that there can be no inhibition of the legislative power, irrespective of rulemaking authority granted to the Commission, to make suitable provision not in conflict with the constitutionally granted powers of the Commission, including the requirement that the Commission may act only upon a verified complaint. State ex rel. Shea v. Judicial Standards Comm'n, 198 M 15, 643 P2d 210, 39 St. Rep 521 (1982).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 61 made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1991 Amendment: Near end of (3), before "retirement", inserted "disability". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1983 Amendment: In (1)(a) substituted first sentence, allowing Judicial Standards Commission to start an investigation of a judicial officer, for former text that read: "The commission or any citizen of the state may, upon good cause shown, initiate an investigation of any judicial officer in the state by filing a verified complaint with the commission."; inserted second sentence of (1)(a) relating to a verified complaint that must be signed before additional proceedings can be conducted; inserted (1)(b) relating to notice to the judicial officer; inserted (2)(b) allowing dismissal if the judicial officer promises to take satisfactory corrective action; and made minor changes in phraseology.

Case Notes

No Error in Failure to Grant Continuance of Formal Hearing: Defendant requested a continuance of a formal hearing before the Judicial Standards Commission because there were dispositive motions pending in District Court and because the prosecution's witness list, provided 2 weeks before trial, included 15 previously undisclosed witnesses. A continuance was denied, and the Supreme Court found no error. The witness list was provided to defendant within the time limit set at the scheduling conference. Further, there is nothing unusual about preparing for a hearing while dispositive motions are pending, and defendant's failure to do so was not the fault of the Commission. Harris v. Smartt, 2002 MT 239, 311 M 507, 57 P3d 58 (2002).

Noninvestigatory, Work-Related Entry Into Judge's Chamber Not Considered Search: Smartt, a Justice of the Peace, left his office computer on after work hours. A county employee and another judge entered Smartt's chambers to shut down the computer so that a network backup could be performed and discovered pornographic images displayed on the computer screen. They reentered the chambers to note websites from the computer history file and took digital photographs of the long-term history of internet activity on Smartt's computer. The information was turned over to the FBI, and Smartt's computer was confiscated and searched. Smartt contended that the evidence seized from his chambers was obtained through an unlawful search, violated the right to privacy, and should be suppressed. The Supreme Court disagreed. Under St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002), the Supreme Court considers three factors when determining whether there has been an unlawful government intrusion into one's privacy: (1) whether the person has an actual expectation of privacy; (2) whether society is willing to recognize that expectation as objectively reasonable; and (3) the nature of the state's intrusion. When no reasonable expectation of privacy exists, there is neither a search nor seizure. Although the Montana Constitution affords broader protection than the federal constitution in cases involving searches of and seizure from private property, a person may not expect the same degree of privacy in public that is afforded in the privacy of one's home. In this case, entry into the judge's chambers was for a legitimate, noninvestigatory, work-related purpose. Irrespective of whether Smartt had any expectation of privacy with regard to the computer images, the nature of the intrusion did not rise to the level of a search, and denial of the motion to suppress the evidence was proper. Harris v. Smartt, 2002 MT 239, 311 M 507, 57 P3d 58 (2002), distinguishing Gryczan v. St., 283 M 433, 942 P2d 112 (1997). See also St. v. Scheetz, 286 M 41, 950 P2d 722 (1997).

Form of Complaint Not Critical to Investigation of Judicial Misconduct — Dismissal of Writ of Prohibition Proper When Judicial Standards Commission Acting Within Authority: A Justice of the Peace obtained a writ of prohibition barring further proceedings by the Judicial Standards Commission based on an unverified complaint. The complaint was subsequently verified, and the District Court dismissed the writ. The Justice of the Peace objected that his formal verified complaint was not submitted on the standardized form set forth in the Commission's rules, was drafted by the Commission's attorney, and did not identify the specific sections of the Canons of Judicial Ethics that were allegedly violated. The Justice of the Peace also maintained that the Commission violated its authority in investigating the complaint, so dismissal of the writ was in error. The Supreme Court disagreed. The form of a complaint is not critical to the Commission's fulfilling of its constitutional mandate, and nothing in policy, statute, or Commission rules was abrogated by the Commission's attorney by assisting in the drafting of the complaint. Further, a writ of prohibition is an extraordinary remedy available to enjoin a judicial entity from an inappropriate exercise of jurisdiction when no other plain, speedy, and adequate legal remedy exists. Thus, the District Court did not err in dismissing the writ because the Commission acted within its jurisdiction throughout the investigation. State ex rel. Smartt v. Judicial Standards Comm'n, 2002 MT 148, 310 M 295, 50 P3d 150 (2002).

Initial Notice of Unverified Complaint Signed by Commission Executive Secretary Not Violative of Statutory Notice Requirements: A Justice of the Peace received an initial notice, signed by the Judicial Standards Commission's executive secretary, that an unverified complaint of judicial misconduct had been received by the Commission. The Justice of the Peace contended that the initial notice was defective because it was not signed by the Commission members as required by this section. The Supreme Court disagreed. The statute requires that the Commission sign the notice to the judicial officer that a verified complaint has been received. Because the initial notice signed by the executive secretary in this case notified the Justice of the Peace of receipt of an unverified complaint, the statutory requirement was not violated. State ex rel. Smartt v. Judicial Standards Comm'n, 2002 MT 148, 310 M 295, 50 P3d 150 (2002).

Judicial Standards Commission Authority to Institute Investigation — Investigation Based on Report of Criminal Investigation Within Commission Authority: A written, unverified complaint was filed with the Judicial Standards Commission against a Justice of the Peace, alleging judicial misconduct. The Justice of the Peace obtained a writ of prohibition barring further proceedings based on an unverified complaint. Subsequently, a report was obtained from a Department of Justice investigation of criminal charges against the Justice of the Peace. The Justice of the Peace claimed that the Commission overstepped its authority by obtaining a copy of the report and further investigating the allegations when no complaint had been filed with the Commission regarding the allegations in the report. Under this section, a written complaint by any Montana citizen may initiate an investigation of judicial misconduct, and only when the initial investigation indicates that additional proceedings are warranted must the complaining citizen sign a verified complaint. Further, Commission rules provide that a complaint is not a prerequisite to Commission action. The Commission may act on its own motion as well, so the Commission did not exceed its jurisdiction in obtaining a copy of the report by court order and undertaking its own investigation of the subsequently verified allegations. State ex rel. Smartt v. Judicial Standards Comm'n, 2002 MT 148, 310 M 295, 50 P3d 150 (2002).

Judicial Standards Commission Investigation of Justice of the Peace — Writ of Prohibition Properly Modified to Cure Ministerial Defects: A written, unverified complaint was filed with the Judicial Standards Commission against a Justice of the Peace, alleging judicial misconduct. The Justice of the Peace obtained a writ of prohibition barring further proceedings based on an unverified complaint. Subsequently, information was obtained from a Department of Justice investigation of criminal charges against the Justice of the Peace. The Commission sought to vacate the writ. By the time that the hearing was held, the complaint was verified, so the District Court modified the writ, allowing the Commission to proceed on the basis of the verified complaint. The Justice of the Peace appealed the modification that allowed the Commission to cure defects before commencing formal proceedings. The Supreme Court affirmed. The function of a writ of prohibition is to halt proceedings that are "without or in excess of the jurisdiction" of the entity exercising judicial functions. The writ here was to continue in force only until verified complaints were received. A procedural error, such as the failure to verify a complaint, will not be allowed to subvert the constitutional mandate of the Commission to investigate judicial misconduct. Because the complaint was verified by the time that the District Court considered modification of the writ, the court did not err in modifying the writ and allowing the Commission to proceed based on the verified complaint. State ex rel. Smartt v. Judicial Standards Comm'n, 2002 MT 148, 310 M 295, 50 P3d 150 (2002).

Authority of Judicial Standards Commission: Where the Judicial Standards Commission adopted in its rules power to investigate complaints on the basis that a judge had engaged in "conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute", the court held the Commission in so acting would exceed its authority, since the Montana Constitution and statute did not provide that such described conduct would be grounds for action by the Commission. Rather, the constitution requires the more serious complaint of "misconduct in office" to provide a basis for action by the Commission. State ex rel. Shea v. Judicial Standards Comm'n, 198 M 15, 643 P2d 210, 39 St. Rep. 521 (1982).

Case Notes

Conduct of Justice of the Peace Violative of Canons of Judicial Ethics — Costs Associated With Sanction Attributed to Justice of the Peace: The Supreme Court found clear and convincing evidence that a Justice of the Peace violated the Canons of Judicial Ethics by knowingly accessing sexually explicit images on a county computer and by engaging in inappropriate behavior with a person with outstanding warrants. The conduct had a negative effect on the public's perception of the judiciary, and the court held that the appropriate sanction was to suspend the Justice of the Peace from the performance of judicial duties without pay for the remainder of the term of office, and to assess the Justice of the Peace with the costs of the sanction proceedings. Harris v. Smartt, 2002 MT 239, 311 M 507, 57 P3d 58 (2002).

Judicial Standards Commission Proceedings Not Violative of Constitutional Confidentiality Provisions: Records of the Judicial Standards Commission are confidential until the filing of a formal complaint. Judicial Standards Commission Proceedings Not Violative of Constitutional Confidentiality Provisions: Records of the Judicial Standards Commission are confidential until the filing of a formal complaint. After a formal complaint is filed, certain papers, proceedings, and records of proceedings become accessible to the public. In order to protect the reputation of innocent judges wrongfully accused of misconduct, to maintain confidence in the judiciary by avoiding premature disclosure of alleged misconduct, and to encourage retirement as an alternative to costly lengthy formal proceedings and to protect Commission members from outside pressures, a complaint against a judicial officer is confidential until the Commission finds good cause to order a hearing, at which time the Legislature has determined that the public's right to know outweighs the individual judge's right to privacy. In this case, defendant argued that the Commission unlawfully provided copies of an investigation file to its members and the prosecutor, who in turn filed it as an exhibit during the formal hearing, making the matter a public record. The investigation file was never admitted into evidence during the hearing; however, it was included in the bound volume of prosecution exhibits. Defendant did not object at the hearing to inclusion of the file with other admitted exhibits, and thus waived any argument on appeal concerning a breach of privacy. Harris v. Smartt, 2002 MT 239, 311 M 507, 57 P3d 58 (2002).

Constitutional Right to Equal Protection Not Violated by Confidentiality Provisions in Rule 13 Regulating Complaints Against Attorneys: Formal complaints against two attorneys were filed with the State Bar Commission on Practice, which recommended disciplinary actions against the attorneys. In their appeal, the attorneys contended that Rule 13 of the Rules on Lawyer Disciplinary Enforcement violated their rights to equal protection under the law, making a comparison with the constitutional provision in Art. VII, sec. 11, Mont. Const., and statutes concerning the Judicial Standards Commission under which a judge responding to a disciplinary complaint may waive confidentiality. The Supreme Court found the argument inscrutable and unworthy of consideration. The attorneys failed to establish that they were treated differently under the Rules on Lawyer Disciplinary Enforcement from than any other attorney facing disciplinary charges. Part 15

Courts of Limited Jurisdiction Training and Certification of Judges

Part Compiler's Comments

Rules for Certification of Judges of Courts of Limited Jurisdiction: In an order dated August 31, 1994, the Supreme Court adopted the following rules:

"Rule 1. Scope of rules. A. DEFINITIONS. As used in these rules, the following definitions apply:

(1) "Commission" means the commission on courts of limited jurisdiction established by the supreme court.

(2) "Governing body" means:

(a) for a justice court:

(i) the board of county commissioners; or

(ii) the commissioners for the consolidated local government; and

(b) for a city court or municipal court:

(i) the city council; or

(ii) the commissioners for the consolidated local government.

(3) "Judge" means:

(a) a municipal court judge;

(b) a justice of the peace; or

(c) a city judge.

B. WHO MUST BE CERTIFIED. Pursuant to 3-1-1502 and 3-1-1503, a judge selected for a term of office on or after January 6, 1986, may not assume the functions of office unless he or she has filed a certificate of completion or a temporary certificate with the county clerk and recorder in that jurisdiction.

Rule 2. Certification of new judges. A. DUTIES OF COURT ADMINISTRATOR. Under the direction of the commission, the supreme court administrator shall:

(1) send governing bodies a letter containing information on certification of judges;

(2) send to each new judge an information packet containing:

(a) an application for temporary certification;

- (b) a questionnaire on what books, references, and other materials are available in the judge's office;
- (c) a checklist of materials needed by the judge;
- (d) information on the next available training session;
- (e) notification of options in case of failure to obtain a certificate of completion, including information on available study materials; and
- (f) a copy of these rules;
- (3) notify the Montana magistrates' association of the name and address of each new judge;
- (4) notify the commission of the name and address of each new judge; and
- (5) monitor the temporary certificate status of each new judge and report to the commission on the status of each application for a temporary certificate.

B. DUTIES OF NEW JUDGE. A new judge shall:

- (1) return the completed request for a temporary certificate to the supreme court administrator;
- (2) return the completed questionnaire to the supreme court administrator;
- (3) apply to the supreme court administrator for enrollment in the next semiannual training session; and
- (4) enroll with the supreme court administrator for testing for a certificate of completion.

C. DUTIES OF GOVERNING BODY. The governing body shall:

- (1) immediately notify each newly elected or appointed judge of the requirement to contact the supreme court administrator's office;
- (2) complete the notification of election or appointment and mail it to the supreme court administrator's office; and
- (3) verify that all judges in its jurisdiction have filed a temporary certificate pursuant to 3-1-1503 or a certificate of completion pursuant to 3-1-1502.

Rule 3. Temporary certificate. A. APPLICATION.

- (1) A judge shall apply in writing to the commission for a temporary certificate:
 - (a) immediately upon assuming office as a successor or new judge; or
 - (b) within 15 days of receipt of notification by the commission that a certificate of completion has expired or that a renewal will not be granted.
- (2) The commission shall act promptly upon an application for a temporary certificate and may take action appropriate to the circumstances.

B. ISSUANCE.

- (1) The commission may issue temporary certificates to judges under the terms and conditions set forth in Rule 3B(3).
- (2) A temporary certificate may contain conditions considered appropriate by the commission. The certificate is effective for a period not to exceed 6 months and has the same effect as a certificate of completion.
- (3) (a) The commission may issue a temporary certificate to a judge who:
 - (i) is appointed or elected for the first term of office following a general election and after the course of education and training has been held;
 - (ii) did not attend the required course of education and training because of personal illness, death in the family, or other good cause and was excused by the commission;
 - (iii) has failed to obtain a certificate of completion before assuming office;
 - (iv) has failed to obtain a renewal of the certificate of completion; or
 - (v) is eligible for other good cause.
- (b) The commission may issue a temporary certificate to a judge who has received a waiver of training from the commission.

Rule 4. Education and training — judicial education policy — certificate of completion. (1) The commission shall prescribe an annual course of education and training that must be completed by all judges of courts of limited jurisdiction. The course of education and training must include the successful completion of a certification test pursuant to Rule 6, and such other testing as the commission shall authorize. Attendance is required at all training sessions pursuant to 3-10-203 and 3-11-204. Only presiding judges and their clerks in Montana courts of limited jurisdiction—justice, city and municipal courts—shall be allowed to attend training sessions.

(2) The Commission hereby establishes a "Judicial Education Policy" which shall address issues relating to implementation of education and training of judges, including but not limited to: special training for new judges or judges exhibiting deficiency in a particular subject matter, scheduling of training conferences; conference registration; testing; attendance requirements and penalties for violation thereof.

(3) The commission shall issue a certificate of completion to all judges who successfully complete the course of education and training.

(4) A judge must file with the clerk and recorder of that jurisdiction a certificate of completion:

- (a) at the beginning of the judge's term of office; and
- (b) after each general election; or
- (c) every 4 years after the date of taking office.

Rule 5. Waiver.

A. WAIVER COMMITTEE. The commission shall annually name a three-member waiver committee. The committee shall recommend action to the commission on all applications from judges for waivers of annual training, and shall act on all applications for waivers of training for substitute judges.

B. WAIVER OF ANNUAL TRAINING.

(1) To obtain a waiver of attendance at a training conference, the judge must make written application to the commission, stating the reason why a waiver is requested. Except for requests for a waiver under B(2), the request for a waiver must be submitted to the Commission at least forty (40) days prior to the scheduled date the training conference will begin. A notice of the waiver committee's proposed recommendation to the commission will be sent to the applicant five (5) days prior to the commission's action thereon. If the applicant objects to the proposed recommendation, the applicant may appear at the next regular commission meeting and present his or her position to the commission. The commission shall consider the request for waiver and shall advise the judge in writing of its determination at least ten (10) days prior to the scheduled date the training conference will begin.

(2) The commission may grant a waiver of annual training because of illness, death in the family, or other good cause. Only one annual training session may be waived by virtue of attendance at an out-of-state training program.

(3) Any request for permission to leave a biannual training conference prior to its completion shall be presented to the commission and shall constitute an application for a waiver. Emergencies shall be addressed to the commission at the training conference for approval.

C. WAIVER OF TRAINING FOR SUBSTITUTE JUDGES.

(1) When a substitute judge is named to act for an absent judge or perform daily operations on an occasional basis pursuant to 3-10-231(2) through (5), the substitute judge is required to obtain a waiver of training from the waiver committee. A substitute judge must be of good moral character and must have good community support, a sense of community standards, and a basic knowledge of court procedure.

(2) The elected or appointed judge must complete and submit the request for waiver of training for the substitute judge. The prescribed forms may be obtained by writing to the commission.

(3) The waiver committee shall review each request for waiver of training and shall advise the judge of its decision. No more than five substitute judges in one jurisdiction may receive a waiver of training in 1 year.

(4) If the waiver committee does not approve the application for waiver of training for the substitute judge, the judge making the application may file a written request with the commission requesting a review of the matter by the commission. Upon receipt of the judge's written request for review, the commission shall consider the matter at the next regular meeting and advise the judge of its decision. The judge making the request is encouraged to appear at the commission meeting where the matter is being considered.

Rule 6. Certification test.

A. PREPARATION. Beginning in November 1986 and every 4 years thereafter, the commission shall prepare a certification of completion test which shall be administered after the general election in conjunction with the training conference. This test must be used for all interim certification testing. The test must cover subjects commonly encountered by judges of courts of limited jurisdiction.

B. ADMINISTRATION. Under the supervision of the commission, the supreme court administrator shall monitor the integrity of the certification test, administer and grade the tests, and notify the judges of the test results. The commission shall establish what constitutes a passing grade.

C. OPTIONS IN CASE OF FAILURE.

(1) A judge who fails the certification test may request from the commission an opportunity to retake the test. The test may be retaken only once unless there is a showing to the commission of exceptional circumstance justifying an additional retest.

(2) Prior to retaking the certification test, the judge shall apply to the commission for a temporary certificate. The commission may grant a temporary certificate as provided in Rule 3B and may also require the judge to meet certain conditions prior to allowing the judge to retake the test. The judge may be required to review videos, receive special assistance, or complete an independent study of selected materials.

(3) Upon completion of the temporary certificate conditions, the commission may authorize the judge to retake the certification test.

(4) A certification test must be retaken within a period of time set by the commission, but in no event may it be taken sooner than 30 days or later than 6 months after failing the certification test.

Rule 7. Failure to obtain certification — notice.

(1) Upon the failure of a judge to obtain a certificate of completion or a temporary certificate and after the expiration of the period within which an application for a temporary certificate may be made, the judge is disqualified and there is a vacancy in the office.

(2) The commission shall send notice of the disqualification and vacancy to:

- (a) the judge;
- (b) the supreme court;
- (c) the clerk and recorder of the judge's jurisdiction; and
- (d) the governing body."

Commission on Courts of Limited Jurisdiction — Judicial Education Policy: In an order dated August 31, 1994, the Supreme Court adopted the following rules:

MONTANA SUPREME COURT
COMMISSION ON COURTS OF LIMITED JURISDICTION JUDICIAL EDUCATION POLICY

WHEREAS, it is the desire of the Commission to establish uniform standards of attendance pursuant to 3-10-203 and 3-11-204; and

WHEREAS, it is the desire of the Commission to prescribe a course of education, training and testing pursuant to Rule 4, COURTS OF LIMITED JURISDICTION TRAINING AND CERTIFICATION OF JUDGES; and

WHEREAS, it is the desire of the Commission to promote accountability for the material covered during training conferences and provide an educational environment that is conducive to learning;

THE COMMISSION ON COURTS OF LIMITED JURISDICTION adopts the following policy for training of judges in courts of limited jurisdiction:

1. NEW JUDGES — Upon notification of election or appointment pursuant to 3-1-1503 or 13-15-405 MCA, the Court Administrator's Office shall without unnecessary delay, mail or deliver available training materials, together with instructions, to the elected or appointed judge.

2. TRAINING CONFERENCES — Pursuant to 3-10-203 and 3-11-204, the Commission will conduct two training conferences each year — spring and fall.

3. TRAINING CONFERENCE SCHEDULING — At each training conference judges will be notified of the dates and location of the next training conference to the extent that the date and location is known. Judges are responsible for calendaring training conferences.

4. CONFERENCE REGISTRATION — It is the duty of each judge to notify the Court Administrator's Office of a change of address for the court or judge. The Court Administrator's Office shall mail registration materials to each judge at least 45 days prior to the beginning of a conference. Registration materials shall include a registration form, "Tentative Agenda" identifying the beginning and ending of the conference, a room reservation form if provided by the hotel, and other appropriate information. Each judge shall: (1) complete the registration form, including questions relating to the court, (2) make appropriate arrangements with the city or county for payment of the registration fee, and (3) return the completed form together with the registration fee to the Court Administrator's Office by the deadline listed.

5. HOTEL RESERVATIONS — The conference facility will block a sufficient number of rooms and will set a deadline for making reservations. Each judge is responsible for making room reservations within the allotted time.

6. NON SMOKING ENVIRONMENT — Smoking is not permitted in classrooms, breakout rooms, break areas, hallways adjacent to any area used by judges, or during meals provided by the conference. Smoking is only allowed outside the conference facility, in a judge's private room, or areas specifically designated by the conference facility as smoking areas.

7. BEGINNING OF CONFERENCE — All judges shall be present when the conference begins unless a waiver has been granted by the Commission.

8. SIGN IN/SIGN OUT — Judges should plan their arrival to allow time to acquaint themselves with the layout of the conference facility and location of the classes. Judges are required to sign in at the conference registration table and pick up their conference folder during the times listed on the Tentative Agenda. Judges will also be required to sign out after the last session of the conference.

9. DAILY SCHEDULE — Judges are responsible for knowing and complying with the daily class schedule, including times scheduled for breaks and lunch. Attendance at every class in its entirety is mandatory unless excused by the Commission.

10. BREAKS — Classes will be scheduled with at least one (1) break each hour. Judges should promptly return to the classroom before the class is scheduled to begin. Judges should remain in the classroom for the entire session unless a physical condition requires a break more often.

11. CERTIFICATES — Conference certificates will be mailed to each judge after the conference is concluded. Judges failing to attend all conference classes in their entirety, unless excused by the Commission, will not be given a conference certificate and will not receive credit for the conference.

12. TESTING — In addition to the certification test as provided in Rule 6 Courts of Limited Jurisdiction Training and Certification of Judges, judges are subject to testing during all training conferences, depending upon the educational objectives and the material presented. Testing results, other than the certification test, will not be reported on a pass/fail basis, but will be used to determine if:

- 1) the material presented was adequately covered and understood by a judge(s),
- 2) a judge(s) would benefit from further instruction in any area of the law, and
- 3) an individual judge needs special assistance on a specific subject matter.

13. VIOLATION OF POLICY — Judges failing to attend a conference in its entirety, including late registration, failing to attend classes, late for classes or leaving classes early, shall be grounds for action by the Commission. Upon determination that a judge has violated the attendance policy, the Commission may: (1) withhold a certificate of completion, creating a violation of 3-10-203 or 3-11-204, (2) require a judge to appear before the Commission to explain a lack of attendance, (3) require a judge to attend, at his or her own expense, a State Bar CLE or other structured educational class as a makeup, (4) notify the city or county of the judge's violation of attendance policy, or (5) take other appropriate action after considering the circumstances of non-attendance.

14. AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT (ADA) — The Commission will make reasonable accommodations for any judge covered by the ADA with respect to training, certification, and participation at training conferences. Due to the logistics of planning a statewide conference, any judge claiming reasonable accommodations under the ADA should endeavor to do the following not less than 90 days prior to a conference:

1. Notify the Commission in writing of his or her request for reasonable accommodations at a training conference.

2. List with reasonable specificity what accommodations are requested.

Saving Clause: Section 55, Ch. 585, L. 2001, was a saving clause.

3-1-1601. District court council — administration of state funding of district courts.Compiler's Comments

Rights to Court Property: Section 58, Ch. 585, L. 2001, provided: "A district court that becomes state-funded under [this act] retains the rights to all personal property relating to the functions of the court. The property includes records, office equipment, computer equipment, supplies, contracts, books, papers, documents, maps, grant and earmarked account balances, vehicles, and all other similar property. However, the district court may not use or divert money in a fund or account for a purpose other than as provided by law. The county commission and the court administrator shall resolve any conflict as to the proper disposition of property. There is no appeal from the decision of the administrator and county commission regarding disposition of property under this section. This section does not apply to property owned by the federal government."

Guarantee Share: Section 61, Ch. 585, L. 2001, provided: "(1) (a) For fiscal year 2003, the district court council shall calculate each judicial district's fixed budget component and variable budget component. The council shall determine the statewide percentage that the statewide district court fixed budget component is to the statewide total district court budget. The council shall take that percentage of the total district court appropriation and allocate that percentage among each judicial district in proportion to each judicial district's fixed budget component of the total district court fixed budget component.

(b) The remainder of the district court appropriation after the allocations required by subsection (1)(a) is the variable budget. The variable budget must be allocated during the year among the judicial districts based upon caseload need and other factors as determined by the district court council.

(2) As used in this section:

(a) "fixed budget component" means a district court's costs that are not variable with caseload based on the fiscal year 1999 FTEs and estimated vacancy savings, plus estimated costs associated with the three judgeships created by Chapter 454, Laws of 1999, and related operating costs, including but not limited to salaries for permanent employees of the court and the costs of contracted professional services.

(b) "variable budget component" means a district court's costs that are variable with caseload, including but not limited to witness fees and necessary expenses, juror fees, and indigent defense costs."

Direction to District Court Council: Section 62, Ch. 585, L. 2001, provided: "The district court council provided for in [section 5] [3-1-1602] shall address any inequities in disbursements of district court expenses for involuntary commitment proceedings and youth court proceedings and shall present to the 58th legislature a proposal to enumerate specific expenses of those proceedings that are recommended to be designated as district court expenses in 3-5-901." Funding Source: Section 10, Ch. 583, L. 2003, amended sec. 57, Ch. 585, L. 2001, to provide: "Section 57. Transition — transfer of county employees to state employment — preservation of rights. (1) District court employees who are employed by the county on June 30, 2002, and who are transferred to state employment by [this act] become state employees on July 1, 2002, except for purposes of application of the judiciary branch personnel plan, as provided in [section 63].

(2) The compensation of former county employees who become state employees under [this act] may not be impaired. This subsection does not preserve the right of any former county employee to any salary or compensation, including longevity benefits, that was payable while the employee was employed by the county and that was not accrued and payable as of June 30, 2002.

(3) An employee who is transferred from county employment to state employment under [this act] may elect to become a member of the state employee benefit plan on July 1, 2002, or remain on the employee's county benefit plan through the remainder of the plan year in effect on June 30, 2002. For an employee who elects to remain on a county benefit plan, the monthly state contribution toward insurance benefits must be transferred to the county benefit plan. Any benefit costs in excess of the state contribution must be paid by the employee.

(4) Accumulated sick and vacation leave and years of service with a county must be transferred ~~fully~~ to the state as of July 1, 2002, ~~and become an obligation of the state at that time.~~ On January 1, 2004, and on January 1, 2005, the counties shall pay the state 12.5% of the sick leave accrual and 25% of vacation leave accrual for each employee who transferred to state employment on July 1, 2002, at the rate of pay as of June 30, 2002. Any liability for accumulated compensatory time of employees who are transferred from county employment to state employment under [this act] is not transferred to the state and remains an obligation of the county that employed the employee prior to the transfer, subject to federal law and the county's personnel policies. Upon termination from employment, sick leave must be paid out at one-fourth of its value as provided in 2-18-618(6).

(5) The state becomes a successor employer with regard to any collective bargaining agreement existing on July 1, 2002, that prior to July 1, 2002, covered any employee transferred from county employment to state employment by [this act]. The responsibilities and obligations of the parties to an agreement to which the state becomes a successor employer must, as applied to a transferred employee, continue until the expiration date of the agreement.

(6) In the development of a plan of personnel administration for employees of the judicial branch, the supreme court may recognize an appropriate bargaining unit."

Effective Date: Section 12, Ch. 583, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] is effective July 1, 2003."

Retroactive Applicability: Section 13, Ch. 583, L. 2003, provided: "[Section 10] [not codified] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to July 1, 2002."

1985 Amendment: Deleted (2) requiring Justices of the Supreme Court to forfeit a month's salary for failure to decide any matter within 120 days after submission for decision.

1981 Amendment: In (2) substituted requirement that Justices forfeit a month's salary for failure to decide a matter within 120 days for a provision that the State Auditor would not pay a Justice until receiving an affidavit that the Justice's workload was not delinquent.

Transition: Sec. 16, Ch. 528, L. 1979, provided: "A judicial officer, as defined in 1-1-202, who is occupying his judicial office on the effective date of this act shall continue to be paid expenses on the same basis as he is receiving them on the effective date of this act until the expiration of his term of office. All judicial officers who take office or begin a new term of office after the effective date of this act shall receive expenses as provided in this act."

Case Notes

Time Limits on Judicial Decisions — Solely Within Judicial Sphere: Plaintiff contended 3-2-104 and 3-5-212, which imposed sanctions on judges if decisions were not reached or opinions were not written within the procedural constraints and time limits set by the statutes, were unconstitutional. (In 1985, 3-2-104 was amended and 3-5-212 was repealed, thus eliminating the sanctions.) On appeal, the Supreme Court held that under the separation of powers doctrine the legislative branch of government is without constitutional authority to limit the judicial branch of government in respect to when it shall hear or determine any cause of action within its lawful jurisdiction. The time limits within which judicial decisions must be rendered were held to be a sphere of activity so fundamental and necessary to a court that to divest it of its absolute control would be to make meaningless the very phrase "judicial power". Coate v. Omholt, 203 M 488, 662 P2d 591, 40 St. Rep. 586 (1983).

Impairment of Contract and Diminution of Salary — Preventing Legislative Meddling in Judicial Decisions: Plaintiff contended 3-2-104 and 3-5-212, which imposed sanctions on judges if decisions were not reached or opinions were not written within the procedural constraints and time limits set by the statutes, were unconstitutional. (In 1985, 3-2-104 was amended and 3-5-212 was repealed, thus eliminating the sanctions.) The penalty provisions of both statutes required a 1-month salary forfeiture in the event of a violation. Plaintiff contended the penalty violated the impairment of contract and diminution of judicial salary provisions of the Montana Constitution. Defendant contended that since the judiciary imposed the sanctions, the constitution was not violated. The constitutional prohibition against diminution of salaries is designed to prevent lawmakers from exerting control over the judiciary. Even if the court were to allow the indirect violation by allowing the Legislature to mandate a scheme administered by the courts, the statutes would violate the impairment of contract prohibition. Public employment gives rise to certain obligations protected by the contract clause of the constitution. Promised compensation is one such protected right. Once vested, the right to compensation cannot be eliminated without unconstitutionally impairing the contract obligation. Coate v. Omholt, 203 M 488, 662 P2d 591, 40 St. Rep. 586 (1983).

Supreme Court Jurisdiction

Part Case Notes

Jurisdiction Required Before Judgment Effective: It is fundamental that a court rendering a decision in a particular case have jurisdiction over the parties. When the judgment roll on its face shows that the court was without jurisdiction to render the judgment, its pronouncement is in fact no judgment and cannot be enforced. No right can be derived from it. All proceedings founded upon it are invalid and ineffective for any purpose. Ciotti v. Hoover, 237 M 462, 774 P2d 406, 46 St. Rep. 969 (1989), following *Apple v. Supreme Court — Acquisition of Appellate Jurisdiction: Time limits for filing an appeal are mandatory and jurisdictional. (i) violation of the law relating to qualifications for inclusion on the ballot;

(ii) constitutional defect in the substance of a proposed ballot issue; or

(iii) illegal petition signatures or an erroneous or fraudulent count or canvass of petition signatures.

(b) A contest of a ballot issue based on subsection (3)(a)(i) or (3)(a)(iii) may be brought at any time after discovery of illegal petition signatures or an erroneous or fraudulent count or canvass of petition signatures"; inserted (3) regarding court review of ballot statements; inserted (4) defining lead petitioner; in (5) after "challenge a" substituted "ballot issue" for "measure"; and made minor changes in style. WHEREAS, the right of the people to make statutory changes by initiative is retained in Article III, section 4, of the Montana Constitution; and

WHEREAS, the right of the people to alter their Constitution by initiative is retained in Article XIV, section 9, of the Montana Constitution."

Negligent Homicide Charges After DUI Guilty Plea — Supervisory Control to Avoid Double Jeopardy Trial: If the District Court's conclusion that the Justice's Court plea of guilty to DUI did not bar subsequent prosecution of two negligent homicide charges arising out of the same auto accident as the DUI charge is proved, on appeal, to be incorrect, the defendant will have been subjected to prosecution even though double jeopardy entitled him to avoid prosecution altogether. Thus, it is clear that an appeal would not be an adequate remedy, and the defendant's application to the Supreme Court for a writ of supervisory control presented legal issues appropriate for the Supreme Court's consideration and would be accepted and decided. State ex rel. Booth v. District Court, 1998 MT 344, 292 M 371, 972 P2d 325, 55 St. Rep. 1395 (1998), followed in Montanans for the Coal Trust v. St., 2000 MT 13, 298 M 69, 996 P2d 856, 57 St. Rep. 73 (2000).

Factors Necessary for Acceptance of Original Jurisdiction: Once standing to bring an action is established, the question shifts to whether the action meets the necessary factors for the Supreme Court to accept original jurisdiction. Assumption of original jurisdiction is proper when: (1) constitutional issues of major statewide importance are involved; (2) the case involves purely legal questions of statutory and constitutional construction; and (3) urgency and emergency factors exist, making the normal appeal process inadequate. Butte-Silver Bow Local Gov't v. St., 235 M 398, 768 P2d 327, 46 St. Rep. 87 (1989), followed in State ex rel. Gould v. Cooney, 253 M 90, 831 P2d 593, 49 St. Rep. 410 (1992), and *Montanans for the Coal Trust v. Factors in Determining Original Jurisdiction: The three major factors necessary for a valid exercise of Supreme Court original jurisdiction are where: (1) constitutional issues of major statewide importance are involved; (2) the questions involved are purely legal questions of statutory or constitutional construction; and (3) urgency and emergency factors exist, making the normal appeal process inadequate. White v. St., 233 M 81, 759 P2d 971, 45 St. Rep. 1310 (1988).

Certified Question — Interspousal Tort Immunity Abolished: In an original proceeding for declaratory judgment on two certified questions from U.S. District Court, the Supreme Court held that it abolished the defense of interspousal tort immunity in Miller v. Fallon County, 222 M 214, 721 P2d 342, 43 St. Rep. 1185 (1986), because historical reasons for that immunity were no longer valid. Therefore, that doctrine did not bar claim of wife-passenger against her husband-driver for negligence in operation of motor vehicle. Noone v. Fink, 222 M 273, 721 P2d 1275, 43 St. Rep. 1258 (1986).

Declaratory Judgment on Requiring Prepayment of Jury Fees by Party Demanding Jury: The Supreme Court took original jurisdiction of, and heard, a petition for a declaratory judgment that it was unconstitutional to require prepayment, by a party requesting a civil jury trial, of each day's jury fees at or before the end of the prior day. The requirement was contained in Rule 14F, M.J.C.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 22) (superseded, 1990, see Title 25, ch. 23). There was a justiciable controversy of statewide impact in that the rule applied to all justice courts; delay could abridge vital constitutional rights of litigants; the purpose of the declaratory judgment would serve the office of a writ, and the court has jurisdiction to issue, hear, and determine writs; and it would promote judicial economy to accept jurisdiction rather than force piecemeal litigation on the constitutionality of the rule. The court said that the prepayment requirement was contained in the rule and 3-15-203, which provided that "In civil actions, the jurors' fees must be paid by the party demanding the jury and taxed as costs against the losing party", and declared both the statute and rule unconstitutional. Hammer v. Justice Court, 222 M 35, 720 P2d 281, 43 St. Rep. 1040 (1986).

Supreme Court Original Jurisdiction Over Declaratory Action Concerning Statewide Water Adjudication: The Supreme Court had power to determine an action for declaratory judgment involving the constitutionality of the requirement in 85-2-234 that final water decrees state "the amount of water, rate, and volume, included in the right". The issue affects all rights in the statewide adjudication process. Determination of the issue by the Supreme Court: (1) will provide guidance to the water court; (2) is in the interests of judicial economy; and (3) would serve the public policy of the state by expediting the determination of existing water rights. McDonald v. St., 220 M 519, 722 P2d 598, 43 St. Rep. 576 (1986), rehearing denied, 220 M 519, 722 P2d 598, 43 St. Rep. 1397 (1986).

Citizen Taxpayer — Standing to Challenge Revenue Bonds: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. Plaintiff, in his complaint, alleged that he was a citizen, resident, elector, and taxpayer. Prior cases held that in order to establish standing to sue a governmental entity: (1) the issue for review must represent a case or controversy; (2) the complaining party must allege past, present, or threatened injury to a property or civil rights; and (3) the alleged injury must be distinguishable from injury to the public generally, but need not be exclusive to the complaining party. The Supreme Court added a further exception. The court stated that it would recognize the standing of a taxpayer, without more, to question the constitutional validity of a tax or use of tax money where the issue or issues presented directly affect the constitutional validity of the state or its political subdivisions acting to collect the tax, issue bonds, or use the proceeds thereof. The court said it would accept original jurisdiction of such suits when special circumstances exist, presenting issues of urgent or emergency nature and requiring speedy determination. Grossman v. St., 209 M 427, 682 P2d 1319, 41 St. Rep. 804 (1984), followed in Montanans for the Coal Trust v. St., 2000 MT 13, 298 M 69, 996 P2d 856, 57 St. Rep. 73 (2000).

Original Jurisdiction — Declaratory Judgments: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. The bonds would be financed by coal severance taxes to provide proceeds for development of state water resources. The Supreme Court accepted original jurisdiction of the declaratory judgment action. The court relied on Forty-Second Legislative Assembly v. Lennon, 156 M 416, 481 P2d 330 (1971), and the transcripts of the 1972 Constitutional Convention proceedings to determine that the original jurisdiction of the court as contained in the 1889 Montana Constitution was intended to be continued in the 1972 Montana Constitution. The court held that it does have original jurisdiction to accept declaratory judgment proceedings when the issues have impact of major importance on a statewide basis or upon a major segment of the state and when the purpose of the declaratory judgment proceedings will serve the office of a writ provided by law in accordance with Art. VII, sec. 2(1), Mont. Const. Grossman v. St., 209 M 427, 682 P2d 1319, 41 St. Rep. 804 (1984), followed in Ingraham v. Champion Int'l, 243 M 42, 793 P2d 769, 47 St. Rep. 650 (1990).

Voters' Standing to Challenge Restriction on Judge Running for Office: Sections 3-1-607 and 3-1-608 forbid what Art. VII, sec. 10, Mont. Const., allows in that they require a Supreme Court Justice or Chief Justice or a District Court Judge to resign if he becomes a candidate for any elective office, while Art. VII, sec. 10, Mont. Const., provides that such a person does not have to resign if he runs for another judicial office. Standing to challenge the constitutionality of 3-1-607 and 3-1-608 existed where a petition for declaratory judgment was brought by registered voters and the two statutes adversely affected the election process contemplated by the constitution. The registered voters had standing to assert the public interest clearly intended by Art. VII, sec. 10, Mont. Const., to assert the integrity and supremacy of the constitution, and to assert the public interest in challenging the legality of legislative action that allegedly flies in the face of the constitution. The Comm. for an Effective Judiciary v. St., 209 M 105, 679 P2d 1223, 41 St. Rep. 581 (1984). See also Butte-Silver Bow Local Gov't v. St., 235 M 398, 768 P2d 327, 46 St. Rep. 87 (1989).

Supervisory Control to Grant Venue Change Wrongly Denied Below: If, upon presentation of a matter to the Montana Supreme Court by means of a writ, it is apparent from the record that a relator will be deprived of a fundamental right, both justice and judicial economy require the court to then resolve the issue in favor of relator. Court's assumption of jurisdiction upon a petition for a Writ of Supervisory Control in which the issue was whether District Court abused its discretion in denying motion for a change of venue was not premature, and the writ was granted. State ex rel. Coburn v. Bennett, 202 M 20, 655 P2d 502, 39 St. Rep. 2300 (1982), followed, as to the grant of a writ to preserve a fundamental right, in Woirhay v. District Court, 1998 MT 320, 292 M 185, 972 P2d 800, 55 St. Rep. 1298 (1998).

Interlocutory Review of Interrogatories Rulings — Untimely Requests: Application for a Writ of Supervisory Control seeking reversal of the lower court's order denying applicant's objections to interrogatories was untimely and in violation of lower court's order (which constituted a ground for refusing to accept jurisdiction) where it was not made until 40 days after the time set by the lower court for answering the interrogatories. State ex rel. Guarantee Ins. Co. v. District Court, 194 M 64, 634 P2d 648, 38 St. Rep. 1682 (1981).

Interlocutory Review of Interrogatories Rulings — Exhaustion of Remedies: Applicant for a Writ of Supervisory Control seeking reversal of the lower court's order denying applicant's objections to interrogatories failed to exhaust its remedies in the lower court where it did not apply there for a protective order under Rule 26(c), M.R.Civ.P., or for an order under Rule 37(a)(4), M.R.Civ.P., assessing costs and attorney fees against its opponent should the lower court order be reversed on appeal. State ex rel. Guarantee Ins. Co. v. District Court, 194 M 64, 634 P2d 648, 38 St. Rep. 1682 (1981).

Interlocutory Review of Interrogatories Rulings — Judicial Policy: Policy considerations supported refusal of the Supreme Court to accept jurisdiction over a petition for an extraordinary writ to review denial of objections to interrogatories propounded to a party that did not exhaust its remedies below and that made untimely application for the writ. A Supreme Court policy of interjecting itself into interlocutory review of lower court rulings on interrogatories and objections thereto would make it difficult for the lower courts to control day-to-day trial administration, open a Pandora's box of abuses, defeat the goal of speedy, inexpensive, and just discovery of the facts upon which each party's right of action depends, and might bury the Supreme Court in a paper blizzard of applications for supervisory control to review lower court rulings on pretrial discovery. State ex rel. Guarantee Ins. Co. v. District Court, 194 M 64, 634 P2d 648, 38 St. Rep. 1682 (1981), followed in Preston v. District Court, 282 M 200, 936 P2d 814, 54 St. Rep. 312 (1997).

Closure of Voir Dire Examination to Public and Press Vacated: At the commencement of Gene Austad's trial, the District Court directed that the individual voir dire examination of prospective jurors be closed to the press and public. The Great Falls Tribune filed an original proceeding in the Supreme Court seeking a Writ of Supervisory Control. The Supreme Court directed the District Court to allow the press and public to attend the voir dire examination. The court found that there is nothing in subjecting the prospective jurors to an open and public voir dire examination that would deny or impair Austad's right to a speedy trial. The Montana Constitution imposes a stricter standard in order to authorize closure of a trial than does the United States Constitution. Great Falls Tribune v. District Court, 186 M 433, 608 P2d 116, 37 St. Rep. 502 (1980).

Writ of Supervisory Control Denied — Remedy by Appeal Adequate: Review by Writ of Supervisory Control of the decision of a District Court that resulted in an estimated tax loss of over $2 million and that also will result in appeals to the District Courts of 25 counties was denied since the decision of the District Court had been appealed to the Supreme Court and was ready to be set for the next court calendar. The remedy by appeal was adequate, precluding review by supervisory control. Dept. of Revenue v. St. Tax Appeal Bd., 185 M 172, 605 P2d 170, 37 St. Rep. 24 (1980).

Writ of Supervisory Control — Lower Court Order to Seek: The Writ of Supervisory Control was denied even though petitioner was ordered by the lower court to seek the Writ to determine jurisdiction in a child custody case. State ex rel. Jennings v. District Court, 178 M 187, 582 P2d 1260, 35 St. Rep. 1264 (1978).

Habeas Corpus — Exhaustion of Remedies — Procedures — Interstate Corrections: Petition for a Writ of Habeas Corpus was denied prisoner convicted in Montana but imprisoned in Nevada because state remedies had not been exhausted. Evans v. Wolff, 427 F. Supp. 400, 34 St. Rep. 190 (D.C. Mont. 1977).

Conservator's Exercise of Reasonable Judgment Regarding Lease of Estate Property — Remand for Audit of Leasing Arrangement: The District Court appointed Saylor's stepson, Tim, as temporary guardian. Saylor and her brother, Deane, both filed written objections to the appointment, and the District Court then approved an agreement that made Deane the limited guardian and conservator of Saylor's out-of-state property and Tim the conservator of Saylor's Montana property. Saylor and Deane subsequently moved to remove Tim as conservator based on his failure to disclose certain financial documents relating to his administration of the estate. Tim had entered a grazing lease on Saylor's property that Saylor contended provided no material benefit to the estate. The District Court found no good cause to remove Tim as conservator and dismissed the petition for removal. On appeal, the Supreme Court noted that conservators are under the same duties as trustees and held that Tim exercised reasonable judgment regarding the lease arrangement and did not breach his duty as conservator so as to require his removal. Saylor's proposed substitute model lease was unrealistic. However, as a matter of equity, the Supreme Court remanded with instructions that the District Court order an audit of the lease arrangement to ensure that the figures attached to the lease conform to actualities and to allow the District Court to revise its prior determinations should the audit reveal facts that would require revision. In re Guardianship & Conservatorship of Saylor, 2005 MT 236, 328 M 415, 121 P3d 532 (2005).

Writ of Supervisory Control Inappropriate in Appealing Department of Corrections' Decision Regarding Good Time Allowance — Writ of Habeas Corpus Granted: Inmate Eisenman applied to the Supreme Court for a writ of supervisory control and moved to proceed in forma pauperis, requesting that the court order the Department of Corrections to direct the reduction of his sentence for good time served. Supervisory control is an extraordinary remedy that is appropriate only when a District Court is proceeding upon a mistake of law that, if not corrected, would cause significant injustice and when the remedy by appeal is inadequate. The Supreme Court held that a writ of supervisory control was inappropriate in this case because the court's power to issue that writ extends only to inferior courts, not to other governmental agencies. Eisenman's claims were more appropriately asserted by a writ of habeas corpus because habeas corpus relief is available to every imprisoned person. The state claimed that a writ of habeas corpus was not appropriate either because Eisenman failed to plead that he would be entitled to release if he received the good time credits as requested. However, under Peyton v. Rowe, 391 US 54 (1968), and Garlotte v. Fordice, 515 US 39 (1995), immediate physical release is not the only remedy available under a writ of habeas corpus, so it was not premature to consider a habeas corpus petition prior to Eisenman's release. The Supreme Court thus considered Eisenman's application for writ of supervisory control to be a petition for writ of habeas corpus and proceeded to consider the good time issue on that basis. Eisenman v. St., 2000 MT 170, 300 M 322, 5 P3d 542, 57 St. Rep. 704 (2000).

Closing Argument Seeking Punitive Damages — Not Prejudicial: In his closing argument, the plaintiff's attorney urged the jury to award the plaintiff the amount requested so that the defendant would not continue to engage in the same kind of activity in the future. The defendant argued that the plaintiff's attorney's statements sought punitive damages that were not an issue in the case and therefore prejudiced the defendant. The Supreme Court held that the statement was not so prejudicial as to deny the defendant a fair trial and that there was no evidence that the verdict was inflated in any way. Kalanick v. Burlington N. RR Co., 242 M 45, 788 P2d 901, 47 St. Rep. 532 (1990).

Accusation of District Court Judge Misconduct First Raised on Appeal — Supreme Court Not to Consider: In reviewing a child custody modification determination, the Supreme Court refused to consider an affidavit submitted to the Supreme Court alleging an improper ex parte communication between the District Court Judge and a person interested in the proceeding. Appellant had made no motion for a mistrial or to remove the District Court Judge from the case, nor had appellant mentioned the alleged misconduct on the record. In re Marriage of Stout, 216 M 342, 701 P2d 729, 42 St. Rep. 856 (1985).

Judicial Notice of Maps and Descriptions on Appeal: In a dispute over control of an irrigation district's headgate, the Supreme Court permitted submission on appeal of government survey descriptions and maps that had not been introduced as evidence at trial. The court reasoned: first, that the commission comments to Rule 201, Montana Rules of Evidence, indicate that published maps or charts are included within the Rule's scope; and second, that maps and descriptions are acceptable articles of evidence by which to show a water right in the adjudication process. In re Establishment & Organization of Ward Irrigation District, 216 M 315, 701 P2d 721, 42 St. Rep. 824 (1985), distinguished in Frank v. Harding, 1998 MT 215, 290 M 448, 965 P2d 254, 55 St. Rep. 903 (1998).

Stipulation of Facts: Where the facts set forth in the opinion were stipulated and no objections made to their sufficiency or correctness, the Supreme Court is in as advantageous a position to do justice in the cause as was the trial court. No presumption obtains in such a case as to the correctness of the trial court's decision since Supreme Court is empowered to review the record completely. Pluhar v. Guderjahn, 134 M 46, 328 P2d 129 (1958).

Constitutionality: This section does not purport to impose on the Supreme Court any additional jurisdiction and hence is not unconstitutional. Finlen v. Heinze, 32 M 354, 80 P 918 (1905).

JURISDICTION AND FORUM

Underlying Case on Appeal to Supreme Court — Statutory Petition Process Terminated — Lack of District Court Jurisdiction: Plaintiffs' property was part of a dispute to exclude certain property from the Missoula irrigation district. Following the District Court's exclusion of property from the irrigation district, the case was appealed to the Supreme Court. While that case was pending on appeal, the District Court granted another petition by plaintiffs to exclude another four properties from the irrigation district. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed. Once the underlying case was appealed to the Supreme Court, the District Court lost its jurisdiction to act further in the matter and had no jurisdiction to entertain plaintiffs' second petition or to exclude additional properties while the case was on appeal. Additionally, the petition process that plaintiffs used to file the second petition under former 85-7-1846 was terminated nearly 5 years before the petition was filed. Thus, the District Court had no jurisdiction to entertain a petition filed under a statutory process that was no longer in place. Larango v. Missoula Irrigation District, 2004 MT 369, 324 M 534, 103 P3d 552 (2004). See also Lewistown Propane Co. v. Moncur, 2002 MT 349, 313 M 368, 61 P3d 780 (2002).

Out-of-Time Appeal in Criminal Matters — Exclusive Jurisdiction With Supreme Court: Under 46-20-101, the only method for review in criminal cases is by notice of appeal. Time limits for filing an appeal are mandatory and jurisdictional. If a defendant takes no action to perfect an appeal within 90 days of judgment, the District Court loses its jurisdiction and the appeal is out-of-time. However, an out-of-time appeal is a remedy that may be available to a criminal defendant who, through no fault of the defendant, misses a deadline for filing an appeal. Although former Rule 21(b), M.R.App.P. (now superseded), precludes an out-of-time appeal in a civil case, the Supreme Court is not precluded from addressing a motion for an out-of-time appeal in a criminal case. Further, a District Court lacks jurisdiction to grant an out-of-time appeal. The Supreme Court has exclusive jurisdiction to grant a motion for an out-of-time appeal, and the motion is considered an original proceeding subject to the provisions of former Rule 17, M.R.App.P. (now superseded). Upon a showing that the failure to timely notice a criminal appeal was excusable under the circumstances, the Supreme Court may conclude that an out-of-time appeal is the appropriate remedy pursuant to former Rule 21(b), M.R.App.P. (now superseded). In that event, the matter will be remanded to the District Court with instructions to vacate and reenter judgment to afford the defendant a second opportunity to act within the statutory timeframes for filing notice of appeal. St. v. Tweed, 2002 MT 286, 312 M 482, 59 P3d 1105 (2002).

Involuntary Satisfaction of Judgment — Request for Stay of Execution Not Required: Following entry and satisfaction of judgment in District Court, the parties were aware of a contemplated appeal, but no stay of execution was requested or supersedeas bond posted. After plaintiff acquired title to the disputed property pursuant to the judgment, defendant filed a notice of appeal and lis pendens, effectively preserving the status quo pending appeal. Plaintiff moved to dismiss, contending that by voluntarily satisfying the judgment, defendants waived their right to appeal. Applying Turner v. Mtn. Eng'r & Constr., Inc., 276 M 55, 915 P2d 799, 53 St. Rep. 23 (1996), the Supreme Court held that the parties' course of conduct illustrated the involuntary, rather than voluntary nature of the satisfaction of judgment. Because satisfaction was involuntary, the right to appeal was not waived. Further, under former Rule 7, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), a party may request a stay of execution, but the request is not mandatory, even though a party choosing not to seek a stay runs the risk of having the appeal become moot. Plaintiff's motion to dismiss was denied. Kennedy v. Dawson, 1999 MT 265, 296 M 430, 989 P2d 390, 56 St. Rep. 1078 (1999).

Power of Supreme Court to Consider District Court Proceedings Held Without Jurisdiction: After a default judgment was entered against Hardman for injuries caused to Maulding in a car accident, Hardman moved on May 22 to set aside the default, and the District Court scheduled a hearing for July 16. At the hearing, Maulding raised the timeliness of the hearing, contending that when Rule 60(c), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), was read with Rules 59(d) and 59(g), M.R.Civ.P., the District Court had to rule on the motion within 45 days or it was considered denied. The District Court took that issue under advisement and heard testimony on the motion to set aside the default. Maulding argued on appeal that there was no evidence for the Supreme Court to consider on the issue of the default because the evidence taken by the trial court was taken at a hearing that was held without jurisdiction. The Supreme Court held that because those proceedings affect the substantial rights of the parties, consideration of the evidence developed at the hearing was within its powers under this section. Maulding v. Hardman, 257 M 18, 847 P2d 292, 50 St. Rep. 141 (1993).

Involuntary Satisfaction of Judgment — Appeal Not Rendered Moot: If a judgment is satisfied by an involuntary payment or performance, the appeal from the judgment is not thereby rendered moot. First Nat'l Bank in Eureka v. Giles, 225 M 467, 733 P2d 357, 43 St. Rep. 1326 (1987), overruling Gallatin Trust & Sav. Bank v. Henke, 154 M 170, 461 P2d 448 (1969), and In re Black's Estate, 32 M 51, 79 P 554 (1905), and overruled, with regard to voluntary versus involuntary payment or performance as affecting waiver of right to appeal without having bearing on mootness, in Turner v. Mtn. Eng'r & Constr., Inc., 276 M 55, 915 P2d 799, 53 St. Rep. 23 (1996). Turner was followed in Kennedy v. Dawson, 1999 MT 265, 296 M 430, 989 P2d 390, 56 St. Rep. 1078 (1999).

Notice of Appeal Divests Trial Court of Jurisdiction to Amend Judgment: After respondent moved to amend the judgment of the District Court, appellant filed a notice of appeal. The filing of the notice of appeal deprived the trial court of jurisdiction to amend the judgment. However, under 3-2-204, the Supreme Court can return jurisdiction to the trial court. United Farm Agency v. Blome, 198 M 435, 646 P2d 1205, 39 St. Rep. 1115 (1982).

Supreme Court as Final Authority: The Supreme Court of Montana is the final authority on the legal weight to be given a presumptive instruction under Montana law, but it is not the final authority on the interpretation which a jury could have given to the instruction. Sandstrom v. Mont., 442 US 510, 99 S.Ct. 2450 (1979).

Federal Courts — Reviewability of Montana Decisions: The U.S. District Court has no power to review the judgments of Montana courts. A litigant has no constitutional right to a correct result. Osburnsen v. Heller, 34 St. Rep. 193 (D.C. Mont. 1977) (apparently not reported in Federal Supplement).

Motion for Rehearing: Motion for rehearing will be denied if the questions involved should first be presented to the trial court by appropriate supplemental or amended pleadings. Atlantic-Pacific Oil Co. of Mont. v. Gas Dev. Co., 105 M 1, 69 P2d 750 (1937).

TIME LIMITS

Discovery of Documents — Time Allowance on Remand: Husband failed to comply with court's order allowing shorter time for him to respond to interrogatories, and wife had complained of insufficient time to examine one of his tax returns, which contained information regarding a piece of property over which there was a dispute as to whether it should be included in the marital estate for property disposition purposes. Since the Supreme Court was returning the case to the District Court for reconsideration of the marital estate assets, the Supreme Court directed that wife be allowed to pursue examination of the disputed piece of property. In re the Marriage of Hill v. Hill, 197 M 451, 643 P2d 582, 39 St. Rep. 723 (1982).

Mootness Found in Six-Year-Old Case — Limited Power of Supreme Court: The defendant in a 1974 case was charged with and convicted of abuse of a school teacher under 20-4-303. The fine levied was paid in 1976, about the time the defendant's appeal was submitted to the Supreme Court. Noting the long time lapse and the lapse of power in the court to order the return of the fine, the court held that the question was moot because any action it could take would have no effect on the parties. St. v. Warden, 191 M 520, 625 P2d 543, 38 St. Rep. 437 (1981).

STANDARDS OF REVIEW

Statutes Presumed Constitutional — Burden of Proof — Standard of Review: In deciding whether certain statutes violated the mandates of the Montana Constitution and The Enabling Act regarding use of school trust lands, the Supreme Court eschewed standards of review suggested by both parties, holding that the proper standard was whether the District Court's conclusions of law were correct. Statutes are presumed to be constitutional, and the Supreme Court will avoid an unconstitutional interpretation if possible. A party challenging the constitutionality of a statute has the burden of proving it unconstitutional beyond a reasonable doubt, and any doubt will be resolved in favor of the statute. Montanans for Responsible Use of School Trust v. State ex rel. Bd. of Land Comm'rs, 1999 MT 263, 296 M 402, 989 P2d 800, 56 St. Rep. 1065 (1999), following Steer, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 245 M 470, 803 P2d 601, 47 St. Rep. 2199 (1990), St. v. Martel, 273 M 143, 902 P2d 14, 52 St. Rep. 873 (1995), Davis v. Union Pac. RR Co., 282 M 233, 937 P2d 27, 54 St. Rep. 328 (1997), and St. v. Nye, 283 M 505, 943 P2d 96, 54 St. Rep. 766 (1997), and followed in Montanans for Responsible Use of School Trust v. Darkenwald, 2005 MT 190, 328 M 105, 119 P3d 27 (2005).

Standard of Review of Grant or Denial of New Trial — Jury or Bailiff Misconduct: In the two most recent cases in which jury or bailiff misconduct was the basis for granting or denying a new trial, the Supreme Court stated that the standard is that the decision is within the sound discretion of the trial judge, whose decision will not be disturbed absent a showing of manifest abuse of that discretion. The Supreme Court reaffirmed this standard and overruled those cases with a different standard. Allers v. Riley, 273 M 1, 901 P2d 600, 52 St. Rep. 920 (1995).

Motion for Mistrial — Evidence of Erroneous Ruling Required: The Supreme Court cited Schmoyer v. Bourdeau, 148 M 340, 420 P2d 316 (1966), in holding that in order to reverse a lower court ruling on a motion for mistrial, evidence must be presented that is clear, convincing, and practically free from doubt that the trial court's ruling was erroneous. St. v. Dawson, 233 M 345, 761 P2d 352, 45 St. Rep. 1542 (1988).

Standard of Review in Pro Se Appeal: The Supreme Court's powers of appellate review are the same whether or not a defendant appealing from a criminal conviction is represented by counsel on the appeal. St. v. Green, 212 M 20, 685 P2d 370, 41 St. Rep. 1562 (1984).

Evidence Sufficient to Support Verdict — Jury to Weigh Evidence — Presumption of Correctness: In judging whether there is evidence sufficient to support a verdict, the Supreme Court recognizes that the jury is in the best position to weigh the evidence and consider the credibility of witnesses. Thus in examining the sufficiency of the evidence, review will be made in a light most favorable to the prevailing party, presuming that the findings of the District Court are correct. Rock Springs Corp. v. Pierre, 189 M 137, 615 P2d 206, 37 St. Rep. 1378 (1980).

Substantial Evidence to Support Verdict — Evidence to Support Contrary Findings Not Proper Consideration: The plaintiff offered evidence that a leaking pipe caused damage to a house. The defendant introduced evidence tending to show that the damage was caused by either melting snow or because of improper construction. The jury found that the evidence presented by the defendant was more credible. On appeal, the Supreme Court found that there was substantial evidence on which the jury could base its verdict. It is not the Supreme Court's function to determine if there is sufficient evidence to support contrary findings. Judgment affirmed. Cissel v. W. Plumbing & Heating, 188 M 149, 612 P2d 206, 37 St. Rep. 966 (1980).

Clear Preponderance of Evidence: The husband brought an action to enforce the property settlement. The wife sought modification. The property settlement provided that the wife was to provide an accounting for all sums paid. The trial Judge found that the wife had made an adequate accounting. The wife testified that she made what she thought was an adequate accounting, and the husband testified that the accounting he received was not sufficient. On appeal, the Supreme Court said that it will not substitute its judgment for that of the trier of fact but rather will only consider whether substantial credible evidence supports the findings and conclusions. Those findings will not be overturned by the court unless there is a clear preponderance of the evidence against them. The court will view the evidence in a light most favorable to the prevailing party, recognizing that substantial evidence may be weak or conflicting with other evidence, yet still support the findings. The findings are affirmed since there is not a clear preponderance of evidence against the findings. Phennicie v. Phennicie, 185 M 120, 604 P2d 787, 36 St. Rep. 2378 (1979).

Standard of Review in Workers' Compensation Cases — Conflicting Evidence: Conflicting evidence was given in this case claiming death benefits under the Workers' Compensation Act. One set of facts showed that death was caused by strenuous physical activity on the job prior to decedent's death, and the other testimony showed that decedent did nothing strenuous or unusual and that his activities on the job had no causal relationship to his death. The Workers' Compensation Court found the latter testimony more credible and entered findings accordingly. Where findings are based on conflicting evidence, the reviewing court's function is confined to determining whether there is substantial evidence supporting such findings. Following Jensen v. Zook Bros. Constr. Co., 178 M 59, 582 P2d 1191 (1978), substantial evidence supporting the findings existed here. It is not the court's function to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to support contrary findings. Stamatis v. Bechtel Power Corp., 184 M 64, 601 P2d 403, 36 St. Rep. 1866 (1979).

Substantial Though Conflicting Evidence: The Supreme Court's function in reviewing findings of fact in a civil action tried by the court without a jury is not to substitute its judgment in place of the trier of facts, but rather it is confined to determining whether there is substantial credible evidence to support the findings of fact and conclusions of law. Although conflicts may exist in the evidence presented, it is the duty and function of the Judge to resolve such conflicts. His findings will not be disturbed on appeal where they are based on substantial though conflicting evidence. Olson v. Westfork Properties, 171 M 154, 557 P2d 821 (1976).

Substantial Evidence:

Review of evidence is limited to determining whether there is substantial evidence to support trial court's findings of fact and whether such findings are sufficient to support conclusions of law. Keller v. Martin, 153 M 9, 452 P2d 422 (1969). See also McCalif Grower Supplies, Inc. v. Reed, 272 M 254, 900 P2d 880, 52 St. Rep. 659 (1995).

Function of Supreme Court on review is to determine whether there is substantial evidence to support findings of fact and conclusions of law. Peery v. Higgins, 152 M 140, 447 P2d 481 (1968).

Preponderance of the Evidence Against Findings: The Supreme Court may examine the evidence and determine a question of fact for itself, but it cannot overturn the findings of the court unless there is a decided preponderance of the evidence against them. Favero v. Wynaht, 140 M 358, 371 P2d 858 (1962); Sanders v. Sanders, 124 M 595, 229 P2d 164 (1951); Sanders v. Lucas, 111 M 599, 111 P2d 1041 (1941); Cook v. Buzard, 31 M 74, 77 P 423 (1904).

Material Evidence: On appeal it is the duty of the Supreme Court to review and determine all questions of law and of fact arising from the proof produced; but the court is powerless to do this unless the material evidence is embodied in the record. Yellowstone Nat'l Bank v. McCullough, 51 M 590, 154 P 919 (1916).

DeNovo Review: The Supreme Court will not undertake to try a case de novo and determine it as does the District Court. Pope v. Alexander, 36 M 82, 92 P 203 (1907).

SUBSTANTIAL JUSTICE

Denial of Substantial Justice Below: Though objective urged for the first time on appeal will not normally be considered, the Supreme Court has the duty to determine whether parties were denied substantial justice below and can consider, within its sound discretion, whether the lower court deprived a party of a fair and impartial trial, even if an objection based on the mandate of a statute or an established precedent should have been made and was not. McAlpine v. Midland Elec. Co., 194 M 154, 634 P2d 1166, 38 St. Rep. 1577 (1981).

QUESTIONS OF LAW

Questions of Law: The provision that the Supreme Court in granting a new trial must in its decision "pass upon and determine all the questions of law involved in the case, presented upon such appeal, and necessary to the final determination of the case" is not binding. State ex rel. La France Copper Co. v. District Court, 40 M 206, 105 P 721 (1909), distinguished in State ex rel. USF&G Co. v. District Court, 77 M 594, 251 P 1061 (1926).

LAW OF THE CASE

Issue of Department of Labor and Industry Jurisdiction Raised in Two Separate Hearings — Collateral Estoppel Applicable — Due Process Rights Not Implicated When Party Fails to Pursue Available Remedies: The Workers' Compensation Court concluded that the Department of Labor and Industry should have allowed plaintiff to raise the argument that State Fund had improperly canceled plaintiff's policy for nonpayment of a premium as a defense to the claim by the Uninsured Employers' Fund for assessments and penalties. The court said that the issue was not barred by collateral estoppel because an order from a first hearing only determined whether the Department had subject matter jurisdiction over contract disputes between an insurance carrier and its policyholder (a determination that plaintiff did not appeal) and did not address the issue raised in a second hearing, which was whether the Department had jurisdiction to determine coverage in a proceeding seeking a penalty and indemnification. The court held that collateral estoppel did not apply because the issues in the two hearings were not identical. The court went on to hold that the Department did have jurisdiction, through its quasi-judicial power, to resolve the dispute regarding whether State Fund had rightfully canceled the policy. The Supreme Court disagreed. In the first case, a hearings officer determined that the Department did not have subject matter jurisdiction over the contractual dispute between plaintiff and State Fund, noting that proper adjudication would be in the District Court. The Department only has jurisdiction granted to it by statute, and the adjudication of insurance contracts does not fall within its jurisdiction. Plaintiff's failure to appeal the issue from the first hearing precluded it from arguing that the Department did have jurisdiction over the insurance contract dispute regarding a penalty and indemnification in the second hearing, so relitigation of the jurisdiction question in the second proceeding was barred by collateral estoppel. Further, it was error to give the Department jurisdiction to adjudicate the insurance contract dispute pursuant to its general quasi-judicial powers because an administrative agency may not assume jurisdiction without express delegation by the Legislature and there is no statutory delegation of authority to the Department to resolve contract disputes. Rather, regulation of insurance contracts is governed by the Insurance Commissioner and the relevant statutes relating to insurance disputes. The Department cannot and should not be adjudicating disputes between insurance companies and employers. The Workers' Compensation Court's conclusion that plaintiff was denied due process when it was prevented from presenting evidence relating to the insurance contract between itself and State Fund was also erroneous. Plaintiff had the opportunity to appeal the initial Department order to the Workers' Compensation Court, but failed to do so. Plaintiff also had the opportunity to pursue its remedies against State Fund in District Court, but again failed to do so. There is no denial of due process when a party fails to pursue the remedies provided. Auto Parts of Bozeman v. Employment Relations Div. Uninsured Employers' Fund, 2001 MT 72, 305 M 40, 23 P3d 193 (2001).

DUI Suspension or Revocation Clarified — Law of Case Doctrine and Collateral Estoppel Inapplicable — Contempt Order Refused: Sanders was arrested for a second DUI in a 5-year period and filed an action in District Court seeking review of the facts of the arrest. The District Court and the Supreme Court upheld the arrest and noted that a 6-month suspension of Sanders' license would take place. Later, after the Department of Justice refused to reinstate the license after the 6-month period expired because 61-8-402 applied and required a revocation of Sanders' license for 1 year, Sanders brought a contempt action in the District Court asking that the Department be held in contempt for failure to reinstate his license after expiration of the 6-month period. Sanders argued that the 6-month period had become the law of the case and that the failure of the Department to follow that law was a contempt of the District Court. After reviewing the records of the District Court and its own record in the previous DUI action, the Supreme Court held that the law of the case doctrine was inapplicable. Citing Haines Pipeline Constr., Inc. v. Mont. Power Co., 265 M 282, 876 P2d 632 (1994), and Scott v. Scott, 283 M 169, 939 P2d 998 (1997), the Supreme Court explained that the law of the case doctrine applies only to the rulings of a court that are necessary to the decision and, in the case of the District Court's and Supreme Court's prior ruling in Sanders' DUI conviction, a determination that only a 6-month suspension was required under 61-8-402 was not necessary to either the District Court's or the Supreme Court's prior ruling. Those rulings, the Supreme Court said, concerned only whether the arresting officer had probable cause for the arrest. Thus, the Supreme Court held, the reference to a 6-month suspension in the previous opinions was dicta, there was no law of the case determined concerning the law governing license suspension or revocation, and therefore there could be no contempt for failure to reinstate Sanders' license. The Supreme Court also held that collateral estoppel was likewise inapplicable to require the Department to reinstate the license because collateral estoppel applies only to previously litigated issues and the period of license suspension or revocation of Sanders' license had not been previously litigated. Sanders v. St., 1998 MT 62, 288 M 143, 955 P2d 1356, 55 St. Rep. 272 (1998).

Change of Law From Time of Trial to Time of Appellate Review: Brockie argued that the Supreme Court's decision in Newville v. St., 267 M 237, 883 P2d 793, 51 St. Rep. 758 (1994), striking down part of 27-1-703 pertaining to liability of nonparties as unconstitutional, should be applied retroactively to his case. The Supreme Court held that the general rule is that a change of law between the law applied at the trial and the time of appeal requires the appellate court to apply the changed law unless to do so would result in a manifest injustice. Brockie v. Omo Constr., Inc., 268 M 519, 887 P2d 167, 51 St. Rep. 1322 (1994).

Relitigation of Previously Resolved Issue Barred on Appeal: Under the doctrine of law of the case, a prior Montana Supreme Court decision resolving a particular issue between the same parties in the same case is binding and cannot be relitigated in a subsequent appeal. St. v. Smith, 261 M 419, 863 P2d 1000, 50 St. Rep. 1388 (1993), followed in St. v. Pendergrass, 281 M 129, 932 P2d 1056, 54 St. Rep. 94 (1997). Pendergrass was reversed on other grounds in Chandler v. Mahoney, 2000 MT 294, 302 M 309, 18 P3d 312, 57 St. Rep. 1247 (2000). See also St. v. Van Dyken, 242 M 415, 791 P2d 1350 (1990).

Amending on Remand Judgment Upheld on First Appeal — Law of Case — Abuse of Discretion: In an original judgment of October 31, 1979, plaintiffs were given the alternative of either repairing a damaged irrigation ditch or paying damages of $5,500. The case was appealed to the Supreme Court, and in Marta v. Smith, 191 M 179, 622 P2d 1011, 38 St. Rep. 28 (1981), the court found substantial evidence to support the District Court's findings. This became the law of the case. The case was remanded for a determination of attorney fees to be awarded to defendant. On remand, the District Court amended its conclusions and findings to omit the alternative allowing plaintiffs to repair the ditch and awarded damages without the submission of any additional evidence. On appeal, the Supreme Court found this to be an abuse of discretion, as none of the exceptions found in Rules 52(b), 60(a), or 60(b), M.R.Civ.P., applied. The court abused its discretion in not holding a hearing to determine if either alternative of the original judgment had been complied with. Marta v. Smith, 200 M 414, 650 P2d 1387, 39 St. Rep. 1839 (1982).

Law of Case Not Reviewable on Second Appeal: An action was brought to impose a constructive trust and to compel a company to deed certain land to an estate. On an appeal, the Supreme Court held that a sufficient case of adverse possession had been presented to warrant submission to the jury. The cause was reversed and remanded for a new trial. On this second appeal, the defendants alleged error in the failure to instruct the jury on the defenses of laches and estoppel. The Supreme Court noted that those issues had been decided on the first appeal and it was not error for the instructions to be refused at the second trial. The law of the case stated on the first appeal was binding on the trial court and also on the Supreme Court itself in the second appeal. Cremer v. Cremer Rodeo Land and Livestock Co., 192 M 208, 627 P2d 1199, 38 St. Rep. 574 (1981).

VERDICTS

Inadequacy of Verdict: A verdict as to the amount of damages awarded by the jury will be set aside because of inadequacy as well as for being excessive. Coombes v. Letcher, 104 M 371, 66 P2d 769 (1937).

FINAL DISPOSITION

Retroactive Applicability of Decision Prohibiting Antistacking of Insurance Provisions to Pending Cases: In Hardy v. Progressive Specialty Ins. Co., 2003 MT 85, 315 M 107, 67 P3d 892 (2003), the Supreme Court decided that antistacking provisions in an underinsured motorist policy were unconstitutional. Plaintiffs brought a class action in federal court claiming that Hardy entitled them to additional payments from past insurance claims that were not previously allowed because their policies did not allow for stacking. The federal court certified the question to the Supreme Court as to whether Hardy applied prospectively only or retroactively to qualified claims arising before the Hardy decision. The Supreme Court agreed with the decision in Harper v. Va. Dept. of Taxation, 509 US 86 (1993), that limiting a rule of law to its prospective application creates an arbitrary distinction between litigants based merely on the timing of their claims and that in the interests of fairness and finality, the line should be drawn between claims that are final and claims that are not. The Supreme Court then decided that the retroactivity test in Chevron Oil Co. v. Huson, 404 US 97 (1971), still applies to Montana civil decisions if all three Chevron factors are met: (1) the decision to be applied nonretroactively must establish a new principle of law, either by overruling clear past precedent on which litigants may have relied or by deciding an issue of first impression whose resolution was not clearly foreshadowed; (2) the court must weigh the merits and demerits in each case by looking at the prior history of the rule in question, its purpose and effect, and whether retroactive application will further or retard its operation; and (3) the inequity imposed by retroactive application has been weighed. However, the retroactive effect of a decision does not apply to cases that became final or that were settled prior to a decision's issuance. Thus, Hardy applies retroactively in qualifying circumstances on open claims arising before its issuance and is limited to cases pending on direct appeal or not yet final. Dempsey v. Allstate Ins. Co., 2004 MT 391, 325 M 207, 104 P3d 483 (2004).

Determination of Factual Issues Not Addressed by Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law — Remand: When a District Court has issued findings and conclusions and when potential factual issues may still exist, those matters are best left for determination by the trier of fact on remand. Norwood v. Serv. Distrib., Inc., 2000 MT 4, 297 M 473, 994 P2d 25, 57 St. Rep. 8 (2000), following Alley v. Butte & W. Min. Co., 77 M 477, 251 P 517 (1926).

Summary Judgment — No Motion: The Supreme Court has the power to order summary judgment for appellant although motion for summary judgment was not made by the appellant to the District Court. Treasure St. Indus., Inc. v. Welch, 173 M 403, 567 P2d 947 (1977).

Generally:

Where no cause appears why a new trial or the taking of further evidence should be ordered, it is the court's duty to determine the same finally. Fey v. A. A. Oil Corp., 129 M 300, 285 P2d 578 (1955).

Under this section the Supreme Court is authorized in reviewing the decrees in equity cases, where all of the facts were presented on an appeal and showed that the cause was ripe for an ultimate decision, to make such disposition of the case as the court below ought to have made. Bond v. Birk, 126 M 250, 247 P2d 199 (1952).

In an equity case on appeal the court reviews all questions of fact arising upon the evidence presented and determines such questions of fact as well as the questions of law, unless for good cause a new trial or the taking of further evidence is ordered in the court below. Hart v. Barron, 122 M 350, 204 P2d 797 (1949).

Where the defendant relied upon the inconsistent defenses, the judgment in favor of defendant will nevertheless be affirmed where the evidence shows establishment of his right on either theory. Dahlberg v. Lannen, 84 M 68, 274 P 151 (1929), distinguished in Shidu v. Hollenback, 133 M 265, 322 P2d 325 (1958).

Where there is no substantial conflict in the evidence, the function of the trial court is to determine the law applicable to the evidence viewed as an agreed statement of facts, and on appeal the Supreme Court is in as favorable a position as the trial court to make such determination. Dunn v. Beck, 80 M 414, 260 P 1047 (1927).

The Supreme Court will, in a proper case, where the same matter has been before it on a previous appeal and discrepancies appear in the court's computations, make final and independent disposition of the case with due regard for the findings of the trial court. In re Connolly's Estate, 79 M 445, 257 P 418 (1927).

On appeal the Supreme Court must review all questions of law and of fact and may, where all the facts are presented, determine the case finally for the purpose of putting an end to further litigation. State ex rel. USF&G Co. v. District Court, 77 M 594, 251 P 1061 (1926).

Under this section the Supreme Court has the power, on reversal of the judgment appealed from, to direct entry of the proper judgment in favor of appellant. Alley v. Butte & W. Min. Co., 77 M 477, 251 P 517 (1926), followed in Norwood v. Serv. Distrib., Inc., 2000 MT 4, 297 M 473, 994 P2d 25, 57 St. Rep. 8 (2000).

Where plaintiff failed to produce sufficient evidence to sustain a judgment, the cause will not be remanded for a new trial but with direction to dismiss the complaint. Bresee v. Smith, 73 M 312, 237 P 492 (1925).

On appeal where there is little or no conflict in the evidence, which in itself is unsatisfactory in character and furnishes no substantial basis for the findings of the trial court, the Supreme Court will not hesitate to set them aside and finally determine the rights of the parties. Gray v. Grant, 62 M 452, 206 P 410 (1922).

Where in an equity case the decree was founded upon incompatible theories, the Supreme Court will dispose of the cause on its merits. Lowry v. Carrier, 55 M 392, 177 P 756 (1918).

Where on appeal in an equity case the evidence introduced at the trial is all contained in the record and presents no substantial conflict but the decree was based upon an erroneous interpretation of the evidence, the Supreme Court will order such modification as will render a retrial unnecessary. Bielenberg v. Eyre, 44 M 397, 120 P 243 (1912).

Where the plaintiff should have been nonsuited or a directed verdict should have been entered and the proper motion was made and denied, the Supreme Court will usually direct a final disposition of the cause. Wertz v. Lamb, 43 M 477, 117 P 89 (1911).

It is the duty of the parties to introduce all their testimony in the trial court in order to enable the appellate tribunal to expedite the case. Stevens v. Trafton, 36 M 520, 93 P 810 (1908).

Where the Supreme Court, on appeal in an equity case, reverses the judgment but no cause appears why a new trial or the taking of further testimony should be ordered, it will enter a judgment finally determining the cause. N. Real Estate Loan & Title Co. v. Billings Loan & Trust Co., 36 M 356, 93 P 40 (1907).

The Supreme Court may dispose of the merits of the appeal upon a review of the evidence alone. Pew v. Johnson, 35 M 173, 88 P 770 (1907).

REMAND

Power of Trial Court on Remand — No Provision Regarding Effect of Failure to Deny in Rules of Appellate Procedure (Now Superseded): In 1993, Brown filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, arguing that prison officials had miscalculated his parole eligibility date. The Supreme Court denied that petition. In 1996, Brown filed a 42 U.S.C. 1983 complaint in District Court seeking to address alleged deprivations of his rights by prison officials under federal law, but the complaint was dismissed for failure to state a claim. The District Court concluded that the issues raised in the complaint were the same as those raised in the 1993 writ and were thus barred by collateral estoppel. Brown appealed, and in an unpublished opinion (Brown v. St., No. 96-651), the Supreme Court remanded, concluding that the District Court had mischaracterized the issues in the 1993 writ and that three of the claims were not barred by collateral estoppel. On remand, after an unexplained delay of 4 years, the District Court dismissed Brown's remaining claims, holding that they were not cognizable under federal law. Brown appealed again, arguing that the District Court erred by granting judgment to the state without first holding a hearing and asserting that under Rule 8(d), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), the state's failure to respond to the issue in its brief constituted an admission that Brown was correct on the issue. However, Brown misapplied Rule 8(d) to these proceedings. The Montana Rules of Appellate Procedure (now superseded) in effect did not contain a similar provision regarding the effect of failure to deny. Further, the remand order did not require the District Court to hold a hearing. On remand, the trial court is free to make any order or decision in further progress of the case that is not inconsistent with the appellate court's decision. The District Court was affirmed. Brown v. St., 2002 MT 58, 309 M 106, 46 P3d 42 (2002).

Introduction of New Issues on Remand: In a condemnation case, the city offered proof that a private water company had received a rate increase and entered into litigation with the Public Service Commission during the interim between appeal and remand. The lower court correctly held that the evidence was inadmissible because its admission would change in part the law of the case as established on appeal. In order to comply with the order of remand, the District Court can only consider the specific issues remanded and no others. Missoula v. Mtn. Water Co., 236 M 442, 771 P2d 103, 46 St. Rep. 494 (1989).

Supreme Court Mandate to Be Followed:

In applying the rule (that a lower court has no discretion to alter a particular Supreme Court judgment) to demands for relief on a second appeal, the Supreme Court adopted the reasoning in Idanha v. Consumers Power, Inc., 509 P2d 1226 (Or. Ct. App. 1973), that relief from asserted changed conditions or rights allegedly accruing or injuries allegedly occurring pending or following appeal can be had, if at all, only by resort to an original proceeding by which appropriate relief may be sought. Therefore, the discretion of the District Court on remand from the Supreme Court extends only to the entry of the proper judgment. Carey v. Wallner, 229 M 57, 744 P2d 881, 44 St. Rep. 1778 (1987), distinguished in Slater v. Cent. Plumbing & Heating Co., 1999 MT 257, 297 M 7, 993 P2d 654, 56 St. Rep. 1023 (1999).

Section 3-2-204 gives the Supreme Court power to remand a case to a lower court accompanied by instructions that direct further action be taken by it in accordance with those instructions. A lower court cannot ignore an appellate court's mandate in disposing of a case after it has been returned to the lower court. State ex rel. Olson v. District Court, 184 M 346, 602 P2d 1002, 36 St. Rep. 2086 (1979); In re Marriage of Sarsfield, 215 M 123, 695 P2d 473, 42 St. Rep. 231 (1985).

On the remand of the cause after appeal, it is the duty of the lower court to comply with the mandate of the Supreme Court and to obey the directions therein. The trial court commits error if it fails to follow the directions of the Supreme Court. In re Stoian's Estate, 138 M 384, 357 P2d 41 (1960), followed in St. v. Owens, 230 M 135, 748 P2d 473, 45 St. Rep. 89 (1988).

Modification of Judgment — Recalculation of Damages Based on When Interest to Accrue: The jury set the date on which interest on damages would begin to accrue as October 16, the expected date of harvest according to the jury form. Defendant argued that the determination was nonsensical because it put the date of expected harvest after the date in October on which the replacement crop was actually harvested. In modifying the judgment, the Supreme Court found no appearance of jury passion or prejudice in reaching the verdict and remanded for recalculation of damages using October 2 as the expected date of harvest. Vandalia Ranch, Inc. v. Farmers Union & Oil Supply Co., 221 M 253, 718 P2d 647, 43 St. Rep. 790 (1986).

Discretion to Receive Additional Evidence — Damages on Remand:

When the Supreme Court remanded for a redetermination of amount of damages arising from loss on sale of a business, without direction or restriction on method to be utilized by District Court, it was the trial court's discretion whether the record before it was sufficient for this purpose or whether additional evidence was required. Lovely v. Burroughs Corp., 169 M 454, 548 P2d 610 (1976).

Where the trial court, after hearing an action on its merits, erroneously determined that the complaint did not state a cause of action and the evidence clearly showed that plaintiff was entitled to recover, necessitating reversal of the judgment and remanding the cause for further proceedings, the court may, if necessary, hear further evidence to determine the amount of damages to which plaintiff is entitled. Schneider v. Nelson, 111 M 377, 110 P2d 972 (1940).

New Findings: When testimony given at trial did not conform to trial court's findings of fact concerning property valuation in divorce case, the case was remanded to trial court for hearing to establish proper division of property and alimony for support of the defendant. Whitman v. Whitman, 164 M 124, 519 P2d 966 (1974).

Remand for New Trial:

Court abused discretion in dismissing action for failure of plaintiff to prosecute case returned by Supreme Court to lower court for new trial where trial court failed to set trial for next jury term as per order of Supreme Court. Jangula v. U.S. Rubber Co., 149 M 241, 425 P2d 319 (1967).

In a case in which the successful party neither made a cross-assignment of error on the trial court's action in rejecting an offer of proof which should have been admitted nor perfected a cross-appeal, the case was remanded for a new trial. Phelps v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 105 M 195, 71 P2d 887 (1937).

While the Supreme Court may, in equity cases where a judgment cannot be sustained under the evidence, direct the entry of a proper judgment, it will not do so where the evidence is meager and confused and where the determinative finding of the court presented an entirely new element not included in the pleadings or proof but will remand the cause for a new trial. Horst v. Staley, 101 M 543, 54 P2d 876 (1936).

Modification of Judgment: Where in an action for services rendered, the plaintiff was properly entitled to recover but the trial court erred in refusing to limit recovery for the services, the judgment will not be reversed and a new trial ordered, but the cause will be remanded with instruction to modify the judgment. Callan v. Hample, 73 M 321, 236 P 550 (1925).

EQUITY CASES

Claim of Resulting or Constructive Trust Barred by Judicial Estoppel and Clean Hands Doctrine: The parents created a family corporation and made their four children equal, sole shareholders through transfers and gifts. When two medical malpractice suits were filed against the father, he claimed that he had no right to or control over the corporation's assets. In a separate action, two sisters instituted a shareholder derivative action and petitioned for judicial review of their brother's fiduciary duties. The brother called a special meeting to issue additional stock to himself and to transfer property back to the parents, but the sisters objected and the brother was enjoined from doing so. The parents then claimed that the property was held in a resulting or constructive trust, and the District Court ordered that the assets and stock be conveyed to the parents. The sisters appealed, and the Supreme Court reversed. Both the sisters and the plaintiffs in the medical malpractice action relied to their detriment on the father's judicial declaration that he had no right to or control over the corporate assets, and the father was thus barred by judicial estoppel and the clean hands doctrine from raising equitable claims that a resulting or constructive trust existed. Judicial estoppel binds a party to that party's judicial declarations and precludes the party from taking a position inconsistent with the previous declaration in a subsequent action or proceeding. The clean hands doctrine provides that a party must not expect relief in equity unless the party comes into court with clean hands. The evidence here showed that the parents knowingly transferred assets to the family corporation to circumvent creditors and avoid estate taxes, and the Supreme Court will not aid a party whose claim had its inception in the party's wrongdoing, whether the victim of the wrongdoing is the other party or a third party. Kauffman-Harmon v. Kauffman, 2001 MT 238, 307 M 45, 36 P3d 408 (2001).

Elements of Judicial Estoppel: The doctrine of judicial estoppel binds a party to that party's judicial declarations and precludes the party from taking a position inconsistent with the previous declaration in a subsequent action or proceeding. Although judicial estoppel may be regarded as a form of estoppel, it is not strictly one of estoppel, but partakes rather of positive rules of procedure based on manifest justice and, to a greater or lesser degree, on considerations of the orderliness, regularity, and expedition of litigation. Those elements that are generally essential to the operation of equitable estoppel, such as reliance, injury, and prejudice to the individual, may not enter to the same extent into judicial estoppel. A party claiming that judicial estoppel bars another party from relitigating an issue must show that: (1) the estopped party had knowledge of the facts at the time that the original position was taken; (2) the estopped party succeeded in maintaining the original position; (3) the present position is inconsistent with the original position; and (4) the original position misled the adverse party so that allowing the estopped party to change its position would injuriously affect the adverse party. Kauffman-Harmon v. Kauffman, 2001 MT 238, 307 M 45, 36 P3d 408 (2001). See also Rowland v. Klies, 223 M 360, 726 P2d 310 (1986), Fiedler v. Fiedler, 266 M 133, 879 P2d 675 (1994), In re George Trust, 1999 MT 223, 296 M 56, 986 P2d 427 (1999), and Vogel v. Intercontinental Truck Body, Inc., 2006 MT 131, 332 M 322, 137 P3d 573 (2006).

Grant of Equitable Relief From Forfeiture — Conditions: Defendant defaulted on a contract to operate a coal mine. The District Court granted summary judgment, finding no genuine issue of material fact regarding defendant's unlawful detainer. Defendant sought equitable relief pursuant to 28-1-104. The Supreme Court may, under appropriate circumstances, equitably relieve a party from the harsh effects of a forfeiture. Circumstances warranting equitable relief must not only meet the statutory requirements of tendering full compensation within a reasonable time after service of notice of default and not acting in a grossly negligent, willful, or fraudulent manner, but the party seeking relief must also assert facts that appeal to the conscience of the court of equity. Mere financial inability is not sufficient to appeal to the court's conscience. In this case, defendant's request for equitable relief was deficient because it did not meet statutory and common-law criteria, so the grant of summary judgment was affirmed. Glacier Park Co. v. Mtn., Inc., 285 M 420, 949 P2d 229, 54 St. Rep. 1222 (1997), following Kovacich v. Metals Bank & Trust Co., 139 M 449, 365 P2d 639 (1961), distinguishing Parrott v. Heller, 171 M 212, 557 P2d 819 (1976), and followed in Weter v. Archambault, 2002 MT 336, 313 M 284, 61 P3d 771 (2002).

Supreme Court Clarifies That Standard of Review for Estate Cases at Equity Is the "Clearly Erroneous" Test: In reviewing a lower court's decision that a will could be admitted to probate because it was not the product of undue influence, the Supreme Court stated that the standard of review in estate cases at equity was inconsistent and contradictory. Under the statute, the test has tended to be whether substantial credible evidence supports the lower court's findings, while under the rule, the test has been whether the lower court's findings are clearly erroneous. The Supreme Court held that nothing in the statute precludes the use of the "clearly erroneous" test, while the rule, by its terms, mandates its use. Therefore, with respect to estate cases at equity, the standard of review would be the "clearly erroneous" test. In re Estate of Tipp, 281 M 120, 933 P2d 182, 54 St. Rep. 90 (1997).

Case Subject to Landlord-Tenant Law Does Not Lie in Equity: The Supreme Court held that the dispute between the parties was subject to the legal remedies provided by landlord-tenant law and therefore could not be heard in equity. The Supreme Court went on to state that it was unable to look at the lower court's order as an equitable ruling and could not apply the more deferential standard of review that was applied to equitable rulings. Eagle Watch Inv., Inc. v. Smith, 278 M 187, 924 P2d 257, 53 St. Rep. 757 (1996).

General Equity Powers: A court sitting in equity is empowered to determine all questions involving the case and to do complete justice. This includes the power to fashion an equitable result, to determine any other equities connected with the main subject of the suit, and to grant all relief necessary to the entire adjustment of the subject. Trustees of the Wash.-Idaho-Mont. Carpenters-Employers Retirement Trust Fund v. Galleria Partnership, 239 M 250, 780 P2d 608, 46 St. Rep. 1661 (1989), followed in Nimmick v. Hart, 248 M 1, 808 P2d 481, 48 St. Rep. 293 (1991).

Review of Fact Questions:

In an equity case the trial court is required to review all questions of fact arising upon the evidence presented in the record, whether or not specifications of error are made, and determine those questions as well as questions of law. Rennie v. Nistler, 226 M 412, 735 P2d 1124, 44 St. Rep. 764 (1987).

The rule that questions of fact may be reviewed on appeal in equity cases provides some protection to the losing party in a case in which the trial court has adopted verbatim the prevailing party's proposed findings and conclusions. Sawyer-Adenor Int'l, Inc. v. Anglin, 198 M 440, 646 P2d 1194, 39 St. Rep. 1118 (1982), followed in Daniels v. Thomas, Dean & Hoskins, Inc., 246 M 125, 804 P2d 359, 47 St. Rep. 2293 (1990).

Breach of Contract Action Sounding in Equity — Mutuality of Consent: Although an action for breach of contract to lend money is usually an action at law, the case sounded in equity where borrower argued that the contract was illusory and thus void because it lacked mutuality and that the lender's interpretation of the contract rendered the contract unconscionable and required the contract to be voided or reformed, and the lender raised the equitable defenses of estoppel, waiver, and laches. Shimsky v. Valley Credit Union, 208 M 186, 676 P2d 1308, 41 St. Rep. 258 (1984).

Equity Theory Raised Below but Not Argued at Length Until Appeal: The broad standard of review used in equitable cases was needed where appellant had raised two legal theories below but essentially argued only the first, the court and respondent had concentrated on the first, appellant conceded on the first theory on appeal and argued the second theory, an equitable one, at length, and the lower court's memo in support of its dismissal of the action related only to the first theory. Shimsky v. Valley Credit Union, 208 M 186, 676 P2d 1308, 41 St. Rep. 258 (1984).

Standards for Review of Findings of Fact:

In equitable causes where issues are close, a degree of deference will be accorded the findings of the trial court since it is in a better position to make decisions of fact. Rule 52(a), M.R.Civ.P., requires findings of fact made by the District Court to be upheld unless they are clearly erroneous, but the rule does not make any distinction between equitable causes and cases at law; thus the Supreme Court in reviewing an action of an equitable nature must look to 3-2-204(5) and independently review all questions of fact as well as questions of law. In causes where the issues are not close, the standard for this review is to uphold the District Court on questions of fact unless there is a decided preponderance of the evidence against its findings. Rase v. Castle Mtn. Ranch, Inc., 193 M 209, 631 P2d 680, 38 St. Rep. 992 (1981).

Supreme Court in an equity case not only has the function of reviewing law involved but also reviews evidence to the extent of determining whether findings of fact by the trial court are supported by substantial evidence. White v. Nollmeyer, 151 M 387, 443 P2d 873 (1968). See also Mitchell v. Boyer, 237 M 434, 774 P2d 384, 46 St. Rep. 928 (1989).

The Supreme Court in reviewing an equity case will review the law therein and also will review the evidence to that extent necessary to ascertain whether the findings of fact by the trial court are substantially supported and sufficient to support the conclusions of law derived therefrom. Bender v. Bender, 144 M 470, 397 P2d 957 (1965).

In an equity case it is proper for the appellate court to pry into the factual issues of the case, and the decision must hinge on factual observations unless the case is returned to the lower court for further proceedings. Jenson v. Olson, 144 M 224, 395 P2d 465 (1964).

The Supreme Court in reviewing equity cases will hesitate to overturn findings of the trial court based upon substantial conflicting evidence which would justify an inference in favor of either side of the controversy. Bouma v. Bynum Irrigation District, 139 M 360, 364 P2d 47 (1961).

In entering upon a review of the evidence on appeal in an equity case, the Supreme Court indulges the presumption that the judgment of the trial court is correct and will draw every legitimate inference therefrom to support the presumption. Havre Irrigation Co. v. Majerus, 132 M 410, 318 P2d 1076 (1957), followed in Meridian Minerals Co. v. Nicor Minerals, Inc., 228 M 274, 742 P2d 456, 44 St. Rep. 1516 (1987), and distinguished in Eagle Watch Inv., Inc. v. Smith, 278 M 187, 924 P2d 257, 53 St. Rep. 757 (1996).

The Supreme Court is without original jurisdiction to decide a question of fact depending upon conflicting evidence not passed upon by the trial court. Hoppin v. Lang, 81 M 330, 263 P 421 (1928).

The Supreme Court in an equity case is not bound by any finding of the trial court even though unchallenged but may, upon examination of the evidence, determine a question of fact for itself and overturn such finding if there is a decided preponderance of the evidence against it. Stanton v. Occidental Life Ins. Co., 81 M 44, 261 P 620 (1927).

The Supreme Court on appeal in equity cases must review and determine all questions of fact, due allowance being made for the more advantageous position occupied by the trial Judge in passing upon the credibility of the witnesses, as well as questions of law, unless for good cause shown a new trial should be ordered. Giebler v. Giebler, 69 M 347, 222 P 436 (1924); Barnard Realty Co. v. Butte, 55 M 384, 177 P 402 (1918).

Review on Record Only: Where judgment was rendered against the appellant in a proceeding to quiet title and for an accounting of rents and profits from real property and appellant subsequently appealed to the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court would not consider depositions taken in a different action and submitted by the appellant but not made a part of the record in the case before the court. In appeals from equitable proceedings, the Supreme Court may not consider evidence extraneous to the record. Downs v. Smyk, 185 M 16, 604 P2d 307, 36 St. Rep. 2300 (1979), followed in In re Marriage of Scott, 246 M 10, 803 P2d 620, 47 St. Rep. 2237 (1990), and in In re George Trust, 253 M 341, 834 P2d 1378, 49 St. Rep. 424 (1992). See also Goodover v. Lindey's Inc., 255 M 430, 843 P2d 765, 49 St. Rep. 1059 (1992).

Contradictory Evidence: There was sufficient evidence to support the trial court's findings, conclusion, and judgment when contradictions appeared in the evidence. Hagfeldt v. Mahaffey, 176 M 16, 575 P2d 915 (1978).

Laches: The plaintiff's claim of a resulting trust in real property, raised after a period of 24 years and after the principal parties are dead, warrants the application of the doctrine of laches. Adair v. Capital Inv. Co., 165 M 26, 525 P2d 548 (1974).

Evidence in Supreme Court: In equity cases and matters of an equitable nature where questions of fact are presented for review, the testimony must be presented by question and answer; if not so presented, the appellant is not entitled to have the evidence considered for any purpose, and in such circumstances, if it does consider it, the appellate court will place greater reliance upon the court's findings than would otherwise be necessary. Stephenson v. Rainbow Flying Serv., Inc., 99 M 241, 42 P2d 735 (1935); Sec. St. Bank v. McIntyre, 71 M 186, 228 P 618 (1924).

PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS

Challenge to State Education Funding Considered Justiciable Question: The District Court held that the state system of funding public education was unconstitutional. On appeal, the state contended that the issue was nonjusticiable under the political question doctrine in Baker v. Carr, 369 US 186 (1962). The Supreme Court recognized that nonself-executing constitutional clauses addressed to the Legislature are nonjusticiable political questions. Because Art. X, sec. 1, Mont. Const., constitutes a directive to the Legislature, that section initially presents a nonself-executing, nonjusticiable political question. However, once the Legislature executes a provision that implicates individual constitutional rights, under City of Boerne v. Flores, 521 US 507 (1997), courts can determine whether the enactment fulfilled the Legislature's constitutional responsibility. Here, once the Legislature addressed the threshold political issue by creating a basic system of free public schools, the Supreme Court found it not only justiciable but incumbent upon the court to ensure that the education system met the constitutional guarantee of the individual right to a quality education. Columbia Falls Elementary School District No. 6 v. St., 2005 MT 69, 326 M 304, 109 P3d 257 (2005).

Water Rights Question Not Raised in Complaint or Pretrial Order and Waived at Trial Properly Excluded: Plaintiff requested the District Court to refer determination of his water rights to the Water Court. However, he did not raise the water rights question in his complaint; the District Court specifically excepted the issue from trial; the issue was not raised in the pretrial order; and the issue was expressly waived by plaintiff at the start of the trial. His request was properly denied. The Supreme Court will not hold the District Court in error for a procedure in which plaintiff acquiesced at trial. Boylan v. Van Dyke, 247 M 259, 806 P2d 1024, 48 St. Rep. 188 (1991).

Custody Petition Withdrawn at Trial Nonappealable: Father's counsel withdrew at trial the portion of father's petition seeking sole custody. Because the custody motion was excised from the petition at hearing, the issue constituted new grounds and could not be asserted on appeal. In re Marriage of West, 233 M 47, 758 P2d 282, 45 St. Rep. 1281 (1988).

Nature of District Court Order — Mandamus — Action at Law: When the order of the District Court commands a school district to perform a duty that devolves upon it by operation of law, its nature is that of mandamus. Mandamus is an action at law. Therefore, 3-2-204 does not apply. The District Court findings are to be reviewed on appeal under Rule 52(a). In re the "A" Family, 184 M 145, 602 P2d 157, 36 St. Rep. 1898 (1979).

Specific Performance: Where District Court decree ordering conveyance of property contained directions as to distribution of the sale price that could be construed as at variance from its findings as to ownership, Supreme Court could modify decree so as to distribute money in accordance with the findings. Morris v. Monk, 158 M 163, 489 P2d 1029 (1971).

Probate Proceedings: Supreme Court reversed where evidence did not support court finding that will was drafted at direction of decedent and that he was aware of its contents when he signed. Erickson v. Erickson, 152 M 179, 448 P2d 144 (1968).

Nuisance Cases: Supreme Court will not hesitate to set aside lower court finding that nuisance exists where there is no substantial evidence on which to base finding. Kasala v. Kalispell Pee Wee Baseball League, 151 M 109, 439 P2d 65, 32 ALR 3d 1120 (1968).

Declaratory Judgment Action: In an action for a declaratory judgment that an act was unconstitutional and for an injunction against enforcement thereof, the Supreme Court had the duty to review all questions of fact, but there was a presumption that the trial court's findings were correct. Garden Spot Mkt., Inc. v. Byrne, 141 M 382, 378 P2d 220 (1963).

Divorce and Separate Maintenance Cases:

In separate maintenance action by wife, Supreme Court had the right and duty to review the facts, but this power or duty did not necessarily require the overturning of the findings made by the trial Judge. Reynolds v. Reynolds, 132 M 303, 317 P2d 856 (1957).

Where a decree of divorce must be reversed, it is the duty of the Supreme Court to determine the questions of law and fact presented by the record. It may consider written evidence that was erroneously excluded by the trial court but incorporated in the record as properly before it. Bordeaux v. Bordeaux, 43 M 102, 115 P 25 (1911).

Quiet Title Actions: The Supreme Court may direct that a proper judgment be entered in any case. Thus in a quiet title action the judgment may be modified to conform with the findings. Warren v. Warren, 127 M 259, 261 P2d 364 (1953).

Foreclosure Proceedings: Where in a mechanics' lien (now construction lien) foreclosure suit judgment was entered against one improperly made a party defendant, the Supreme Court has authority under this section to correct the error by directing entry of proper judgment. Arnold v. Genzberger, 96 M 358, 31 P2d 296 (1934).

Probate Proceedings: The Supreme Court has power under this section to weigh the evidence (though it mainly consists of depositions) to determine heirship and to reverse the judgment if the findings are found to be against the weight of evidence. In re Colbert's Estate, 51 M 455, 153 P 1022 (1915).

3-2-205. Injunctions.Case Notes

Criteria Met for Supreme Court Jurisdiction of Death Row Petition for Injunctive Relief: Pursuant to the version of 46-19-103 that was in effect at the time that Langford was sentenced for execution, he affirmatively elected that death be imposed by hanging rather than lethal injection. Langford appealed to the District Court for a declaration that execution by hanging was cruel and unusual punishment that violated the eighth amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The District Court denied the motion, holding that Langford's choice of hanging rendered the cruel and unusual punishment argument moot. Langford appealed to the appropriate federal courts for a writ of habeas corpus, applying the same argument. During the pendency of Langford's federal habeas corpus proceedings, the Montana Legislature met and amended 46-19-103 by removing the hanging option, rendering the federal proceedings moot and nonjusticiable. Langford then filed an original proceeding with the Montana Supreme Court, asserting that the state impermissibly truncated his ability to fully appeal his death sentence by removing hanging as a means of execution and that the state should be permanently enjoined from executing him under the current version of 49-19-103. After examining the applicable statutory criteria, the Supreme Court accepted jurisdiction of the petition for writ of injunction because: (1) the state was clearly a party to the action; (2) the public had an interest in establishing and maintaining the validity of state actions in a proceeding that attempted to curtail the state's ability to enact, amend, and enforce state legislation; and (3) Langford's imminent execution constituted sufficient emergency circumstances to render due consideration in the trial court and appeal to the Supreme Court an inadequate remedy. Langford v. St., 287 M 107, 951 P2d 1357, 54 St. Rep. 1522 (1997).

Original Action in Supreme Court:

The Supreme Court has the power to issue a Writ of Injunction in a case wherein public interests are involved. State ex rel. Fisher v. School District, 97 M 358, 34 P2d 522 (1934).

To authorize the Supreme Court to issue the Writ of Injunction in the exercise of its original equity jurisdiction, as distinguished from its power to grant the Writ to preserve the subject of the action pending appeal, the rights of the "public" must be involved. State ex rel. Helena v. Helena Waterworks Co., 43 M 169, 115 P 200 (1911).

Under the constitutional grant of original jurisdiction to the Supreme Court, where the facts stated in an application for the Writ of Injunction present a case affecting the interests of the whole people of the state, the court has jurisdiction to issue the Writ. State ex rel. Clarke v. Moran, 24 M 433, 63 P 390 (1900).

Injunction Pending Appeal: The Supreme Court has inherent power to preserve the subject of litigation and the status of the parties pending an appeal. Finlen v. Heinze, 27 M 107, 69 P 829, 70 P 517 (1902).

Final Judgment:

The Supreme Court is without authority to grant an order modifying or vacating a perpetual injunction pending appeal from a judgment embracing it. Maloney v. King, 26 M 492, 68 P 1014 (1902).

This section does not have reference to staying the operation or effect of injunction orders. It has to do only with interlocutory orders of the District Court or Judge and not with final judgments. Maloney v. King, 26 M 492, 68 P 1014 (1902). See Finlen v. Heinze, 27 M 107, 69 P 829, 70 P 517 (1902).

Temporary Restraining Order: An order vacating a temporary restraining order is an order dissolving an injunction from which an appeal lies, and the Supreme Court could continue the injunction order in force pending an appeal from the order of the District Judge dissolving the injunction. Bennett Bros. Co. v. Congdon, 20 M 208, 50 P 556 (1897).

Case Notes

Time Bar on Writ of Certiorari to Review Contempt Proceedings: In a case of first impression, the Supreme Court was asked to establish a timeframe within which a petition for review of a contempt order must be filed. The issue was whether the time limitation should come from Title 25, which includes the Montana Rules of Civil Procedure and the Montana Rules of Appellate Procedure (now superseded), or from Title 27, which prescribes the various statutes of limitation for the commencement of actions. The court noted that there is no appeal, as such, from an order of contempt in a civil proceeding and that the exclusive method of review of civil contempt orders

(with certain exceptions) is through a writ of certiorari or writ of review. That review is generally limited to jurisdictional questions and whether evidence supports the contempt. Therefore, the issue of timeliness for filing a petition for a writ of certiorari or review is not a statute of limitations issue, and to mechanically characterize those writs for the review of contempt proceedings as original proceedings governed by the 5-year statute of limitations in 27-2-231 would be to deny the basic nature of appellate review. Further, petitions for writs of certiorari to review contempt proceedings are fundamentally different from other original proceedings commenced in the Supreme Court and from petitions for writs of supervisory control, which do not so much involve appellate review of and a decision on the underlying proceedings as they involve the court dealing with discreet questions of law during the pendency of the underlying proceedings. Because the timeframe in which to file petitions for writs of certiorari to review contempt proceedings is a procedural issue analogous to the procedure for filing a notice of appeal, the Supreme Court held that Rule 72, M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), former Rule 1, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), former Rule 17, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), and 27-25-103 require that the timeframe for those petitions be determined by the Montana Rules of Appellate Procedure (now superseded). Specifically, pursuant to former Rule 5, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), a petition for a writ of certiorari to review contempt proceedings must be filed with the Clerk of the District Court within 30 days of the date on which the District Court enters the contempt finding, unless the state is a party, in which case the petition must be filed within 60 days of the date on which the District Court enters the contempt finding. This may not be construed to limit the Supreme Court's power to grant writs of supervisory control or to consider applications for other types of original proceedings. The Supreme Court chose not to establish a precedent that allows contempt proceedings to be delayed until the underlying cause is resolved. Jones v. District Court, 2001 MT 276, 307 M 305, 37 P3d 682 (2001), overruling Shaffroth v. Lamere, 104 M 175, 65 P2d 610 (1937), to the extent that Shaffroth holds that the general 5-year statute of limitations in 27-2-231 applies to all writs of review authorized in 27-25-102.

Denial of Bond Pending Appeal — Method of Supreme Court Review — Jurisdiction: After conviction for negligent homicide and on related charges, Ingraham moved the District Court to continue bond pending appeal. The District Court denied the motion, finding that Ingraham was a danger to the community and therefore did not meet the requirements of 46-9-107. Ingraham then moved the Supreme Court, pursuant to former Rule 22, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), to continue bond pending appeal or, in the alternative, to accept appeal of the District Court's order denying bond, pursuant to former Rule 1, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), and 46-20-104. The Attorney General moved to dismiss, contending that there was no provision in law for appeal from a District Court order denying bond pending appeal and that Ingraham should have brought an original habeas corpus proceeding. The Supreme Court agreed with the Attorney General and dismissed Ingraham's motion or appeal, holding that Ingraham should have brought a petition for a writ of habeas corpus pursuant to 46-22-103. Ingraham then filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, which was filed with Justice Trieweiler pursuant to this section. Justice Trieweiler granted the petition to the extent necessary for the District Court to hold an evidentiary hearing as provided by statute, under the theory that the District Court was the more appropriate court for the hearing than was the Supreme Court. The Attorney General opposed the order by applying to the full Supreme Court for a writ of supervisory control, arguing, contrary to the state's previous position, that 46-22-103 does not really apply to persons convicted in a criminal case and that the more appropriate procedure was an original proceeding "in the nature of habeas corpus" before the full Supreme Court. The application for a writ of supervisory control was denied, was treated by the Supreme Court as a late-filed response to Ingraham's petition for a writ of habeas corpus, and was referred to Justice Trieweiler. Justice Trieweiler determined that it was inappropriate for him alone to determine the form of review of the District Court's denial of bond. Justice Trieweiler also determined that: (1) Ingraham had no constitutional right to bond pending appeal; (2) Ingraham did have a right to the proper exercise of the District Court's discretion in the application of 46-9-107; and (3) that right was a substantial right for the purposes of 46-20-104. For these reasons, Justice Trieweiler vacated his previous order granting Ingraham's petition for a writ of habeas corpus and referred the matter to the full Supreme Court for review of the District Court's order denying bond pending appeal. St. v. Ingraham, 284 M 77, 945 P2d 16, 54 St. Rep. 614 (1997).

Failure to Take Oath — Discharge at Will: Plaintiff served in the capacity of deputy clerk of the Supreme Court for 20 years. He ran for the Clerk of Court position but was defeated. The newly elected Clerk terminated plaintiff and appointed a new deputy. Plaintiff contended he was unlawfully discharged. Plaintiff was not appointed in writing as required by 2-16-205, nor did he subscribe, take, or file an oath of office as required by 3-2-406. When an officer's term is not definite, his appointment is at will. Section 2-16-213 provides that the term of the deputy clerk is at the pleasure of the appointing power. Under 2-16-501, an office becomes vacant upon refusal or neglect to file the official oath within the time prescribed. The court held that upon plaintiff's failure to file an oath of office, his term of office terminated and the Clerk of Court could at any time fill the vacancy by appointment. *Conboy v. Study of Redistricting of State Judicial Districts: Section 1, Ch. 338, L. 1999, provided: “Study of necessity of redistricting state judicial districts. (1) The legislative council is requested to designate an appropriate legislative interim committee to study the issue of whether the state's judicial districts should be redistricted. The committee shall report the results of its study to the 57th regular session of the legislature. If the committee determines that redistricting is necessary based on the factors listed in subsection (2), the committee shall prepare for introduction in the 57th regular session of the legislature legislation redistricting the state's judicial districts.

(2) Factors to be considered by the committee shall include but not be limited to:

(a) the population of the districts as determined by the latest estimates prepared and issued by the United States bureau of the census and made available to the census and economic information center of the Montana department of commerce;

(b) each district's case load;

(c) the relative proportions of civil, criminal, juvenile, and family law cases in each district's case load;

(d) the extent to which special masters, alternative dispute resolution techniques, and other measures have been used in the districts;

(e) the distances between county seats in existing districts and any districts that may be proposed by the committee;

(f) the impact on counties of any changes proposed in the districts; and

(g) other factors that the committee determines to be significant to the determination of whether the state's judicial districts should be redistricted.

(3) For the purposes of this study, subcommittees of the committee must include, to the extent allowed by law, judges, county commissioners, and other affected parties.

(4) The legislative council may accept gifts, grants, donations, and other funding to assist in this study."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 454 in introductory clause increased number of judicial districts from 21 to 22; in (13) after "Yellowstone" deleted references to Stillwater, Carbon, and Big Horn Counties; inserted (22) establishing the 22nd district; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 454, L. 1999, provided: "(1) The additional judge for the 11th judicial district and the judge for the new 22nd judicial district must be appointed pursuant to the provisions of Title 3, chapter 1, part 10, to take office in January 2000. There must be an election for the offices at the general election to be held in November 2000 for 6-year terms to begin in January 2001.

(2) The additional judge for the 20th judicial district must be elected at the general election to be held in November 2000 and shall take office in January 2001."

1991 Amendment: In introductory clause increased number of districts from 20 to 21; in (4) deleted Ravalli County; inserted (21) establishing 21st Judicial District in Ravalli County; and made minor changes in style.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 642, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, demographics have changed dramatically in Montana in the last decade; and

WHEREAS, census data that is currently available will be the most reliable data available for reapportioning judicial districts for the next decade; and

WHEREAS, the number of filings in some district courts has grown at a greater rate than the number of filings in other district courts; and

WHEREAS, the cost of the court system is an issue of increasing importance in Montana."

Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 642, L. 1991, provided: "The judge for the 21st judicial district must be elected at the general election to be held in November 1992 and shall take office on January 1, 1993."

1983 Amendment: Increased number of judicial districts from 19 to 20; moved Prairie County from 16th district to 7th; moved Chouteau County from 8th to 12th; moved Blaine County from 12th to 17th; moved Treasure County from 13th to 16th; and moved Lake and Sanders Counties from 4th to 20th. Section 5, Ch. 293, L. 1983, provided that the amendments are effective January 7, 1985, unless early elections are held, in which case the necessary portions of the amendments are effective January 2, 1984.

Attorney General's Opinions

Time for Election of Newly Created District Court Judgeships: Subsection (1) of 13-1-104 sets forth the schedule for general elections to be held in even-numbered years and lists those offices for which such an election is to be held, including the office of District Court Judge. Subsection (2) of 13-1-104 provides the schedule for holding general elections in odd-numbered years, and its list of officers to be elected does not include District Court Judges but does include "any other officers specified by law for election in odd-numbered years". Chapter 293, L. 1983, increased the number of judgeships in several judicial districts and provided that the new judgeships could be initially filled at either the 1983 or 1984 general election. The provision of Ch. 293, L. 1983, allowing election of judges in an odd-numbered year is not in conflict with 13-1-104 because, while subsection (1) would appear to require elections in even-numbered years, Ch. 293, L. 1983, contains specific authority for District Court Judges to be elected in odd-numbered years and thus the clause "any other officers specified by law for election in odd-numbered years" of subsection (2) is applicable. Further, 13-1-107(2) which sets forth the time for holding a primary election in an odd-numbered year is the law applicable to any odd-numbered year primary election held under Ch. 293, L. 1983. 40 A.G. Op. 13 (1983).

Length of Term of Newly Created Judgeships to Be Six Years: Chapter 293, L. 1983, increased the number of judgeships in several judicial districts and provided that the new judgeships could be initially filled at either the 1983 or 1984 general election. According to Art. VII, sec. 7(2), Mont. Const., and 3-5-203, the length of term of a District Court Judge is 6 years. In response to the question of the length of term of judges elected to positions created by Ch. 293, L. 1983, the Attorney General ruled that the term was 6 years because: (1) neither the constitutional provision nor the governing statute was altered by Ch. 293, L. 1983; (2) a provision in the original draft of the bill that altered the length of the term was deleted from the final version of the bill; and (3) assuming that the first election for new judgeships is compared to the filling of vacancies in office, it would be arbitrary to choose 1989, the year contained in the deleted provision of the original bill, as the year in which the terms of the new "vacant" offices expire. 40 A.G. Op. 13 (1983).

1999 Amendment: Chapter 454 in (1) after "7th" deleted "11th" and after "18th" inserted "and 20th"; in (2) after "8th" inserted "and 11th"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 454, L. 1999, provided: "(1) The additional judge for the 11th judicial district and the judge for the new 22nd judicial district must be appointed pursuant to the provisions of Title 3, chapter 1, part 10, to take office in January 2000. There must be an election for the offices at the general election to be held in November 2000 for 6-year terms to begin in January 2001.

(2) The additional judge for the 20th judicial district must be elected at the general election to be held in November 2000 and shall take office in January 2001."

1983 Amendment: Increased the number of judges in the 1st district from two to three; in the 7th district from one to two; and in the 13th district from four to five.

Section 3, Ch. 293, L. 1983, provided: "Selection of new judges. (1) Except as provided in subsection (2), the judgeships created by this act [Ch. 293] shall be initially filled at the 1984 general election, and the individuals elected shall take office on the first Monday of January, 1985.

(2) A judgeship created by this act [Ch. 293] may be initially filled at the 1983 general election if a majority of the county commissioners in each county within the judicial district where the judge will be elected agree to conduct the election. The individual elected shall take office on the first Monday of January, 1984." Section 5, Ch. 293, L. 1983, provided that the amendments to this section are effective January 7, 1985, unless early elections are held, in which case necessary portions of the amendments are effective January 2, 1984.

New Judge — How Selected: Section 2, Ch. 542, L. 1979, provided: "The judgeship created by this act shall be filled initially at the 1980 general election, and the individual elected shall take office on the first Monday of January, 1981." Chapter 542 added a fourth judge to the 4th Judicial District.

Part 2 District Court Judges

Part Case Notes

District Court Power to Set Court Staff Salaries — Emergency or Failure of Established Methods Only: A District Judge had no inherent authority to enter an ex parte order establishing salaries for court staff involved in collective bargaining negotiations. The Supreme Court cited State ex rel. Hillis v. Sullivan, 48 M 320, 137 P 392 (1913), in holding that the inherent judicial power to compel funding should only be used when an emergency arises or when the established methods for providing funding have failed. Butte-Silver Bow Local Gov't v. Olsen, 228 M 77, 743 P2d 564, 44 St. Rep. 1356 (1987). See also Monaco v. Lake County, 1998 MT 243, 291 M 141, 967 P2d 367, 55 St. Rep. 1011 (1998).

Appointment of Defeated District Judge: Judge Sykes, a retired judge who was defeated for reelection, was appointed by the Chief Justice to hear several cases. A party to one of the cases appealed the appointment of a defeated judge. The court held that Judge Sykes is a member of the "pool" of retired judges and can be called in by the Chief Justice to preside under the provisions of Art. VII, sec. 6, Mont. Const. Section 3-5-201, which requires District Judges to be elected, does not overcome the constitutional power given to the Chief Justice. Judge Sykes was not appointed pursuant to 19-5-103, and it is therefore not applicable. State ex rel. Welch v. District Court, 209 M 397, 680 P2d 327, 41 St. Rep. 783 (1984).

Judge's Reappointment to Finish Case Started Before Retirement: That trial Judge retired prior to his issuance of orders in the case at issue did not make the orders void. Under the recent decision in State ex rel. Wilcox & Bradley v. District Court, 41 St. Rep. 397 (1984), the trial Judge had authority to perform all functions of an active District Judge, including the issuance of final orders and judgments. In re Pegg's Estate, 209 M 71, 680 P2d 316, 41 St. Rep. 558 (1984). (Annotator's Note: The District Court's records indicate that the Judge retired after beginning work on the case and was reappointed to finish the case.)

Retired Judges Eligible for Assignment for Temporary Service: The term "other judges" in subsection (3) of Art. VII, sec. 6, Mont. Const., includes retired judges. That subsection empowers the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, upon request of a District Judge, to assign retired judges for temporary service to any judicial district or county in Montana. Further, that provision is a constitutional grant of power exclusive of any statutory grant by the Legislature. State ex rel. Wilcox v. District Court, 208 M 351, 678 P2d 209, 41 St. Rep. 397 (1984); followed in St. v. Holmes, 212 M 526, 687 P2d 662, 41 St. Rep. 1535 (1984).

Impairment of Contract and Diminution of Salary — Preventing Legislative Meddling in Judicial Decisions: Plaintiff contended 3-2-104 and 3-5-212, which imposed sanctions on judges if decisions were not reached or opinions were not written within the procedural constraints and time limits set by the statutes, were unconstitutional. (In 1985, 3-2-104 was amended and 3-5-212 was repealed, thus eliminating the sanctions.) The penalty provisions of both statutes required a 1-month salary forfeiture in the event of a violation. Plaintiff contended the penalty violated the impairment of contract and diminution of judicial salary provisions of the Montana Constitution. Defendant contended that since the judiciary imposed the sanctions, the constitution was not violated. The constitutional prohibition against diminution of salaries is designed to prevent lawmakers from exerting control over the judiciary. Even if the court were to allow the indirect violation by allowing the Legislature to mandate a scheme administered by the courts, the statutes would violate the impairment of contract prohibition. Public employment gives rise to certain obligations protected by the contract clause of the constitution. Promised compensation is one such protected right. Once vested, the right to compensation cannot be eliminated without unconstitutionally impairing the contract obligation. Coate v. Omholt, 203 M 488, 662 P2d 591, 40 St. Rep. 586 (1983).

Time Limits on Judicial Decisions — Solely Within Judicial Sphere: Plaintiff contended 3-2-104 and 3-5-212, which imposed sanctions on judges if decisions were not reached or opinions were not written within the procedural constraints and time limits set by the statutes, were unconstitutional. (In 1985, 3-2-104 was amended and 3-5-212 was repealed, thus eliminating the sanctions.) On appeal, the Supreme Court held that under the separation of powers doctrine the legislative branch of government is without constitutional authority to limit the judicial branch of government in respect to when it shall hear or determine any cause of action within its lawful jurisdiction. The time limits within which judicial decisions must be rendered were held to be a sphere of activity so fundamental and necessary to a court that to divest it of its absolute control would be to make meaningless the very phrase "judicial power". Coate v. Omholt, 203 M 488, 662 P2d 591, 40 St. Rep. 586 (1983).

Attorney General's Opinions

Length of Term of Newly Created Judgeships to Be Six Years: Chapter 293, L. 1983, increased the number of judgeships in several judicial districts and provided that the new judgeships could be initially filled at either the 1983 or 1984 general election. According to Art. VII, sec. 7(2), Mont. Const., and this section, the length of term of a District Court Judge is 6 years. In response to the question of the length of term of judges elected to positions created by Ch. 293, L. 1983, the Attorney General ruled that the term was 6 years because: (1) neither the constitutional provision nor the governing statute was altered by Ch. 293, L. 1983; (2) a provision in the original draft of the bill that altered the length of the term was deleted from the final version of the bill; and (3) assuming that the first election for new judgeships is compared to the filling of vacancies in office, it would be arbitrary to choose 1989, the year contained in the deleted provision of the original bill, as the year in which the terms of the new "vacant" offices expire. 40 A.G. 1999 Amendment: Chapter 51 deleted former (1) that read: "(1) Subject to subsection (2), the annual salary of each district judge is as follows:

(a) $63,178;

(b) $64,979 beginning July 1, 1995;

(c) $67,513 beginning January 1, 1996"; in (1) near beginning of first sentence after "June 30" deleted "1996, and prior to June 30", near end of third sentence after "July 1" substituted "of the year following the year in which the survey is conducted" for "1997" and after "average" inserted "salary", and deleted former fourth sentence that read: "In each year following the year in which a survey is conducted, the average salary is the new salary for the position"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 15, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 455 in (1) inserted "subject to subsection (2)" and substituted salary schedule for former salary schedule (see 1995 Session Law for text); inserted (2) requiring Department of Administration to conduct salary survey; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 14, 1995.

1991 Amendment: Substituted salaries in (1)(a), (1)(b), (1)(c), and (1)(d) for "$52,178 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1989, and $55,178 for each fiscal year thereafter". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

Preamble to 1991 Amendment: The preamble attached to Ch. 656, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, the salaries of Montana Supreme Court Justices and District Court Judges have failed to rise over the last decade to a point that threatens the long-term ability of the judiciary to retain and attract the best qualified candidates for judicial offices; and

WHEREAS, the salaries of both Supreme Court Justices and District Court Judges in Montana are ranked 50th in the nation; and

WHEREAS, the salaries of Supreme Court Justices and District Court Judges in Montana and neighboring states are:

STATE	CHIEF JUSTICE	DISTRICT JUSTICE	JUDGE
Montana	$57,722	$56,452	$55,178
North Dakota	70,243	68,342	62,969

*Effective July 1, 1991

AVERAGE: $72,028 $70,916 $66,306; and

WHEREAS, the ranking between Montana and other states has seriously declined in the past decade from a ranking of 38th in the United States in 1977 to 50th for the last 5 years; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature is committed to an equitable system for setting salaries, based on comparable worth and related levels of responsibility.

THEREFORE, it is the purpose of this legislation to allow Montana Supreme Court Justices and District Court Judges to receive salaries comparable to the average salary of justices and judges in other western states."

1989 Amendment: At end of (1) increased District Judge salary from $49,178 to $52,178 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1989, and to $55,178 for each fiscal year thereafter. Amendment effective July 1, 1989.

1985 Amendment: In (1) increased the annual salary of a District Judge to $49,178 and deleted former (1)(a) and (1)(b) which specified a salary of $46,758 for fiscal year 1984 and $47,693 for fiscal years thereafter.

1983 Amendment: In (1)(a), increased the salary of a District Judge for fiscal year 1983 to $46,758 from that authorized for fiscal year 1981, $42,273; and in (1)(b) increased the salary of a District Judge for fiscal years after 1983 to $47,693 from that authorized for fiscal years after 1981, $45,841.

1981 Amendment: In (1)(a), changed "1979" to "1981", "1980" to "1982", and increased the salary from $37,000 to $42,273; and in (1)(b), changed "1980" to "1982", and increased the salary from $39,000 to $45,841.

Transition: Section 16, Ch. 528, L. 1979, provided: "A judicial officer, as defined in 1-1-202, who is occupying his judicial office on the effective date of this act shall continue to be paid expenses on the same basis as he is receiving them on the effective date of this act until the expiration of his term of office. All judicial officers who take office or begin a new term of office after the effective date of this act shall receive expenses as provided in this act."

Part 3District Court Jurisdiction*Part Case Notes

No Montana Personal Jurisdiction Over Regional Out-of-State Insurer: Carter, a part-time "snow bird" resident of Montana, was injured in an automobile accident in Montana shortly after moving from Mississippi. Carter filed a declaratory judgment action against the defendant, a regional out-of-state insurer that did not do business in Montana, requesting interpretation of an insurance contract issued on Carter's vehicles in Mississippi. The insurer contested Montana's exercise of personal jurisdiction and moved for summary judgment. The District Court concluded that it did not have personal jurisdiction and granted summary judgment. Carter appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. The court cited Bahn v. Chicago Motor Club, 634 A2d 63 (Md. 1993), for the holding that although an insurer's promise to provide nationwide coverage may establish that the insurer has agreed to submit to jurisdiction in any forum that has jurisdiction to adjudicate claims against its insured, this agreement does not imply a further agreement to allow the insured to bring suit against the insurer in any state. Even though the insurer could reasonably anticipate that the insured could suffer an injury within the insurer's 50-state coverage, that foreseeability, without more, was not sufficient to subject the insurer to personal jurisdiction in Montana courts. The underlying dispute related to coverage and had nothing to do with the fact that the accident occurred in Montana or that Carter was living in this state at the time. Thus, although Carter had every right to sue the insurer over its coverage issues, in this case, Montana courts did not have personal jurisdiction over the insurer that was required as a predicate to maintenance of an action in Montana. Summary dismissal was proper. Carter v. Miss. Farm Bureau Cas. Ins. Co., 2005 MT 74, 326 M 350, 109 P3d 735 (2005). See also Bi-Lo Foods, Inc. v. Alpine Bank, 1998 MT 40, 287 M 367, 955 P2d 154 (1998).

Underlying Case on Appeal to Supreme Court — Statutory Petition Process Terminated — Lack of District Court Jurisdiction: Plaintiffs' property was part of a dispute to exclude certain property from the Missoula irrigation district. Following the District Court's exclusion of property from the irrigation district, the case was appealed to the Supreme Court. While that case was pending on appeal, the District Court granted another petition by plaintiffs to exclude another four properties from the irrigation district. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed. Once the underlying case was appealed to the Supreme Court, the District Court lost its jurisdiction to act further in the matter and had no jurisdiction to entertain plaintiffs' second petition or to exclude additional properties while the case was on appeal. Additionally, the petition process that plaintiffs used to file the second petition under former 85-7-1846 was terminated nearly 5 years before the petition was filed. Thus, the District Court had no jurisdiction to entertain a petition filed under a statutory process that was no longer in place. Larango v. Missoula Irrigation District, 2004 MT 369, 324 M 534, 103 P3d 552 (2004). See also Lewistown Propane Co. v. Moncur, 2002 MT 349, 313 M 368, 61 P3d 780 (2002).

Guidelines for Determining Whether Indian Tribe Has Waived Sovereign Immunity in Contract — Inapplicability of Statute of Frauds to Question of Subject Matter Jurisdiction: Plaintiff contended that he signed a 7-year contract with the Crow Tribe to provide consulting services and to act as a program manager for the planning and construction of a power plant on tribal property and that the tribe breached the contract and failed to pay him. The tribe moved to dismiss on grounds that the District Court lacked personal and subject matter jurisdiction because of the tribe's sovereign immunity. The District Court denied the motion but reserved the right to readdress the issue of subject matter jurisdiction. Following further discovery, neither party could produce a signed copy of the alleged contract. The District Court concluded that because the alleged contract was for employment for more than 1 year, the statute of frauds applied and noted that although plaintiff's performance would normally create an exception to the statute of frauds pursuant to the court's equitable powers, to exercise that power in this case would circumvent the tribe's sovereign immunity in contravention of federal law. The District Court further concluded that although there was an express agreement that was partially performed and that the agreement contained a waiver of tribal immunity from suit in state court, as indicated by affidavits submitted by plaintiff and the tribal presiding officer, because of the fact that a signed copy of the contract was not produced, there was insufficient evidence to overcome the presumption against waiver of tribal immunity, so the action was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. Plaintiff appealed, and the Supreme Court reversed. The Montana statute of frauds in 28-2-903 limits the enforceability of certain contracts but does not affect a District Court's subject matter jurisdiction, so a District Court need not consider the statute of frauds when determining subject matter jurisdiction; furthermore, the court does not need to invoke its equitable powers to find jurisdiction. Rather, the question facing the District Court was whether the tribe clearly and unequivocally waived its sovereign immunity. The Supreme Court found that plaintiff's complaint alleged sufficient facts that, if true, would vest the District Court with subject matter jurisdiction. The tribe produced no evidence to refute the affidavits or to controvert the recollections of the affiants. Absent any factual issue to resolve, the Supreme Court concluded that plaintiff presented undisputed evidence proving the establishment of a contract that included an unequivocal waiver of sovereign immunity, so dismissal of the complaint by the District Court on jurisdictional grounds constituted reversible error. Bradley v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 2003 MT 82, 315 M 75, 67 P3d 306 (2003). On remand, the District Court again granted Bradley's motion for summary judgment after holding that the tribe's motion to alter or amend was denied because the court did not rule on the motion within 60 days. The Supreme Court held that because there is no provision in Rule 56, M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), for entry of summary judgment by default, denial of the tribe's motion was erroneous, and because questions of fact existed regarding contract ambiguity and damages, the case was again reversed and remanded for further consideration. Bradley v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 2005 MT 309, 329 M 448, 124 P3d 1143 (2005).

District Court Jurisdiction to Decide Constructive Fraud Based on Pleadings and Final Pretrial Order: Plaintiffs filed a claim for misrepresentation and failure to disclose concerning the sale of an irrigation system. Defendants contended that plaintiffs did not notify them by pleadings or evidence at trial that plaintiffs were claiming that a false impression was created regarding the condition of the field at pivot three, arguing that the complaint concerned defects and misrepresentations related to the irrigation system, not to the land, and that the District Court thus lacked jurisdiction to enter judgment on the issue of the land rather than the irrigation system. A District Court does not have jurisdiction to grant relief outside of the issues presented by the pleadings unless the parties stipulate that other questions be considered or the pleadings are amended to conform to the proof. However, in this case, the pleadings and the final pretrial order, which cited misrepresentation of or failure to disclose problems with both the deficient irrigation system and the erosion of the river bank near pivot three, gave defendants sufficient notice of the disputed issues to vest the District Court with issue jurisdiction. H-D Irrigating, Inc. v. Kimble Properties, Inc., 2000 MT 212, 301 M 34, 8 P3d 95, 57 St. Rep. 832 (2000).

Entry of Judgment by Court of General Jurisdiction in Foreclosure Action Affirmed — Collateral Attack Precluded: Glickman contended that the District Court acted outside or in excess of its jurisdiction by decreeing that the purchaser of Glickman's property at a Sheriff's foreclosure sale be "let into possession". A judgment entered by a court lacking subject matter jurisdiction is subject to attack at any time. A collateral attack on a judgment is possible only if the judgment is void on its face and if it appears affirmatively from the judgment roll that the court did not have jurisdiction or committed an act in excess of jurisdiction. Absent any authority that a court of general jurisdiction may not enter a judgment in a foreclosure sale, the Supreme Court held that the District Court did not act outside or in excess of its jurisdiction by decreeing that the purchaser of the property at a Sheriff's foreclosure sale be "let into possession". Further, Glickman's failure to allege any statutory causes of action in his original petition precluded him from bringing an independent action under the residual clause of Rule 60(b), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20). Glickman v. Whitefish Credit Union Ass'n, 1998 MT 8, 287 M 161, 951 P2d 1388, 55 St. Rep. 27 (1998).

Nature of National Guard Service — State Court Jurisdiction: Members of the National Guard serve a dual responsibility, both to the State of Montana and to the United States of America. While Guard units consist of members enlisted in the United States Army, they are also a Montana military unit consisting of Montana citizens. The District Court improperly dismissed a suit brought by members of the Montana Army National Guard on grounds that the court did not have jurisdiction, absent proof that the members were on federal active duty as opposed to state active duty. The case was remanded for further findings. Grove v. Mont. Army Nat'l Guard, 264 M 498, 872 P2d 791, 51 St. Rep. 366 (1994), distinguishing Evans v. Mont. Nat'l Guard, 223 M 482, 726 P2d 1160 (1986).

Presentation of Issue in Pleadings Necessary for Jurisdiction — Jurisdiction Upheld: Logan was discharged from her job at Metra and later obtained employment with the Yellowstone County Sheriff's office, where she suffered a repetitive motion injury. She sued Yellowstone County, claiming that the county breached her employment contract. The county moved for summary judgment, and the District Court dismissed the action. The Supreme Court held that despite Logan's claims that the District Court had no jurisdiction to dismiss because the county moved for summary judgment, the motion for summary judgment on all issues put squarely before the District Court the issue of whether the complaint should be dismissed. The Supreme Court held that the District Court did not exceed the requested relief when it dismissed the complaint. Logan v. Yellowstone County, 263 M 218, 868 P2d 565, 51 St. Rep. 22 (1994).

State Court Jurisdiction of ERISA Actions:

In a case brought to enforce a contract between an employer and a labor organization, state courts have concurrent jurisdiction with federal courts but must apply federal substantive law in exercising that jurisdiction. A state court may rely on state contract law as long as it effectuates the policy underlying federal labor legislation. Audit Serv., Inc. v. Frontier-West, Inc., 252 M 142, 827 P2d 1242, 49 St. Rep. 186 (1992), citing Kemmis v. McGoldrick, 706 F2d 993 (9th Cir. 1983).

Title 29 U.S.C. 1132(e) establishes state court jurisdiction over actions brought to recover benefits under an insurance policy covered by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974. Bauer v. Kar Prod., Inc., 230 M 422, 749 P2d 1385, 45 St. Rep. 322 (1988).

Jurisdiction Required Before Judgment Effective: It is fundamental that a court rendering a decision in a particular case have jurisdiction over the parties. When the judgment roll on its face shows that the court was without jurisdiction to render the judgment, its pronouncement is in fact no judgment and cannot be enforced. No right can be derived from it. All proceedings founded upon it are invalid and ineffective for any purpose. Ciotti v. Hoover, 237 M 462, 774 P2d 406, 46 St. Rep. 969 (1989), following Apple v. Edwards, 123 M 135, 211 P2d 138 (1949).

Judgment on Matters Outside Pleadings Void: A judgment or final order adjudging matters outside the issues raised by the pleadings is void as to the matters outside the pleadings. In re Custody of C.S.F., 232 M 204, 755 P2d 578, 45 St. Rep. 992 (1988), following Welch v. All Persons, 78 M 370, 254 P 179 (1927).

Jurisdiction of State Court to Order Arbitration Under Federal Arbitration Law: Under the U.S. Supreme Court decision set out in Southland Corp. v. Keating, 465 US 1, 79 L Ed 2d 1, 104 S Ct 852 (1984), a state court clearly has jurisdiction to order arbitration under the federal arbitration law, 9 U.S.C. 1, et seq. Passage v. Prudential-Bache Sec., Inc., 223 M 60, 727 P2d 1298, 43 St. Rep. 1532 (1986).

No Jurisdiction Over Issues Not Presented in Pleadings: Where the plaintiff church was granted a tax exemption by the Department of Revenue for some but not all of the plaintiff's real property and brought a quiet title action to determine its ownership and the tax-exempt status of that portion of the property for which it had not been granted an exemption, the District Court erred in removing the exemption originally granted by the Department of Revenue. Under the rationale of Heller v. Osburnsen, 162 M 182, 510 P2d 13 (1973), and Nat'l Sur. Corp. v. Kruse, 121 M 202, 192 P2d 317 (1948), the District Court had jurisdiction only over those issues raised in the pleadings, and the exempt status of lots 10 through 16 was not at issue in the case. Consequently, the District Court had no jurisdiction to remove the tax-exempt status for those lots belonging to the plaintiff. Old Fashion Baptist Church v. Dept. of Revenue, 206 M 451, 671 P2d 625, 40 St. Rep. 1774 (1983).

Labor Management Relations Act of 1947: State courts have concurrent jurisdiction with federal courts to hear cases brought under section 301(a) of the Labor Management Relations Act of 1947 (29 U.S.C. §185(a)). Audit Serv., Inc. v. Clark Bros. Contractors, 198 M 274, 645 P2d 953, 39 St. Rep. 928 (1982).

Same Day Filing of Appeal and Motion for Rehearing: The filing of an appeal to the Supreme Court stays proceedings in the lower court, thereby removing jurisdiction to proceed further in the matter from the lower court; thus, the Supreme Court denied the motion to dismiss the appeal, which was based on the fact that the notice of appeal and movant's motion for rehearing were filed on the same day. Green v. C.R. Anthony Co., 194 M 102, 634 P2d 629, 38 St. Rep. 1638 (1981).

Loss of District Court Jurisdiction Upon Filing Notice of Appeal — Findings and Conclusions Improperly Amended: In an action for damages resulting from the defendants' breach of contract by failing to complete the construction of a road for the plaintiff, the trial court committed reversible error in attempting to amend its findings of fact and conclusions of law after the defendants filed a notice of appeal. Since 1954 it has been the rule in Montana that when a notice of appeal is filed, personal and subject matter jurisdiction passes from the District Court to the Supreme Court. When the District Court amended its findings and conclusions after filing of the notice of appeal, it did so without jurisdiction and the amendments were therefore void. Julian v. Buckley, 191 M 487, 625 P2d 526, 38 St. Rep. 128 (1981). See also St. v. Arlington, 265 M 127, 875 P2d 307, 51 St. Rep. 417 (1994).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 481 in (1) at beginning of introductory clause deleted "Except as provided in subsection (6)"; deleted former (6) that read: "(6) (a) Except as provided in subsection (6)(b), a contest of a ballot issue submitted by initiative or referendum may be brought prior to the election only if it is filed within 30 days after the date on which the issue was certified to the governor, as provided in 13-27-308, and only for the following causes:

(i) violation of the law relating to qualifications for inclusion on the ballot;

(ii) constitutional defect in the substance of a proposed ballot issue; or

(iii) illegal petition signatures or an erroneous or fraudulent count or canvass of petition signatures.

(b) A contest of a ballot issue based on subsection (6)(a)(i) or (6)(a)(iii) may be brought at any time after discovery of illegal petition signatures or an erroneous or fraudulent count or canvass of petition signatures.

(c) Nothing in subsection (6) limits the right to challenge a measure enacted by a vote of the people"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 11, 2007.

Severability: Section 29, Ch. 481, L. 2007, was a severability clause.

1987 Amendment: In (1), at beginning, inserted exception clause relating to subsection (6); and inserted (6) relating to ballot issue contests.

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 540, L. 1987, which amended this section, read: "WHEREAS, Article II, section 1, of the Montana Constitution recognizes that all political power is vested in and derived from the people and that all government of right originates with the people, is founded on their will only, and is instituted solely for the good of the whole; and

WHEREAS, the right of the people to make statutory changes by initiative is retained in Article III, section 4, of the Montana Constitution; and

WHEREAS, the right of the people to alter their Constitution by initiative is retained in Article XIV, section 9, of the Montana Constitution."

1985 Amendment: At end of (2)(a) inserted "or misdemeanor offense charged in district court"; in (2)(b) after "felony" inserted "or misdemeanor"; and in (2)(c) substituted "felony or misdemeanor case tried in district court" for "felony case".

1981 Amendment: Inserted (2) relating to concurrent misdemeanor jurisdiction.

GENERALLY

Challenge to Ballot Issue Timely — Laches Inapplicable: Proponents of a ballot issue contended that the opponents negligently delayed asserting their rights to challenge the issue and that the opponents' claim was therefore barred by laches. Laches applies when a claimant has unreasonably delayed or has been negligent in asserting the claim, to the prejudice of the party against whom relief is sought. The argument failed on two grounds. First, the proponents failed to raise laches in their answer to the complaint, and laches cannot be raised for the first time on appeal, so the defense was procedurally barred. Second, the opponents brought their claim within the narrow 30-day window after the ballot issues were certified (as provided in this section at the time), so it could not be reasonably argued that the opponents waited until the claim was stale before asserting it. Thus, the claim was not barred by laches. Montanans for Justice: Vote No on CI-98 v. St., 2006 MT 277, 334 M 237, 146 P3d 759 (2006).

Expedited Hearing on Validity of Ballot Measure Not Violative of Procedural Due Process: Opponents to a ballot measure timely filed a challenge, and the District Court expedited the hearing and denied the proponents additional time for discovery. On appeal, the proponents asserted that their due process rights were violated by the District Court's actions. The Supreme Court disagreed. The requirements for a procedural due process claim are notice and opportunity for a hearing appropriate to the nature of the case. The proponents could not claim lack of notice because: (1) the opponents' complaint was sufficiently specific to put the proponents on notice that the opponents contested the validity of addresses listed by paid signature gatherers; (2) the proponents acknowledged that the Secretary of State notified them during the signature gathering process that complaints had been received related to address falsification; and (3) denial of additional time for discovery regarding address falsification did not prejudice the proponents because the signature gatherers were contacted, hired, and paid by the proponents, so any information regarding the true addresses was within the exclusive knowledge of the proponents. The due process claim of lack of a meaningful hearing was also denied by the Supreme Court. The record showed that the proponents failed to use the time allocated for discovery or to avail themselves of available procedural remedies. The proponents did not answer the opponents' complaint, request any discovery, move for a continuance, take any depositions, file a pretrial brief, attend depositions conducted by the opponents, file proposed findings of fact or conclusions of law, or object to the District Court's proposed expedited schedule. Thus, any deprivation of a meaningful hearing was more a construct of the proponents' own failure to act than it was a function of the District Court's denial of more time for trial preparation. The proponents' due process claim failed. *Montanans for Justice: Vote No on CI-98 v. St., 2006 MT 277, 334 M 237, 146 P3d 759 (2006), distinguishing Wilson v. Time Limit for Filing for New Trial Constitutional — No Jurisdiction to Grant New Trial After Time Limit Runs: After the 60-day deadline for granting a new trial in Rule 59(d), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), the District Court granted plaintiff a new trial. Defendant appealed, saying that the District Court was without jurisdiction. On appeal, plaintiff argued that the time limit was unconstitutional and arbitrary and deprived plaintiff of procedural due process. Citing In re Marriage of Richards, 2001 MT 183, 306 M 212, 31 P3d 1002 (2001), the Supreme Court noted that just because a rule is arbitrary does not mean that it should not be favored and that insisting on a firm time limit advances the cause of justice by bringing predictability to the legal process. The court concluded that the time limit is constitutional and that the District Court did not have jurisdiction to grant plaintiff a new trial after the time limit had run. Forsythe v. Leydon, 2004 MT 327, 324 M 121, 102 P3d 25 (2004). See also Kelly v. Sell & Sell Paint Contractors, 175 M 440, 574 P2d 1002 (1978).

Doctrine of Abstention Properly Applied by District Court Over Matter Subject to Tribal Court Jurisdiction: Defendants who were enrolled tribal members brought suit in tribal court, seeking damages for plaintiff's failure to timely close the purchase of real and personal property described in a buy-sell agreement. Plaintiff was also a tribal member who resided on the reservation. The tribal court concluded that it had subject matter and personal jurisdiction over the litigation. Plaintiff contended that the tribal court did not have jurisdiction, and while the matter was pending in tribal appellate court, filed the present action in state District Court, alleging various claims based on or arising out of buy-sell agreements. The District Court dismissed the state action, and plaintiff appealed. The Supreme Court noted that Montana courts are open to all Montana citizens, including Indian citizens, who may sue in state court as long as Congress has not expressly retained jurisdiction in the United States, particularly if the Indian is a Montana citizen and the matter does not interfere with tribal self-government. Conversely, the court also recognized the sovereignty of a tribe to maintain the right of self-government and to control the internal relations of tribal members and recognized that tribal courts have jurisdiction over tribal members conducting business on tribal land with other tribal members. Thus, because the tribal court exercised jurisdiction and because the subject matter of plaintiff's state suit was based on or arose from the same sales agreements that were the subject of the tribal court case, the District Court properly exercised the doctrine of abstention and deferred to the tribal court opinion on the basis of comity. Dismissal of the state suit by the District Court was affirmed. Nielsen v. Brocksmith Land & Livestock, Inc., 2004 MT 101, 321 M 37, 88 P3d 1269 (2004). See also State ex rel. Stewart v. District Court, 187 M 209, 609 P2d 290 (1980), In re Marriage of Limpy, 195 M 314, 636 P2d 266 (1981), and Agri W. v. Koyama Farms, Inc., 281 M 167, 933 P2d 808 (1997).

Common-Law Recognition and Sovereignty of Little Shell Tribe — Suit Against Tribal Officials Barred: Plaintiffs were candidates in an election of the Little Shell Tribe of Indians and sued in Montana District Court for tort damages and injunctive relief against the incumbent candidates, claiming that plaintiffs had won the election. The District Court dismissed on grounds of lack of jurisdiction, and plaintiffs appealed. The Supreme Court noted that the tribe had been pursuing federal tribal recognition since the 1930s, but as yet, the tribe is not recognized by the federal government. Nevertheless, Montoya v. U.S., 180 US 261 (1901), establishes criteria for common-law recognition of a tribe. The court examined the Montoya criteria and held that the Little Shell Tribe satisfied each element of the test for common-law recognition, so the tribe is entitled to sovereignty. Tribal members are of the same or similar race, are united in a community, exist under one leadership or government, and inhabit a particular though sometimes ill-defined territory. Further, under Santa Clara Pueblo v. Martinez, 436 US 49 (1978), Indian tribes and their officials enjoy sovereign immunity from suit unless expressly limited by Congress. Thus, because the tribal officials in this case were acting in their official capacities, suit against them in state court was barred under the doctrine of sovereign immunity. Dismissal of the action by the District Court for lack of jurisdiction was affirmed. Koke v. Little Shell Tribe of Chippewa Indians of Mont., Inc., 2003 MT 121, 315 M 510, 68 P3d 814 (2003).

Error in Montana Court's Declination of Jurisdiction to Washington Court — Inconvenient Forum: Following several incidents of partner abuse over the years, the mother moved to Washington state and then requested that the Montana court decline jurisdiction as an inconvenient forum in order to allow the Washington court to assume jurisdiction. The request was denied, and the mother appealed. Under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, a Montana court has jurisdiction to make child custody determinations if Montana is the child's home state, as defined in 40-7-103, and Montana will continue to have exclusive continuing jurisdiction unless the Montana court declines to exercise its jurisdiction. In this case, the parties conceded that Montana was the home state. Jurisdiction may be declined at any time if the Montana court determines that it is an inconvenient forum and that a court of another state is a more appropriate forum to make custody determinations. The factors in 40-7-108 must be considered when evaluating a motion to decline jurisdiction, and the Act places domestic violence at the top of the list of factors to be considered. Although this factor alone is not dispositive, the Supreme Court held that, given the high propensity for recidivism in domestic violence, when a court finds that partner abuse or child abuse has occurred or that a party has fled Montana to avoid further violence or abuse, the court is authorized to consider whether the party and the child might be better protected if further custody proceedings are held in another state. Here, the District Court abused its discretion by failing to consider which forum would best protect the mother and children. The Supreme Court then went on to discuss the other statutory factors and concluded that the protection of the parties, the years that the children have resided in Washington, the significant distance between the courts, the parties' disparate financial circumstances, the location of evidence and convenience of witnesses, and the familiarity factors all supported the Montana court declining jurisdiction. None of the jurisdictional factors mitigated against declination, and no factor outweighed the concern for safety raised by the history of domestic violence. Thus, the Supreme Court ordered the District Court to decline jurisdiction as an inconvenient forum and arrange to transfer the case to Washington. In re Marriage of Stoneman v. Drollinger, 2003 MT 25, 314 M 139, 64 P3d 997 (2003).

Standard of Review of District Court Jurisdictional Questions: Whether a District Court has jurisdiction to rule on a matter is a question of law that the Supreme Court will review to determine whether the District Court had authority to act. A court exceeds jurisdiction through acts that exceed the defined power of the court, whether the power is defined by constitutional provisions, express statutes, or court rules. In re Marriage of Richards, 2001 MT 183, 306 M 212, 31 P3d 1002 (2001), following Lee v. Lee, 2000 MT 67, 299 M 78, 996 P2d 389 (2000), and Gen. Constructors, Inc. v. Chewculator, Inc., 2001 MT 54, 304 M 319, 21 P3d 604 (2001).

Lack of District Court Jurisdiction Over Breach of Contract Dispute Regarding Work Performed Within Indian Reservation: The District Court held that it lacked subject matter jurisdiction over a breach of contract dispute between two Montana corporations and a non-Indian minority shareholder of one of the corporations for work performed within the boundaries of the Flathead Indian Reservation, concluding that the tribal court had sole jurisdiction to hear all commercial disputes arising on the reservation involving a tribal defendant and that any allegation of fraud or impropriety involving tribal policy for giving preference to Indian-owned businesses necessarily implicated tribal self-government. Plaintiff appealed, contending that a corporation, even if Indian-owned, is neither an "Indian" nor a "tribal member" for purposes of determining subject matter jurisdiction and that the matter was nothing more than one Montana corporation bringing a claim for money damages against another Montana corporation and did not call into question any tribal act. The District Court correctly applied the three-part test in State ex rel. Iron Bear v. District Court, 162 M 335, 512 P2d 1292 (1973), in determining whether a state court may assume subject matter jurisdiction when tribal adjudicatory sovereignty over a civil dispute arising on a reservation is involved. The test involves consideration of whether: (1) federal treaties and statutes preempt state jurisdiction; (2) exercise of state jurisdiction would interfere with reservation self-government; and (3) the tribal court is currently exercising jurisdiction or has exercised it in a manner that preempts state jurisdiction. Pursuant to U.S. Supreme Court case law, if either of the first two prongs of the test is established, the state lacks jurisdiction. In analyzing the second prong of the test, the court applied Milbank Mut. Ins. Co. v. Eagleman, 218 M 58, 705 P2d 1117 (1985), which states that a tribe's interest in self-government for civil matters arising within a reservation can be implicated if a state or federal court resolves a dispute that impinges on a tribe's right to adjudicate controversies arising within the province of tribal courts or if the dispute itself calls into question the validity or propriety of an act fairly attributable to the tribe as a governmental body. In the context of this case, the questions then became: (1) whether the subcontractor was an Indian-owned business for preference purposes under its subcontract with the general contractor; and (2) whether the subcontractor committed fraud upon the tribe or otherwise violated the tribe's preference policy to the detriment of plaintiff. Concluding that the answers to both questions clearly implicated tribal court jurisdiction and policymaking authority, the court concluded that it could not assert jurisdiction without violating the policy favoring tribal self-government or interfering with the tribe's sovereignty. The Supreme Court agreed. To assume jurisdiction and decide whether a corporation had committed fraud upon the tribe or a contractor in privity with the tribe or to decide whether or not a corporation should be considered Indian-owned in spite of a prior determination by the tribe would require the District Court to impinge upon the tribe's right to adjudicate controversies arising within the province of the tribe's own courts. Further, even if the District Court were to assume that all of plaintiff's allegations were true, a hearing on the jurisdictional question was unnecessary because the court could not assume subject matter jurisdiction as a matter of law, so the court did not err by issuing its order rather than conducting a hearing on the question. Gen. Constructors, Inc. v. Chewculator, Inc., 2001 MT 54, 304 M 319, 21 P3d 604 (2001).

Spouse Responsible for Bankruptcy Credit Card Obligations Pursuant to Dissolution Decree: As part of the dissolution decree, the wife was ordered to return a quarterhorse and horse trailer to the husband. However, she sold both horse and trailer and used the proceeds for her own purposes, then declared bankruptcy. The District Court offset the husband's obligation to pay credit cards debts that resulted from discharge of the debts in the bankruptcy proceedings because the husband was then held solely responsible by the credit card companies for the debts that the wife had been ordered to pay under the dissolution decree. State District Courts have concurrent jurisdiction with federal bankruptcy courts in determining the dischargeability of debts, and the District Court thus had jurisdiction to determine that the wife was responsible for the credit card obligation. This determination conformed to federal bankruptcy law and was within the District Court's broad discretion to equitably apportion marital property. Lee v. Lee, 2000 MT 67, 299 M 78, 996 P2d 389, 57 St. Rep. 308 (2000). See also State ex rel. Rough v. District Court, 218 M 499, 710 P2d 47, 42 St. Rep. 1773 (1985).

Lack of District Court Jurisdiction Over Claims for Fees Incurred During Bankruptcy Proceedings: Watts filed a claim against Parsons in District Court for fees owing in a bankruptcy action, contending that the debt was incurred after the bankruptcy was discharged and closed and thus was not subject to review by the Bankruptcy Court. The District Court found that it had jurisdiction, based on Woodley v. Myers Capital Corp., 835 P2d 239 (Wash. Ct. App. 1992), and Metco, Inc. v. Huffman, 511 NW 2d 780 (Nebr. Ct. App. 1994), and granted Watts' request for fees. Citing In re Hathaway Ranch Partnership, 116 Bankr. Rep. 208 (Bankr. C.D. Calif. 1990), the Supreme Court noted that the burden of showing entitlement to fees was on Watts. Watts asserted that the parties entered into an agreement for payment of fees after the bankruptcy was discharged but that the agreement was never brought to the attention of or approved by the Bankruptcy Court. By withholding the terms of the agreement from the Bankruptcy Court, Watts denied Parsons the lawful protection of that court. The Supreme Court distinguished Woodley and Metco, noting that in the present case, Watts never submitted the question of fees to the Bankruptcy Court and that the District Court was not in a position to determine whether the fees were reasonable. Because the District Court did not have jurisdiction over the claim for professional fees incurred during the pendency of the bankruptcy action, the case was remanded to District Court with instructions to dismiss. Watts & Associates, Inc. v. Parsons, 1999 MT 56, 293 M 464, 976 P2d 984, 56 St. Rep. 237 (1999).

Sale of Trust Lands Within Flathead Reservation — No Jurisdiction Found for Purposes of Breach of Contract, Fraud, and Negligent Misrepresentation: Neuman, an enrolled member of the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes, sought assistance from the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) to clear the title to trust land within the Flathead Reservation so that Neuman could sell it. He also engaged a real estate broker. Both Neuman and prospective buyers, the Krauses, made considerable efforts to consummate the sale, but Neuman was informed by the BIA that there was a substantial cloud on the title. Neuman therefore terminated the listing agreement, and the Krauses sued for damages, alleging breach of contract, fraud, constructive fraud, fraud in the inducement, and negligent misrepresentation. The District Court, on the recommendation of a special master and after applying the test laid out in State ex rel. Iron Bear v. District Court, 162 M 335, 512 P2d 1292 (1973), found a lack of subject matter jurisdiction. The Supreme Court held that 25 U.S.C. 345 and 28 U.S.C. 1353 vest exclusive jurisdiction in the federal courts over disputes involving allotted lands within Indian reservations and that 28 U.S.C. 1360 preempted its jurisdiction. The Supreme Court also held that the Krauses' lawsuit was a dispute involving title to allotted lands even though the action was a tort claim and breach of contract claim because all of the Krauses' claims could not be separated from questions of title to Indian trust lands. Noting that it had already held in In re Marriage of Wellman, 258 M 131, 852 P2d 559 (1993), that an attempt by state courts to adjudicate rights in Indian trust land for the purpose of money damages was precluded by federal law, the Supreme Court held that it made no difference that the Krauses had deleted from their complaint a prayer for specific performance. The claims could still not be separated from the issue of title to Indian lands. Krause v. Neuman, 284 M 399, 943 P2d 1328, 54 St. Rep. 937 (1997).

Previous Assumption of Jurisdiction by Tribal Court — Jurisdiction Improperly Sustained by State District Court: It was error for a state District Court to sustain jurisdiction when a tribal court had previously assumed jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter by issuing a temporary restraining order against plaintiff. Abstention, as a matter of comity, was exercised by the Supreme Court in holding that jurisdiction was retained in the tribal court. Agri W. v. Koyama Farms, Inc., 281 M 167, 933 P2d 808, 54 St. Rep. 118 (1997), following State ex rel. Stewart v. District Court, 187 M 209, 609 P2d 290 (1980), In re Marriage of Limpy, 195 M 314, 636 P2d 266 (1981), and In re Marriage of Wellman, 258 M 131, 852 P2d 559 (1993).

Damage Claim Not Available as Challenge to District Court Subject Matter Jurisdiction: Although the jurisdiction of courts can be limited by constitutional or statutory provisions on the basis of the amount in controversy or dispute between the parties, Montana District Courts are not constrained by such limits. Therefore, the amount and type of a damage claim in District Court may not be raised to challenge a District Court's subject matter jurisdiction. Day v. Payne, 280 M 273, 929 P2d 864, 53 St. Rep. 1400 (1996).

Lack of Probate Court Jurisdiction in Deciding Attorney Fee Related to Tort Claim: A probate attorney requested that the District Court stay proceedings on a claim that the attorney had wrongfully converted estate property until the probate court finally determined applicable attorney fees. The probate court had jurisdiction over and decided the amount of the attorney fees for probate of the estate but had no jurisdiction to decide the attorney fee related to the tort claim. Thus, the District Court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to delay trial of the conversion claim until the probate court determined the amount of the attorney fee. Eatinger v. Johnson, 269 M 99, 887 P2d 231, 51 St. Rep. 1484 (1994).

Right to Declaratory Judgment on Discretionary Military Policy Threatening Public Sector Harm: The general rule of no subject matter court jurisdiction over a discretionary military policy (in this case, a state government military policy) did not apply to a state requirement that its firefighters protecting civilian and National Guard aircraft belong to the Montana Air National Guard. Loss of the job for failure to belong was a threatened injury resulting from military intrusion into the civilian sector by the state. The state did not show that the requirement was related to military employment. Therefore, the rule could not be used to dismiss a firefighter's petition for declaratory judgment. McKamey v. St., 268 M 137, 885 P2d 515, 51 St. Rep. 1218 (1994).

Equitable Tolling of Statute of Limitations Applicable — Different Plaintiffs in Separate Actions: Natelson filed an original action in the Supreme Court seeking a declaratory judgment that a law increasing the state income tax was suspended by a referendum petition and that that suspension did not violate state or federal constitutional provisions. The Supreme Court dismissed that action. Nicholson then filed the present action in District Court, seeking a declaratory judgment that the suspension of the state income tax increase did violate constitutional principles. Defendant Cooney argued that Nicholson's complaint was time-barred, as it was not filed within 30 days of the certification of the referendum petitions suspending the income tax increase. Citing Harrison v. Chance, 244 M 215, 797 P2d 200 (1990), the Supreme Court held that the doctrine of equitable tolling of the statute of limitations applied to the second action even though the plaintiffs were not the same. The Supreme Court stated that it would not penalize the plaintiffs in the second action because of the premature filing of the original action in the Supreme Court. Nicholson v. Cooney, 265 M 406, 877 P2d 486, 51 St. Rep. 579 (1994), followed in Sorenson v. Massey-Ferguson, Inc., 279 M 527, 927 P2d 1030, 53 St. Rep. 1269 (1996).

Marriage Dissolution Brought by Tribal Member Against Non-Indian Spouse — Jurisdiction to Apportion Indian Trust Land: Wife who was a member of the Blackfeet Tribe sought a marriage dissolution in state court from her husband who was a non-Indian. The District Court granted the dissolution but held it did not have jurisdiction to apportion the parties' marital estate, which consisted of about 4,000 acres of Indian trust land on the Blackfeet Reservation, and granted wife's motion to dismiss. On appeal, husband contended that the state court had jurisdiction, relying on a provision in the Blackfeet Tribal Law and Order Code that all divorces must be consummated in accordance with Montana law. However, that provision did not cede jurisdiction to the state but merely governed the tribal court's choice of law. While the state has an interest in ensuring the existence of a forum in which marital property within its borders may be apportioned upon a dissolution, that interest is met by the availability of an alternative forum in the Blackfeet Tribal Court. The state's interest in the property and proceedings is inconsequential compared with the federal and tribal interests at stake. Therefore, the District Court did not err in concluding that it lacked jurisdiction to adjudicate the disposition of the Indian trust land that was the parties' only significant marital asset. In re Marriage of Wellman, 258 M 131, 852 P2d 559, 50 St. Rep. 462 (1993), following White Mountain Apache v. Bracker, 448 US 136, 65 L Ed 2d 665, 100 S Ct 2578 (1980), and N. Mex. v. Mescalero Apache Tribe, 462 US 324, 76 L Ed 2d 611, 103 S Ct 2375 (1983), and distinguishing Sheppard v. Sheppard, 655 P2d 895 (Idaho 1982). In re Marriage of Wellman was followed as to lack of jurisdiction over trust lands, in context of sale of real property, in Krause v. Neuman, 284 M 399, 943 P2d 1328, 54 St. Rep. 937 (1997).

Lack of District Court Jurisdiction in Claim for Damages — Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies: Gilpins initiated suit for damages resulting from temporary suspension of their day-care license by the Department of Family Services (now Department of Public Health and Human Services), contending that, under this section, jurisdiction was in the District Court because the action involved a civil claim against the state for payment of money. However, the court properly dismissed the claim for lack of jurisdiction because Gilpins failed to exhaust all administrative remedies available within the agency, as required by 2-4-702, and because there was no showing made pursuant to 2-4-701 that a review of the agency decision by a hearings examiner would not provide an adequate remedy. Gilpin v. St., 249 M 37, 812 P2d 1265, 48 St. Rep. 567 (1991).

Judgment and Sentence Prerequisite to Appeal to District Court — Misdemeanors: Except for misdemeanors listed in subsection (2) of this section, a District Court is limited to appellate jurisdiction of misdemeanor cases. Imposition of sentence and entry of a final judgment by a Justice's Court or City Court are prerequisites to appeal to a District Court, and a party may not consent to subject matter jurisdiction or waive the want of jurisdiction. St. v. Hegeman, 248 M 49, 808 P2d 509, 48 St. Rep. 318 (1991), followed in St. v. Tweedy, 277 M 313, 922 P2d 1134, 53 St. Rep. 656 (1996), and St. v. Diesen, 1998 MT 163, 290 M 55, 964 P2d 712, 55 St. Rep. 655 (1998).

Discretion of One Judge to Reconsider Ruling Made by Another Judge in Same Case: The rule that judges of coordinate jurisdictions sitting in the same court and in the same case may not ordinarily overrule the decisions of each other is not an imperative and does not necessarily mandate that a court does not have discretion, in appropriate circumstances, to reconsider a ruling made by another judge in the same case. Therefore, a second judge was justified in reconsidering a previous ruling, by a judge who later retired, on the question of school district immunity when that issue had been addressed and significantly clarified by a Supreme Court decision subsequent to the initial ruling. Hayworth v. School District No. 19, 243 M 503, 795 P2d 470, 47 St. Rep. 1361 (1990).

Jurisdiction of Victimless Crime by Non-Indian on Reservation: The District Court held that state courts do not have jurisdiction over the crime of failing to report an accident when the incident occurred within the reservation, the driver was a non-Indian, and the property belonged to an Indian. The Supreme Court found that the offense should be analyzed as a victimless crime for purposes of determining jurisdiction because the alleged criminal act was failure to discharge a reporting duty, not infliction of damage upon property belonging to an Indian. Under the authority of U.S. v. Wheeler, 435 US 313, 55 L Ed 2d 303, 98 S Ct 1079 (1978), Draper v. U.S., 164 US 240, 41 L Ed 419, 17 S Ct 107 (1896), and 18 U.S.C. 1152, federal and tribal interests in providing a federal forum failed to outweigh the state's strong interest in public safety. The policy of providing a federal forum when criminal prosecutions pit the interests of non-Indian offenders against Indian victims was not furthered where, as here, the connection to destruction of Indian property was only tangential to the crime charged; therefore, the state's interests controlled. St. v. Thomas, 233 M 451, 760 P2d 96, 45 St. Rep. 1627 (1988), followed in St. v. Haskins, 269 M 202, 887 P2d 1189, 51 St. Rep. 1474 (1994).

Jurisdiction of Offense of Selling Alcohol Without a License: The District Court was the proper court to try the offense of sale of beer or wine without a valid state license. St. v. Barnes, 232 M 405, 758 P2d 264, 45 St. Rep. 1150 (1988).

Property in State Sufficient for Jurisdiction: In an action to recover unauthorized funds in a bank account in Montana, there were sufficient minimum contacts to establish jurisdiction in Montana even though the plaintiff had no contacts with the state and the defendant had never been in Montana. The deposited funds in the Montana bank account were found to be traceable to the alleged claims of kickback asserted against the defendant in a suit in his home state, and the bank account not only was related to the controversy, it was the subject of the controversy. The tests of "traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice" were met to establish jurisdiction over the nonresident defendant in Montana. Consumers United Ins. Co. v. Syverson, 227 M 188, 738 P2d 110, 44 St. Rep. 999 (1987).

New Findings on Motion to Amend Order — When Permissible: Plaintiff requested modification of child support. Defendant responded and requested custody of the child. The first judge, after a hearing, issued findings of fact, conclusions of law, and an order. A second judge sat on the plaintiff's motions to amend and for a new trial. He issued amended findings of fact, conclusions of law, and an order. The defendant questioned the propriety of the amended findings, conclusions, and order. The Supreme Court relied on St. v. Carden, 170 M 437, 555 P2d 738 (1976), and Mereness v. Frito-Lay, 216 M 154, 700 P2d 182 (1985), to reach the general rule that one District Judge may overrule or review a decision of another District Judge in the same case only when there are exceptional circumstances. The court found no exceptional circumstances or cogent reasons for amending the original decision in this case. The first judge could have been called back to sit on the motion to amend, there was no pressing urgency, and no substantially new evidence was presented. Hansen v. Jurgens, 222 M 345, 722 P2d 1151, 43 St. Rep. 1316 (1986).

When District Court Jurisdiction Concurrent With Bankruptcy Court: The state District Courts have concurrent jurisdiction with the federal Bankruptcy Court in determining whether certain obligations under a marriage dissolution decree are exempted from discharge in bankruptcy. State ex rel. Rough v. District Court, 218 M 499, 710 P2d 47, 42 St. Rep. 1773 (1985), followed in State ex rel. Austin v. Austin, 221 M 488, 719 P2d 429, 43 St. Rep. 998 (1986), and Lee v. Lee, 2000 MT 67, 299 M 78, 996 P2d 389, 57 St. Rep. 308 (2000).

District Court Jurisdiction — Invoked by Probable Cause in Leave to File Information — Res Judicata After Appeal Process: The issue of subject matter jurisdiction cannot be waived or conferred by consent of a party and may be raised at any stage of a judicial proceeding or sua sponte by the court; but if the question of jurisdiction turns upon a finding of whether the affidavit of application for leave to file an information shows probable cause and the defendant has been found guilty and the judgment has not been appealed or has been affirmed on appeal, the issue of probable cause is res judicata. St. v. Davis, 210 M 28, 681 P2d 42, 41 St. Rep. 898 (1984).

Proper Forum Selection: With the plaintiff, the scene of the injury, and most of the witnesses in Idaho, a suit for personal injuries filed in Montana was dismissed by the District Court under the doctrine of forum non conveniens. The Supreme Court reversed, stating that the doctrine must be tempered by an open-door policy and that the doctrine should not presently be applied to Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA) actions. Bevacqua v. Burlington N., Inc., 183 M 237, 598 P2d 1124, 36 St. Rep. 1523 (1979).

Order Absent Jurisdiction Void: An order entered in the absence of jurisdiction is void. In re the Marriage of Schultz v. Schultz, 183 M 20, 597 P2d 1174, 36 St. Rep. 1993 (1979), following State ex rel. Thompson v. District Court, 75 M 147, 242 P 959 (1926).

Forum Non Conveniens Not Applicable in FELA Suits: The doctrine of forum non conveniens is not applicable to a Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA) suit filed in a Montana District Court. There is a strong policy favoring plaintiff's forum selection in FELA cases, and the Montana Constitution states that the courts of justice must be open to all persons. Labella v. Burlington N., Inc., 182 M 202, 595 P2d 1184, 36 St. Rep. 1016 (1979).

Naturalization of Aliens: The District Courts possess concurrent jurisdiction with the federal courts (within the limitations prescribed by act of Congress relating to the subject) to naturalize aliens, and therefore when such power is exercised by them, the proceeding is a judicial and not a political one. Hence the Supreme Court may, on certiorari, review a judgment rendered in such a proceeding. State ex rel. Weisz v. District Court, 61 M 427, 202 P 387 (1921).

ORIGINAL CIVIL JURISDICTION

Challenge to Invalidate Signatures for Minimum Wage Initiative Rendered Moot by Election: Montanans for Equal Application of Initiative Laws (Montanans for Equal Application) filed an action to invalidate signatures gathered by supporters of Initiative Measure No. 151 (I-151), a proposal to raise the state minimum wage, and to enjoin the Secretary of State from including I-151 on the general election ballot. Supporters of I-151 filed a motion for summary judgment, contending that Montanans for Equal Application's challenge was barred by the 30-day limitation period then provided in this section (see 13-27-317 for similar limitation). The District Court granted summary judgment for Raise Montana, ruling that Montanans for Equal Application's claim was untimely under this section because it was not filed within the then-required 30 days after the date on which the Secretary of State notified the Governor that a sufficient number of signatures had been obtained to qualify for the ballot. Montanans for Equal Application appealed, arguing that the District Court ignored the plain meaning of this section, which allowed a challenge of a ballot issue "at any time" after discovery of illegal signatures. Raise Montana countered that not only did the District Court correctly interpret the former version of this section to bar a claim filed 83 days after certification, but more importantly, Art. III, sec. 4, Mont. Const., which prohibits a challenge of the sufficiency of an initiative after an election, rendered the challenge moot. Agreeing with Raise Montana, the Supreme Court ruled that Montanans for Equal Application did not begin their litigation in sufficient time to appeal the trial court's decision before the election and the unambiguous language of Art. III, sec. 4(3), Mont. Const., became operative. Montanans for Equal Application of Initiative Laws v. St., 2007 MT 75, 336 M 450, 154 P3d 1202 (2007).

Justice's Court Action Complete — Award of Attorney Fees Pursuant to District Court Appeal: Bugger sued McGough and Johnson in Justice's Court in a landlord tenant action. The District Court dismissed Johnson from the action, and McGough was granted summary judgment. Bugger then filed an amended complaint in District Court. The District Court awarded Johnson $20,479.71 in attorney fees. Bugger appealed on grounds that the award exceeded the jurisdictional limit of $7,000 in 3-10-301 for Justice's Court claims. The Supreme Court disagreed. Once the Justice's Court ruled, Bugger's Justice's Court action was ended, and the District Court action was a new action, not an appeal. The District Court acted within its original jurisdictional capacity under this section, and the limit in 3-10-301 did not apply. The award was affirmed. Bugger v. McGough, 2006 MT 248, 334 M 77, 144 P3d 802 (2006).

District Court Jurisdiction Over Grandparent-Grandchild Contact Proceedings: In the case of a petition for grandparent-grandchild contact brought under Title 40, ch. 9, the District Court retains jurisdiction to hear the petition and to issue a ruling on it. In re Grandparent-Grandchild Contact of Stewart v. Evans, 2006 MT 102, 332 M 148, 136 P3d 524 (2006).

Subject Matter Jurisdiction of District Court to Determine Whether Franchise Exists: Plaintiff filed an action under 61-4-210, contending that defendant failed to follow the notice provisions in 61-4-205 in terminating plaintiff's dealership agreement and that defendant needed to exhaust its administrative remedies before the District Court could obtain subject matter jurisdiction. Defendant contended that the Department of Justice Motor Vehicle Division lacked jurisdiction because the dealer agreement did not constitute a franchise, so the administrative and notice provisions did not apply. The Supreme Court noted that a vehicle dealer that believes that its agreement with a manufacturer, distributor, or importer constitutes a franchise and that the notice requirements have not been complied with may bring a direct action in District Court pursuant to 61-4-210 for violation of the notice requirement. That is what plaintiff did. However, an action under 61-4-210 is not connected to the administrative contested case proceedings provided for in 61-4-205 and 61-4-206 and does not require a party to initiate and exhaust administrative proceedings prior to bringing the action. Thus, the District Court had subject matter jurisdiction over the question of whether a franchise agreement existed between the parties. Hi-Tech Motors, Inc. v. Bombardier Motor Corp. of Am., 2005 MT 187, 328 M 66, 117 P3d 159 (2005).

No Montana Personal Jurisdiction Over Regional Out-of-State Insurer: Carter, a part-time "snow bird" resident of Montana, was injured in an automobile accident in Montana shortly after moving from Mississippi. Carter filed a declaratory judgment action against the defendant, a regional out-of-state insurer that did not do business in Montana, requesting interpretation of an insurance contract issued on Carter's vehicles in Mississippi. The insurer contested Montana's exercise of personal jurisdiction and moved for summary judgment. The District Court concluded that it did not have personal jurisdiction and granted summary judgment. Carter appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. The court cited Bahn v. Chicago Motor Club, 634 A2d 63 (Md. 1993), for the holding that although an insurer's promise to provide nationwide coverage may establish that the insurer has agreed to submit to jurisdiction in any forum that has jurisdiction to adjudicate claims against its insured, this agreement does not imply a further agreement to allow the insured to bring suit against the insurer in any state. Even though the insurer could reasonably anticipate that the insured could suffer an injury within the insurer's 50-state coverage, that foreseeability, without more, was not sufficient to subject the insurer to personal jurisdiction in Montana courts. The underlying dispute related to coverage and had nothing to do with the fact that the accident occurred in Montana or that Carter was living in this state at the time. Thus, although Carter had every right to sue the insurer over its coverage issues, in this case, Montana courts did not have personal jurisdiction over the insurer that was required as a predicate to maintenance of an action in Montana. Summary dismissal was proper. Carter v. Miss. Farm Bureau Cas. Ins. Co., 2005 MT 74, 326 M 350, 109 P3d 735 (2005). See also Bi-Lo Foods, Inc. v. Alpine Bank, 1998 MT 40, 287 M 367, 955 P2d 154 (1998).

District Court Authority to Determine Constitutionality of Proposed County Ordinance: In 1994, Ravalli County voters passed three ordinances, seeking to control obscenity and the display and distribution of obscene material to minors. The ordinances were subsequently held unconstitutional, but in 2002, defendant again filed two proposed ordinances with the Ravalli County Clerk and Recorder, seeking to proscribe the same conduct. The county asked the District Court to rule on the constitutionality of the proposed ordinances pursuant to 7-5-135, but the court declined on grounds that: (1) the proposed ordinances were legislative rather than administrative and therefore valid under the Montana Constitution; (2) 7-5-135 did not vest a District Court with jurisdiction to determine the constitutionality of an ordinance prior to adoption; (3) a suit is not a method by which a party may have a District Court prematurely consider the constitutionality of the subject matter of a proposed initiative or referendum prior to placement of the measure on the ballot; (4) ruling on a proposed ordinance would force the court to issue an advisory opinion on constitutionality in the absence of any defined basis for a constitutional attack; and (5) under Hardy v. Progressive Specialty Ins. Co., 2003 MT 85, 315 M 107, 67 P3d 892 (2003), a preliminary ruling would allow the county to avoid the burden of showing the unconstitutionality of a legislative enactment beyond a reasonable doubt. The county appealed, and the Supreme Court reversed. The burden of proof requirement articulated in Hardy applies to constitutional challenges to existing statutes, not to proposed initiatives and referenda. Although the constitutionality of an enacted legislative statute is prima facie presumed, there is no presumption of validity of a proposed statute. Under the plain meaning of 7-5-135, a District Court must, after conducting any appropriate briefing and factfinding, determine whether a proposed ordinance would be constitutional and valid if passed. The case was remanded for substantive District Court review of the proposed ordinances. Ravalli County v. Erickson, 2004 MT 35, 320 M 31, 85 P3d 772 (2004).

Guidelines for Determining Whether Indian Tribe Has Waived Sovereign Immunity in Contract — Inapplicability of Statute of Frauds to Question of Subject Matter Jurisdiction: Plaintiff contended that he signed a 7-year contract with the Crow Tribe to provide consulting services and to act as a program manager for the planning and construction of a power plant on tribal property and that the tribe breached the contract and failed to pay him. The tribe moved to dismiss on grounds that the District Court lacked personal and subject matter jurisdiction because of the tribe's sovereign immunity. The District Court denied the motion but reserved the right to readdress the issue of subject matter jurisdiction. Following further discovery, neither party could produce a signed copy of the alleged contract. The District Court concluded that because the alleged contract was for employment for more than 1 year, the statute of frauds applied and noted that although plaintiff's performance would normally create an exception to the statute of frauds pursuant to the court's equitable powers, to exercise that power in this case would circumvent the tribe's sovereign immunity in contravention of federal law. The District Court further concluded that although there was an express agreement that was partially performed and that the agreement contained a waiver of tribal immunity from suit in state court, as indicated by affidavits submitted by plaintiff and the tribal presiding officer, because of the fact that a signed copy of the contract was not produced, there was insufficient evidence to overcome the presumption against waiver of tribal immunity, so the action was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. Plaintiff appealed, and the Supreme Court reversed. The Montana statute of frauds in 28-2-903 limits the enforceability of certain contracts but does not affect a District Court's subject matter jurisdiction, so a District Court need not consider the statute of frauds when determining subject matter jurisdiction; furthermore, the court does not need to invoke its equitable powers to find jurisdiction. Rather, the question facing the District Court was whether the tribe clearly and unequivocally waived its sovereign immunity. The Supreme Court found that plaintiff's complaint alleged sufficient facts that, if true, would vest the District Court with subject matter jurisdiction. The tribe produced no evidence to refute the affidavits or to controvert the recollections of the affiants. Absent any factual issue to resolve, the Supreme Court concluded that plaintiff presented undisputed evidence proving the establishment of a contract that included an unequivocal waiver of sovereign immunity, so dismissal of the complaint by the District Court on jurisdictional grounds constituted reversible error. Bradley v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 2003 MT 82, 315 M 75, 67 P3d 306 (2003). On remand, the District Court again granted Bradley's motion for summary judgment after holding that the tribe's motion to alter or amend was denied because the court did not rule on the motion within 60 days. The Supreme Court held that because there is no provision in Rule 56, M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), for entry of summary judgment by default, denial of the tribe's motion was erroneous, and because questions of fact existed regarding contract ambiguity and damages, the case was again reversed and remanded for further consideration. Bradley v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 2005 MT 309, 329 M 448, 124 P3d 1143 (2005).

Venue Versus Jurisdiction — Failure to Move for Change of Venue at Initial Appearance Constituting Waiver of Right to Later Object to Venue: A mother filed in District Court in Judith Basin County for review of a child support modification consent order by the Department of Public Health and Human Services Child Support Enforcement Division (CSED) reducing the father's child support obligation. CSED moved for dismissal, claiming that the mother had failed to exhaust her administrative remedies. The District Court granted the motion based on lack of jurisdiction, concluding that the petition should have been filed in a different county. The mother appealed, contending that the court confused the concepts of venue and jurisdiction and contending that dismissal of the petition for lack of jurisdiction was erroneous as a matter of law. The Supreme Court agreed and reversed. The District Court's interpretation of 2-4-702 as a requirement that a petition for judicial review must be filed in the correct venue for the court to obtain jurisdiction was incorrect as a matter of law. Jurisdiction is a court's authority to hear and determine a case that goes to the power of the court and cannot be waived or conferred by consent of the parties when there is no basis for jurisdiction under the law, while venue refers to the place where a case is to be heard or where the power of the court is to be exercised and is a personal privilege of defendant that may be waived and that is considered waived pursuant to Rule 12(b), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), unless a motion to change venue is made at defendant's initial appearance. Thus, the mother's petition for judicial review vested the Judith Basin County District Court with jurisdiction under 2-4-702. Whether venue was proper in the county where the petition was filed was an entirely different issue. Section 2-4-702 also sets forth the proper place where a contested administrative decision can be heard, providing that the petition must be filed in the District Court for the county where the petitioner resides or has a principal place of business or where the agency maintains its principal office. Upon proper motion, the matter should have been transferred to the proper county, but CSED failed to move for a change of venue at the initial appearance, thereby waiving its right to later object to venue, opting instead to move to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction. Therefore, Judith Basin County was a proper place for trial absent agreement by the parties to transfer venue. In re Support Obligation of McGurran, 2002 MT 144, 310 M 268, 49 P3d 626 (2002).

Failure to Remove Reference in Referendum — Substantive Defect: A legislative referendum purported to eliminate the Office of Secretary of State but failed to address a provision in the constitution assigning a duty to the Secretary of State or to designate who would assume that duty. Although judicial intervention in referenda or initiatives prior to an election is not encouraged, the Supreme Court exercised its statutory prerogative of judicial review and held that the omission was a substantive defect, not a defect of form. If passed, the referendum would have left a defect in the constitution that could not be remedied except by another election. The Secretary of State was thus properly enjoined from presenting the referendum to electors. Cobb v. St., 278 M 307, 924 P2d 268, 53 St. Rep. 920 (1996).

Taxpayer Properly Held in Contempt for Refusal to File Income Tax Returns — Privilege Against Self-Incrimination No Defense: Gillispie failed to file an income tax return for 4 years. The District Court ordered her to file the returns or to show cause why she should not be required to file them. At the hearing, the Department of Revenue introduced Gillispie's W-2 forms, which showed that she had made the minimum income necessary to require her to file returns. The District Court ordered her to file the returns or be found in contempt. When Gillispie failed to file the returns, the District Court held her in contempt, and Gillispie filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus with the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court held that the District Court had jurisdiction to order Gillispie to file the returns and jurisdiction to hold Gillispie in contempt and that the District Court also had sufficient evidence to do so. The Supreme Court also held that Gillispie's privilege against self-incrimination does not justify the outright refusal to file a return and cannot be used as a method of evading payment of lawful taxes. The Supreme Court held that she must demonstrate the specific parts of the returns that would result in self-incrimination. Gillispie v. Sherlock, 279 M 21, 929 P2d 199, 53 St. Rep. 507 (1996).

Civil Action by Indians Against Non-Indians — Jurisdiction Upheld: Lamberts, enrolled members of the Fort Peck Tribe, sued Ryozyk and others who were Canadian citizens for injuries sustained in an automobile accident that occurred within the exterior boundaries of the Fort Peck Indian Reservation. The District Court dismissed the action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Citing Emerson v. Boyd, 247 M 241, 805 P2d 587 (1990), and using the three-part test applied in Iron Bear v. District Court, 162 M 335, 512 P2d 1292 (1973), the Supreme Court held that there was no threat to tribal sovereignty posed by Indian citizens of Montana seeking to invoke the jurisdiction of the District Court as plaintiffs in an action against non-Indians for injuries sustained on a reservation. The Supreme Court noted that the use of the courts is guaranteed to all state citizens under Art. II, sec. 16, of the Montana Constitution. A failure to recognize that right would constitute a denial of due process guaranteed by Art. II, sec. 17, of the Montana Constitution and a denial of equal protection guaranteed by Art. II, sec. 4, of the Montana Constitution. Lambert v. Ryozyk, 268 M 219, 886 P2d 378, 51 St. Rep. 1250 (1994).

No State Jurisdiction of Indian Reservation Commercial Transactions — Preemption by Tribal Jurisdiction: A state District Court did not have primary subject matter jurisdiction over a civil debt action arising out of a commercial transaction on an Indian reservation and brought by a non-Indian creditor against an enrolled tribal member debtor, both of whom resided on the reservation. State assumption of such jurisdiction interfered with tribal sovereignty and the tribe's right of self-government. Therefore, the state court's jurisdiction over the commercial transaction was preempted by tribal jurisdiction. Geiger v. Pierce, 233 M 18, 758 P2d 279, 45 St. Rep. 1257 (1988), followed in Balyeat Law, PC v. Pettit, 1998 MT 252, 291 M 196, 967 P2d 398, 55 St. Rep. 1038 (1998) (the state has no jurisdiction over an action to collect a debt for medical bills arising out of transactions, either on or off the reservation, brought by a non-Indian creditor against an enrolled tribal member residing on a reservation whose spouse incurred the debt but who engaged in no significant off-reservation contacts so as to subject herself to state jurisdiction).

Civil Controversy Between Indian and Non-Indian — No Jurisdiction: In a civil dispute between a non-Indian and an enrolled member of the Fort Peck Sioux and Assiniboiné Tribes, arising within the boundaries of the reservation, the District Court's exercise of jurisdiction interferes with tribal sovereignty and the right to self-government of the tribes. Subject matter jurisdiction over civil litigation between Indians and non-Indians arising out of conduct on an Indian reservation is governed by the three-part test of State ex rel. Iron Bear v. District Court, 162 M 335, 512 P2d 1292 (1973). Under that test, before a District Court can assume jurisdiction in any matter submitted to it, it must determine subject matter jurisdiction by considering: (1) whether the applicable federal treaties and statutes have preempted state jurisdiction; (2) whether the exercise of state jurisdiction would interfere with tribal self-government; and (3) whether the tribal court is currently exercising jurisdiction or has exercised jurisdiction in such a manner as to preempt state jurisdiction. The first and second elements are disjunctive; if either is present, as in the present case, the state lacks subject matter jurisdiction. Milbank Mut. Ins. Co. v. Eagleman, 218 M 58, 705 P2d 1117, 42 St. Rep. 1393 (1985). See also Emerson v. Boyd, 247 M 241, 805 P2d 587, 48 St. Rep. 180 (1991), distinguished in Lambert v. Ryzik, 268 M 219, 886 P2d 378, 51 St. Rep. 1250 (1994).

Probate Court's Jurisdiction Over Title to Real Property: Weeks after executing a will identical to her husband's, leaving their property to each other or to the husband's heirs, the decedent executed a new will naming a personal representative of her estate and giving him full power of attorney. Shortly before decedent's death, her personal representative transferred part of decedent's real property to her heirs. Husband's conservator sought to set aside the conveyances and remove decedent's personal representative. The District Court denied conservator's motion for summary judgment and determined that while sitting in probate, it lacked the requisite jurisdiction to determine title to real property. The Supreme Court affirmed. In Montana, title to real property, whether determined incidentally or intentionally, must be resolved in proper proceedings instituted for that purpose. In re Estate of Thomas, 216 M 87, 699 P2d 1046, 42 St. Rep. 662 (1985).

Title to and Public Use of Dearborn River — Subject Matter Jurisdiction Found: Landowner along the Dearborn River claimed the District Court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over action for determination of the public's right to use the river, basing his claim on the presumption that he held title to the riverbed and that the State had no power to strip him of that title under the guise of determining navigability of the waters over the riverbed. The claim lacked merit because the State holds title to the riverbed and the water flowing over it, so that there was no question of the District Court's subject matter jurisdiction. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Probate Court's Jurisdiction Over Wrongful Death Action in Another District: Estate was being probated in one District Court, and personal representative's wrongful death action was being considered in another district. The probate court exceeded its jurisdiction when it assumed jurisdiction over the settlement of the wrongful death action, approved it, and ordered dismissal of the action. The Supreme Court stated that whether the proceeds of the settlement or award in the wrongful death action belonged to the estate or to the heirs was pertinent to the issue of the probate court's jurisdiction over the wrongful death action and that the probate court had jurisdiction only if the proceeds belonged to the estate. The Supreme Court did not appear to definitively decide the underlying issue, though it leaned toward the traditional rule that the proceeds belong to the heirs, are personal to them, and constitute no part of the estate. The court stated that it was for the Legislature to decide whether a District Court acting as a probate court should have some jurisdiction over a wrongful death claim filed in another District Court. In re Pegg's Estate, 209 M 71, 680 P2d 316, 41 St. Rep. 558 (1984).

Jurisdiction of State Court Over Nonresident Federally Chartered Bank — Sufficiency of Evidence — Denial of Due Process and Equal Protection: Officers of the plaintiff corporation traveled to Reno, Nevada, to deposit money in the defendant branch bank in anticipation of business in Nevada and later brought an action in a Montana District Court against the defendant for unlawful dishonor of a check and associated charges. The District Court did not err in dismissing the action for lack of jurisdiction. Under the provisions of 12 U.S.C. §94, a federally chartered bank may be sued, among other places, where it is "located". The U.S. Supreme Court in Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank v. Bougas, 434 US 35, 54 L Ed 2d 218, 98 S Ct 88 (1977), construed the term "located" to mean wherever branch offices are found. Because there is no branch bank in Montana and there has been no business operation conducted by the defendant in Montana that would constitute a waiver of the protection of federal law, the District Court had no jurisdiction. There was, moreover, sufficient evidence before the District Court for it to make the determination that there was no voluntary waiver, and the U.S. Supreme Court has held in Mercantile Nat'l Bank at Dallas v. Langdeau, 371 US 555, 9 L Ed 2d 523, 83 S Ct 520 (1963), that Congress "unquestionably" has the authority to determine those situations in which national banks can be sued. Hemelly Int'l, Inc. v. First Nat'l Bank of Nev., 199 M 221, 648 P2d 282, 39 St. Rep. 1304 (1982).

Comity — Jurisdiction Declined: Wyoming residents were divorced under a Wyoming divorce decree which provided that disagreements between the parties arising out of any transaction relating to the decree were to be submitted to the Wyoming District Court for resolution. A disagreement arose in connection with the parties' interests in property located in Montana. Husband filed suit in Montana, and wife sought a ruling that the Montana court lacked jurisdiction and that the Wyoming court was the proper forum. The Montana District Court properly decided that it should decline to exercise jurisdiction on the basis of the doctrine of comity, though it did have jurisdiction. Application of the comity doctrine did not contravene the public policy of Montana or the open court policy mandated by the Montana Constitution. Kane v. Kane, 198 M 335, 646 P2d 505, 39 St. Rep. 1036 (1982).

District Court Jurisdiction Over Probate of and Claim and Delivery Action by Estate of Enrolled Tribal Indian: Where, following the death of an enrolled member of an Indian tribe, the decedent's wife petitioned the District Court to probate her deceased husband's estate, and estate property consisting of a road grader was later unlawfully sold by the deceased's wife to her brother, the District Court erred in holding that it did not have jurisdiction over the claim and delivery action instituted on behalf of the estate to recover the road grader or its value. The fact that there is no federal treaty or statute preempting the jurisdiction of the District Court and the fact that the tribal court has not and is not exercising jurisdiction over the case properly resulted in the District Court taking jurisdiction of the probate of the estate. Because the action for claim and delivery in the enforcement process to recover property within the jurisdiction of the probate court, the District Court should have exercised subject matter jurisdiction over the claim and delivery action as well. Estate of Standing Bear v. Belcourt, 193 M 174, 631 P2d 285, 38 St. Rep. 1064 (1981).

Crow Tribal Court — Exclusive Jurisdiction Over Divorces: The Crow Tribal Court exercises exclusive jurisdiction over divorce actions between tribal members living on the reservation by virtue of the duly enacted Crow Tribal Code. State ex rel. Stewart v. District Court, 187 M 209, 609 P2d 290, 37 St. Rep. 635 (1980). See also In re Marriage of Skillen, 1998 MT 43, 287 M 399, 956 P2d 1, 55 St. Rep. 147 (1998).

Jurisdiction and Federal Bankruptcy Decrees: The court has jurisdiction over a plenary proceeding by a trustee in bankruptcy. While the court must clearly enforce the terms of a bankruptcy reorganization plan, it cannot refuse to entertain defenses or related counterclaims arising out of events occurring after confirmation of the bankruptcy plan. Double X Ranch v. Savage Bros., 167 M 231, 536 P2d 1176 (1975).

Probate Powers Over Heirship Proceedings: Heirship proceedings are committed to the District Courts with all the power, authority, and jurisdiction made inherent in such courts by the Montana Constitution and affirmed by this section. In re Baxter's Estate, 101 M 504, 54 P2d 869 (1936).

Probate Court Status Under 1889 Constitution: The District Court sitting in probate is not the probate court of territorial days and therefore not an inferior court but is a court of record exercising the general jurisdiction granted it by the Montana Constitution adopted in 1889, the limitation placed upon its jurisdiction by statute relative to the exercise of its probate powers not affecting its character as a court of general jurisdiction. Thelen v. Vogel, 86 M 33, 281 P 753 (1929), explained in In re Baxter's Estate, 101 M 504, 54 P2d 869 (1936).

FELONIES

District Court Jurisdiction to Apply Persistent Felony Offender Designation to Felony DUI: Yorek pleaded guilty to and was sentenced on a felony DUI charge. The District Court determined that it had jurisdiction and imposed a persistent felony offender designation. Yorek sought postconviction relief on grounds that the District Court lacked subject matter jurisdiction to impose a persistent felony offender designation for felony DUI. The District Court denied the petition for postconviction relief, concluding that sentencing for felony DUI is not solely governed by 61-8-731 and 61-8-734, that nothing in the persistent felony offender statute excludes felony DUI offenders from its application, and that Yorek waived any jurisdiction claim by pleading guilty. The Supreme Court affirmed. Nothing in 46-18-502 distinguishes between or among the types of felonies to which it applies, or excludes DUI offenders. Rather, if the underlying charge meets the definition of a felony and if the state has provided proper notice of its intent to seek persistent felony offender status under 46-13-108, a District Court has the statutory authority to designate and sentence an offender as a persistent felony offender. Yorek's crime met the definition of a felony, and Yorek fell squarely within the persistent felony offender statute. The state met the notice provisions, and the District Court possessed subject matter jurisdiction to designate Yorek as a persistent felony offender. Because the jurisdiction question was dispositive, the Supreme Court did not reach the question of whether Yorek's guilty plea was a procedural bar against bringing the claim. St. v. Yorek, 2002 MT 74, 309 M 238, 45 P3d 872 (2002), followed in St. v. Pettijohn, 2002 MT 75, 309 M 244, 45 P3d 870 (2002), and St. v. Damon, 2005 MT 218, 328 M 276, 119 P3d 1194 (2005).

Permissive Joinder — Not Grant of Jurisdiction: Relator was charged with misdemeanor assault and burglary (a felony). Relator contends that the District Court had no jurisdiction to try him for a misdemeanor. Section 46-11-404 allows an information to charge two or more offenses connected in their commission. This section is a permissive joinder statute for offenses within the jurisdiction of a given court, not a grant of jurisdiction. Jurisdiction for the misdemeanor assault lies with the Justice's Court. State ex rel. Rasmussen v. District Court, 189 M 183, 615 P2d 231, 37 St. Rep. 1498 (1980). (In 1981 this section was amended to give the District Court jurisdiction in such instances.)

ORIGINAL MISDEMEANOR JURISDICTION

Appeal of Guilty Plea in Justice's or City Court: From the standpoint of reason, justice, and public policy, an appeal of a guilty plea in Justice's Court or City Court may be tried anew in District Court provided it is properly perfected. However, this holding does not give the District Court original jurisdiction of a DUI case in violation of 3-5-302. St. v. Waymire, 226 M 406, 736 P2d 106, 44 St. Rep. 759 (1987).

Criminal Contempt and Contempt of Court Distinguished — District Court Without Jurisdiction to Try Criminal Contempt: Criminal contempt, a misdemeanor crime defined in 45-7-309, is an offense against society prosecuted by the state, whereas contempt of court is a judicial power arising out of Art. VII, sec. 1, Mont. Const., and Title 3 that allows a court to enforce its own judgments and maintain decorum in its proceedings. Thus, while only the District Court could have found the defendant in contempt of court for failure to pay a fine from a criminal proceeding of that court, it lacked jurisdiction to try a misdemeanor criminal contempt action for failure to pay the fine because criminal contempt, like most other misdemeanors, must be brought in Justice's Court. St. v. Abrams, 209 M 508, 680 P2d 585, 41 St. Rep. 871 (1984).

Justice's Court as Having Jurisdiction Despite Associated Felony Violation: A District Court did not have jurisdiction (prior to the 1981 amendment of this section) to try a misdemeanor offense of endangering the welfare of children, proscribed in 45-5-622, even though this offense was committed together with a felony offense. Section 46-11-404, which states that an information may charge two or more different offenses connected together in their commission, is not a grant of jurisdiction but is simply a permissive joinder statute for offenses within the jurisdiction of a given court. Under 3-5-302 and 3-10-303, providing that the District Court has original jurisdiction in all felony criminal cases and "cases of misdemeanor not otherwise provided for", the Justice's Court has jurisdiction over the misdemeanor offense of endangering the welfare of children. St. v. Campbell, 191 M 75, 622 P2d 200, 38 St. Rep. 19 (1981).

District Court Jurisdiction Over DWI Charge: Jurisdiction of the District Court over criminal matters depends on the maximum sentence that can be imposed for committing the crime (except for misdemeanors under subsection (2), inserted in 1981). When the maximum sentence increases to give the District Court jurisdiction because of repeated DWI offenses, proof of prior offenses does not become an element that must be proved at trial and can be proved at any time until sentencing. Thus, failure to introduce evidence of prior convictions at trial does not deprive the District Court of jurisdiction. St. v. Campbell, 189 M 107, 615 P2d 190, 37 St. Rep. 1337 (1980).

Aggregation of Jurisdictional Amounts: Where there are several causes of action, each for less than the jurisdictional minimum for the court, they may be prosecuted in the District Court where their aggregate exceeds the jurisdictional minimum. Stokke v. Graham, 129 M 96, 281 P2d 1025 (1955). See, however, the concurring opinions.

CONCURRENT MISDEMEANOR JURISDICTION

Concurrent Justice's Court and District Court Jurisdiction Over Misdemeanor Family Assault No Right to Trial De Novo From Court of Record: Brockway was charged with two misdemeanor and two felony counts of family member assault. Brockway moved to sever the misdemeanor counts and have them tried first in Justice's Court so that he would have the opportunity to appeal to District Court. The District Court concluded that it lacked jurisdiction to try the misdemeanor charges, so the misdemeanor charges were severed and remanded for trial in Justice's Court. The state appealed. The Supreme Court held that the District Court's conclusion that it did not have jurisdiction to try the misdemeanors was erroneous. Under 3-10-303, District Courts have concurrent jurisdiction with Justices' Courts over misdemeanor charges of partner or family member assault. Additionally, under 46-17-311, there is no right to a trial de novo from District Court or from a Justice's Court that is a court of record, so Brockway was entitled to one jury trial in a court of record—in this case, the District Court—and if convicted, Brockway could then appeal to the Supreme Court. The case was remanded for trial in District Court on all charges. St. v. Brockway, 2005 MT 179, 328 M 5, 116 P3d 788 (2005).

Trespass Charge Properly in Justice's Court — Motion to Dismiss and Writ for Review Denied: Shiplet was charged in Justice's Court with criminal misdemeanor trespass. He moved to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, claiming that subsequent to the filing of the charge, he filed a civil action in District Court seeking to enjoin the people claiming trespass from interfering with his purported ditch easement. Shiplet argued that the District Court, as opposed to the Justice's Court, was a better forum to determine whether he was legally exercising his ditch rights because it had jurisdiction over his civil suit and concurrent jurisdiction over the trespass charge. Shiplet's motion was denied, and his District Court petition for writ of review was denied. The Supreme Court stated that a writ of review can be granted only if the petitioner establishes both that: (1) the Justice's Court exceeded its jurisdiction; and (2) there is no appeal or there is no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy. The Supreme Court held that Shiplet could not meet the two-pronged test because a Justice's Court clearly has jurisdiction over a misdemeanor trespass charge and that he had the right to appeal a Justice's Court decision. The Supreme Court also stated that the District Court did not have concurrent jurisdiction over the criminal charge under the requirements for concurrent jurisdiction delineated in this section. Shiplet v. Egeland, 2001 MT 21, 304 M 141, 18 P3d 1001 (2001).

Criminal Contempt and Contempt of Court Distinguished — District Court Without Jurisdiction to Try Criminal Contempt: Criminal contempt, a misdemeanor crime defined in 45-7-309, is an offense against society prosecuted by the state, whereas contempt of court is a judicial power arising out of Art. VII, sec. 1, Mont. Const., and Title 3 that allows a court to enforce its own judgments and maintain decorum in its proceedings. Thus, while only the District Court could have found the defendant in contempt of court for failure to pay a fine from a criminal proceeding of that court, it lacked jurisdiction to try a misdemeanor criminal contempt action for failure to pay the fine because criminal contempt, like most other misdemeanors, must be brought in Justice's Court. St. v. Abrams, 209 M 508, 680 P2d 585, 41 St. Rep. 871 (1984).

EQUITY

Remand of Issue of Legality of Retroactive Designation of Funds as Business Loan: In an action concerning the sale of business property owned by tenants in common, the trial court, acting in equity, awarded each owner a portion of the sale proceeds in proportion to his initial capital investment. The issue of division of the sale proceeds was remanded to the court to make specific findings concerning the designation of certain advancements to the business as loans. Felska v. Goulding, 238 M 224, 776 P2d 530, 46 St. Rep. 1222 (1989).

Holdover Tenants Not Entitled to Restitution: Holdover tenants on agricultural land sought restitution for planting and harvesting costs under a theory of unjust enrichment when their lessors foreclosed on the property. The tenants were not holding over in good faith under color of title and had no right to remain on the property during the time for which they sought restitution. Because they did not come to court with clean hands, the tenants clearly were not entitled to restitution. Ruegsegger v. Welborn, 237 M 317, 773 P2d 305, 46 St. Rep. 833 (1989).

Equitable Power to Order Construction of Cattle Guard: Landowners who desired to use their property for cattle grazing were enjoined from maintaining a fence that unreasonably interfered with their neighbors' ingress and egress to the neighbors' property pursuant to a general easement right granted to the neighbors. The portion of the injunction order that allows the landowners to install a cattle guard at their own expense does not pose an additional burden upon the landowners not contemplated in the original easement. The court sitting in equity is empowered to determine the questions involved in the case and to do complete justice. Strahan v. Bush, 237 M 265, 773 P2d 718, 46 St. Rep. 789 (1989).

All Parties in Equity Court Entitled to Have Their Legal Claims and Counterclaims Tried by Jury: Although, in the past, the court has purported to permit a court of equity to rule on all questions in a case, the court has never held that a court sitting in equity may try those issues of fact raised by plaintiff in a legal cause of action. The modern merger of law and equity courts and the liberal joinder provisions of the Rules of Civil Procedure force reevaluation of the traditional justification for permitting an equity court to decide legal issues. Upon timely demand, all parties are entitled to have their legal claims and counterclaims tried by jury. Gray v. Billings, 213 M 6, 689 P2d 268, 41 St. Rep. 1910 (1984). (To the extent that Butler Bros. Dev. Co. v. Butler, 111 M 329, 108 P2d 1041 (1941), and its progeny have been interpreted to deny plaintiff a right to jury trial of his legal claims, the cases are overruled.)

WRITS AND SPECIAL ACTIONS

District Court Without Authority to Issue Writ of Supervisory Control to City Court: Maloney was convicted in City Court of speeding and driving under the influence of alcohol. Maloney appealed his conviction de novo for a trial in District Court and, at the same time, filed a petition for a writ of review, mandamus, and supervisory control, asking the District Court to direct the City Court to dismiss the charges. The District Court denied the petition. The Supreme Court held that the District Court had no authority to issue a writ of supervisory control to a City Court. Maloney v. Gordon, 254 M 314, 837 P2d 1341, 49 St. Rep. 834 (1992).

Mandamus Against Those Determining Qualifications of Public Contract Bidders: The Department of Administration and Board of Examiners, in determining whether bidders for the construction of a public building are qualified and will perform the contract in conformity with the specifications and terms of the solicitation for bids, as required by 18-2-103, are acting in a discretionary manner, and mandamus may not be used to control their discretion. Martel Constr., Inc. v. Bd. of Examiners, 205 M 332, 668 P2d 222, 40 St. Rep. 1340 (1983).

Certiorari:

Where one adjudged guilty of contempt in a proceeding before a Justice of the Peace sought relief by Writ of Certiorari in the District Court where a peremptory writ was denied, the proper means of securing relief from the Supreme Court was by appeal and not by certiorari. State ex rel. Mercer v. District Court, 115 M 385, 145 P2d 527 (1943).

While the statutes relating to the Writ of Certiorari make no provision as to the limitation of time within which proceeding must be brought, the limitation of 5 years provided by section 93-2613, R.C.M. 1947 (now 27-2-231), in an "action" not otherwise provided for, is controlling under section 93-2720, R.C.M. 1947 (now 70-19-101), including special proceedings of a civil nature. Shaffroth v. Lamere, 104 M 175, 65 P2d 610 (1937), overruled in Jones v. District Court, 2001 MT 276, 307 M 305, 37 P3d 682 (2001), to the extent that Shaffroth holds that the general 5-year statute of limitations in 27-2-231 applies to all writs of review authorized in 27-25-102 because pursuant to former Rule 5, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), a petition for a writ of certiorari to review contempt proceedings must be filed with the Clerk of the District Court within 30 days of the date on which the District Court enters the contempt finding, unless the state is a party, in which case the petition must be filed within 60 days of the date on which the District Court enters the contempt finding.

Case Notes

Pending Appeal Not Divesting District Court of Jurisdiction Over Subsequent Petitions Filed Under Same Cause Number: The District Court Uniform Caseload Filing Standards are intended solely for recordkeeping purposes within the office of the Clerk of Court, and nothing in the standards suggests that a respondent's pending appeal of a single commitment order divests a District Court of subject matter jurisdiction over any subsequent petitions filed under the same cause number. An appeal to the Supreme Court divests the District Court of jurisdiction over only the order or judgment from which the appeal is taken. In re G.M., 2007 MT 100, 337 M 116, 157 P3d 687 (2007). See also McCormick v. McCormick, 168 M 136, 541 P2d 765 (1975).

Standard of Appellate Review of District Court: Acting within its appellate capacity, a District Court is not in a position to make findings of fact or discretionary trial court rulings, but rather is confined to review of the record and questions of law. The court reviews any factual findings under the clearly erroneous standard, any discretionary rulings for abuse of discretion, and both legal conclusions and mixed questions of law and fact under the de novo standard. A District Court's review of an appeal from a lower court of record is no broader than the Supreme Court's review of a lower court judgment. In the case at bar, the judgment rendered by a Justice's Court was an appealable judgment as contemplated by 3-10-115, and the District Court thus had jurisdiction over the appeal. Likewise, the District Court's judgment constituted a final determination of the issues presented on appeal, and the Supreme Court therefore had jurisdiction pursuant to former Rule 1, M.R.App.P. (now superseded). Stanley v. Lemire, 2006 MT 304, 334 M 489, 148 P3d 643 (2006).

Out-of-Time Appeal in Criminal Matters — Exclusive Jurisdiction With Supreme Court: Under 46-20-101, the only method for review in criminal cases is by notice of appeal. Time limits for filing an appeal are mandatory and jurisdictional. If a defendant takes no action to perfect an appeal within 90 days of judgment, the District Court loses its jurisdiction and the appeal is out-of-time. However, an out-of-time appeal is a remedy that may be available to a criminal defendant who, through no fault of the defendant, misses a deadline for filing an appeal. Although former Rule 21(b), M.R.App.P. (now superseded), precludes an out-of-time appeal in a civil case, the Supreme Court is not precluded from addressing a motion for an out-of-time appeal in a criminal case. Further, a District Court lacks jurisdiction to grant an out-of-time appeal. The Supreme Court has exclusive jurisdiction to grant a motion for an out-of-time appeal, and the motion is considered an original proceeding subject to the provisions of former Rule 17, M.R.App.P. (now superseded). Upon a showing that the failure to timely notice a criminal appeal was excusable under the circumstances, the Supreme Court may conclude that an out-of-time appeal is the appropriate remedy pursuant to former Rule 21(b), M.R.App.P. (now superseded). In that event, the matter will be remanded to the District Court with instructions to vacate and reenter judgment to afford the defendant a second opportunity to act within the statutory timeframes for filing notice of appeal. St. v. Tweed, 2002 MT 286, 312 M 482, 59 P3d 1105 (2002).

Authority of Municipal Court to Commit Mentally Incapacitated Defendant: A plain reading of 3-6-104 provides that Municipal Courts have all powers and duties of District Courts over matters within their jurisdiction, including the power and duty to commit mentally incapacitated criminal defendants to the Department of Public Health and Human Services, pursuant to the procedures and requirements of Title 46, if the Municipal Court determines that the defendant suffers from a mental disease or defect and lacks the fitness to proceed to trial. If there is any question regarding a Municipal Court's commitment of a criminal defendant, the issue may be appealed to the District Court pursuant to this section. Great Falls v. Dept. of Public Health and Human Services, 2002 MT 108, 309 M 467, 47 P3d 836 (2002).

No Authority to Appeal Justice's Court Order Denying Motion to Withdraw Guilty Plea: The Feights got into a fight with a highway patrol officer at a high school basketball game and were charged with misdemeanor assault. They were informed of their rights in Justice's Court, waived their right to counsel, and pleaded guilty. More than a month later, they moved through counsel to withdraw their guilty pleas, claiming good cause under 46-16-105. The Justice's Court denied the motion, holding that the Feights had been given due process and had voluntarily, knowingly, and willingly entered guilty pleas. The Feights appealed the denial of their motion to withdraw their guilty pleas to District Court. The state moved to dismiss the appeal, contending that the District Court lacked jurisdiction to review denial of the motion to withdraw a plea. The District Court dismissed the appeal but remanded to Justice's Court with a recommendation that the Feights be allowed to withdraw their pleas. Instead, the Justice's Court reinstated judgment, and the Feights appealed to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court affirmed. The statutes that provide for and determine the jurisdiction of a District Court to entertain an appeal from a Justice's Court include 46-12-204, 46-17-203, 46-17-311, and this section. However, none of these statutes provide authority for appeal to the District Court from the denial of a motion to withdraw a guilty plea. Further, the specific language of these sections prevails over the general language in 46-20-104 defining the scope of appeal by a criminal defendant. The Legislature has not created a statutory right of appeal from a Justice's Court denial of a motion to withdraw a guilty plea, and the Supreme Court refrained from creating one. St. v. Feight, 2001 MT 205, 306 M 312, 33 P3d 623 (2001), distinguishing St. v. Rogers, 267 M 190, 883 P2d 115 (1994), and followed in St. v. Fox, 2001 MT 209, 306 M 353, 34 P3d 484 (2001).

City Not Liable for City Judge's Civil Rights Violations — City Judge Acts Under State Authority: Claims of the indigent defendants, who were not effectively informed by a City Judge of their right to appointed counsel, were properly dismissed. Under Montana law, a City Judge's acts and decision in advising defendants of the right were performed under the state's authority rather than the city's authority, thereby precluding imposition of civil rights liability on the city. Further, the indigent defendants did not have standing to seek declaratory and injunctive relief. There are other remedies for indigent defendants in future situations—they can file a complaint with the state body charged with overseeing judicial conduct, they can appeal their convictions to a higher court, and they can sue a judge individually because a judge does not enjoy judicial immunity for unconstitutional behavior when the facts are sufficient to grant declaratory or injunctive relief. Eggar v. Livingston, 40 F3d 312 (9th Cir. 1994).

Retrial of Unconvicted Offense Prohibited — Dismissal of Conviction for Uncharged Offense Affirmed: Barker was charged with DUI but was convicted of reckless driving by the Ravalli County Justice of the Peace. Barker appealed to the District Court and filed a motion to dismiss, which the District Court granted. On appeal by the state, the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the reckless driving charge and the DUI charge were inapposite charges and that reckless driving was not a lesser included offense of DUI. The Supreme Court also held that while a defendant's statutory remedy for appealing a Justice's Court decision is a trial de novo in the District Court, it would be a violation of the prohibition against double jeopardy to try Barker again on the DUI charge because Barker was originally charged with that offense and jeopardy had attached when the first witness was sworn. When Barker appealed from the erroneous conviction of an uncharged offense, he did not waive his constitutional protection against double jeopardy for charges of which he was acquitted. St. v. Barker, 260 M 85, 858 P2d 360, 50 St. Rep. 970 (1993).

Order Absent Jurisdiction Void: An order entered in the absence of jurisdiction is void. In re the Marriage of Schultz v. Schultz, 183 M 20, 597 P2d 1174, 36 St. Rep. 1993 (1979), following State ex rel. Thompson v. District Court, 75 M 147, 242 P 959 (1926).

Incomplete Appeal: Where an appeal from a Justice's Court was never perfected, that court had exclusive jurisdiction of the cause and nothing done by the District Court therein could affect the judgment rendered by the Justice, and dismissal of the attempted appeal was correct. Greenough v. Rannel, 71 M 578, 230 P 1094 (1924).

Case Notes

Sale of Automobile Franchise — Error in Failure to Resolve Mootness as Threshold Issue Before Underlying Dispute Addressed: Ford Motor Company (Ford) notified franchisee Shamrock Motors (Shamrock) that it intended to terminate Shamrock's automobile dealer franchise because Shamrock had sold 80% of its stock without Ford's knowledge or consent, which violated their franchise agreement. The Motor Vehicle Division of the Department of Justice issued a ruling that Ford had good cause, so Shamrock filed for judicial review in the District Court. Ford then removed to federal court, where the ruling was reversed, so Ford appealed to the Ninth Circuit Court. Shamrock then sold the dealership, and the decision was vacated because of lack of jurisdiction. The case was remanded to state court, where Ford moved to dismiss for mootness. The District Court denied the motion without discussion and ruled for Shamrock, concluding that the franchise could not be terminated as a result of the sale of 80% of the franchise stock. Reversing on appeal, the Supreme Court cited Adkins v. Livingston, 121 M 528, 194 P2d 238 (1948), in holding that mootness is a threshold issue that must be dealt with before the underlying dispute may be addressed. A matter is moot when, because of an event or happening, the issue has ceased to exist and no longer presents an actual controversy. A question is moot when a court cannot grant effective relief. If the parties cannot be restored to their original position, an appeal becomes moot. When Shamrock chose to sell the franchise during the appellate process, the question of whether Ford had good cause to terminate the franchise in the first instance became academic and thus moot. The District Court erred when it did not resolve the issue of mootness before addressing the merits of the claim, not recognizing that once Shamrock sold the dealership and was no longer the franchisee, there was no effective relief that the court could fashion under Title 61, ch. 4, part 2, so the appeal from the Motor Vehicle Division's ruling should have been dismissed as moot. Shamrock Motors, Inc. v. Ford Motor Co., 1999 MT 21, 293 M 188, 974 P2d 1154, 56 St. Rep. 99 (1999), followed in Shamrock Motors, Inc. v. Chrysler Corp., 1999 MT 39, 293 M 317, 974 P2d 1154, 56 St. Rep. 164 (1999).

Abuse of Discretion for Court to Correct Failure to Sentence by Nunc Pro Tunc Order: The District Court failed to sentence Winterrowd, in either open court or by written judgment, on his misdemeanor theft conviction. Four months later, the court issued an order nunc pro tunc, sentencing Winterrowd to 6 months' imprisonment. It is within a District Court's power to enter an order nunc pro tunc modifying or amending a judgment in order to remedy certain types of clerical errors or to make the record reflect what was actually decided. However, in this case, not only was the sentence omitted from the written sentencing order, but the sentence was not even discussed at the sentencing hearing. The Supreme Court reversed and vacated the nunc pro tunc order and sentence. St. v. Winterrowd, 1998 MT 74, 288 M 208, 957 P2d 522, 55 St. Rep. 307 (1998).

District Court Without Authority to Issue Writ of Supervisory Control to City Court: Maloney was convicted in City Court of speeding and driving under the influence of alcohol. Maloney appealed his conviction de novo for a trial in District Court and, at the same time, filed a petition for a writ of review, mandamus, and supervisory control, asking the District Court to direct the City Court to dismiss the charges. The District Court denied the petition. The Supreme Court held that the District Court had no authority to issue a writ of supervisory control to a City Court. Maloney v. Gordon, 254 M 314, 837 P2d 1341, 49 St. Rep. 834 (1992).

Court Not to Change Original Intent of Order: A District Court may correct clerical errors to make the record speak the truth as to what was actually decided, but it may not change what was originally intended. Reinstatement of a dismissed information was impermissible. St. v. Onstad, 234 M 487, 764 P2d 473, 45 St. Rep. 2071 (1988), followed in St. v. District Court, 265 M 445, 877 P2d 1008, 51 St. Rep. 599 (1994).

Award of Attorney Fees by Judge Who Did Not Try Case — No Abuse of Discretion: Parties had 2 months following judgment and prior to a change in jurisdiction to bring the matter of attorney fees before the judge who presided over a lien foreclosure action. Neither side did, and jurisdiction of the action was transferred from the 13th to the 16th Judicial District. Defendant later claimed the new judge abused his discretion by awarding fees in a case he did not try because he could not know all of the circumstances surrounding the foreclosure action. The Supreme Court held that a judge's jurisdiction over a case is a matter of law and that while it is preferable that the presiding trial judge consider the matter of attorney fees, it is not mandatory.

Finding no abuse of discretion, judgment was affirmed. Donnes v. Orlando, 221 M 356, 720 P2d 233, 43 St. Rep. 890 (1986).

Error in Sentencing Order — Correction “Nunc Pro Tunc” Two Years Later Upheld: The District Court, as a condition of sentence, ordered defendant to pay certain medical expenses and called the required payment “restitution” in the order. The payment was not restitution, but the court did have statutory authority to require payment. The court’s effort to correct nunc pro tunc the original order 2 years after it was entered was proper. The error was clerical in nature. Every court has the inherent right to correct clerical errors. Dahlman v. District Court, 215 M 470, 698 P2d 423, 42 St. Rep. 550 (1985), followed in St. v. Owens, 230 M 135, 748 P2d 473, 45 St. Rep. 89 (1988). See also St. v. Christianson, 1999 MT 156, 295 M 100, 983 P2d 909, 56 St. Rep. 613 (1999).

No Discretion to Issue Probationary Driver’s License: A District Court Judge clearly does not have the power to issue a probationary license in a court hearing to determine habitual traffic offender status under 61-11-210. State ex rel. Majerus v. Carter, 214 M 272, 693 P2d 501, 41 St. Rep. 2468 (1984).

Judge’s Reappointment to Finish Case Started Before Retirement: That trial Judge retired prior to his issuance of orders in the case at issue did not make the orders void. Under the recent decision in State ex rel. Wilcox & Bradley v. District Court, 41 St. Rep. 397 (1984), the trial Judge had authority to perform all functions of an active District Judge, including the issuance of final orders and judgments. In re Pegg’s Estate, 209 M 71, 680 P2d 316, 41 St. Rep. 558 (1984). (Annotator’s Note: The District Court’s records indicate that the Judge retired after beginning work on the case and was reappointed to finish the case.)

Retired Judges Eligible for Assignment for Temporary Service: The term “other judges” in subsection (3) of Art. VII, sec. 6, Mont. Const., includes retired judges. That subsection empowers the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, upon request of a District Judge, to assign retired judges for temporary service to any judicial district or county in Montana. Further, that provision is a constitutional grant of power exclusive of any statutory grant by the Legislature. State ex rel. Wilcox v. District Court, 208 M 351, 678 P2d 209, 41 St. Rep. 397 (1984).

Habeas Corpus — No Jurisdiction to Declare Children Dependent and Neglected: In a consolidated proceeding based on a petition for a Writ of Habeas Corpus by a natural parent and a petition by a nonparent for guardianship, the court was without jurisdiction to find the children involved dependent and neglected and to enter an order granting custody to the nonparent petitioners. Unless 41-3-401 (renumbered 41-3-422) is followed, the court is without jurisdiction to deprive the parent of custody. In re the Marriage of Schultz v. Schultz, 183 M 20, 597 P2d 1174, 36 St. Rep. 1993 (1979), following Guardianship of Aschenbrenner 182 M 540, 597 P2d 1156 (1979), and Guardianship of Evans, 179 M 438, 587 P2d 372 (1978). However, see also In re L.E.B., 259 M 492, 856 P2d 1382, 50 St. Rep. 895 (1993), in which Aschenbrenner was distinguished in a case brought under adoption proceedings rather than guardianship proceedings.

Absence of Judge From County: When a District Judge was invited to another district to hear and determine an action to quiet title but at chambers in his own county sustained a motion for judgment on the pleadings, the judgment so rendered was made without jurisdiction. Eustance v. Francis, 52 M 295, 157 P 573 (1916).

Temporary Judge: The power of a Judge at chambers to determine any matter left pending in the district into which he has been called ceases when he has returned to his own district. State ex rel. Mannix v. District Court, 51 M 310, 152 P 753 (1915).

Contempt of Court: Where there has been disobedience of an order made at a term of court, the Judge at chambers in vacation has power to punish the same as a contempt. State ex rel. N. Pac. Ry. v. Loud, 24 M 428, 62 P 497 (1900).

Common-Law Recognition and Sovereignty of Little Shell Tribe — Suit Against Tribal Officials Barred: Plaintiffs were candidates in an election of the Little Shell Tribe of Indians and sued in Montana District Court for tort damages and injunctive relief against the incumbent candidates, claiming that plaintiffs had won the election. The District Court dismissed on grounds of lack of jurisdiction, and plaintiffs appealed. The Supreme Court noted that the tribe had been pursuing federal tribal recognition since the 1930s, but as yet, the tribe is not recognized by the federal government. Nevertheless, Montoya v. U.S., 180 US 261 (1901), establishes criteria for common-law recognition of a tribe. The court examined the Montoya criteria and held that the Little Shell Tribe satisfied each element of the test for common-law recognition, so the tribe is entitled to sovereignty. Tribal members are of the same or similar race, are united in a community, exist under one leadership or government, and inhabit a particular though sometimes ill-defined territory. Further, under Santa Clara Pueblo v. Martinez, 436 US 49 (1978), Indian tribes and their officials enjoy sovereign immunity from suit unless expressly limited by Congress. Thus, because the tribal officials in this case were acting in their official capacities, suit against them in state court was barred under the doctrine of sovereign immunity. Dismissal of the action by the District Court for lack of jurisdiction was affirmed. Koke v. Little Shell Tribe of Chippewa Indians of Mont., Inc., 2003 MT 121, 315 M 510, 68 P3d 814 (2003).

Guidelines for Determining Whether Indian Tribe Has Waived Sovereign Immunity in Contract — Inapplicability of Statute of Frauds to Question of Subject Matter Jurisdiction: Plaintiff contended that he signed a 7-year contract with the Crow Tribe to provide consulting services and to act as a program manager for the planning and construction of a power plant on tribal property and that the tribe breached the contract and failed to pay him. The tribe moved to dismiss on grounds that the District Court lacked personal and subject matter jurisdiction because of the tribe's sovereign immunity. The District Court denied the motion but reserved the right to readdress the issue of subject matter jurisdiction. Following further discovery, neither party could produce a signed copy of the alleged contract. The District Court concluded that because the alleged contract was for employment for more than 1 year, the statute of frauds applied and noted that although plaintiff's performance would normally create an exception to the statute of frauds pursuant to the court's equitable powers, to exercise that power in this case would circumvent the tribe's sovereign immunity in contravention of federal law. The District Court further concluded that although there was an express agreement that was partially performed and that the agreement contained a waiver of tribal immunity from suit in state court, as indicated by affidavits submitted by plaintiff and the tribal presiding officer, because of the fact that a signed copy of the contract was not produced, there was insufficient evidence to overcome the presumption against waiver of tribal immunity, so the action was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. Plaintiff appealed, and the Supreme Court reversed. The Montana statute of frauds in 28-2-903 limits the enforceability of certain contracts but does not affect a District Court's subject matter jurisdiction, so a District Court need not consider the statute of frauds when determining subject matter jurisdiction; furthermore, the court does not need to invoke its equitable powers to find jurisdiction. Rather, the question facing the District Court was whether the tribe clearly and unequivocally waived its sovereign immunity. The Supreme Court found that plaintiff's complaint alleged sufficient facts that, if true, would vest the District Court with subject matter jurisdiction. The tribe produced no evidence to refute the affidavits or to controvert the recollections of the affiants. Absent any factual issue to resolve, the Supreme Court concluded that plaintiff presented undisputed evidence proving the establishment of a contract that included an unequivocal waiver of sovereign immunity, so dismissal of the complaint by the District Court on jurisdictional grounds constituted reversible error. Bradley v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 2003 MT 82, 315 M 75, 67 P3d 306 (2003). On remand, the District Court again granted Bradley's motion for summary judgment after holding that the tribe's motion to alter or amend was denied because the court did not rule on the motion within 60 days. The Supreme Court held that because there is no provision in Rule 56, M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), for entry of summary judgment by default, denial of the tribe's motion was erroneous, and because questions of fact existed regarding contract ambiguity and damages, the case was again reversed and remanded for further consideration. Bradley v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 2005 MT 309, 329 M 448, 124 P3d 1143 (2005).

No State Jurisdiction of Indian Reservation Commercial Transactions — Preemption by Tribal Jurisdiction: A state District Court did not have primary subject matter jurisdiction over a civil debt action arising out of a commercial transaction on an Indian reservation and brought by a non-Indian creditor against an enrolled tribal member debtor, both of whom resided on the reservation. State assumption of such jurisdiction interfered with tribal sovereignty and the tribe's right of self-government. Therefore, the state court's jurisdiction over the commercial transaction was preempted by tribal jurisdiction. Geiger v. Pierce, 233 M 18, 758 P2d 279, 45 St.

Rep. 1257 (1988), followed in Balyeat Law, PC v. Pettit, 1998 MT 252, 291 M 196, 967 P2d 398, 55 St. Rep. 1038 (1998) (the state has no jurisdiction over an action to collect a debt for medical bills arising out of transactions, either on or off the reservation, brought by a non-Indian creditor against an enrolled tribal member residing on a reservation whose spouse incurred the debt but who engaged in no significant off-reservation contacts so as to subject herself to state jurisdiction).

Jurisdiction to Issue Investigative Subpoenas: The plain language of 46-4-301 vests every District Court Judge with the power to issue investigative subpoenas with no jurisdictional limitation. There simply is no requirement, explicit or implicit, that the subpoena be issued by the sitting judge of the district where the crime allegedly occurred. The venue statutes have no application to the jurisdictions of any District Court to issue such subpoenas, which jurisdiction is coextensive with the state boundaries. St. v. Holmes, 212 M 526, 687 P2d 662, 41 St. Rep. 1535 (1984).

Actions by Judge Not Assigned:

Where judge of the second department assumed jurisdiction of a divorce suit, even though under the rules it was properly assignable to the first department, it was beyond the power of the judge of the first department to interfere in any way and proceedings wherein he set aside the divorce were void. Deich v. Deich, 136 M 566, 323 P2d 35 (1958).

Where court rule mandated that case be assigned to one division of court and motion was heard in another division, rulings were void. State ex rel. Magnuson v. District Court, 125 M 79, 231 P2d 941 (1951).

Nature of Departments: Where the District Court is divided into departments, the court presided over by each of the Judges is the District Court and not a departmental court; neither department is a court of concurrent jurisdiction to the other, and in the absence of rules either judge has full authority to proceed in any matter properly before the court. *State ex rel. Order Signed During Judge's Term of Office, but Not Filed Until After Expiration of Judge's Term, Considered Binding: One day before the expiration of her legal term of office, a District Court Judge signed an order affirming an administrative decision in a labor dispute, but the order was not filed until 3 days after the judge's term of office expired. The judge's successor struck the order and directed further proceedings. The union then petitioned the Supreme Court for supervisory control, contending that striking the original order was a mistake of law. The Supreme Court agreed, applying Plumb v. District Court, 279 M 363, 927 P2d 1011 (1996), and accepted supervisory control because of the absence of a plain, speedy, or adequate remedy at law. The court noted that states generally recognize that judgments undergo three phases of final development, including rendition, reduction to writing, and entry, but that states vary in their determination of the stage at which a judgment binds the parties before the court. The court determined that the case most directly on point to the facts in the present case was Cirro Wrecking Co. v. Roppolo, 605 NE 2d 544 (Ill. 1992). The filing of the District Court's order was merely a ministerial function performed by the Clerk of the District Court. The judgment was otherwise properly rendered during the pendency of the judge's term and was binding on the parties at that point, even though it was entered by the clerk after the judge's vacation of office. Further, for purposes of commencing time periods, judgments continue to take effect from the date on which they are filed with the clerk, so that a fixed date is established and known to the parties. Int'l Ass'n of Firefighters, Local No. 8 v. District Court, 2002 MT 17, 308 M 183, 40 P3d 396 (2002).

Retention of Passport Execution Fees by Clerk of District Court: Because the execution of passport applications is not an official duty imposed upon a Clerk of District Court by state statute and since the Legislature has not enacted a specific statute with regard to the disposition of execution fees, the Clerk has no duty to remit the fees to the county general fund. *Platz v. Each county shall pay its portion of the remainder of the salary based on its proportion of the total number of civil and criminal actions commenced in the district courts in the district. The judge or judges of the district shall, on January 1 of each year or as soon thereafter as possible, apportion the amount of the salary to be paid by each county in the district on the basis prescribed in this subsection. The portion of the salary payable by a county is a district court expense within the meaning of 7-6-2351, 7-6-2352, and 7-6-2511"; in (3) in first sentence substituted "compensation provided for in subsection (1) and fees" for "salary and fees provided for in subsection (1)" and in second sentence substituted "expenses are payable as provided in subsection (2)" for "expenses must be apportioned and are payable in the same way as the salary"; and made minor changes in style.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 384 in (1), near middle of first sentence, increased minimum salary from $23,000 to $28,000 and increased maximum salary from $30,000 to $35,000 and at end inserted "unless the judge decides to solicit bids for the work performed by the reporter, in which case the salary must be for the amount specified in the bid accepted by the judge"; and made minor changes in style.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 10 near end of (1) and at beginning of (2) substituted "supreme court administrator" for "department of commerce"; at end of first sentence of (3) deleted "from the time he leaves his place of residence until he returns thereto"; and made minor changes in style.

1989 Amendment (Temporary): In middle of first sentence of (1) increased base to $23,000 from $16,000 and increased cap to $25,000 from $23,000; and made minor change in phraseology. Amendment effective July 1, 1989.

1989 Amendment (Effective July 1, 1991): In middle of first sentence of (1) increased base to $23,000 from $16,000 and increased cap to $30,000 from $23,000. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 680 in (1) near end after "appointed", inserted "and out of an appropriation made to the supreme court as provided in subsection (2)"; in (2), inserted first two sentences relating to number of actions and state payment, in third sentence, after "portion", inserted "of the remainder" and at end of third sentence, after "district", deleted "in the preceding year", in fourth sentence, near beginning after "judge", inserted "or judges" and near end after "his" inserted "or their", and in last sentence of (2) at beginning substituted "The portion of the salary payable by a county" for "The salary".

Chapter 1, Sp. L. 1985, amended Ch. 680, L. 1985, near end of (1) by substituting "department of commerce" for "supreme court", and near beginning of (2) by substituting "department of commerce" for "supreme court administrator".

Interim Study Committee Bill: Chapter 680, L. 1985, which amended this section, was introduced by request of Joint Interim Subcommittee No. 3 of the 48th Legislature. See Committee report entitled "Court Unification in Montana", Montana Legislative Council, December 1984.

1983 Amendment: Near beginning of (1), substituted “a base” for “an” before “annual salary”; increased the salary range to between $16,000 and $23,000 from between $14,000 and $20,000; substituted “for whom” for “in the district in which” before “the reporter works”; substituted “The salary” for “It” before “is payable in monthly installments”; and inserted last sentence providing that the salary is a judicial expense under 7-6-2351, 7-6-2352, and 7-6-2511.

1981 Amendment: Increased the district court reporter’s salary from between $12,500 and $18,000 to between $14,000 and $20,000; inserted “Each county shall pay its portion of the salary based on its” after “appointed” in (1); inserted “of the total” before “number of civil and criminal actions” in (1); substituted “courts” for “court” after “district” in (1); substituted “in the district” for “in and for each county” after “district courts” in (1); made minor changes in phraseology.

Severability: Section 17, Ch. 528, L. 1979, was a severability section.

Full-Time District Court Reporters Subject to Statutory Workweek Requirement — Recordkeeping Required — Designation of Court Reporter’s “Workstation”: A District Court reporter who is treated as a full-time salaried county employee is subject to the statutory 40-hour workweek requirement in 7-5-2108, and recordkeeping to document a court reporter’s working hours, including overtime, annual leave, and sick leave, must be as determined by the District Court Judge who employs the court reporter. However, any method used to fulfill these requirements must comport with the District Court Judge’s authority to control court assistants because allowing a Board of County Commissioners to enforce county personnel policies on court reporters would infringe on that authority. Any mandatory location of work for a court reporter that is set by anyone but the District Court Judge would interfere with the necessary flexibility of the judge. Thus, a court reporter’s “workstation” is wherever that reporter is required to be to perform the duties for the judge for whom that court reporter works. (See 2001 amendment.) Bd. of County Comm’rs v. District Court, 2000 MT 258, 301 M 496, 10 P3d 805, 57 St. Rep. 1061 (2000).

Court Reporter Salary Dispute — Writ of Supervisory Control Appropriate: The Board of Lewis and Clark County Commissioners set the salary for court reporters, based on its interpretation of the 1997 amendment to this section. The salary did not include fringe benefits because the statute states that a court reporter is to receive the base salary “and no other compensation except as provided in 3-4-604”, which allows a court reporter to collect only certain fees for providing transcripts. The District Court Judges ordered the Board to give the court reporters the maximum raise allowed and to continue their benefits at the prior level. The Board appealed the order directly to the Supreme Court. The judges contended that the appeal was improper because the Board filed no appropriate underlying civil action, whether a petition for a writ of mandamus, a petition for a writ of prohibition, or another action, and sought to have the appeal dismissed. The Board characterized the judges’ order as a final appealable order rather than an administrative action. The Supreme Court found some merit to both arguments. Applying the rationale in Awareness Group v. School District, 243 M 469, 795 P2d 447 (1990), the court found that neither a writ of mandamus nor a writ of prohibition was appropriate and that they would not provide meaningful relief because it would be futile to seek to prohibit or to compel an act already accomplished. While granting the judges’ motion to dismiss without prejudice to the underlying merits of the case, the Supreme Court held that if the Board decided to do so, it could file a petition for a writ of supervisory control with the Supreme Court, pursuant to former Rule 17, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), and could raise whatever legal questions that it determined were at issue. If the Supreme Court determined it necessary, it could then remand for an evidentiary hearing in a neutral District Court in the same manner as in Gallatin County v. District Court, 281 M 33, 930 P2d 680 (1997). (See 2001 amendment.) In re District Court Budget Order, 1998 MT 4, 287 M 137, 952 P2d 427, 55 St. Rep. 9 (1998).

Court Reporter Failing to File Trial Notes — Not a Denial of Trial Transcript: Petitioner was not denied due process on the grounds that he was denied a transcript of his criminal trial when the court reporter failed to file his notes with the Clerk of Court, as required by this section. The defendant attempted to get a free transcript as provided by 3-5-604 but failed to allege anything to warrant moving any court's discretion to order one; therefore, he was not denied a transcript merely because the court reporter kept his notes. Spurlock v. Crist, 188 M 449, 614 P2d 498, 37 St. Rep. 1146 (1980).

Waiver of Reporter: Defendant, an experienced lawyer who was warned by the court of the consequences, waived his right to question the court's discretion by actively participating in the trial after his request for a reporter had been denied. Niewoehner v. District Court, 142 M 1, 381 P2d 464 (1963).

Attendance Within Court's Discretion:

The court may in its discretion dispense with the stenographer's services in the absence of a request by the parties or one of them that he be present. In view of the importance of preserving a record in controverted matters, the court should, in the absence of an express stipulation waiving the recording of the testimony, inquire of the contending parties whether a record is desired; and where the testimony is not taken the records should show the reason, whether by stipulation or because of the court's exercise of its discretion. State ex rel. Stimatz v. District Court, 105 M 510, 74 P2d 8 (1937).

Where County Attorney during argument attempted repeatedly to present to jury the fact of an attempt to commit a second robbery although there was no evidence of such offense in the record, and defense counsel objected thereto and requested the attendance of the official stenographer, the court's refusal to comply with his request was an abuse of discretion. St. v. Hogan, 100 M 434, 49 P2d 446 (1935), distinguished in State ex rel. Stimatz v. District Court, 105 M 510, 74 P2d 8 (1937).

Exceptions to Rulings: An exception to an adverse ruling by the District Court is a matter of right, not one of grace or discretion on the part of the court, and when taken, the court stenographer must enter it, any opinion of the trial court to the contrary notwithstanding. St. v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 53 M 104, 161 P 953 (1916).

Payment of Fees: The fees for stenographers must be paid to official stenographers appointed by the court. Mont. Ore Purchasing Co. v. Boston & Mont. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co., 27 M 288, 70 P 1114 (1902).

Mandamus: Mandamus lies to compel the stenographer to write out and file a list of the objections, rulings, and exceptions occurring on the trial, where the order of the trial court is insufficient. State ex rel. Kranich v. Supple, 22 M 184, 56 P 20 (1899); explained in State ex rel. Donovan v. Ledwidge, 27 M 197, 70 P 511 (1902).

2005 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 254 in (3) in first sentence added reference to county attorney and attorney general; deleted former (3)(b) that read: "(b) If the county attorney or the attorney general requires a transcript in a criminal case, the reporter shall furnish the transcript and only the reporter's actual cost of preparation may be paid by the county or the office of the attorney general"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 15, 2005.

(Version effective July 1, 2006) Chapter 449 in (1) at end inserted exception clause; in (3)(a) substituted "office of court administrator" for "state"; in (4)(a) after "If" deleted "it appears to the judge that a defendant in a criminal case or a parent or guardian in a proceeding brought pursuant to Title 41, chapter 3, part 4 or 6, is unable to pay for a transcript", inserted reference to public defender requesting a transcript, after "furnished to the" substituted "public defender" for "party", after "state" inserted "office of public defender", and at end deleted "3-5-901" and inserted "47-1-201"; inserted (4)(b) requiring office of court administrator to pay for transcript for pro se indigent defendant; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2006.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 254, L. 2005, provided: "WHEREAS, stenographic court reporters are important to the efficient functioning of the courts and save the court time and money during trial and appeals; and

WHEREAS, in 2001, the state assumed the costs of funding District Courts; and

WHEREAS, as part of state assumption, court reporters were given the option of becoming state employees, foregoing transcript fees, having the state provide and maintain all equipment and supplies, and receiving overtime for time spent in transcript preparation; becoming state employees, purchasing and maintaining their own equipment, receiving transcript fees, and foregoing overtime for time spent in transcript preparation; or being independent contractors; and

WHEREAS, the court reporters in this state entered into written agreements that incorporated the options available to them under the 2001 state assumption; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature, in 2003, changed the law relating to compensation of court reporters and provided that all reporters shall provide transcripts to County Attorneys and the Attorney General at "actual cost", which has been interpreted by the District Court Council as meaning the cost of paper, printing, and photocopying."

2003 Amendment: Chapter 583 in (3)(a) at beginning before "judge" deleted "county attorney, attorney general, or"; inserted (3)(b) concerning county attorney or attorney general requiring a transcript; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 585 inserted (2) requiring deposit of certain transcription fees in state general fund; in (3) substituted "If the county attorney, attorney general, or judge requires a transcript in a criminal case, the reporter shall furnish it. The transcription fee must be paid by the state as provided in 3-5-901" for "If the county attorney, attorney general, or judge requires a transcript in a criminal case, the reporter is entitled to the reporter's fees for the transcript, but the reporter shall furnish it. Upon furnishing it, the reporter must receive a certificate for the sum to which the reporter is entitled. The reporter shall submit the certificate to the supreme court administrator who, in accordance with 3-5-902, is responsible for the prompt payment of all or a portion of the amount due the reporter. If the state, in accordance with 3-5-902, pays none or only a portion of the amount due, the county shall pay the balance upon receipt of a statement from the reporter"; in (5) at end substituted "paid for by the state as provided in 3-5-901" for "paid for by the state in the manner provided in subsection (2) to the extent funds are available. The county shall pay the remainder as required in 3-5-901"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2002.

Code Commissioner Instruction: Pursuant to sec. 47, Ch. 257, L. 2001, in (2) in version effective July 1, 2002, the code commissioner changed "state treasurer" to "department of revenue".

1999 Amendment: Chapter 394 in (4) after "case" inserted "or a parent or guardian in a proceeding brought pursuant to Title 41, chapter 3, part 4 or 6"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

1991 Amendment: In (2), in third sentence, substituted reference to Supreme Court Administrator for reference to Department of Commerce and in fourth sentence, near beginning, substituted "state" for "department". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 680 in (2) in second sentence, after "entitled", deleted "which is a county charge and must be paid by the county treasurer upon the certificate like other county charges" and inserted last two sentences relating to state payment and county payment of balance; in (4) in first sentence, after "by the", deleted "county" and inserted "state in the manner provided in subsection (2) to the extent funds are available" and inserted last sentence providing that the county must pay the remainder as required in 3-5-901; and made minor changes in phraseology.

Chapter 1, Sp. L. 1985, amended Ch. 680, L. 1985, in two places by substituting references to "department of commerce" for references to "supreme court administrator".

Interim Study Committee Bill: Chapter 680, L. 1985, which amended this section, was introduced by request of Joint Interim Subcommittee No. 3 of the 48th Legislature. See Committee report entitled "Court Unification in Montana", Montana Legislative Council, December 1984.

1983 Amendment: In first sentence of (1), deleted "the defendant in a criminal case or" before "a party"; deleted "civil" before "case"; substituted "transcript" for "copy, written out at length or in narrative form" before "from his stenographic notes"; substituted "of" for "upon" after "testimony and proceedings"; at end of (1), substituted "$2 per page for the original transcript, 50 cents per page for the first copy, 25 cents per page for each additional copy" for "10 cents per folio"; in (2), substituted "transcript" for "copy" before "in a criminal case"; at end of (3), substituted reference to actual cost for "without cost"; and in (4), substituted "transcript" for "copy".

1981 Amendment: Increased folio cost from 7 ½ to 10 cents in (1).

Case Notes

Court Reporter Failing to File Trial Notes — Not a Denial of Trial Transcript: Petitioner was not denied due process on the grounds that he was denied a transcript of his criminal trial when the court reporter failed to file his notes with the Clerk of Court as required by 3-5-603. The defendant attempted to get a free transcript, as provided by this section, but failed to allege anything to warrant moving any court's discretion to order one; therefore, he was not denied a transcript merely because the court reporter kept his notes. Spurlock v. Crist, 188 M 449, 614 P2d 498, 37 St. Rep. 1146 (1980).

Indigent Criminal Defendants:

Proper showing must be made to the District Court that a defendant in a criminal case is unable to pay for a transcript so as to secure an order that it be furnished him and paid for by the county. (Under a 1985 amendment to this section payment is by the state, county, or both.) St. v. Davis, 139 M 616, 362 P2d 1013 (1961).

Where a defendant convicted of crime is unable to meet the expense incident to procuring a transcript of the evidence to enable him to present his appeal to the Supreme Court for review, it is the duty of the court to order the county to pay therefor. (Under a 1985 amendment to this section payment is by the state, county, or both.) State ex rel. Parmenter v. District Court, 111 M 453, 110 P2d 971 (1941).

Appeals to Supreme Court: This section governs only the furnishing of copies of the transcript of record for use in the trial court and has nothing to do with appeals to the Supreme Court. Sullivan v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 124 M 364, 224 P2d 135 (1950).

Certiorari Proceedings: Although it is the duty of the Clerk of Court to prepare the return required by the Supreme Court on issuance of a Writ of Certiorari, the court to which the Writ is directed has the power to order the court stenographer to prepare not only a transcript of the evidence heard in the particular case but the entire transcript, as one of his implied duties, without extra compensation. Pelletier v. Glacier County, 107 M 221, 82 P2d 595 (1938).

Waiver of Reporter: A party is entitled to a record of the testimony only when the stenographer has in fact attended the trial or hearing, not when the services of the stenographer have been dispensed with by the court, either by waiver or agreement of the parties or by the court's exercise of its discretion. State ex rel. Stimatz v. District Court, 105 M 510, 74 P2d 8 (1937).

Fees of Clerk: Charges by stenographer were considered excessive. Mont. Ore Purchasing Co. v. Boston & Mont. Consol. Copper & Silver Min. Co., 33 M 400, 84 P 706 (1905).

Fees of Reporters:

The stenographer may not require the State or its Attorney General to pay the amount of his fees in advance. State ex rel. Donovan v. Ledwidge, 27 M 197, 70 P 511 (1902).

Fees paid court stenographers for transcribing testimony from their notes are chargeable as part of the costs. State ex rel. King v. District Court, 25 M 1, 63 P 402 (1901), explained in Gahagan v. Gugler, 103 M 521, 63 P2d 145 (1936).

Mandamus:

The appropriate remedy to compel the court stenographer to furnish the transcript in a civil cause is a Writ of Mandate. State ex rel. Donovan v. Ledwidge, 27 M 197, 70 P 511 (1902).

Where the stenographer failed to furnish an indigent defendant with a copy of the transcript when ordered to do so under this section, the Supreme Court will not compel obedience thereto by mandamus. State ex rel. Dempsey v. District Court, 24 M 566, 63 P 389 (1901), distinguished in State ex rel. Donovan v. Ledwidge, 27 M 197, 70 P 511 (1902).

Attorney General's Opinions

Transcript Fees: Prior to the 1981 amendment this section provided for a 7 ½ cents per folio page fee, and the Attorney General issued an opinion stating that court reporters may only charge 7 ½ cents per folio, as defined in 1-1-203, per copy for transcripts to be used on appeal to the Supreme Court. The charge applies to each page of the original and copies, including the title pages and the index pages. 37 A.G. Op. 85 (1977).

(e) costs of providing district court office space"; in (2) at end inserted "and directly pay"; deleted former (3)(b) that read: "(b) district court expenses related to involuntary commitment proceedings and youth court proceedings in an annual amount not to exceed the district court expense for those proceedings in fiscal year 2001 plus a 3% growth factor each year. Any amount that exceeds the district court expense for those proceedings is the responsibility of the county"; in (3) at end inserted "within 30 days of receipt of a claim, for the following"; in (3)(a) at end deleted "only"; in (3)(a)(i) at end inserted "that are not paid under subsection (1)(b)"; inserted

(3)(a)(ii) concerning juror fees and expenses; inserted (3)(a)(iii) concerning witness fees and expenses; inserted (3)(c) concerning juror and witness fees and witness expenses before grand jury; deleted former (4)(b) that read: "(b) If money appropriated for the expenses listed in subsection (4)(a) is insufficient to fully fund those expenses, the county is responsible for payment of the balance"; inserted (4) excluding enumerated expenses from district court costs; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

Chapter 585 in (1)(h) near middle after "trials if" substituted "similar expenses" for "those expenses" and at end substituted "district court fund or the county general fund in any previous year" for "district court budget in fiscal year 1998 or fiscal year 1999". Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: (Temporary version) Chapter 278 in (4)(a) at end substituted "7-6-4023" for "7-6-2352"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

(Version effective July 1, 2002) Chapter 585 substituted (1), (1)(a), and (1)(b) establishing state-funded district court program and delineating district court costs for former (1)(a) that read: "(1) To the extent that revenue is available under 61-3-509, the state shall fund:

(a) the following district court expenses in criminal cases only:

(i) salaries of court reporters;

(ii) fees for transcripts of proceedings;

(iii) witness fees and necessary expenses;

(iv) juror fees;

(v) expenses for indigent defense; and

(vi) expenses for psychiatric examinations"; in (1)(c) after "expenses" deleted "as listed in subsection (1)(a)"; deleted former (1)(e)(v) and (1)(e)(vi) that read: "(v) expenses for appointed counsel for the youth;

(vi) expenses for appointed counsel for the parent, guardian, or other person having physical or legal custody of the youth"; inserted (1)(f) relating to grand jury costs; inserted (1)(g) relating to costs of court-sanctioned educational programs and expenses of education; inserted (1)(h) relating to civil jury trial expenses paid out of district court budget in fiscal years 1998 and 1999; inserted (1)(i) relating to all other costs associated with operation and maintenance of district court except office, courtroom, and other space costs; deleted former (2), (3), and (4) that read: "(2) If revenue received under 61-3-509 exceeds the amount appropriated by the legislature to fund the expenses of the appellate defender program, the excess amount is statutorily appropriated, as provided in 17-7-502, to the supreme court to fund the expenses described in subsections (1)(a) through (1)(d), the district court grant program as described in subsection (4)(a), and the costs of administering this section.

(3) All revenue disbursed under this section must be deposited in and credited to the district court fund. If a district court fund does not exist, the revenue must be deposited in the county general fund for district court operations.

(4) If money appropriated for the expenses listed in subsection (1):

(a) exceeds the amount necessary to fully fund those expenses, the remaining excess amounts must be used for district court grants as provided in 7-6-2352; or

(b) is insufficient to fully fund those expenses, the county is responsible for payment of the balance"; inserted (2) delineating what costs are not district court costs; inserted (3) providing that the state will fund certain percentage of expenses of appellate defender program and district court expenses related to involuntary commitment proceedings and youth court proceedings; inserted (4) providing for state reimbursement of indigent defense in criminal cases and appointed counsel in child abuse and neglect proceedings up to amount of appropriation; and made minor changes in style. Subsections (3)(b) and (4)(b) terminate June 30, 2003.

Saving Clause: Section 55, Ch. 585, L. 2001, was a saving clause.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 394 inserted (1)(d) itemizing expenses to be funded by the state pertaining to certain proceedings involving a youth; in (2) near end after "through" substituted "(1)(d), the district court grant program as described in subsection (4)(a)" for "(1)(c)"; inserted (3) concerning deposit of revenue; in (4)(a) after "expenses" deleted "up to $500,000 of the excess amount must be used for youth court and probation foster care placements if the department of corrections certifies to the supreme court that appropriations for youth court and probation foster care placements will be inadequate to fund those costs and"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

1995 Amendment — Coordination Instruction: Chapter 535 in (1)(a)(ii), at beginning, inserted "fees for"; in (1)(a)(v), at beginning, inserted "expenses for"; deleted (1)(f) that read: "(f) expenses of the appellate defender commission and the office of appellate defender"; in (1)(a)(vi), at beginning, inserted "expenses for"; inserted (1)(b) regarding funding of District Court expenses in postconviction and habeas corpus proceedings; inserted (1)(c) regarding funding of certain state expenses in federal habeas corpus cases; substituted (2) regarding statutory appropriation of excess funding for the appellate defender program for former language that read: "The revenue received under 61-3-509 is statutorily appropriated, as provided in 17-7-502, to the supreme court for funding the expenses listed in subsection (1) and the costs of administering this section"; in (3)(a), near beginning after "expenses", substituted "up to $500,000 of the excess amount must be used for youth court and probation foster care placements if the department of family services certifies to the supreme court that appropriations for youth court and probation foster care placements will be inadequate to fund those costs and remaining excess amounts" for "the excess amount"; in (3)(b), after "expenses", deleted "the appellate defender commission and the office of appellate defender must be funded first and"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Section 2, Ch. 535, L. 1995, provided: "If both [this act] [Senate Bill No. 127] and Senate Bill No. 83 are passed and approved and if both include a section that amends 3-5-901, then 3-5-901 must read as follows". (See 1995 Session Law for text.) Senate Bill No. 83 was approved April 21, 1995, as Ch. 509, L. 1995, and included an amendment to 3-5-901. Therefore, the version of 3-5-901 in sec. 2, Ch. 535, L. 1995, is the effective version and has been codified accordingly.

Code Commissioner Change — Correction: Pursuant to sec. 2, Ch. 546, L. 1995, the Code Commissioner substituted Department of Corrections for the erroneous substitution of Department of Public Health and Human Services for Department of Family Services.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 330 in (1), after "extent that", substituted "revenue is available under 61-3-509" for "money is appropriated"; in (2) substituted statutory appropriation of revenue for funding expenses and costs for "The supreme court administrator, in consultation with the district judges for each judicial district, shall include within the supreme court's biennial budget request to the legislature a request for funding the expenses listed in subsection (1)"; deleted former (3)(b) that read: "(b) If no money is appropriated, the county is responsible for payment of all expenses"; and inserted (4) providing that money deposited in the state general fund during fiscal year 1992 in excess of the legislative appropriation is statutorily appropriated to the Supreme Court for District Court and courts of limited jurisdiction automation purposes during the 1995 biennium. Amendment effective April 13, 1993.

Termination Date Repealed: Section 1, Ch. 323, L. 1993, repealed sec. 13, Ch. 781, L. 1991, which would have terminated the 1991 amendments to this section regarding the Appellate Defender Commission effective July 1, 1993. The effect of the repealer is to make the amendments permanent. Repealer effective April 12, 1993.

Termination: Section 7, Ch. 330, L. 1993, provided: "The amendment to 3-5-901, enacting subsection (4) for purposes of the 1995 biennium, terminates July 1, 1995."

Judicial Unification and Finance Commission: Chapter 632, L. 1993, provided for the establishment of a Judicial Unification and Finance Commission, effective July 1, 1993, and terminating June 30, 1995. Because of the temporary nature of the Commission, Ch. 632, L. 1993, was not codified.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 704 in (1), at beginning, deleted "Effective July 1, 1985"; and in (2), near beginning, substituted "supreme court administrator" for "department of commerce" and near middle substituted "supreme court's" for "department's". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

Chapter 781 inserted (1)(f) to include expenses of Appellate Defender Commission and Office of Appellate Defender; in (2), after "judicial district", inserted "and the appellate defender commission"; and in (3)(a)(ii), before "county", inserted language concerning first funding Appellate Defender Commission and Office of Appellate Defender. Amendment effective May 17, 1991, and terminates July 1, 1993.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 781, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [section 2] [2-15-1020, now repealed] grants the appellate defender commission rulemaking authority for the conduct of the commission's affairs. It is the intent that the commission adopt rules of procedure necessary to implement and carry out the duties of the commission."

1987 Amendment: Inserted (3)(a)(i) stating that if money appropriated for expenses listed in subsection (1) exceeds what is needed, the excess must be used as provided in 7-6-2352.

1985 Amendment: In (2) near beginning substituted "department of commerce" for "supreme court administrator, under the direction of the supreme court and"; and near middle of (2) before "biennial budget request" substituted "department's" for "supreme court's".

Case Notes

No Error in Disallowing State Payment of Court-Sanctioned Custody Evaluation: In establishing a parenting plan, the District Court directed the parties to obtain a psychological custodial evaluation. The father claimed that he did not have the funds to pay for the evaluation and requested that his share of the cost be paid out of the fund established in 40-4-226. The request was denied, and on appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. Section 40-4-226 does not provide that a District Court may order the state to pay for custody evaluations. The fund in 40-4-226 is for payment of costs of a court-ordered educational program, and because neither parent was ordered to attend a court-sanctioned educational program, the District Court did not err in disallowing the father's costs. In re Parenting of N.P. v. Perkins, 2006 MT 10, 330 M 293, 127 P3d 1035 (2006).

Reimbursement for Costs Incurred in Procuring Witness Testimony: Hardaway sought reimbursement for costs incurred in procuring the testimony of two out-of-state witnesses, one who appeared in person under subpoena and one who was deposed telephonically. The District Court denied reimbursement because Hardaway's counsel was retained rather than court-appointed. However, the only prerequisites that appear in the applicable statutes are that the court has revenue available and that the witness be subpoenaed. The procedural requirements of 46-15-113 for compelling the attendance of an out-of-state witness do not apply to an out-of-state witness who voluntarily appears and acknowledges service of a subpoena. Further, under 46-15-202, costs of a telephonic deposition are within the scope of a reimbursable deposition. The statutes do not distinguish between court-appointed and retained attorneys, but rather rely on the indigency of the defendant. Hardaway was declared indigent and remained so throughout the proceedings and, as such, was entitled to reimbursement for witness costs and deposition costs. St. v. Hardaway, 1998 MT 224, 290 M 516, 966 P2d 125, 55 St. Rep. 936 (1998).

County Employment of Independent Contractor to Provide Legal Services: There is no express prohibition under Montana law preventing a county from entering into an independent contractor relationship for the provision of certain juvenile and civil legal services. Hamner v. Butte-Silver Bow County, 233 M 271, 760 P2d 76, 45 St. Rep. 1481 (1988).

Attorney General's Opinions

State Funding of Legal Defense Expenses of Indigent Defendants Limited to District Courts: The 2001 amendments to 46-8-201 (now repealed) and this section revised the manner in which District Courts are funded by providing for state assumption of most costs. However, the amendments did not revise funding for Justices' Courts, and nothing indicates that the Legislature intended to include costs associated with indigent defendants in Justices' Courts. Under 46-8-201 (now repealed), costs of remuneration for counsel appointed for indigent criminal defendants are paid by the state, but payments are limited to District Court criminal cases only. 49 A.G. Op. 21 (2002).

County, Not State, Required to Fund Legal Expenses of Indigent Juvenile Under Youth Court Act: Youth Court defense expenses are not included in this section as a specific expense that the state is required to fund; thus, the Legislature did not intend the state to be responsible for funding Youth Court expenses. Rather, pursuant to 41-5-104 (now repealed) and 41-5-111, the Board of County Commissioners is required to fund the legal defense expenses of an indigent youth against whom a petition has been filed in Youth Court. 48 A.G. Op. 16 (2000).

2003 Amendment: Chapter 583 in first sentence near beginning substituted "the direct payment" for "disbursement of funds for payment" and after "listed in 3-5-901" inserted "and for the reimbursement of district court expenses to counties as provided in 3-5-901"; inserted second sentence concerning reimbursement in timely manner; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

The amendment to this section made by sec. 4, Ch. 152, L. 2003, was rendered void by sec. 11(2), Ch. 583, L. 2003, a coordination section.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 585 substituted "shall establish procedures for disbursement of funds for payment of district court expenses listed in 3-5-901 and record payments at a detailed level for budgeting and auditing purposes" for "shall:

(1) establish procedures for disbursement of funds for payment of district court expenses listed in 3-5-901, including prorating of those funds if they are insufficient to cover all expenses listed in 3-5-901; and

(2) require the use of a uniform accounting system in accordance with 2-7-504 by the counties in reporting court expenses at a detailed level for budgeting and auditing purposes"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2002.

Saving Clause: Section 55, Ch. 585, L. 2001, was a saving clause.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 489 in (2), after "system", inserted "in accordance with 2-7-504"; deleted former (3) that read: "(3) provide for annual auditing of district court expenses to assure normal operations and consistency in reporting of expenditures"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1992.

Chapter 704 in introductory clause substituted "supreme court administrator" for "department of commerce"; in (2), at beginning, substituted "require the use of" for "develop" and before "by the counties" deleted "for use"; and in (3), at beginning, substituted "require" for "provide for". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 30, Ch. 489, L. 1991, provided: "(1) Except as provided in (2), [this act] is effective July 1, 1992, and applies to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1992.

(2) The department of commerce may adopt rules to implement [this act] to become effective July 1, 1992."

1985 Amendment: In introductory clause substituted "department of commerce" for "supreme court administrator"; and in (2) at beginning deleted "in consultation with the department of commerce".

Case Notes

Jurisdiction Over Municipal Court Protection Order: The Missoula County District Court issued a permanent injunction, based on a stalking violation of 45-5-220, prohibiting Gillispie from contacting his former wife "by a third person, except by telephone or correspondence through her attorney of record". Gillispie admitted contacting his former wife's mother in Missoula and was charged with and convicted in Municipal Court of an order of protection violation pursuant to 45-5-626. On appeal, Gillispie contended that the Municipal Court did not have jurisdiction over the offense. A Municipal Court has geographic jurisdiction over misdemeanors coextensive with the jurisdiction of Justices' Courts located in the same county. Although neither Gillispie nor the former wife was present in Missoula County at the time of the prohibited phone call, the former wife's mother received the call in Missoula County. Thus, the Municipal Court was vested with jurisdiction over the misdemeanor order of protection violation when the necessary result of Gillispie's third-party contact by telephone was committed within Missoula County. Missoula v. Gillispie, 1999 MT 268, 296 M 444, 989 P2d 401, 56 St. Rep. 1085 (1999).

Cities' Use of County Jails: Because the consent of the County Commissioners is required before a municipality may use the county jail, it was not presumed that consent was meaningless and, therefore, counties may refuse the use of county jails for confinement of persons accused or convicted of violating local ordinances. Likewise, a county may charge a municipality for maintaining prisoners committed to county jail at the request of a municipal police department in the course of enforcing local ordinances and state laws. 37 A.G. Electronic Recording of Municipal Court Evidentiary Hearing Part of Record on Appeal: Lyons contended on appeal of a DUI case that because the electronic recording of the Municipal Court's evidentiary hearing was not considered by the District Court, it was not part of the record and could not be considered on appeal. The Supreme Court disagreed. Regardless of whether the recording was used in District Court, it was part of the record available for Supreme Court review. Missoula v. Lyons, 2004 MT 255, 323 M 67, 97 P3d 1120 (2004).

No Error in District Court's Affirmation of Particularized Suspicion for Traffic Stop Despite Lack of Municipal Court Record: Peterson appealed a Municipal Court DUI and careless driving conviction to District Court, asserting that the officer lacked a particularized suspicion to make the traffic stop. No District Court Error in Failing to Hold Trial De Novo in Municipal Court Appeal: Campbell was charged in Missoula Municipal Court with criminal trespass, disorderly conduct, and obstructing a police officer. Campbell failed to appear for trial and was tried in absentia and convicted on all charges. Campbell appealed to District Court, was notified of the appropriate Municipal Court appeal procedure in this section, and was given 10 days to file a brief. Campbell failed to file a brief, so the District Court dismissed the appeal and remanded to Municipal Court for further proceedings. Campbell appealed to the Supreme Court on grounds that the District Court should have conducted a trial de novo pursuant to 46-17-311. The Supreme Court disagreed. Campbell's appeal was from a Municipal Court and thus was governed by this section, rather than 46-17-311, so the appeal was confined to review of the record and questions of law. The District Court did not err in failing to conduct a trial de novo, and dismissal of Campbell's appeal for failure to file a brief was affirmed. Missoula v. Campbell, 2001 MT 271, 307 M 286, 37 P3d 670 (2001).

No District Court Jurisdiction of Appeal From Municipal Court When Defendant Not Incarcerated and Fine Less Than $300: Koestner was convicted in Municipal Court of reckless driving and was fined $175, court costs of $20, and a witness fee of $10, and no jail time was ordered. Koestner appealed the conviction and the denial of a request for a jury trial to District Court, but that court concluded that it did not have jurisdiction to hear the appeal. Koestner appealed to the Supreme Court, arguing that under the Montana Uniform Municipal Court Rules of Appeal to District Court (Title 25, ch. 30, part 2100), a city must have an ordinance in place to trigger the statutory amount necessary to bring an appeal and that because the city never presented evidence that such an ordinance existed, the District Court had jurisdiction under this section to review the Municipal Court decision. The Supreme Court agreed that because Koestner was not incarcerated and the fine imposed was less than $300, the District Court properly concluded that it was bound by Rule 1(b)(2), U.M.C.R.App. (Title 25, ch. 30, part 2100), which limits appeals in criminal cases to those in which the minimum amount in controversy is greater than $300, unless jail time is ordered. Although Koestner, under Rule 3, U.M.C.R.App., could have petitioned the District Court to hear the appeal in the interests of justice, no petition was filed. Koestner's arguments regarding lack of a city ordinance were not raised before the District Court, and the Supreme Court declined to address the issue for the first time on appeal. Kalispell v. Koestner, 2001 MT 53, 304 M 315, 21 P3d 622 (2001).

District Court Exceeding Scope of Appellate Review — Abuse of Discretion in Applying Particularized Suspicion of DUI to Traffic Stop Triggered by Report of Vandalism: Robertson was stopped after a vehicle of the description that he was driving was reported leaving the scene of a vandalism. He was subsequently convicted of DUI in City Court and appealed to District Court on grounds that his right to confront witnesses was denied and that the city had not sustained the necessary burden of proof to support the conviction. The District Court remanded to the City Court for dismissal on grounds that the arresting officer did not have a sufficient particularized suspicion to justify the investigative stop for DUI. However, the issue of a sufficient particularized suspicion was never raised or ruled on in City Court by either Robertson or the city. When a District Court exercises its power of appellate review, it must refrain from deciding issues not properly raised or objected to in the court below; thus, the District Court abused its discretion by exceeding the scope of its appellate review in addressing the issue of particularized suspicion, so the Supreme Court reversed the order of the District Court dismissing the City Court judgment against Robertson. Missoula v. Robertson, 2000 MT 52, 298 M 419, 998 P2d 144, 57 St. Rep. 250 (2000). See also Missoula v. Asbury, 265 M 14, 873 P2d 936, 51 St. Rep. 383 (1994), and St. v. Herrera, 1998 MT 173, 289 M 499, 962 P2d 1180 (1998).

Proper Cross-Appeal of Adverse District Court Decision Regarding City Court Denial of Motion for Continuance: The established doctrine governing appeals to all appellate courts is that a party must cross-appeal if the party seeks to change any part of the judgment below. Further, the Montana Supreme Court follows the rule that it has jurisdiction only over those issues addressed in the appeal or in a properly filed cross-appeal, not jurisdiction over the entire case. Conversely, it is also the general rule that a cross-appeal is not necessary to enable a prevailing party to defend its judgment on any ground properly raised below, whether or not that ground was relied upon, rejected, or even considered by the court below. The proper way for a respondent to raise an issue before the Supreme Court, if the issue would support the decision below and is an issue that the court below did not address because it found another issue to be dispositive, is to assert the issue in the brief to the Supreme Court and fully discuss it. If a respondent does not assert and fully discuss the issue, the Supreme Court may in its discretion: (1) review the issue itself; (2) decide that the respondent has waived the right to review of the issue; or (3) remand to the court below for a decision on the issue. Here, issues raised by respondent that the District Court declined to address, having found another issue dispositive, undoubtedly supported the District Court's decision reversing the City Court's judgment. Thus, because the respondent sufficiently asserted the issues and both parties fully briefed each one, the Supreme Court concluded that the respondent had properly cross-appealed and that it was proper to review the respondent's issues on appeal. Missoula v. Robertson, 2000 MT 52, 298 M 419, 998 P2d 144, 57 St. Rep. 250 (2000), following In Interest of Jamie L., 493 NW 2d 56 (Wis. 1992). See also Wash. v. Yakima Indian Nation, 439 US 463, 58 L Ed 2d 740, 99 S Ct 740 (1979).

City Not Liable for City Judge's Civil Rights Violations — City Judge Acts Under State Authority: Claims of the indigent defendants, who were not effectively informed by a City Judge of their right to appointed counsel, were properly dismissed. Under Montana law, a City Judge's acts and decision in advising defendants of the right were performed under the state's authority rather than the city's authority, thereby precluding imposition of civil rights liability on the city. Further, the indigent defendants did not have standing to seek declaratory and injunctive relief. There are other remedies for indigent defendants in future situations—they can file a complaint with the state body charged with overseeing judicial conduct, they can appeal their convictions to a higher court, and they can sue a judge individually because a judge does not enjoy judicial immunity for unconstitutional behavior when the facts are sufficient to grant declaratory or injunctive relief. Eggar v. Livingston, 40 F3d 312 (9th Cir. 1994).

Failure to Present Issue to First Level Appellate Court as Precluding Consideration at Second Appellate Level: At their initial trial in Municipal Court, defendants raised an issue of reliance on treaties entered into by the United States, but the issue was not raised at the first level of appeal when the case was considered by the District Court pursuant to this section. As a result, the issue was held to be not properly before the Supreme Court at the second level of appeal. Missoula v. Asbury, 265 M 14, 873 P2d 936, 51 St. Rep. 383 (1994), followed in Missoula v. Robertson, 2000 MT 52, 298 M 419, 998 P2d 144, 57 St. Rep. 250 (2000).

Municipal Court Judges

3-6-201. Number of judges — election — term of office — chief judge — duties of chief judge — assistant judge.

Compiler's Comments

2005 Amendment: Chapter 167 in (2) near beginning after "judge" inserted "who is not a part-time assistant judge appointed under subsection (6)"; inserted (4) providing for the method of selecting a chief municipal judge; inserted (5) requiring a chief municipal judge to manage the court and establishing duties to be performed by the chief municipal judge; inserted (6) authorizing a chief municipal judge to appoint a part-time assistant judge; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

1991 Amendment: Inserted (1) providing that the governing body of a city shall determine by ordinance the number of judges required to operate the municipal court; in (2) substituted "election, as provided in 13-1-104(2)" for "city election"; at beginning of (3) inserted exception clause, after "municipal" inserted "court", and after "election of" substituted "district court judges" for "nonpartisan city officials"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

3-6-202. Qualifications — certification — training.

Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 389 in (1) near end increased law practice requirement for municipal judges from 2 years to 3 years; in (2) near beginning after "judge" substituted "shall reside in the county in which the court is located and shall meet the residency requirements provided in 3-10-204" for "must be a resident and voter in the city in which he is elected at the time of his election"; substituted (3) through (7) concerning certification and training of a municipal court judge for former (3) through (5) that read: "(3) A municipal court judge must be certified as provided in 3-1-1502 or 3-1-1503 prior to assuming office.

(4) There must be two mandatory annual training sessions supervised by the supreme court for all elected and appointed municipal court judges. One of the training sessions may be held in conjunction with the Montana magistrates' association convention. Actual and necessary travel expenses, as defined and provided for in 2-18-501 through 2-18-503, and the costs of registration and books and other materials must be paid to the elected or appointed municipal court judge for attending the sessions by the city in which he holds or will hold court and must be charged against that city.

(5) Each municipal court judge shall attend the training sessions provided for in subsection (4). Failure to attend disqualifies a judge from office and creates a vacancy in the office. However, the supreme court may excuse a municipal court judge from attendance because of illness, a death in the family, or any other good cause"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

Grandfather Clause: Section 13, Ch. 389, L. 2003, provided: "An incumbent justice of the peace on [the effective date of this act] [effective July, 1, 2003], in a county in which a justice's court established as a court of record is established, who meets the minimum education requirements for a justice of the peace is eligible to run for the justice of the peace for a justice's court established as a court of record in that county at the next and subsequent elections held for the justice of the peace for the justice's court established as a court of record unless the justice of the peace has a break in service."

Saving Clause: Section 14, Ch. 389, L. 2003, was a saving clause.

1991 Amendment: Inserted (3) requiring certification of municipal court judge; inserted (4) establishing mandatory annual training sessions; and inserted (5) requiring municipal court judge to attend training sessions. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

2008 Annotations to the MCA

Supreme Court Orders: "The following Montana Supreme Court order, signed by all seven justices, was issued on June 10[, 2003]:

IN THE MATTER OF ESTABLISHING GREATER TRAINING REQUIREMENTS FOR MUNICIPAL COURT JUDGES AND FOR JUSTICES OF THE PEACE OF JUSTICE'S COURTS ESTABLISHED AS COURTS OF RECORD

Pursuant to Sec. 3, Ch. 389, L. 2003, the 2003 Montana Legislature, among other things, adopted certain amendments to §3-6-202, MCA. Specifically, §3-6-202, MCA, now provides in pertinent part:

(4) A municipal court judge shall complete a minimum of 15 hours of continuing judicial education requirements each year or a greater number established by the supreme court. Attendance at the two annual training sessions under 3-10-203 may fulfill the requirement provided for in this subsection.

(5) Completion of a course approved for continuing judicial or legal education hours applies to the judicial education requirements under subsection (4).

Similarly, Sec. 6, Ch. 389, L. 2003, amended §3-10-203, MCA by providing, in pertinent part:

(4) A justice of the peace for a justice's court established as a court of record, provided for in 3-10-101, must meet the requirements provided for in [section 10].

In that regard, Sec. 10, Ch. 389, L. 2003, provides in pertinent part:

(2) A justice of the peace for a justice's court established as a court of record, provided for in 3-10-101, shall complete a minimum of 15 hours of continuing judicial education requirements each year or a greater number established by the supreme court. Attendance at the two annual training sessions under 3-10-203 may fulfill the requirement provided for in this subsection.

(3) completion of a course approved for continuing judicial or legal education hours applies to the judicial education requirements under subsection (2).

Aside from whatever other judicial or legal education courses a municipal court judge or a justice of the peace for a justice's court established as a court of record may choose to complete, this Court has determined that attendance of such judges and justices at the two mandatory annual training sessions prescribed by §3-10-203, MCA, must also be required.

These two mandatory annual training sessions provide judicial education directed specifically at Montana statutory and jurisprudential law and provide information relating to the efficient operation and standards of justice and judicial services expected from all courts of limited jurisdiction in Montana. Moreover, these two annual training sessions prepare the judges and justices of the courts of limited jurisdiction for the certification test which is prerequisite to the Commission on Courts of Limited Jurisdiction issuing certificates of completion of a course of education and training prescribed by §3-1-1502 and 1503, MCA.

Therefore, this Court has determined that municipal court judges and justices of the peace for justice's courts established as courts of record are required to complete a greater number of hours of judicial education than the minimum hours specified in Secs. 3 and 10, Ch. 389, L. 2003. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that pursuant to Article VII, Section 2(2) of the Constitution of Montana, Sec. 3, Ch. 389, L. 2003 and §3-6-202(4) and (5), MCA, all municipal court judges shall attend the two mandatory annual training sessions provided for in §3-10-203, MCA, in addition to whatever other courses of continuing judicial or legal education they may choose to complete.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that pursuant to Article VII, Section 2(2) of the Constitution of Montana, Sec. 10, Ch. 389, L. 2003, and §3-10-203(4), MCA, all justices of the peace for justice's courts established as courts of record shall attend the two mandatory annual training sessions provided for in §3-10-203, MCA, in addition to whatever other courses of continuing judicial or legal education they may choose to complete.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that this order shall be effective July 1, 2003."

Case Notes

Municipal Ordinance Prohibiting Outside Employment by Municipal Judge Void: The city of Bozeman passed municipal ordinance 2.06.050 prohibiting the Municipal Court Judge from obtaining outside employment. The city contended that under this section, it was allowed to enact an ordinance governing the qualifications of the judge, as long as the ordinance did not violate Art. VII, sec. 9, Mont. Const., and also argued that the ordinance was consistent with 3-1-604, which precludes a Municipal Court Judge from practicing law in that judge's own court. The Supreme Court agreed with the District Court that the ordinance was void because it conflicted with 3-1-604 when read in conjunction with 3-1-601. The legislative history also demonstrated that the statutes are intended to allow Municipal Court Judges to practice law in courts other than their own in order to supplement their income. Although the constitutional provision prohibits a District Court Judge from the outside practice of law and this section requires a Municipal Court Judge to have the same qualifications as a District Court Judge, qualifications should not be confused with restrictions. Although 3-1-604 does not affirmatively declare that Municipal Court Judges can practice law outside their own courts, its intent is clear. The ordinance conflicted with the statutes and was therefore void. Carlson v. Bozeman, 2001 MT 46, 304 M 277, 20 P3d 792 (2001).

Case Notes

No Error in District Court's Affirmation of Particularized Suspicion for Traffic Stop Despite Lack of Municipal Court Record: Peterson appealed a Municipal Court DUI and careless driving conviction to District Court, asserting that the officer lacked a particularized suspicion to make the traffic stop. The District Court affirmed, despite the absence of a pretrial hearing tape. On appeal, Peterson contended that the District Court erred in affirming on an incomplete record. Although the Supreme Court noted a concern about sloppy Municipal Court recordkeeping and the number of cases appealed with inadequate, incomplete, unavailable, and disorderly Municipal Court records, in this case, the District Court had a sufficient record for review purposes. The court relied on the officer's experience in making DUI stops, the officer's observations of Peterson crossing a dividing line and making an improper turn, and Peterson's own admission that he was possibly swerving. The District Court was thus affirmed despite the absence of a pretrial hearing tape. Billings v. Peterson, 2004 MT 232, 322 M 444, 97 P3d 532 (2004), distinguishing *FIRS Holding Co., Inc. v. CHAPTER 7 WATER COURTS

Chapter Case Notes

Failure to Participate in Water Court Hearing — Attorney Fees Assessed as Sanction for Defense of Unreasonable Appeal: Despite warnings from the Water Court of the consequences, plaintiffs chose not to participate in a Water Court hearing, thereby creating no record of their issues and preserving none of their arguments for appeal. They appealed anyway, contending that the Water Court's findings were in error. The Supreme Court first found that the findings and conclusions were correct, then sanctioned plaintiffs pursuant to former Rule 32, M.R.App.P. (now superseded), finding that defendant was entitled to attorney fees incurred in defending an appeal that was taken without any substantial or reasonable grounds, that delayed the case, and that wasted the resources of defendant and the Supreme Court. Swinger v. Collins, 1999 MT 202, 295 M 447, 984 P2d 151, 56 St. Rep. 787 (1999).

Federal Reserved Water Rights — Dismissal of Federal Court Actions — Judicial Administration: When the United States brings actions in federal court for a general adjudication of Indian and other federal reserved water rights under 28 U.S.C. 1345, the actions are properly dismissed because the state courts have concurrent jurisdiction as a result of the McCarran Amendment, because the State has established a comprehensive system under state law for adjudication of all water rights in the state, including federal reserved rights, and because the policy of wise judicial administration announced in Colorado River Conservation District v. U.S., 424 US 800 (1976), requires the court to defer to the state system for efficient adjudication of these rights. N. Cheyenne Tribe v. Tongue River Water Users Ass'n, 484 F. No Departmental Rulemaking Authority Regarding Water Claims — Jurisdiction in Water Courts — Rulemaking Reserved to Supreme Court: Legislation in 1979 placed the procedure for adjudication of water claims in the Water Courts and reserved the power of rulemaking with respect to pending judicial proceedings to the Supreme Court. Lacking express legislative authority, neither the Board nor Department of Natural Resources and Conservation has any rulemaking authority with respect to procedures in the adjudication of water rights before the Water Courts, and the Montana Administrative Procedure Act does not supply such authority. Functions of the Department respecting water claims are limited to rendering assistance to the Water Judges as set out in 85-2-243. Part 5 Jurisdiction

Jurisdiction Required Before Judgment Effective: It is fundamental that a court rendering a decision in a particular case have jurisdiction over the parties. When the judgment roll on its face shows that the court was without jurisdiction to render the judgment, its pronouncement is in fact no judgment and cannot be enforced. No right can be derived from it. All proceedings founded upon it are invalid and ineffective for any purpose. Ciotti v. Hoover, 237 M 462, 774 P2d 406, 46 St. Rep. 969 (1989), following *Apple v. Case Notes

District Court Error in Restraining Use of Contracted Irrigation Water: Micks contracted to purchase the right to 775 acre feet of water from the Deadman’s Basin Water Users Association, to be appropriated from the Deadman’s Basin Reservoir, in order to irrigate a hay crop. In April 2000, the District Court appointed two Water Commissioners to distribute the reservoir water pursuant to a rotation plan. In August 2000, the District Court, on its own motion, found that the water level in the reservoir had reached a critical level, that the remaining water was necessary to maintain domestic, municipal, stock, and wildlife usage, and that the irrigation of crops from the river was prohibited as long as the reservoir level remained critically low. Micks determined that he had used only 431 acre feet of his contracted 775 acre feet, and based on his limited usage and other reasons, he presumed that the District Court prohibition did not apply to him, so he continued to irrigate his hay crop. Micks’ continued irrigation was discovered, and he was ordered by the District Court to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for failure to comply with the prohibition order. Micks requested that the District Court reconsider its order, but the request was denied, so Micks appealed. The Supreme Court noted that under Mildenberger v. Galbraith, 249 M 161, 815 P2d 130 (1991), and Baker Ditch Co. v. District Court, 251 M 251, 824 P2d 260 (1992), the jurisdiction to interpret and determine existing water rights rests exclusively with the Water Courts and that although the District Court has the authority to supervise the distribution of previously adjudicated water or to enforce an existing water decree and may in certain cases fill in a pre-1973 decree with further delineations, such as time or season of use and acreage of application, in this case, the District Court made a priority determination regarding domestic and irrigation water consumption based on the court’s own inclinations, exceeding its authority to simply fill in a water decree with further delineations. Micks’ contract unambiguously required a pro rata reduction in water distribution when an inadequate amount existed to satisfy outstanding water purchase contracts. Therefore, the District Court erred as a matter of law when it employed a first come, first served policy in contravention of the water contract. Denial of Micks’ motion to reconsider the prohibition order was reversible error, and his motion to restrain the Water Commissioners from interfering with use of Deadman’s Basin Reservoir irrigation water to which he was entitled should have been granted. In re Petition of Deadman’s Basin Water Users Ass’n to Appoint Water Comm’r to Distribute Stored Water, 2002 MT 15, 308 M 168, 40 P3d 387 (2002).

Jurisdiction of District Court to “Update” Old Water Rights Decree — Statute Governing Complaints by Dissatisfied Users Inapplicable: Pursuant to a previous writ of supervisory control, a remand to the District Court, and findings entered by the Senior Water Master, the Supreme Court found that the Order Authorizing Updated Decree, entered by the judges of the Fourth Judicial District in January of 1989, was beyond the jurisdiction of the District Court. The order was intended to deal with the problem of a 1902 water rights decree by a District Court, in which the judge adjudicated 27 water rights on Carlton Creek, that had become so brittle with age and damaged by time that the decree could not be readily handled. In the process of updating and reissuing the 1902 order, the Supreme Court found that the Fourth Judicial District Judges had actually made a de facto adjudication of water rights in an overly appropriated drainage and that that adjudication had been undertaken without notice and hearing to the holders of certain of those water rights. Citing Mildenberger v. Galbraith, 249 M 161, 815 P2d 130 (1991), and Baker Ditch Co. v. District Court, 251 M 251, 824 P2d 260 (1992), the Supreme Court held that under 85-2-234(6), it is within the sole jurisdiction of the Water Court to determine such things as priority dates, flow rates, place of use, and means of diversion with respect to a water right. The Supreme Court also held that the matters adjudicated by the decree were not within the scope of matters cognizable under 85-5-301 because that section concerns the correct administration of a water rights decree while the Updated Decree attempts to change the terms of the decree itself. For these reasons, the Supreme Court vacated the 1989 Updated Decree. State ex rel. Jones v. District Court, 283 M 1, 938 P2d 1312, 54 St. Rep. 460 (1997).

No Departmental Rulemaking Authority Regarding Water Claims — Jurisdiction in Water Courts — Rulemaking Reserved to Supreme Court: Legislation in 1979 placed the procedure for adjudication of water claims in the Water Courts and reserved the power of rulemaking with respect to pending judicial proceedings to the Supreme Court. Lacking express legislative authority, neither the Board nor Department of Natural Resources and Conservation has any rulemaking authority with respect to procedures in the adjudication of water rights before the Water Courts, and the Montana Administrative Procedure Act does not supply such authority. Functions of the Department respecting water claims are limited to rendering assistance to the Water Judges as set out in 85-2-243. In re Dept. of Natural Resources and Conservation, 226 M 221, 740 P2d 1096, 44 St. Rep. 604 (1987).

Jurisdiction of Water Judge Beyond Boundaries of Water Division: The apparent purpose of 3-7-501(2) is to recognize the parochial nature of water usage and assure that Water Judges are conversant with the history of water usage when making water adjudications. The provisions of 3-7-213 (now repealed) must be interpreted in conjunction with the provisions of 3-7-501. A reading of the two sections together indicates that the intent of the Legislature was to provide that a District Judge, sitting as a Water Judge, could not serve beyond the boundaries of his division absent the showing required by 3-7-213 (now repealed). Granite Ditch Co. v. Anderson, 204 M 10, 662 P2d 1312, 40 St. Rep. 630 (1983), followed in Marks v. District Court, 239 M 428, 781 P2d 249, 46 St. Rep. 1804 (1989).

Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Case Notes

Separation of Powers Doctrine Not to Preclude Compliance With Employee Grievance Procedure by Justice's Court: A Justice of the Peace involved in a disciplinary action against the court office manager contended that a grievance hearing before the County Commission would violate the separation of powers doctrine by interfering with the independence of the court by requiring the Justice of the Peace to be an adverse witness against court personnel, allowing the Justice of the Peace's decision on personnel matters to be overruled by another branch of government, and possibly requiring the Justice of the Peace to accept an employee believed to be unsatisfactory. However, as established in Hillis v. Sullivan, 48 M 320, 137 P 392 (1913), the hiring by the County Commission of a clerk to assist a court does not violate the separation of powers doctrine. In addition, the County Commission is statutorily required to provide a Justice of the Peace with clerical assistance. Thus, a grievance hearing before the County Commission does not violate the separation of powers doctrine because the County Commission's independent hiring of the office manager is consistent with the doctrine; nor does the County Commission's hearing of the grievance constitute an exercise of authority belonging to the Judicial Branch. Clark v. Dussault, 265 M 479, 878 P2d 239, 51 St. Rep. 642 (1994).

Agreement by County Commission to Pay Justice Court Expenses — Failure to Object — Appeal Precluded: A Justice of the Peace requested approval of funds from the County Commission for employment of a temporary clerical assistant. The County Commission initially refused to approve the funds. The claim was then submitted for certification pursuant to Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975), and was subsequently certified as an actual and necessary expense incurred in the performance of actual duties of the Justice Court. When the bill was still not paid, the Justice of the Peace filed a petition for a contempt order against the County Commissioners for failure to pay the certified claim. The order was amended to include attorney fees. The County Commission then agreed to pay the claim and did not oppose the motion to amend, nor did it file a responsive brief. However, it later alleged error. The Supreme Court held that the County Commission waived the right to appeal by agreeing to pay the claim and then failing to object to the District Court order to pay the claim and taking no further action to challenge the claim. In re Certain Justice Court Expenses, 264 M 510, 872 P2d 795, 51 St. Rep. 372 (1994).

Claim of Justice's Court for Unbudgeted Actual and Necessary Expenses: When Justice of Peace filed claim to pay necessary extra clerical assistance, County Commissioners did not have discretion to disallow claim under section 16-1906, R.C.M. 1947 (renumbered 7-6-2323 through 7-6-2325, 7-6-2327, and 7-6-2328, all sections now repealed), as section 93-412, R.C.M. 1947 (now 3-10-103 and 3-10-209), prevailed. When a specific statute conflicts with a general statute, the specific controls over the general to the extent of any repugnancy. State ex rel. Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975). (Annotator's Comment: In this case Supreme Court exercised supervisory powers to provide a procedure to prevent future actual or potential conflict between the Board of County Commissioners and Justice's Courts.)

Mandamus — Payment of Clerical Expenses: County Commissioners can be compelled to pay for necessary clerical expenses under this section and 3-10-209 when necessity is shown for the performance of duties. State ex rel. Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975).

Attorney General's Opinions

Duty of Boards of County Commissioners to Accept and Pay Claims for Actual and Necessary Clerical Expenses of Justice's Court: Under this section, a duty is created on the part of Boards of County Commissioners to accept and pay claims for actual and necessary clerical expenses associated with the operation of Justices' Courts. If disputes arise regarding payment of those expenses, the procedural rule in State ex rel. Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975), applies. Although Boards may have some budgetary discretion when considering payment of actual and necessary court expenses, the statutes governing the county budgeting process do not preclude application of the Browman rule when disputes arise. 49 A.G. Case Notes

Standard of Appellate Review of District Court: Acting within its appellate capacity, a District Court is not in a position to make findings of fact or discretionary trial court rulings, but rather is confined to review of the record and questions of law. The court reviews any factual findings under the clearly erroneous standard, any discretionary rulings for abuse of discretion, and both legal conclusions and mixed questions of law and fact under the de novo standard. A District Court's review of an appeal from a lower court of record is no broader than the Supreme Court's review of a lower court judgment. In the case at bar, the judgment rendered by a Justice's Court was an appealable judgment as contemplated by this section, and the District Court thus had jurisdiction over the appeal. Likewise, the District Court's judgment constituted a final determination of the issues presented on appeal, and the Supreme Court therefore had jurisdiction pursuant to former Rule 1, M.R.App.P. (now superseded). Stanley v. Lemire, 2006 MT 304, 334 M 489, 148 P3d 643 (2006).

Written Transcript of Electronically Recorded Proceedings in Courts of Record of Limited Jurisdiction Not Required on Appeal — Format of Electronically Recorded Proceedings: A written transcript of electronically recorded proceedings in courts of record of limited jurisdiction is no longer required. The Supreme Court designated acceptable formats for filing the electronically recorded record of a trial or other proceeding in a court of record of limited jurisdiction in a case that is appealed to the Supreme Court. St. v. Fender, 2006 MT 92, 332 M 82, 140 P3d 472 (2006).

Failure to File Brief Within Fifteen Days of Municipal Court Judgment — Summary Judgment Not Abuse of Discretion: Frazier was convicted of speeding in Justice's Court. Frazier filed a timely appeal to District Court, but failed to file a brief within 15 days after the record was filed with the District Court, as required by Rule 14(a), U.M.C.R.App. (Title 25, ch. 30, part 2400). The District Court summarily dismissed the appeal, and Frazier appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed, noting that under 25-33-304, the District Court has discretion to order an appeal to be dismissed for failure to prosecute an appeal or for unnecessary delay in bringing an appeal to a hearing. The Supreme Court declined to reverse the District Court for insisting that parties comply with statutory directives and rules of civil procedure, holding that it was not an abuse of discretion for the District Court to dismiss Frazier's appeal for failure to file a timely brief. St. v. Frazier, 2005 MT 99, 326 M 524, 111 P3d 215 (2005).

Substitute Justice of the Peace Not Duly Authorized or Properly Called — Search Warrants Invalid: A Justice of the Peace submitted a written waiver request form for proposing substitute Justices of the Peace but failed to create a list of proposed substitutes as required in 3-10-231. One of the designated substitutes took the judicial oath of office, but not in the form required by Art. III, sec. 3, Mont. Const. The substitute justice was called by a Deputy Sheriff, who requested warrants allowing a search of defendant's property. The warrants were issued and executed, but the warrants were challenged by defendants on the grounds that the warrants were not issued by a properly authorized substitute justice. The state argued that the authorization and call-in of the substitute justice were in substantial compliance with the law and that any technical errors in the procedures should not operate to suppress evidence. Applying Potter v. District Court, 266 M 384, 880 P2d 1319 (1994), the Supreme Court held that substantial compliance was insufficient. The procedure used in authorizing the substitute justice with a variant form of the constitutional oath of office was a major discrepancy in the authorization process, and the procedure of providing law enforcement with a menu of substitutes from which to choose clearly violated Potter. The substitute Justice of the Peace was not duly authorized, thus the warrants issued by the substitute were void ab initio. St. v. Vickers, 1998 MT 201, 290 M 356, 964 P2d 756, 55 St. Rep. 859 (1998), distinguishing U.S. v. Leon, 468 US 897, 82 L Ed 2d 677, 104 S Ct 3405 (1984).

Grandfather Clause: Section 13, Ch. 389, L. 2003, provided: "An incumbent justice of the peace on [the effective date of this act] [effective July, 1, 2003], in a county in which a justice's court established as a court of record is established, who meets the minimum education requirements for a justice of the peace is eligible to run for the justice of the peace for a justice's court established as a court of record in that county at the next and subsequent elections held for the justice of the peace for the justice's court established as a court of record unless the justice of the peace has a break in service."

1987 Amendment: At beginning of (1) substituted "Under the supervision of the supreme court, a course of study must be presented" for "The university of Montana law school, under the supervision of the supreme court, shall present a course".

Transition: Section 16, Ch. 528, L. 1979, provided: "A judicial officer, as defined in 1-1-202, who is occupying his judicial office on the effective date of this act shall continue to be paid expenses on the same basis as he is receiving them on the effective date of this act until the expiration of his term of office. All judicial officers who take office or begin a new term of office after the effective date of this act shall receive expenses as provided in this act."

Severability: Section 17, Ch. 528, L. 1979, was a severability section.

Supreme Court Orders: "The following Montana Supreme Court order, signed by all seven justices, was issued on June 10[, 2003]:

IN THE MATTER OF ESTABLISHING GREATER TRAINING REQUIREMENTS FOR MUNICIPAL COURT JUDGES AND FOR JUSTICES OF THE PEACE OF JUSTICE'S COURTS ESTABLISHED AS COURTS OF RECORD

Pursuant to Sec. 3, Ch. 389, L. 2003, the 2003 Montana Legislature, among other things, adopted certain amendments to §3-6-202, MCA. Specifically, §3-6-202, MCA, now provides in pertinent part:

(4) A municipal court judge shall complete a minimum of 15 hours of continuing judicial education requirements each year or a greater number established by the supreme court. Attendance at the two annual training sessions under 3-10-203 may fulfill the requirement provided for in this subsection.

(5) Completion of a course approved for continuing judicial or legal education hours applies to the judicial education requirements under subsection (4).

Similarly, Sec. 6, Ch. 389, L. 2003, amended §3-10-203, MCA by providing, in pertinent part:

(4) A justice of the peace for a justice's court established as a court of record, provided for in 3-10-101, must meet the requirements provided for in [section 10].

In that regard, Sec. 10, Ch. 389, L. 2003, provides in pertinent part:

(2) A justice of the peace for a justice's court established as a court of record, provided for in 3-10-101, shall complete a minimum of 15 hours of continuing judicial education requirements each year or a greater number established by the supreme court. Attendance at the two annual training sessions under 3-10-203 may fulfill the requirement provided for in this subsection.

(3) completion of a course approved for continuing judicial or legal education hours applies to the judicial education requirements under subsection (2).

Aside from whatever other judicial or legal education courses a municipal court judge or a justice of the peace for a justice's court established as a court of record may choose to complete, this Court has determined that attendance of such judges and justices at the two mandatory annual training sessions prescribed by §3-10-203, MCA, must also be required.

These two mandatory annual training sessions provide judicial education directed specifically at Montana statutory and jurisprudential law and provide information relating to the efficient operation and standards of justice and judicial services expected from all courts of limited jurisdiction in Montana. Moreover, these two annual training sessions prepare the judges and justices of the courts of limited jurisdiction for the certification test which is prerequisite to the Commission on Courts of Limited Jurisdiction issuing certificates of completion of a course of education and training prescribed by §3-1-1502 and 1503, MCA.

Therefore, this Court has determined that municipal court judges and justices of the peace for justice's courts established as courts of record are required to complete a greater number of hours of judicial education than the minimum hours specified in Secs. 3 and 10, Ch. 389, L. 2003. Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that pursuant to Article VII, Section 2(2) of the Constitution of Montana, Sec. 3, Ch. 389, L. 2003 and §3-6-202(4) and (5), MCA, all municipal court judges shall attend the two mandatory annual training sessions provided for in §3-10-203, MCA, in addition to whatever other courses of continuing judicial or legal education they may choose to complete.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that pursuant to Article VII, Section 2(2) of the Constitution of Montana, Sec. 10, Ch. 389, L. 2003, and §3-10-203(4), MCA, all justices of the peace for justice's courts established as courts of record shall attend the two mandatory annual training sessions provided for in §3-10-203, MCA, in addition to whatever other courses of continuing judicial or legal education they may choose to complete.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that this order shall be effective July 1, 2003."

Grandfather Clause: Section 13, Ch. 389, L. 2003, provided: "An incumbent justice of the peace on [the effective date of this act] [effective July, 1, 2003], in a county in which a justice's court established as a court of record is established, who meets the minimum education requirements for a justice of the peace is eligible to run for the justice of the peace for a justice's court established as a court of record in that county at the next and subsequent elections held for the justice of the peace for the justice's court established as a court of record unless the justice of the peace has a break in service."

2001 Amendment: Chapter 507 in (1) in first sentence after "resolution and" deleted "may, for all or the remainder of each fiscal year" and at end after "7-4-2504(1)" deleted "set their salaries at the prior fiscal year level if that does not result in a reduction in salary" and deleted former second sentence that read: "Salaries must meet the minimum requirements established by this section"; deleted former (2) and (3) that read: "(2) If the salary of the justice of the peace was determined on a fee basis for the years 1971 and 1972, he shall receive a monthly salary of not less than one-eighteenth of the total fees, civil and criminal, collected by the justice or his predecessor in office during the 2 years 1971 and 1972.

(3) If the salary of the justice of the peace was determined on a nonfee basis for the years 1971 and 1972, the justice shall be paid not less than the highest salary earned by the justice or his predecessor for the years 1971 and 1972"; at end of (2) after "county" deleted "except as provided for in subsections (1) and (5)"; in (3) inserted second sentence prohibiting reduction of justice's salary during term of office; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 2001.

1986 Amendment: In first sentence of (1) following "resolution", inserted remainder of sentence relating to setting salaries at the prior fiscal year level; and at end of (4) inserted reference to subsection (1).

Case Notes

Apparent Intent of Legislature to Improve Salaries: Court applied ordinary rules of grammar to the provisions of this section relating to nonfee Justices of the Peace that raised minimum salaries to level comparable to other county elected officials by combining 1971 and 1972 rates so as to insure significant improvement of the Justice's Court system as contemplated by the 1972 Montana Constitution. *Bd. of County Comm'rs v. 1983 Amendment: Changed "justice" to "justice's court".

Attorney General's Opinions

Justice of the Peace Not Precluded From Acting as City Judge During Justice Court Office Hours: The office hours of a Justice Court are set by the County Commissioners, and during those hours, the court is always open for the transaction of business, such as the filing of court documents with the Clerk of Court. However, a Justice of the Peace is not statutorily required to be present in Justice Court during every hour the Justice Court is open for business. Thus, a Justice of the Peace is not precluded from acting as a city judge during office hours of the Justice Court. 43 A.G. Op. 49 (1989), overruling 40 A.G. Op. 26 (1983), to the extent that it concludes that the Board of County Commissioners sets the hours of the Justice of the Peace.

Justice's Court to Be Open on All Working Days — Limited Office Hours of Justice Permitted: A Justice's Court is always open for the transaction of business except on legal holidays and nonjudicial days. However, the office hours that must be kept by a Justice of the Peace each day are set by the County Commissioners and need not include hours on every day that the Justice's Court is open for the transaction of business. 40 A.G. Op. 26 (1983).

Justice of the Peace — Deduction From Full-Time Status: Absent a voluntary waiver by the incumbent, the proper time at which to reduce a full-time Justice of the Peace position to a part-time position is before the next election. 38 A.G. Op. 90 (1980).

Salary Diminution Prohibited for Justices of the Peace: The reduction of a full-time Justice of the Peace to a part-time Justice of the Peace with a salary commensurate to the workload and office hours constitutes a prohibited salary diminution within the language of Art. VII, sec. 7, Mont. Const. 38 A.G. Op. 90 (1980).

Office Closure: The Justice of the Peace who is located at the county seat cannot close that court 1 day a week in order to hold Justice's Court in another city. 35 A.G. Op. 99 (1974).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 61 made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

Case Notes

Agreement by County Commission to Pay Justice Court Expenses — Failure to Object — Appeal Precluded: A Justice of the Peace requested approval of funds from the County Commission for employment of a temporary clerical assistant. The County Commission initially refused to approve the funds. The claim was then submitted for certification pursuant to Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975), and was subsequently certified as an actual and necessary expense incurred in the performance of actual duties of the Justice Court. When the bill was still not paid, the Justice of the Peace filed a petition for a contempt order against the County Commissioners for failure to pay the certified claim. The order was amended to include attorney fees. The County Commission then agreed to pay the claim and did not oppose the motion to amend, nor did it file a responsive brief. However, it later alleged error. The Supreme Court held that the County Commission waived the right to appeal by agreeing to pay the claim and then failing to object to the District Court order to pay the claim and taking no further action to challenge the claim. In re Certain Justice Court Expenses, 264 M 510, 872 P2d 795, 51 St. Rep. 372 (1994).

Claim of Justice's Court for Unbudgeted Actual and Necessary Expenses: When Justice of Peace filed claim to pay necessary extra clerical assistance, County Commissioners did not have discretion to disallow claim under section 16-1906, R.C.M. 1947 (renumbered 7-6-2323 through 7-6-2325, 7-6-2327, and 7-6-2328, all sections now repealed), as section 93-412, R.C.M. 1947 (now 3-10-103 and 3-10-209), prevailed. When a specific statute conflicts with a general statute, the specific controls over the general to the extent of any repugnancy. State ex rel. Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975). (Annotator's Comment: In this case Supreme Court exercised supervisory powers to provide a procedure to prevent future actual or potential conflict between the Board of County Commissioners and Justice's Courts.)

Mandamus — Payment of Clerical Expenses: County Commissioners can be compelled to pay for necessary clerical expenses under this section and 3-10-103 when necessity is shown for the performance of duties. State ex rel. Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975).

Attorney General's Opinions

Duty of Boards of County Commissioners to Accept and Pay Claims for Actual and Necessary Clerical Expenses of Justice's Court: Under 3-10-103, a duty is created on the part of Boards of County Commissioners to accept and pay claims for actual and necessary clerical expenses associated with the operation of Justices' Courts. If disputes arise regarding payment of those expenses, the procedural rule in State ex rel. Browman v. Wood, 168 M 341, 543 P2d 184 (1975), applies. Although Boards may have some budgetary discretion when considering payment of actual and necessary court expenses, the statutes governing the county budgeting process do not preclude application of the Browman rule when disputes arise. 49 A.G. 1997 Amendment: Chapter 150 in (1) substituted "3-1-803 and 3-1-805" for "subdivision 1, 2, or 3" and at end, after "preside", deleted "in his behalf"; in (2)(a) inserted introductory clause relating to requirements to qualify substitute Justice of the Peace; at end of (2)(a)(i), after second sentence, deleted "The county commissioners shall administer the oath of office to each"; inserted (2)(a)(ii) requiring sitting Justice of the Peace to obtain waiver of training for substitutes; in (2)(a)(iii), after "list", inserted "provided for in subsection (2)(a)(i), shall subscribe to the written oath of office" and inserted second sentence allowing oath to be subscribed before member of Board of County Commissioners or any other authorized officer; inserted (2)(b) requiring list, oath, and approval and waiver to be filed with County Clerk; inserted (2)(c) allowing County Clerk to provide list of substitutes to local law enforcement; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 25, 1997.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 150, L. 1997, provided: "WHEREAS, in Potter v. District Court, 266 Mont. 384 (1994), the Montana Supreme Court ordered the suppression of evidence obtained under search warrants issued by an acting Justice of the Peace who had not been properly qualified; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court found that compliance with the statutory scheme for qualifying substitutes for Justices of the Peace is mandatory and that failure to follow the statutory requirements may result in an unqualified substitute attempting to act in a judicial capacity without authority; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that clarification of the statutory scheme for qualifying substitutes for Justices of the Peace may avoid future problems in which an unqualified substitute attempts to act in a judicial capacity and may avoid the consequences associated with such a situation.

THEREFORE, the Legislature of the State of Montana finds it appropriate to clarify the statutory scheme for qualifying substitutes for Justices of the Peace."

1991 Amendment: In (2) inserted second sentence regarding qualifications of persons listed, in third sentence, after "list", deleted "within the ensuing 30 days or", after "soon" deleted "thereafter", and after "possible" inserted "after the person has received a waiver of training from the supreme court". Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

1985 Amendment: Inserted (2) requiring Justice of the Peace to provide a list of persons qualified to hold court in his place during a temporary absence and requiring them to take an oath; in (3) substituted text authorizing Justice of the Peace or County Commissioners to call in a substitute for the Justice if he is sick, disabled, or absent for former text that read: "Whenever a justice is sick, disabled, or absent and the county commissioners find that there is a delay in the proper administration of justice or the county attorney makes a written request, another justice, if there is one readily available, or a city judge or some other qualified person shall be called in to hold court for the absent justice until his return"; and in (4) in last sentence, after "county", substituted "the justice of the peace may designate another person" for "the county commissioners shall handle the situation".

Case Notes

Authority of Properly Appointed Substitute Justice of the Peace to Issue Search Warrant: A search warrant was issued by a substitute Justice of the Peace, and Beaupre contended that the fruits of the search should be suppressed because no attempt was made to call in another Justice of the Peace or City Judge and because the substitute was not properly appointed. The Supreme Court dismissed the claims. The regular Justice of the Peace had letters from judges in nearby cities indicating that they were not available should the Justice of the Peace be absent, and the letters were updated every 6 months in accordance with the Attorney General's recommendations in 48 A.G. Op. 11 (2000). Further, the substitute was timely designated during the second term of the regular Justice of the Peace, and incorrect wording on the waiver of training form was inconsequential and did not affect the authority of the substitute to act. St. v. Beaupre, 2004 MT 300, 323 M 413, 102 P3d 504 (2004). See also Potter v. District Court, 266 M 384, 880 P2d 1319 (1994), and St. v. Vickers, 1998 MT 201, 290 M 356, 964 P2d 756 (1998).

Substitute Justice of the Peace Not Duly Authorized or Properly Called — Search Warrants Invalid: A Justice of the Peace submitted a written waiver request form for proposing substitute Justices of the Peace but failed to create a list of proposed substitutes as required in this section.

One of the designated substitutes took the judicial oath of office, but not in the form required by Art. III, sec. 3, Mont. Const. The substitute justice was called by a Deputy Sheriff, who requested warrants allowing a search of defendant's property. The warrants were issued and executed, but the warrants were challenged by defendants on the grounds that the warrants were not issued by a properly authorized substitute justice. The state argued that the authorization and call-in of the substitute justice were in substantial compliance with the law and that any technical errors in the procedures should not operate to suppress evidence. Applying Potter v. District Court, 266 M 384, 880 P2d 1319 (1994), the Supreme Court held that substantial compliance was insufficient. The procedure used in authorizing the substitute justice with a variant form of the constitutional oath of office was a major discrepancy in the authorization process, and the procedure of providing law enforcement with a menu of substitutes from which to choose clearly violated Potter. The substitute Justice of the Peace was not duly authorized, thus the warrants issued by the substitute were void ab initio. St. v. Vickers, 1998 MT 201, 290 M 356, 964 P2d 756, 55 St. Rep. 859 (1998), distinguishing U.S. v. Leon, 468 US 897, 82 L Ed 2d 677, 104 S Ct 3405 (1984).

Legal Qualifications of Justice of the Peace: According to applicable statutes and the rules of the Commission on Courts of Limited Jurisdiction, before a person is legally qualified to serve as a substitute Justice of the Peace, the following requirements must be met: (1) within 30 days of taking office, the elected or appointed Justice of the Peace must create a list of persons who are qualified to act in the sitting judge's absence when no other Justice or City Court Judge is available; (2) the sitting Justice of the Peace must request and obtain from the Commission a waiver of training for the substitute judge and show that the substitute judge is of good moral character and has good community support, a sense of community standards, and a basic knowledge of court procedure; and (3) the substitute judge must be sworn in by the County Commissioners. (See 1997 amendment.) A search warrant issued by a substitute judge in a case in which these qualifications were not met was held to be void ab initio because the statutory procedures to make him a judge and to vest him with the power to perform judicial functions had not been followed. Evidence seized pursuant to the warrant was suppressed. Potter v. District Court, 266 M 384, 880 P2d 1319, 51 St. Rep. 853 (1994).

Sitting Judge to Be Called Prior to Calling of Substitute Judge: In addition to the legal qualifications of a substitute judge, a sitting Justice of the Peace must first attempt to call in another Justice of the Peace, if there is one readily available, or a City Court Judge before resorting to calling in a qualified substitute judge from the list of substitute judges. A search warrant issued by a substitute judge in a case in which this procedure was not followed was held to be void ab initio because the statutory procedures to make him a judge and to vest him with the power to perform judicial functions had not been followed. Evidence seized pursuant to the warrant was suppressed. Potter v. District Court, 266 M 384, 880 P2d 1319, 51 St. Rep. 853 (1994).

Attorney General's Opinions

When Substitute Justice of the Peace May Be Called — Reliance on Letters of Unavailability: How a substitute Justice of the Peace is selected depends on the reasons for the absence of the sitting Justice of the Peace. If the sitting Justice of the Peace is disqualified pursuant to 3-1-803 or 3-1-805, only another Justice of the Peace may be called in and the substitute may not be a person qualified pursuant to subsection (2) of this section. If the sitting Justice of the Peace is sick, disabled, or absent, another Justice of the Peace or City Judge may be called in if available or a person may be called in who is qualified pursuant to subsection (2) of this section if another Justice of the Peace or City Judge is not readily available. If the sitting Justice of the Peace is on vacation or in training, the substitute is to be chosen in the same manner as if the sitting Justice of the Peace is sick, disabled, or absent, as long as there is not another Justice of the Peace from the county of the sitting Justice of the Peace. In determining who is available to act as a substitute, the sitting Justice of the Peace may rely on letters from other Justices of the Peace and City Judges that they are unavailable. However, after a reasonable time, the sitting Justice of the Peace should contact those who wrote the letters to determine if they are still unavailable. 48 A.G. Op. 11 (2000). See also 40 A.G. Op. 26 (1983), and Potter v. District Court, 266 M 384, 880 P2d 1319 (1994).

County Residency Not Required of Acting Justice of the Peace: An acting Justice of the Peace who is called to act pursuant to this section and who is otherwise qualified to serve under 3-10-202 need not be a resident of the county where the court sits. 43 A.G. Op. 51 (1990).

Authority to Select Substitute Justice of the Peace — Substitution Choices: A Justice of the Peace has the primary authority to select his substitute during temporary absences. In the event the justice is sick, disabled, or absent and is unable to call in a substitute, one may be called in by the County Commissioners. The Justice of the Peace or the County Commissioners must look to the following substitution choices: (1) another justice, if available; (2) a city judge; or (3) a qualified person from the list provided for in subsection (2) of this section. In the event the Justice of the Peace is on vacation or attending a training session, if there is no other justice in the county, the Justice of the Peace must look to the same substitution choices. 43 A.G. Op. 49 (1989).

Qualifications for List of Temporary Substitute Justices: In order to be eligible for the list of persons provided by a Justice of the Peace as temporary substitute justices, persons must meet the qualifications set forth in 3-10-202(2) and the residency requirements of 3-10-204. 42 A.G. Op. 4 (1987).

No Requirement of Specific Length of Time of Absence of Justice Prior to Appointment of Substitute: There is no specific length of time for which a regular Justice of the Peace must be absent before the County Commissioners can appoint an acting Justice of the Peace. (See 1985 amendment.) 40 A.G. Op. 26 (1983).

Acting Justice Not to Be Appointed in Advance: The Board of County Commissioners may not appoint an acting Justice of the Peace, in advance, to act whenever a Justice is sick, disabled, or absent. (See 1985 amendment.) 40 A.G. Op. 26 (1983).

"Other Qualified Person" Not to Replace Disqualified Justice: Prior to the 1985 amendment, in a county where there was only one Justice of the Peace and the Justice was disqualified under 3-10-231(1), a Justice from a neighboring county had to be called in as a replacement. Section 3-10-231 did not authorize calling in "some other qualified person" in this situation. 40 A.G. Op. 26 (1983).

Part 3

Jurisdiction of Justices' Courts

Part Case Notes

Jurisdiction Required Before Judgment Effective: It is fundamental that a court rendering a decision in a particular case have jurisdiction over the parties. When the judgment roll on its face shows that the court was without jurisdiction to render the judgment, its pronouncement is in fact no judgment and cannot be enforced. No right can be derived from it. All proceedings founded upon it are invalid and ineffective for any purpose. Ciotti v. Hoover, 237 M 462, 774 P2d 406, 46 St. Rep. 969 (1989), following Apple v. Edwards, 123 M 135, 211 P2d 138 (1949).

2005 Amendment: Chapter 130 in (1)(f) near end after "order of a" inserted "conservation". Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 470 inserted (1)(f) providing jurisdiction in cases involving violations of Title 75, chapter 7, part 1; inserted (1)(j) providing jurisdiction to order streambed restoration or payment of costs for restoration; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 23, 2003.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 6, Ch. 470, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all notices of projects pending before a conservation district on [the effective date of this act]." Approved April 23, 2003.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 393 throughout (1) increased amounts from $5,000 to $7,000. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1995 Amendments — Coordination Instruction: Chapter 350 in (1)(h) deleted reference to subsection (3) of 40-4-121 and at end inserted "and orders of protection, as provided in Title 40, chapter 15"; and made minor changes in style.

Severability: Section 31, Ch. 350, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

1991 Amendment: In seven places throughout (1) increased amounts subject to civil jurisdiction from $3,500 to $5,000.

1989 Amendment: Inserted (1)(h) authorizing issuance of temporary restraining orders.

1981 Amendment: Increased the jurisdictional limits from $1,500 to $3,500.

Case Notes

Jurisdiction of Justice's Court in Landlord-Tenant Action — Failure to Timely Assert Quiet Title Action Constituting Waiver of Jurisdictional Claim: Plaintiffs filed an action in Justice's Court to enforce a rental contract that defendant allegedly violated. Both parties initially argued that the case was governed by landlord-tenant law, but defendant subsequently argued in District Court that the case was actually an action to quiet title in a life estate granted to defendant by the contract and that because Justice's Courts may not hear actions concerning title to real property, the Justice's Court did not have subject matter jurisdiction to hear the case. The District Court concluded that the Justice's Court had jurisdiction, and on appeal, the Supreme Court concurred. Plaintiffs' pleadings established that the action was based on landlord-tenant law, and the Justice's Court therefore had subject matter jurisdiction at the onset. If defendant had raised the quiet title action in a proper and timely manner, the Justice's Court could have been divested of jurisdiction, but because defendant did not raise the title question in answer to the pleadings or in a timely amended answer, the Supreme Court held that the question was waived, and the District Court was affirmed. Stanley v. Lemire, 2006 MT 304, 334 M 489, 148 P3d 643 (2006).

Justice's Court Action Complete — Award of Attorney Fees Pursuant to District Court Appeal: Bugger sued McGough and Johnson in Justice's Court in a landlord tenant action. The District Court dismissed Johnson from the action, and McGough was granted summary judgment. Bugger then filed an amended complaint in District Court. The District Court awarded Johnson $20,479.71 in attorney fees. Bugger appealed on grounds that the award exceeded the jurisdictional limit of $7,000 in this section for Justice's Court claims. The Supreme Court disagreed. Once the Justice's Court ruled, Bugger's Justice's Court action was ended, and the District Court action was a new action, not an appeal. The District Court acted within its original jurisdictional capacity under 3-5-302, and the limit in this section did not apply. The award was affirmed. Bugger v. McGough, 2006 MT 248, 334 M 77, 144 P3d 802 (2006).

Remedy for Criminal Prosecution of Public Nuisance: Panasuk, convicted in City Court of misdemeanor criminal public nuisance charges under 45-8-111, contended that because Rule 4(B), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), 25-31-102, and this section preclude a nonrecord court from hearing actions involving the title to or possession of real property, jurisdiction for prosecution of the public nuisance charge must lie with the District Court. He cited 45-8-112 as authority that any action to abate a nuisance must be brought in the name of the state and that because abatement is a form of injunctive relief, the District Court has exclusive jurisdiction. He also argued that 27-30-202 provides the exclusive civil and criminal remedies for public nuisance. His claims were dismissed for the following reasons: (1) charges filed under 45-8-111 were criminal rather than related to a civil action involving title to or possession of real property, which is regulated by the sections cited by Panasuk; (2) the remedy created by 27-30-202 has been supplemented by subsequent legislative action regarding a City Court's jurisdiction over misdemeanors and by the enactment of 46-17-101, which requires that all prosecutions brought in City Court be commenced by a sworn complaint; and (3) because Panasuk's interpretation would result in a direct contradiction between 27-30-202 and statutes subsequently enacted, the argument that 27-30-202 provides the exclusive remedies for public nuisance is erroneous. Billings v. Panasuk, 253 M 403, 833 P2d 1050, 49 St. Rep. 499 (1992).

Prosecutor's Quasi-Judicial Immunity From Civil Action: Plaintiff's civil action against a County Attorney, based upon alleged unlawful arrest by certain policemen and challenging the legality of the criminal prosecution against him, must be dismissed because the County Attorney enjoys absolute immunity for prosecutorial actions done in a quasi-judicial capacity. Hall v. Lympus, 478 F. Supp. 644, 36 St. Rep. 1692 (D.C. Mont. 1979).

Jurisdictional Amounts: The jurisdiction of a Justice of the Peace, in an action for a fine, penalty, or forfeiture, is not dependent upon the amount that the plaintiff might recover but upon the amount that he demands. Reynolds v. Smith, 48 M 149, 135 P 1190 (1913).

Actions Arising on Contract: This section does not clothe Justice's Courts with jurisdiction to entertain an action brought against a Sheriff for damages for nonperformance of an official duty and to recover a penalty imposed for its nonperformance, such an action not being one arising on contract. Oppenheimer v. Regan, 32 M 110, 79 P 695 (1905).

Attorney General's Opinions

Validity of Ordinance Allowing Escalating Penalty for Failure to Obtain Business License: A Lewistown city ordinance that allows an escalating monthly penalty for failure to obtain a local business license is valid despite Missoula v. Shea, 202 M 286, 661 P2d 410, 40 St. Rep. 91 (1983). The Shea case determined that escalating penalties for parking violations were criminal penalties and violative of Art. II, sec. 28, Mont. Const. In analyzing the Lewistown ordinance, the Attorney General observed that the crucial issue is whether the penalty imposed is civil or criminal in nature. Applying the five factors outlined in Brown v. Multnomah County District Court, 570 P2d 52 (Ore. 1977), he concluded that the instant ordinance imposed civil penalties and that the ordinance was valid. 40 A.G. Op. 75 (1984).

Case Notes

Concurrent Justice's Court and District Court Jurisdiction Over Misdemeanor Family Assault No Right to Trial De Novo From Court of Record: Brockway was charged with two misdemeanor and two felony counts of family member assault. Brockway moved to sever the misdemeanor counts and have them tried first in Justice's Court so that he would have the opportunity to appeal to District Court. The District Court concluded that it lacked jurisdiction to try the misdemeanor charges, so the misdemeanor charges were severed and remanded for trial in Justice's Court. The state appealed. The Supreme Court held that the District Court's conclusion that it did not have jurisdiction to try the misdemeanors was erroneous. Under this section, District Courts have concurrent jurisdiction with Justices' Courts over misdemeanor charges of partner or family member assault. Additionally, under 46-17-311, there is no right to a trial de novo from District Court or from a Justice's Court that is a court of record, so Brockway was entitled to one jury trial in a court of record—in this case, the District Court—and if convicted, Brockway could then appeal to the Supreme Court. The case was remanded for trial in District Court on all charges. St. v. Brockway, 2005 MT 179, 328 M 5, 116 P3d 788 (2005).

Failure to Show That Justice's Court Exceeded Its Jurisdiction in Holding Defendant in Contempt in DUI Case — Writ of Review Properly Denied: Schaefer was charged in Justice's Court with repeat misdemeanor DUI per se and sentenced to a chemical dependency course, but he did not complete all conditions of the course, so the court held him in contempt. Schaefer then filed a writ of review in District Court, but the writ was dismissed because the court concluded that a petition for postconviction relief provided Schaefer with a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy, so the court lacked jurisdiction. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed denial of the writ, but not because a petition for postconviction relief was more appropriate, but rather because the Justice's Court properly exercised its jurisdiction and because the conflicting evidence issue of aftercare remained in the exclusive jurisdiction of the Justice's Court. Although the District Court incorrectly found that a writ of review was not appropriate, denial of the petition was nevertheless affirmed because Schaefer failed to satisfy the first prong of the test in 27-25-102 by showing that the Justice's Court exceeded its jurisdiction by holding him in contempt. Schaefer v. Egeland, 2004 MT 199, 322 M 274, 95 P3d 724 (2004).

Jurisdiction Over Municipal Court Protection Order: The Missoula County District Court issued a permanent injunction, based on a stalking violation of 45-5-220, prohibiting Gillispie from contacting his former wife "by a third person, except by telephone or correspondence through her attorney of record". Gillispie admitted contacting his former wife's mother in Missoula and was charged with and convicted in Municipal Court of an order of protection violation pursuant to 45-5-626. On appeal, Gillispie contended that the Municipal Court did not have jurisdiction over the offense. A Municipal Court has geographic jurisdiction over misdemeanors coextensive with the jurisdiction of Justices' Courts located in the same county. Although neither Gillispie nor the former wife was present in Missoula County at the time of the prohibited phone call, the former wife's mother received the call in Missoula County. Thus, the Municipal Court was vested with jurisdiction over the misdemeanor order of protection violation when the necessary result of Gillispie's third-party contact by telephone was committed within Missoula County. Missoula v. Gillispie, 1999 MT 268, 296 M 444, 989 P2d 401, 56 St. Rep. 1085 (1999).

Expungement of Two of Three Prior DUI and BAC Convictions — Lack of District Court Jurisdiction — Felony Charge Dismissed: Sidmore was arrested for DUI in March 1996. His driving record revealed that he had a 1988 Idaho DUI conviction, a 1994 Montana DUI conviction, and a 1990 Montana BAC conviction. Pursuant to 61-8-714, Sidmore was charged with felony DUI, fourth offense. Sidmore agreed that under 61-8-714, both BAC and DUI convictions can be counted to determine the total number of convictions that a defendant has received. However, under the 1989 version of 61-8-722, Sidmore did not receive a subsequent BAC conviction within the 5-year period following the 1990 BAC conviction nor did the 1994 DUI conviction prevent expungement of the 1990 BAC conviction, so the 1990 BAC conviction was expunged from the record. Further, under the 1987 version of 61-8-714, Sidmore did not receive a subsequent DUI conviction within the 5-year period following the 1988 Idaho DUI conviction nor did the 1990 BAC conviction prevent expungement of the 1988 Idaho DUI conviction, so the 1988 Idaho DUI conviction was also expunged from the record, making the 1994 DUI conviction the only prior conviction that could be counted to support the felony DUI charge. Thus, under this section, the Justice's Court retained jurisdiction of the misdemeanor 1996 offense and the District Court erred in denying Sidmore's motion to dismiss the felony DUI charge for lack of jurisdiction. St. v. Sidmore, 286 M 218, 951 P2d 558, 54 St. Rep. 1381 (1997).

Fish and Game Restitution Not Within Jurisdiction of Justice Court: The Justice Court imposed a $515 fine, suspended fishing privileges, and ordered restitution in an amount necessary to mitigate the effects of the violation to be paid by a plaintiff who had intentionally introduced fish into Lake Mary Ronan. On appeal, the Supreme Court vacated the conviction and sentence, holding that the potentially limitless fine that could be imposed to mitigate the effects of a violation of the fish and game statute is inconsistent with the statute that grants Justices' Courts jurisdiction over violations of fish and game statutes that are punishable by a fine not exceeding $1,000. (See 1993 amendment.) Moseley v. Lake County Justice Court, 256 M 206, 845 P2d 732, 50 St. Rep. 28 (1993).

Misdemeanor Criminal Contempt — Jurisdiction Properly Exercised — Denial of Application for Writ of Certiorari Proper: The District Court properly denied defendant's application for a Writ of Certiorari to review his Justice's Court criminal contempt conviction. The Justice's Court clearly had jurisdiction under this section of a misdemeanor criminal contempt action. Thus, one of the three indispensable requisites to the granting of a Writ, that an inferior board has exceeded its jurisdiction, is absent. St. v. McAllister, 218 M 196, 708 P2d 239, 42 St. Rep. 1515 (1985).

Justice's Court — No Authority to Vacate Conviction and Order Alteration of Driver's Civil Records: A Justice's Court does not have authority to vacate a conviction or to direct alteration of the records of the Division of Motor Vehicles. Therefore, a Justice's Court could not order the Division to strike a prior DUI conviction and not consider it in revoking the driver's license on a second conviction. The District Court properly granted the Division's motion to quash a Writ of Mandate issued by the District Court staying the actions of the Division. Lancaster v. Dept. of Justice, 218 M 97, 706 P2d 126, 42 St. Rep. 1425 (1985).

Criminal Contempt and Contempt of Court Distinguished — District Court Without Jurisdiction to Try Criminal Contempt: Criminal contempt, a misdemeanor crime defined in 45-7-309, is an offense against society prosecuted by the state, whereas contempt of court is a judicial power arising out of Art. VII, sec. 1, Mont. Const., and Title 3 that allows a court to enforce its own judgments and maintain decorum in its proceedings. Thus, while only the District Court could have found the defendant in contempt of court for failure to pay a fine from a criminal proceeding of that court, it lacked jurisdiction to try a misdemeanor criminal contempt action for failure to pay the fine because criminal contempt, like most other misdemeanors, must be brought in Justice's Court. St. v. Abrams, 209 M 508, 680 P2d 585, 41 St. Rep. 871 (1984).

District Court Jurisdiction Over DWI Charge: Jurisdiction of the District Court over criminal matters depends on the maximum sentence that can be imposed for committing the crime. When the maximum sentence increases to give the District Court jurisdiction because of repeated DWI offenses, proof of prior offenses does not become an element that must be proved at trial and can be proved at any time until sentencing. Thus, failure to introduce evidence of prior convictions at trial does not deprive the District Court of jurisdiction. St. v. Campbell, 189 M 107, 615 P2d 190, 37 St. Rep. 1337 (1980).

Jurisdiction Retained: Where District Court's jurisdiction is originally invoked by an information charging a felony, it is not lost by State subsequently reducing the charge to only a lesser included misdemeanor. St. v. Shults, 169 M 33, 544 P2d 817, 33 St. Rep. 20 (1976).

Justices of the Peace — Authority to Issue Search Warrants for Dangerous Drugs: Justices' Courts are constitutionally created, and when the Legislature has had the opportunity to limit their jurisdiction and has not seen fit to do so, a legislative intent to authorize the practice of Justices' Courts issuing search warrants is presumed as a Justice of the Peace meets the standard of "a neutral and detached magistrate" to examine the application for a search warrant and determine whether reasonable cause exists for its issuance. St. v. Snider, 168 M 220, 541 P2d 1204, 32 St. Rep. 1056 (1975).

Driving While Under Influence of Intoxicating Liquor: Since the offense of driving a vehicle on a highway while under the influence of intoxicating liquor is a misdemeanor, it falls within the jurisdiction of a Justice of the Peace under this section. Wilson v. Brodie, 148 M 235, 419 P2d 306 (1966).

Maximum Penalties: Prior to a 1985 amendment, a Justice of the Peace had no jurisdiction of a misdemeanor where the offense charged was punishable by a fine exceeding $500 or imprisonment of more than 6 months. State ex rel. Freebourn v. District Court, 105 M 77, 69 P2d 748 (1937).

Petit Larceny: Justices of the Peace have exclusive jurisdiction of petit larceny (no longer an offense in Montana; see, generally, Title 45, ch. 6, part 3). In re Jones, 46 M 122, 126 P 929 (1912).

Cohabitation: The offense of living together in open and notorious cohabitation in a state of fornication (no longer an offense in Montana) was a misdemeanor and fell within the jurisdiction of a Justice of the Peace. Hosoda v. Neville, 45 M 310, 123 P 20 (1912).

Venue of Justices: A Justice of the Peace elected in one township was held to have jurisdiction of an offense against local option committed in another township in the same county. St. v. O'Brien, 35 M 482, 90 P 514 (1907).

Constitutional Basis: In 1903, the sections of the statute enumerating the classes of cases of which a Justice of the Peace could take cognizance confined them strictly to the constitutional limitations in the 1889 Constitution. Shea v. Regan, 29 M 308, 74 P 737 (1903).

Attorney General's Opinions

Concurrent Jurisdiction Over Certain Misdemeanors: Misdemeanor prosecutions that are within the concurrent jurisdictions of both a City Court and a Justice's Court may at the election of the prosecuting officer be brought in either court. Prosecution of such offenses must be instituted in the name of the state. 37 A.G. Op. 42 (1977).

Private Citizen Without Power to Prosecute Complaint: Since the term "magistrate" includes Justices of the Peace in section 16-3101, R.C.M. 1947 (now 2-15-501, 7-4-2711 through 7-4-2713, and 7-4-2715 through 7-4-2717), the County Attorney is charged with the responsibility of prosecuting complaints in Justices' Courts and a Justice of the Peace cannot allow a private citizen to prosecute a complaint. However, a County Attorney is vested with normal discretion and need not file and prosecute every individual's complaint when there is insufficient evidence to warrant prosecution or when such a prosecution would not be in the interests of justice. 36 A.G. Op. 47 (1975).

District Court Jurisdiction Over Gambling Acts: Pursuant to 46-2-201, District Courts have exclusive jurisdiction over violations of the Montana Card Games Act, the Bingo and Raffles Law, and the sports pools law. 35 A.G. Op. 86 (1974).

Failure to Show That Justice's Court Exceeded Its Jurisdiction in Holding Defendant in Contempt in DUI Case — Writ of Review Properly Denied: Schaefer was charged in Justice's Court with repeat misdemeanor DUI per se and sentenced to a chemical dependency course, but he did not complete all conditions of the course, so the court held him in contempt. Misdemeanor Contempt Not Enforceable More Than One Year After Sentence Expired: On April 9, 1998, Dexter was sentenced in Justice's Court to 1 year in jail for third offense DUI. The sentence was suspended on condition that Dexter serve 90 days in jail and pay a $770 fine, but Dexter did neither. Sentence revocation proceedings could have been instituted under 46-18-203 during the time of Dexter's sentence, but were not. About 3 years later, Dexter was arrested on an outstanding warrant after the suspended sentence had expired, and the Justice's Court invoked its contempt powers to sentence Dexter to jail time for failing to fulfill the conditions of the suspended sentence. The Justice of the Peace contended that under this section, contempt proceedings could be brought at any time, and the District Court concluded that the Justice's Court had the authority to enforce compliance with the lawful sentencing order, but on appeal, the Supreme Court reversed. Under the penalties in 3-1-519 in effect at the time (repealed in 2001), contempt of court constituted a misdemeanor crime, which was required under 45-1-205(2)(b) to be prosecuted within 1 year of commission. The last day on which Dexter could have committed contempt was April 9, 1999, so prosecution was required to be commenced by April 9, 2000. Because the contempt prosecution did not commence until Dexter was arrested on January 23, 2002, the Justice's Court lacked jurisdiction to hold Dexter in contempt for failure to comply with the terms of a sentence that expired in April 1999. Dexter v. Shields, 2004 MT 159, 322 M 6, 92 P3d 1208 (2004). See also Milanovich v. Milanovich, 200 M 83, 655 P2d 959 (1982).

Appearance of Accused Through Attorney Allowed Unless Personal Appearance Ordered: Section 46-16-120 clearly allows persons charged with misdemeanor offenses to appear through their attorney only, unless the court specifically requires a personal appearance by the accused. In this case, a Justice of the Peace specifically ordered the defendant to "make all court appearances" but did not order the defendant to appear in person. Therefore, an appearance by the defendant's attorney satisfied the statute, and it was error for the defendant to be held in contempt for failure to appear. St. v. Voth, 270 M 349, 892 P2d 537, 52 St. Rep. 225 (1995).

Crime of Criminal Contempt — Section Not a Limitation: The provisions of this section apply only to the judicial contempt power vested in the courts by Art. VII, sec. 1, Mont. Const., and Title 3; they do not limit a Justice's Court's power to try and sentence for the misdemeanor crime of criminal contempt found at 45-7-309. St. v. Abrams, 209 M 508, 680 P2d 585, 41 St. Rep. 871 (1984).

Criminal Contempt and Contempt of Court Distinguished — District Court Without Jurisdiction to Try Criminal Contempt: Criminal contempt, a misdemeanor crime defined in 45-7-309, is an offense against society prosecuted by the state, whereas contempt of court is a judicial power arising out of Art. Case Notes

General Denial: A general denial has no "parts" within the meaning of subsection (4) (now (1)(d)) of this section; hence an entry that defendant interposed an oral general denial is sufficient. Malano v. Bressan, 76 M 366, 245 P 871 (1926).

Pleadings: Under the rule that the pleadings in a Justice's Court as well as the statutory requirements with relation thereto must be liberally construed, the requirements of section 9638, R.C.M. 1921 (25-31-501, now repealed), and of section 9703, R.C.M. 1921 (now 3-10-501), mean no more than that he shall enter such a recital thereof as would advise a person of common understanding of the nature of the pleadings. Malano v. Bressan, 76 M 366, 245 P 871 (1926).

Adjournment of Trial: While a Justice of the Peace may, with the consent of the parties, take a case under advisement, the adjournment of the trial must be to a time and place appointed for that purpose. State ex rel. Collier v. Houston, 36 M 178, 92 P 476 (1907), distinguished in In re Graye, 36 M 394, 93 P 266 (1907).

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 257 in (3)(a) substituted reference to department of revenue for reference to state treasurer; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Chapter 449 in (3) at beginning inserted exception clause; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Chapter 515 in (1) at beginning after "Each" substituted "justice's court" for "justice of the peace"; in (2) at beginning inserted exception clause; inserted (4) allowing contracts by a justice's court with a private person or entity for the collection of a final judgment; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Applicability: Section 49, Ch. 257, L. 2001, provided: "[This act] applies to remittances of state money made to the department of revenue for fiscal years beginning after June 30, 2001."

1995 Amendments: Chapter 18 in former (4)(f), after "compensation", inserted "and assistance"; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 509 in (3)(a) inserted "for deposit in the state general fund"; and deleted (4) that read: "(4) The state treasurer shall distribute money received under subsection (3) as follows:

- (a) 44.81% to the state general fund;
- (b) 9.09% to the fish and game account in the state special revenue fund;
- (c) 11.76% to the state highway account in the state special revenue fund;
- (d) 16.93% to the traffic education account in the state special revenue fund;
- (e) 0.57% to the department of livestock account in the state special revenue fund;
- (f) 15.9% to the crime victims compensation account in the state special revenue fund; and
- (g) 0.94% to the department of family services special revenue account for the battered spouses and domestic violence grant program."

Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Chapter 546 in former (4)(g) substituted "department of public health and human services" for "department of family services". Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Saving Clause: Section 571, Ch. 546, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1993 Special Session Amendment: Chapter 39 in (4)(a) increased amount to general fund from 27.88% to 44.81%; in (4)(d) decreased amount to traffic education account from 33.86% to 16.93%; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1994.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 296 at end of (2) inserted exception clause.

Chapter 667 in (4)(a) increased money to state general fund from 23% to 27.88%; in (4)(b) decreased money to fish and game account from 10% to 9.09%; in (4)(c) decreased money to state highway account from 12.5% to 11.76%; in (4)(d) decreased money to traffic education account from 36% to 33.86%; in (4)(e) decreased money to Department of Livestock account from 0.6% to 0.57%; in (4)(f) decreased money to crime victims compensation account from 16.9% to 15.9%; and in (4)(g) decreased money to Department of Family Services from 1% to 0.94%. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1987 Amendment: Deleted former (2) that read: "(2) He shall also file an itemized statement showing all fees received during the preceding month in his court. The statement shall state that all fees required by law to be paid during the preceding month in connection with matters pending before the court have been paid into the county treasury and listed in the itemized statement and that he has not received or been promised, nor has any one else received or been promised for him, any other moneys, emolument, or thing by virtue of or in connection with his office. The statement shall be subscribed and sworn to by the justice"; and inserted (2) through (4) relating to disposition of fines, penalties, and forfeitures by a Justice's Court, County Treasurer, and the State Treasurer.

Function Transfer: Pursuant to sec. 117, Ch. 609, L. 1987, the Governor by executive order transferred the function and authority contained in this section from the Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services to the Department of Family Services.

No Error in City Court's Denial of Motion for Continuance After Similar Motions Granted: Over 2 years after charges were filed and after numerous motions of continuance were granted, a trial date was set pursuant to Robertson's motion for continuance to permit him to make travel arrangements after moving to California. Three weeks before trial, Robertson again moved for a continuance on the same grounds, but the City Court declined to grant it, and Robertson was tried in absentia. However, it was Robertson, not the court, who caused the trial to go forward without him. Not only did he have ample time to arrange for an appearance in Montana, but rescheduling trial dates upon motion is within the trial court's discretion and will be affirmed absent a showing that the court abused its discretion by acting arbitrarily without conscientious judgment or exceeding the bounds of reason, resulting in substantial injustice. Missoula v. Robertson, 2000 MT 52, 298 M 419, 998 P2d 144, 57 St. Rep. 250 (2000). See also Campbell v. Canty, 1998 MT 278, 291 M 398, 969 P2d 268 (1998).

City Not Liable for City Judge's Civil Rights Violations — City Judge Acts Under State Authority: Claims of the indigent defendants, who were not effectively informed by a City Judge of their right to appointed counsel, were properly dismissed. Under Montana law, a City Judge's acts and decision in advising defendants of their right were performed under the state's authority rather than the city's authority, thereby precluding imposition of civil rights liability on the city. Further, the indigent defendants did not have standing to seek declaratory and injunctive relief. There are other remedies for indigent defendants in future situations—they can file a complaint with the state body charged with overseeing judicial conduct, they can appeal their convictions to a higher court, and they can sue a judge individually because a judge does not enjoy judicial immunity for unconstitutional behavior when the facts are sufficient to grant declaratory or injunctive relief. Eggar v. Livingston, 40 F3d 312 (9th Cir. 1994).

Jurisdiction Required Before Judgment Effective: It is fundamental that a court rendering a decision in a particular case have jurisdiction over the parties. When the judgment roll on its face shows that the court was without jurisdiction to render the judgment, its pronouncement is in fact no judgment and cannot be enforced. No right can be derived from it. All proceedings founded upon it are invalid and ineffective for any purpose. Ciotti v. Hoover, 237 M 462, 774 P2d 406, 46 St. Rep. 969 (1989), following Apple v. Edwards, 123 M 135, 211 P2d 138 (1949).

1987 Amendment: In (1) inserted second sentence requiring the judge to establish regular sessions.

Case Notes

Limited Jurisdiction: Police courts (now city courts), like Justices' Courts, were courts of limited jurisdiction and had only such authority as was expressly conferred upon them. State ex rel. Marquette v. Police Court, 86 M 297, 283 P 430 (1929).

Attorney General's Opinions

Legality of Evening City Court Hours: A City Judge is not prohibited by 3-1-301, 3-1-302, or this section from establishing regular sessions of the court during evening hours as long as regular sessions are not convened on Sundays or other legal holidays and the court is open for business on judicial days. These sections place no limitations on the hours of business. Although 7-4-102 requires that City Court offices be open for business continuously from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on weekdays, this does not prohibit a City Judge from setting office hours after 5 p.m. on weekdays. As long as the office is open during the required hours for the transaction of business, such as the filing of court documents with the clerk, the City Judge may set additional hours for regular court sessions. 43 A.G. Op. 61 (1990).

3-11-102. Concurrent jurisdiction.

Compiler's Comments

1987 Amendment: In (1), near middle after "misdemeanors", deleted "punishable by a fine not exceeding $500 or by imprisonment not exceeding 6 months or by both fine and imprisonment" and inserted remainder of subsection giving court concurrent jurisdiction over proceedings under chapter 10, part 3, of this title.

Case Notes

Authority of City Court to Try DUI Charge Under State Statute — No Error in District Court Failure to Dismiss: McCarvel was charged in Billings City Court with DUI in violation of 61-8-401. McCarvel moved to dismiss on the grounds that he was charged with a violation of a state statute rather than a city ordinance. The City Court refused to dismiss. McCarvel was convicted by a jury and took a de novo appeal to the District Court. The District Court refused to dismiss and McCarvel pleaded guilty. The Supreme Court held that the Billings City Court had jurisdiction over the DUI offense concurrent with the Justice's Court. Because McCarvel was charged with a violation of a state statute rather than a city ordinance, the language of the city ordinance was immaterial. Billings v. McCarvel, 262 M 96, 863 P2d 441, 50 St. Rep. 1460 (1993).

City Attorney's Authority to Try City Prosecution of Statutory DUI Violation Upheld: McCarvel was charged in Billings City Court with a violation of the state DUI statute. He was convicted by a jury and appealed to District Court in which, after the District Court refused to dismiss, he pleaded guilty. The Supreme Court held that the city attorney could lawfully prosecute a violation of a state statute in City Court because the City Court had concurrent jurisdiction with the Justice's Court and because it was the city attorney's duty to prosecute on behalf of the city offenses heard in that court. Billings v. McCarvel, 262 M 96, 863 P2d 441, 50 St. Rep. 1460 (1993).

City Court Jurisdiction Over Misdemeanor Public Nuisance Charges: Section 46-2-203 provides a City Court with jurisdiction over criminal misdemeanor charges as authorized by this section. A violation of 45-8-111, maintaining a public nuisance, is clearly a misdemeanor; therefore, a City Court has jurisdiction over a criminal prosecution for public nuisance. Billings v. Panasuk, 253 M 403, 833 P2d 1050, 49 St. Rep. 499 (1992).

Power of State to Enact and Courts to Enforce Laws Regulating Motor Vehicles: Appellant, appearing pro se, challenged as unconstitutional laws requiring driver's license, mandatory insurance, and vehicle registration. The Supreme Court held that the issues raised by the appellant were frivolous, unreasonable, and groundless in that the court had previously recognized the state's power to regulate motor vehicles in the interests of public safety at the expense of individual rights. Whitefish v. Hansen, 237 M 105, 771 P2d 976, 46 St. Rep. 657 (1989).

Search Warrants: Police magistrates (now City or Municipal Judges) have never been given authority by the Legislature to issue search warrants, and therefore a search warrant issued by such magistrate must be void. St. v. Tropf, 166 M 79, 530 P2d 1158 (1975), applied, with regard to substitute judges, in Potter v. District Court, 266 M 384, 880 P2d 1319, 51 St. Rep. 853 (1994).

Nature of Departments: Where the District Courts are divided into departments, the court presided over by each of the Judges is the District Court and not a departmental court; neither department is a court of concurrent jurisdiction with the other, and in the absence of rules either Judge has full authority to proceed in any matter properly before the court. State ex rel. P.S.C. v. Great N. Util. Co., 86 M 442, 284 P 772 (1930).

Misdemeanors: A Justice of the Peace had jurisdiction under this section, as it existed prior to 1903 amendment, over misdemeanors committed in a town or city within his township. In re Ryan, 20 M 64, 50 P 129 (1897).

Attorney General's Opinions

City Court Jurisdiction of Third Offense DUI: Prior to 1987, a city court had jurisdiction of a third offense DUI only if that offense was adopted as a city ordinance and prosecuted as such by the city attorney. The 1987 amendment to 3-11-102 enabled third offense DUI to be prosecuted in city court as a violation of state law as well. 42 A.G. Op. 34 (1987).

Jurisdiction Over DUIs: A City Court may issue an arrest warrant in the name of the state of Montana when a violation of 61-8-401 is charged. 41 A.G. Op. 95 (1986).

Responsibility to Prosecute Misdemeanors in City Court: The City Attorney has primary responsibility to prosecute in City Court offenses committed in the city limits and charged as violations of state law. 37 A.G. Op. 62 (1977).

Concurrent Jurisdiction Over Certain Misdemeanors: Misdemeanor prosecutions which are within the concurrent jurisdictions of both a City Court and a Justice's Court may at the election of the prosecuting officer be brought in either court. Prosecution of such offenses must be instituted in the name of the state. 37 A.G. Op. 42 (1977).

Necessity of Ordinance or Resolution to Implement City Court Misdemeanor Jurisdiction: Statutory jurisdiction granted City Courts by 3-11-102 is self-executing, and a city or town does not need to take any affirmative action by resolution or ordinance to effect such jurisdiction. 37 A.G. Op. 42 (1977).

3-11-103. Exclusive jurisdiction.

Compiler's Comments

1991 Amendment: In (2), (3), (4), and (5) increased amount from $2,500 to $5,000.

1985 Amendment: Substituted "$2,500" for "$300" throughout.

Case Notes

Penalty Assessment of Fines: Statute providing for penalty assessments in addition to fines was void for indirectly enlarging jurisdiction of Justices' courts and police courts (now city courts) in terms of maximum fine which might have been imposed. State ex rel. Sanders v. Butte, 151 M 171, 441 P2d 190 (1968).

Defect in Complaint: The mere fact that an action for the violation of a city ordinance was entitled in the name of the "town" did not deprive the police court (now city court) of jurisdiction. State ex rel. Moreland v. Police Court, 87 M 17, 285 P 178 (1930).

Limited Jurisdiction: Police courts (now city courts), like Justices' Courts, were courts of limited jurisdiction and had only such authority as was expressly conferred upon them. State ex rel. Marquette v. Police Court, 86 M 297, 283 P 430 (1929).

False Imprisonment: A police (now city court) magistrate had jurisdiction to determine the validity of a town ordinance for a violation of which he sentenced plaintiff in an action for false imprisonment to serve a term in the county jail. Shampagne v. Keplinger, 78 M 114, 252 P 803 (1927).

Exclusive Jurisdiction of J.P. Designated to Act: A Justice of the Peace designated by the Town Council to act as police judge (now city court judge) had exclusive jurisdiction of all cases arising under the ordinances, in addition to his jurisdiction as a Justice. State ex rel. Streit v. Justice Court, 45 M 375, 123 P 405 (1912).

Prosecution in Name of Municipality: Prosecutions for violations of local ordinances must be conducted in the name of the municipality. State ex rel. Streit v. Justice Court, 45 M 375, 123 P 405 (1912).

Removal of Snow and Ice: Noncompliance with an ordinance making it the duty of an occupant of premises within the limits of a city to keep a sidewalk free from snow and ice was not in its essence a crime or misdemeanor, and actions arising therefrom were properly prosecuted in the name of the city. State ex rel. Streit v. Justice Court, 45 M 375, 123 P 405 (1912); Helena v. Kent, 32 M 279, 80 P 258 (1905). See also State ex rel. Butte v. District Court, 37 M 202, 95 P 841 (1908).

Vagrancy: The police court (now city court) of a city or town had exclusive jurisdiction of all proceedings for the violation of an ordinance defining vagrancy. State ex rel. Butte v. District Court, 37 M 202, 95 P 841 (1908).

1987 Amendment: In (1), in introductory clause, and in (2), after “call in”, inserted “a city judge” and after “some qualified” substituted “person” for “resident of the city or town”; and inserted (3) allowing City Judges and Justices of the Peace to sit as City Judge upon request.

Attorney General's Opinions

When Qualified Person May Be Called as Substitute for City Judge: A qualified person may be called in as a substitute City Judge when the acting City Judge is sick, absent, unable to act, or disqualified. There is no requirement to contact any City Judge or Justice of the Peace prior to calling in a qualified person. A substitute City Judge may be called in regardless of the availability of another City Judge or Justice of the Peace and whether or not the other justices have expressed that they are unavailable. 48 A.G. Op. 11 (2000).

Limitation on the Power of City Judge to Appoint Replacement: A Justice of the Peace who has been designated to act as a City Judge for a town must himself make the determination that he is “unable to act” under the provisions of this section. That determination does not, however, confer on a City Judge the authority to appoint a regular deputy or substitute City Judge with power and authority to act in all matters the same as the regular City Judge. The City Judge who has determined he is unable to act for any reason may call in a Justice of the Peace or a qualified resident of the town to act in his place, but the substitute may act only as long as the situations listed in this section exist. 38 A.G. Op. 113 (1980).

1989 Amendment: In first sentence of (1), at end, substituted “justice of the peace or the city judge of another city or town to act as city judge” for “justice court”, at beginning of second sentence inserted “The justice of the peace or city judge shall reside in the”, at beginning of the third sentence substituted “The city or town” for “to act as city court and”, after “such” substituted “judge” for “court”, after “county” inserted “the other city or town, or the justice of the peace or the judge”, before “payment” deleted “proportionate”, near beginning of fourth sentence, after “justice”, substituted “of the peace or other city judge” for “court”, after “commissioners” inserted “or governing body of the city or town”, before “in all cases” substituted “judge” for “court”, and near beginning of fifth sentence, after “peace”, inserted “or city judge of another city or town”; and made minor changes in phraseology and punctuation.

1987 Amendment: In (1) substituted first two sentences, allowing council to designate Justice's Court to act as City Court and fix funding for the court and stating criteria for when the Justice's Court acts as City Court, for “In a town, the council may designate a justice of the peace of the county in which the town is situated to act as city judge and may by ordinance fix the compensation for his services. The justice of the peace so designated who agrees to act in that capacity shall act as city judge in all cases arising out of violations of ordinances in which the town is a party” and in last sentence, after “town”, inserted “or city”.

1981 Amendments: Chapter 56 inserted (2) allowing combination of offices of Justice of the Peace and City Judge.

Chapter 269 substituted “who agrees to act in that capacity shall act as city judge” for “may act as city judge” near the middle of (1).

Case Notes

Exclusive Jurisdiction of J.P. Designated to Act: A Justice of the Peace designated by the Town Council to act as police judge (now city court judge) had exclusive jurisdiction of all cases arising under the ordinances, in addition to his jurisdiction as a Justice. State ex rel. Streit v. Justice Court, 45 M 375, 123 P 405 (1912).

Attorney General's Opinions

Residency for Justice of the Peace Serving as City Judge: A Justice of the Peace may not be appointed to serve as a City Judge in a town in which he does not reside without violating Art. VII, sec. 9, Mont. Const. 41 A.G. Op. 82 (1986). (Annotator's note: However, see 1987 amendment note. The 1987 amendment allows the council to designate a Justice's Court of the county to act as City Court.)

Town Council to Designate City Judge From Justices of the Peace of Same County: The statutes concerning the selection of a City Judge for a town stand in stark contrast to those concerning cities. Title 7 has no provision that requires the appointment of a City Judge by a town in order to implement it. Therefore, a town is not authorized by 7-4-4103 to appoint a City Judge who is not a Justice of the Peace. Rather, 3-11-205 provides for the appointment by the Town Council of a Justice of the Peace of the county in which the town is situated to act as City Judge. The 1975 amendment, which changed the statute to read, "[t]he justice of the peace so designated may act as a police judge in all cases arising out of a violation of ordinances in which the town is a party" from "must act", simply provides a designated Justice of the Peace with some discretion in the performance of his duty as City Judge for a town, where formerly the duty was mandatory. The statute does not authorize the appointment of a City Judge who is not a Justice of the Peace of the county in which the town is situated. The City Judge must be designated by the Town Council. 38 A.G. Op. 80 (1980).

Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Authority of City Court to Try DUI Charge Under State Statute — No Error in District Court Failure to Dismiss: McCarvel was charged in Billings City Court with DUI in violation of 61-8-401. McCarvel moved to dismiss on the grounds that he was charged with a violation of a state statute rather than a city ordinance. The City Court refused to dismiss. McCarvel was convicted by a jury and took a de novo appeal to the District Court. The District Court refused to dismiss and McCarvel pleaded guilty. The Supreme Court held that the Billings City Court had jurisdiction over the DUI offense concurrent with the Justice's Court. Because McCarvel was charged with a violation of a state statute rather than a city ordinance, the language of the city ordinance was immaterial. *Billings v. Sanctions and Contempt Imposed on Attorney by City Court Invalid: A City Court imposed sanctions on an attorney for failing to appear to defend a client in a DUI case. The attorney argued that he had been required to attend a hearing in District Court and had diligently tried to inform the City Court of the conflict. The City Court refused to revoke the sanctions, adding instead a contempt charge. The Supreme Court ruled that the sanctions were improper in that the City Court acted arbitrarily in imposing them. The Supreme Court went on to reverse the contempt, finding on the basis that the sanctions did not constitute a lawful order and therefore the attorney could not be found in contempt for failing to pay the sanctions. *Doran v. Power of State to Enact and Courts to Enforce Laws Regulating Motor Vehicles: Appellant, appearing pro se, challenged as unconstitutional laws requiring driver's license, mandatory insurance, and vehicle registration. When the judgment roll on its face shows that the court was without jurisdiction to render the judgment, its pronouncement is in fact no judgment and cannot be enforced. No Error in Disallowing Consideration of Punitive Damages by Jury of Less Than Twelve: Immediately after the verdict was entered, the trial court dismissed a juror without challenge, based on the juror's preannounced prior commitment. The court then disallowed consideration of punitive damages by the jury of 11, and plaintiff appealed. The Supreme Court affirmed, noting that under this section, a jury must consist of 12 jurors unless the parties agree to a lesser number in open court. Defendant did not consent to a lesser number of jurors, so deliberation on punitive damages could not have occurred in any event. *Winslow v. Mont. A jury panel member selected for a case shall receive an additional $13 per day while serving”; and inserted (4) relating to forfeit of per diem and mileage by a juror excused on his own motion or a special juror not sworn in.

Case Notes

Declaratory Judgment on Requiring Prepayment of Jury Fees by Party Demanding Jury: The Supreme Court took original jurisdiction of, and heard, a petition for a declaratory judgment that it was unconstitutional to require prepayment, by a party requesting a civil jury trial, of each day’s jury fees at or before the end of the prior day. The requirement was contained in Rule 14F, M.J.C.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 22) (superseded, 1990, see Title 25, ch. 23). There was a justiciable controversy of statewide impact in that the rule applied to all justice courts; delay could abridge vital constitutional rights of litigants; the purpose of the declaratory judgment would serve the office of a writ, and the court has jurisdiction to issue, hear, and determine writs; and it would promote judicial economy to accept jurisdiction rather than force piecemeal litigation on the constitutionality of the rule. The court said that the prepayment requirement was contained in the rule and 3-15-203, which provided that “In civil actions, the jurors’ fees must be paid by the party demanding the jury and taxed as costs against the losing party”, and declared both the statute and rule unconstitutional. *Hammer v. Case Notes

Payment of Jurors: This section is mandatory both as to the duty of the Clerk and of the Treasurer, for the word "must" indicates that the duty of the Clerk becomes imperative as soon as a juror is entitled to his pay. Case Notes

Claim of Juror to Be Psychic Not Violative of Due Process Rights: On the second day of jury deliberations, two jurors brought forward concerns that another juror with strong opinions in the case claimed to be a psychic. With counsel present, the trial court questioned the jury foreman as to whether that particular juror would be able to base a decision on the law and the evidence. The court and counsel ultimately determined that no problem existed, and deliberations continued. On appeal, DuBray argued that allowing a psychic juror constituted a due process violation. The Supreme Court noted that DuBray's counsel helped formulate the response to the situation and, finding nothing in the record to indicate that the juror's strong opinions were based on psychic powers or that the juror would not be able to lay aside the opinions and render a fair verdict, held that DuBray's right to a fair and impartial jury was not violated. St. v. DuBray, 2003 MT 255, 317 M 377, 77 P3d 247 (2003). See also St. v. McMahon, 271 M 75, 894 P2d 313 (1995).

Constitutionality: This section was held constitutional as providing a true cross section of the community and hence not violative of equal protection requirements. Defendants did not prove that the jury selection system was disadvantageous to a cognizable class or that the disadvantage, if any, was occasioned by discrimination in the selection process. St. v. Fitzpatrick, 174 M 174, 569 P2d 383 (1977).

Former Law — Jury Selection Based on Assessment Roll Not Violative of Equal Protection of the Law: Using the definition that an impartial jury is one where potential membership is drawn from a "cross section of the community", court held that the class of people who pay no property taxes is not such a definable class as to provide a basis for objection on an equal protection ground, as all persons who do not pay taxes are not necessarily poor. St. v. Taylor, 168 M 142, 542 P2d 100 (1975).

System for Juror Qualifications — Constitutional: Argument that since Legislature enacted different system for juror qualifications based on most recent list of registered electors rather than last assessment roll, without providing for jury selection commissions to meet after effective date of statute, and therefore no list of eligible jurors was available, failed because of Supreme Court's interpretation that various county jury selection commissions must meet as soon as possible after effective date of statute, invoking court's rulemaking power, under Art. VII, sec. 2(3), Mont. Const., by supplying a meeting and selection date. State ex rel. Bennick v. District Court, 167 M 389, 538 P2d 1369 (1975).

Taxpayers of School District: In an action by school district against fire insurers for loss of school building, taxpayers of district were not disqualified to act as jurors. School District v. Globe & Republic Ins. Co. of America, 142 M 220, 383 P2d 482 (1963).

Sanity of Juror: Under this section and section 93-1303, R.C.M. 1947 (now 3-15-303), a person is not qualified to act as a juror unless he is in possession of his natural faculties. St. v. Bucy, 104 M 416, 66 P2d 1049 (1937).

1983 Amendment: In introductory clause, after "court" inserted "or jury commissioner with the approval of the court"; at end of (2), deleted "or 3-15-507".

1981 Amendment: In (2) substituted "when it satisfactorily appears that the person should be excused under 3-15-313" for "when it satisfactorily appears that the person is exempt and claims the benefit of exemption".

3-15-313. Who may be excused — affidavit to claim excuse — permanent exclusion for chronically incapacitated.

Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 345 inserted (3) providing that a person who is chronically incapacitated may file an affidavit with the jury commissioner and, upon approval of the court, may be permanently excused from jury service; inserted (4) establishing what constitutes chronic incapacity for the purpose of being permanently excused from jury service; and made minor changes in style.

1983 Amendment: Near beginning of (1), after "The court" inserted "or jury commissioner with the approval of the court"; in (2), substituted "jury commissioner" for "clerk of the court" twice; in last sentence of (2), after "The court" inserted "or jury commissioner with the approval of the court"; and deleted former (3), which read: "A person may also be excused from jury service upon presentation of his excuse to the court as provided in 3-15-507."

1981 Amendment: Substituted subsections (1) and (2), mandating an excuse in a case of undue hardship and providing a procedure for an affidavit to claim the excuse, for former text that read: "A juror must not be excused by a court for a slight or trivial cause or for hardship or inconvenience to his business but only when material injury or destruction to his property or property entrusted to him is threatened or when his own health or the sickness or death of a member of his family requires his absence."

Case Notes

Failure of Prospective Juror to File Affidavit to Be Excused From Particular Trial Not Violative of Right to Impartial Jury: Defendant argued that under this section, the submitting of affidavits by those jurors who claim an undue hardship is mandatory and that failure to do so created a material deviation in procuring a jury and was therefore a denial of defendant's constitutional right to an impartial jury. However, once a juror is drawn from the pool, he may, without filing an affidavit, attempt to demonstrate an undue hardship so as to be excused on a particular jury panel. Failure to file an affidavit at that stage of the jury selection process does not constitute a deviation in jury selection sufficient to warrant violation of the right to an impartial jury. St. v. Henry, 241 M 524, 788 P2d 316, 47 St. Rep. 476 (1990).

Improper Questioning and Excusing of Prospective Jurors by Court Clerk: In depositor's suit against bank, the court's clerks examined the prospective jurors, using questions given the clerks by depositor's counsel, without notice to bank's counsel. The clerks asked if the prospective jurors had business or transactions with the bank and released some prospective jurors based on their answers to the questions, thus excusing them for cause without notice to bank's counsel or a ruling by the court. This occurred before an initial jury panel was called. This action violated the procedure set out in 25-7-221, 25-7-224, and Rules 47(a) and 47(b), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20); was outside the type of action permitted by 3-15-313; and constituted reversible error requiring a new trial. Tribby v. NW. Bank of Great Falls, 217 M 196, 704 P2d 409, 42 St. Rep. 1133 (1985).

Grounds for Excuse: A District Judge has the right to excuse jurors called for service who are incompetent for any of the reasons enumerated in section 93-1301, R.C.M. 1947 (now 3-15-301), but under this section (as it read prior to the 1981 amendment), a juror could not be excused for slight or trivial cause or for hardship or inconvenience to his business. *State ex rel. Part 4 Jury Lists

3-15-402. Selection of qualified persons.

Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 133 in first sentence at beginning deleted "Subject to subsection (2), at the meeting specified in 3-15-401, the officers present, working with the office of" and after "registered electors" deleted "as prepared by the county registrar, working with the office of the secretary of state" and in second sentence at beginning before "secretary of state" deleted "officers, working with the office of the" and near middle after "submitted to the" substituted "secretary of state" for "clerk of the district court"; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) The combined list prepared under subsection (1) may not include the name of a person permanently excluded from jury service under 3-15-313"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 5, 2007.

Extension of Effective Date: Section 1, Ch. 99, L. 2005, amended sec. 9, Ch. 441, L. 2003, by extending the effective date imposed by Ch. 441 to October 1, 2007. Effective March 24, 2005.

Applicability Date Extended: Section 2, Ch. 99, L. 2005, amended sec. 10, Ch. 441, L. 2003, to read: "[This act] applies to combined jury lists compiled partly from the lists submitted under [section 1] [61-5-127] by the department of justice to the clerks of the district courts on and after the second Monday of May 2008." Amendment effective March 24, 2005.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 441 throughout section substituted "combined list" for "list" or "jury list"; in (1) in first sentence in two places inserted "working with the office of the secretary of state" and inserted second sentence providing that the officers shall submit a combined list to the district court ensuring that a person's name does not appear more than once on the list; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

Applicability: Section 10, Ch. 441, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies to combined jury lists compiled partly from the lists submitted under [section 1] [61-5-127] by the department of justice to the clerks of the district courts on and after the second Monday of May 2006."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 241 in (1) deleted former third sentence that read: "The numbers must be consecutive from "1" to the total number of jurors." Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 345 at beginning of (1) inserted "Subject to subsection (2)"; inserted (2) providing that the list of persons qualified to serve as jurors may not include a person permanently excluded from jury service under 3-15-313; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendment: Inserted fourth sentence providing that a person's name may not appear on a jury list for more than one court during a 1-year term.

Case Notes

Fair and Impartial Jury: The jury was selected in substantial compliance with the law, and defendant's claim that he was denied a fair and impartial jury must fail. Having more numbers in the jury box than names on the jury list does not destroy the validity of the panel drawn; notifying jurors by telephone is permissible; having less jurors appear than were drawn does not invalidate a trial, as a defendant has no right to select a particular juror. St. v. Coleman, 177 M 1, 579 P2d 732, 35 St. Rep. 560 (1978).

Jury Selection — Constitutionality: A variation between the percentage of Air Force personnel in the county and the percentage of their representation on the jury panel, as taken from the assessment roll under former law, does not reflect a constitutional infirmity in the selection method. St. v. Stewart, 175 M 286, 573 P2d 1138 (1977).

Former Law — Jury Selection Based on Assessment Roll Not Violative of Equal Protection of the Law: Using the definition that an impartial jury is one where potential membership is drawn from a "cross section of the community", court held that the class of people who pay no property taxes is not such a definable class as to provide a basis for objection on an equal protection ground, as all persons who do not pay taxes are not necessarily poor. *St. v. System for Juror Qualifications — Constitutional: Argument that since Legislature enacted different system for juror qualifications based on most recent list of registered electors rather than last assessment roll, without providing for jury selection commissions to meet after effective date of statute, and therefore no list of eligible jurors was available, failed because of Supreme Court's interpretation that various county jury selection commissions must meet as soon as possible after effective date of statute, invoking court's rulemaking power, under Art. VII, sec. 2(3), Mont. Const., by supplying a meeting and selection date. State ex rel. Bennick v. District Court, 167 M 389, 538 P2d 1369 (1975).

Duplication of Names: Allegation in challenge to the panel that many names were included more than once on the jury list was sufficient to require the court to hear the facts to determine whether there had been a material variation from the statutory procedure in making up the jury list. St. v. Chapman, 139 M 98, 360 P2d 703 (1961).

Presumption of Regularity: The presumption that jury lists were made up according to law prevails until an offer of proof to the contrary is actually made. St. v. Bowser, 21 M 133, 53 P 179 (1898).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 133 in (1) at beginning inserted "On or before the first Monday in May"; in (2) at beginning of second sentence inserted "An excerpt, listing the name, address, and birth year of all jurors, must"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 5, 2007.

Extension of Effective Date: Section 1, Ch. 99, L. 2005, amended sec. 9, Ch. 441, L. 2003, by extending the effective date imposed by Ch. 441 to October 1, 2007. Effective March 24, 2005.

Applicability Date Extended: Section 2, Ch. 99, L. 2005, amended sec. 10, Ch. 441, L. 2003, to read: "[This act] applies to combined jury lists compiled partly from the lists submitted under [section 1] [61-5-127] by the department of justice to the clerks of the district courts on and after the second Monday of May 2008." Amendment effective March 24, 2005.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 441 in (1) deleted former first sentence that read: "A list of the names of the persons selected, showing the place of residence and other proper particulars regarding each of them, so far as those particulars can be conveniently ascertained, must be made out and signed by the officers or a majority of them" and at beginning of first sentence substituted "The combined list prepared under 3-15-402 must be delivered by the office of the secretary of state" for "Within 15 days after the meeting, the list must be delivered by those officers" and at end after "office" inserted "no later than 5 business days after the receipt of the combined list"; in (2) near beginning after "jury" substituted "lists filed under subsection (1) and compiled under 3-15-404 and 46-17-202" for "list"; deleted former (3) that read: "(3) If the clerk of court is satisfied that a person whose name is drawn is deceased or mentally incompetent or has permanently moved from the county, the name of the person must be omitted from the jury list. The reason for the omission must be entered in the minutes of the court"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

Applicability: Section 10, Ch. 441, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies to combined jury lists compiled partly from the lists submitted under [section 1] [61-5-127] by the department of justice to the clerks of the district courts on and after the second Monday of May 2006."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 241 inserted (2) requiring retention of copy of latest jury list and description of approved computerized random selection process, if used; inserted (3) allowing clerk of court to omit certain names from jury list; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1981 Amendment: Changed "5 days" to "15 days" at the beginning of the last sentence.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 133 in (6) in first sentence near middle substituted "list of persons to serve as trial jurors for the ensuing year" for "jury list" and inserted second sentence requiring clerk of court to prepare list on or before second Monday of June; in (7) in first sentence near middle after "county" inserted "or has been permanently excused under the provisions of 3-15-313" and in second sentence at end substituted "recorded" for "entered in the minutes of the court"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 5, 2007.

Applicability Date Extended: Section 2, Ch. 99, L. 2005, amended sec. 10, Ch. 441, L. 2003, to read: "[This act] applies to combined jury lists compiled partly from the lists submitted under [section 1] [61-5-127] by the department of justice to the clerks of the district courts on and after the second Monday of May 2008." Amendment effective March 24, 2005.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 441 in (3) at end of sixth sentence inserted "filed under 3-15-403"; in (4) near middle after "jurors" substituted "filed under 3-15-403" for "prepared under the provisions of 3-15-402"; inserted (5) providing that a person's name may not appear on more than one court's jury list during a 1-year term; inserted (6) requiring the clerk of court to prepare a jury list for each division of the district court; and inserted (7) providing procedure for the omission of a person's name from a jury list. Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

Applicability: Section 10, Ch. 441, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies to combined jury lists compiled partly from the lists submitted under [section 1] [61-5-127] by the department of justice to the clerks of the district courts on and after the second Monday of May 2006."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 241 inserted (1) providing that clerk of court is jury commissioner; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1985 Amendment: Inserted (1) allowing County Jury Commissioner to use either a jury box or a computer database to select jurors; in (2) at beginning of first sentence, inserted "If a county uses a jury box for selection of jurors" and substituted "jury commissioner" for "clerk", and at end of first sentence, substituted "subsection" for "section"; and inserted (3) requiring Commissioner to have the juror list prepared under 3-15-402 entered into the data base if a computerized data base is used to select jurors.

Case Notes

Fair and Impartial Jury: The jury was selected in substantial compliance with the law, and defendant's claim that he was denied a fair and impartial jury must fail. Having more numbers in the jury box than names on the jury list does not destroy the validity of the panel drawn; notifying jurors by telephone is permissible; having less jurors appear than were drawn does not invalidate a trial, as a defendant has no right to select a particular juror. *St. v. Use of Capsules: Where a jury venire was drawn from a jury box in which there had been inserted approximately 30,000 numbers enclosed in separate black capsules and approximately 15,000 numbered slips of unfolded paper not enclosed in capsules, it was proper to issue a Writ of Prohibition restraining the Judge from calling civil and criminal cases to be tried before the jury venire. *State ex rel. Part 5Trial Juries — District Court*Part Case Notes

Error in Excusing Juror for Cause Before Voir Dire — Error Harmless Absent Showing of Prejudice: Prior to voir dire in defendant's trial for sexual intercourse without consent and incest, the prosecutor requested that juror no. 43 be excused. The juror had recently worked in the County Attorney's office and had access to a wide range of information relating to issues that defendant had been involved in, and the prosecutor had recently fired the juror for unsatisfactory performance. The trial judge dismissed the juror because of concerns that the juror might have feelings or predilections for one side or the other and because of the possibility of the juror communicating with other prospective jurors. Following conviction, defendant appealed the decision to excuse the juror for cause prior to voir dire. The Supreme Court concluded that the trial court erred in excusing the juror without an in-court examination to determine actual bias; however, the error was not a material failure to substantially comply with statutes governing procurement of a trial jury, so the dismissal was subject to harmless error review. Defendant could not demonstrate prejudice because even if juror no. 43 had not been dismissed, the juror would not have been on the jury because the last juror empaneled was juror no. 36. The Supreme Court affirmed. St. v. Bearchild, 2004 MT 355, 324 M 435, 103 P3d 1006 (2004), distinguishing St. v. Lamere, 2000 MT 45, 298 M 358, 2 P3d 204 (2000), and *St. v. Case Remanded Because Jury Improperly Summoned — Sufficient Evidence to Support Convictions for Felony Assault and Aggravated Burglary: Lopez was convicted of felony assault and aggravated burglary. On appeal, it was held that the District Court should not have denied Lopez's motion to strike the jury because under St. v. Lamere, 2000 MT 45, 298 M 358, 2 P3d 204 (2000), summoning a jury by telephone violates 3-15-505 (now repealed) and frustrates the random nature of the jury process. Lopez contended that the state did not meet its burden of proving the elements of either crime and that he should not be retried on those charges. The Supreme Court disagreed, finding that the state offered sufficient evidence to prove both offenses, and remanded for retrial. St. v. Lopez, 2001 MT 97, 305 M 218, 26 P3d 745 (2001).

Substantial Compliance Required With Statutes Providing for Method of Jury Panel Selection — Right to Speedy and Public Trial by Impartial Jury Implicated: Prior to Highpine's trial, the Clerk of District Court sent out questionnaires and summonses to potential jurors and then drew 200 names from the pool of those who returned the questionnaires. The clerk then served notice to the jurors by telephone. Those jurors who either failed to return the questionnaires or did so without including phone numbers were not contacted at all. Those who did not respond to the clerk's phone call were not contacted again once the requisite number of jurors had been contacted. Section 3-15-505 (now repealed) required that when "a person fails to respond to the notice, the clerk shall certify the failure to the sheriff, who shall then serve notice personally on such person and require a response to the notice". The District Court held that Highpine was not prejudiced by the clerk's method of selecting the jury panel. Highpine presented evidence to the Supreme Court of the number of Native American households that do not have telephones and are therefore disproportionately excluded from the panel as a result of the procedure used by the clerk. The Supreme Court held that the practice of the clerk did not substantially comply with the requirements of statute and pointed out, citing St. v. Lamere, 2000 MT 45, 298 M 358, 2 P3d 204 (2000), that a defendant's right to challenge a jury panel for substantial noncompliance with statutory procedures is directly connected to that defendant's right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury. The Supreme Court held that the District Court erred when that court held that Highpine was not prejudiced by the actions of the clerk, reversed the District Court, and remanded the case for a new trial. St. v. Highpine, 2000 MT 368, 303 M 422, 15 P3d 938, 57 St. Rep. 1573 (2000).

Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1983 Amendment: In last sentence of (1), substituted "must be at the discretion of the court" for "which time may be at the same term in which the jurors are drawn or at the next succeeding term, in the discretion of the court".

Section Not Codified: The part of section 93-315, R.C.M. 1947, that is redundant with 3-15-501, MCA, was not codified in the MCA. This provision has not been repealed and is still valid law. Reference may be made to sec. 1, Ch. 144, L. 1959.

Case Notes

Failure to Summon Entire Panel by Telephonic Juror Summoning — New Trial Warranted: Of the 200-juror panel randomly drawn for Lamere's murder trial, over one-third of the prospective jurors were excluded from possible jury service by virtue of the manner in which a telephone-only notification method skewed the random nature and objectivity of the statutory jury selection procedures. By failing to summon the entire panel or array drawn for the trial, the purpose of juror notification was undermined. Jury duty cannot be lightly shirked, as a telephone summoning system allowed, without doing violence to the democratic nature of the jury system. Because the substantial failure to comply with the statutory requirements materially undermined the jury selection process, Lamere was granted a new trial. St. v. Lamere, 2000 MT 45, 298 M 358, 2 P3d 204, 57 St. Rep. 214 (2000), following Thiel v. S. Pac. Co., 328 US 217, 90 L Ed 1181, 66 S Ct 984 (1946), and applied retroactively in Robbins v. St., 2002 MT 116, 310 M 10, 50 P3d 134 (2002). See also St. v. Groom, 49 M 354, 141 P 858 (1914), and State ex rel. School District v. Carroll, 87 M 45, 284 P 1008 (1930).

Substantial Compliance Standard Clarified With Regard to Statutory Process for Forming Jury: The objective statutory procedures established by the Legislature for the random selection of jurors are intended to protect a defendant's fundamental right to a fair and impartial jury and must be substantially complied with. Under Montana case law, the substantial compliance standard is not an absolute rule inasmuch as it permits minor deviations from statutory procedure. These technical deviations do not constitute a substantial failure to comply and therefore do not give rise to a presumption of prejudice. In clarifying the substantial compliance standard, the Supreme Court took guidance from federal case law developed under the federal Jury Selection and Service Act of 1968, 28 U.S.C. 1861, et seq. In order to establish a violation under the federal Act, a defendant must show that the government substantially failed to comply with the methods set forth by statute for jury selection. Substantial failure has been construed as a violation that contravenes one of two basic principles: (1) random selection of jurors; and (2) determination of juror disqualification, excuses, exemptions, and exclusion on the basis of objective criteria. A successful challenge to the jury panel may be founded only on a material departure from the law, a deviation amounting to more than a technical irregularity. Thus, a substantial or material statutory departure that affects the random nature or objectivity of the jury selection process establishes a violation independently of the departure's consequences in an individual case, while a technical or nonmaterial violation constitutes nonprejudicial error under the substantial compliance standard. St. v. Lamere, 2000 MT 45, 298 M 358, 2 P3d 204, 57 St. Rep. 214 (2000), overruling St. v. Robbins, 1998 MT 297, 292 M 23, 971 P2d 359, 55 St. Rep. 1213 (1998).

Telephone Jury-Summoning Procedure Violative of Statutory Selection Process — Showing of Substantial Compliance, Not Prejudice, Required — Reversible Error: Lamere, charged with killing Brownlee, filed a pretrial motion to strike the jury panel, but the motion was denied. The question on appeal was whether the District Court erred in concluding that Lamere failed to show that the telephone-dependent summoning procedure used in Cascade County prejudiced Lamere's substantial rights to a jury drawn and summoned according to law. The Supreme Court applied St. v. Robbins, 1998 MT 297, 292 M 23, 971 P2d 359, 55 St. Rep. 1213 (1998), in holding that the method of summoning jurors by telephone failed to comply with statutes governing the impaneling of a jury because jurors were neither served by mail nor served personally by the Sheriff. However, to warrant reversal, Robbins also required a showing of actual prejudice in addition to a substantial failure to comply with statutory law in drawing a jury panel. The Supreme Court chose to return to the per se rule of reversal for failure to substantially comply with statutes governing procurement of a trial jury, overruling the Robbins requirement of prejudice. The decision turned on the U.S. Supreme Court's contemporary distinction between trial error, to which harmless error review applies, and structural error, to which harmless error review is inapplicable (see Johnson v. U.S., 520 US 461, 137 L Ed 2d 718, 117 S Ct 1544 (1997), and its predecessors). In Lamere's case, the automatic rule of reversal prevailed because errors in the jury selection process are structural in nature, affecting the very framework within which a trial proceeds—errors that indelibly affect the essential fairness of the trial itself. A material failure to substantially comply with Montana statutes governing procurement of a trial jury may not be treated as harmless error because: (1) it precedes the presentation of evidence to the jury and cannot be analyzed as a mere trial error without resorting to speculation; (2) it precedes the trial process and cannot be quantitatively assessed for its prejudicial impact relative to the evidence introduced at trial; (3) it affects the very framework within which the trial proceeds; and (4) the impartiality of the jury goes to the very integrity of the justice system and because the right to an impartial jury is so essential to the concept of a fair trial that its violation cannot be considered harmless error. The substantial compliance standard vindicates not only the rights of the individual defendant but also the rights of the public in ensuring that the jury system remains inviolate, protecting a defendant's right to an impartial jury by encouraging reasonably strict compliance with statutory procedures intended to implement the fair cross-section guarantee of the sixth amendment of the U.S. Constitution. St. v. Lamere, 2000 MT 45, 298 M 358, 2 P3d 204, 57 St. Rep. 214 (2000), following Chapman v. Calif., 386 US 18, 17 L Ed 2d 705, 87 S Ct 824 (1967), Satterwhite v. Tex., 486 US 249, 100 L Ed 2d 284, 108 S Ct 1792 (1988), and Ariz. v. Fulminante, 499 US 279, 113 L Ed 302, 111 S Ct 1246 (1991), followed in St. v. Lopez, 2001 MT 97, 305 M 218, 26 P3d 745 (2001), and applied retroactively in Robbins v. St., 2002 MT 116, 310 M 10, 50 P3d 134 (2002).

Improper Telephonic Notification of Jury Selection — Harmless Error: Rather than the statutory method of summoning jurors, the District Court Clerk sought to notify available jurors by telephone. If the juror was unavailable by telephone, the Clerk moved to the next name on the list. Robbins objected to the procedure, asserting that the 5-day mandate of 46-16-112 was not applicable to his motion to strike the venire and that the trial court erred by concluding that the challenge to the summoning process was untimely. The District Court found that the Clerk had substantially complied with the relevant statutes, but the Supreme Court disagreed, holding that the Clerk failed to comply with 3-15-505 (now repealed). However, because Robbins failed to adduce any actual prejudice in the summoning procedure, the error was held to be harmless. St. v. Robbins, 1998 MT 297, 292 M 23, 971 P2d 359, 55 St. Rep. 1213 (1998), followed, with regard to improper use of telephonic summoning of jurors, but overruled, with regard to applicability of the harmless error standard in 46-20-701 and the requirement of an actual showing of prejudice to sustain a challenge to the jury panel under the substantial compliance standard, in St. v. Lamere, 2000 MT 45, 298 M 358, 2 P3d 204, 57 St. Rep. 214 (2000).

Right to Draw From Box No. 3: Where 70 jurors were drawn from jury box No. 1, there was no abuse of discretion in not drawing more, and no constitutional rights were violated by drawing from jury box No. 3 after the original panel was exhausted. St. v. Hay, 120 M 573, 194 P2d 232 (1948), distinguished in St. v. Porter, 125 M 503, 242 P2d 984 (1952).

Summoning Jury by Interested Sheriff: The facts that the victim of a homicide was a Deputy Sheriff and that the Sheriff was a witness for the state did not disqualify the latter or his deputies from summoning the jury on the theory that they were interested in the outcome of the prosecution. St. v. Heaston, 109 M 303, 97 P2d 330 (1939).

Summons for Jury Service: The fact that the summons under which jurors were ordered to appear for service as petit jurors contained a note appended thereto that if they had any reason why they should not serve they should return the summons personally to the judge and present their excuses to him did not render the summons illegal. State ex rel. School District v. Carroll, 87 M 45, 284 P 1008 (1930).

Completion of Panel: A jury panel or array selected for the trial of cases in the District Court is not complete until the jurors are accepted for service and their names are placed in the trial juror box; only then can it be said that the array is impaneled. State ex rel. Clark v. District Court, 86 M 509, 284 P 266 (1930).

Nonprejudicial Irregularity: Where the trial court, instead of ordering a panel of regular jurors drawn in a number deemed by it sufficient for the term had them drawn under three successive orders as occasion required, defendant was not in position to complain of the procedure followed, he not having been prejudiced thereby. St. v. Vuckovich, 61 M 480, 203 P 491 (1921).

Mandatory Provisions: Provisions governing the drawing of a jury panel are mandatory. St. v. Landry, 29 M 218, 74 P 418 (1903).

1999 Amendment: Chapter 241 in (1)(b) deleted last sentence that read: "A copy of the latest jury list and a description of the approved computerized random selection process must be kept in the office of the clerk of court and be available for public inspection during normal business hours"; deleted former (3) and (4) that read: "(3) If the jury commissioner is satisfied that any person whose name is drawn is deceased or mentally incompetent or has permanently moved from the county, the name of the person shall be omitted from the list and another name shall be drawn in its place. The reason for the omission shall be entered upon the minutes of the court. The same procedure shall be followed as often as may be necessary, until the number of names of jurors required has been drawn.

(4) No person may be asked to serve for more than one term during any year unless all persons on the list established under 3-15-402 have been drawn and there are no other qualified jurors available"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1985 Amendment: At beginning of (1)(a) inserted "If the drawing of jurors is conducted by means of a jury box" and substituted "jury commissioner" for "clerk"; inserted (1)(b) providing computerized database drawing procedure and requiring a copy of the latest jury list and description of selection process to be kept in Clerk of Court's office and available for public inspection; at end of (2) after "jury box", inserted alternative relating to computerized selection; and in (4) after "all", substituted "persons on the list established under 3-15-402" for "the numbers in the jury box".

1981 Amendment: Changed "judge" to "jury commissioner" in the last sentence of (1); changed "court" to "jury commissioner" at the beginning of (3).

Case Notes

Elimination of Prospective Jury Members Based on Alphabetized Jury List Not Violative of Random Jury Selection: The Clerk of the District Court was instructed to prepare a jury pool of 80 prospective jurors for Azure's trial. The clerk had three smaller pools available and combined two entire pools plus the first 21 names from the other pool. Because the names had been chosen and alphabetized by computer, only people with names beginning with A through K were chosen from the 21 names in the third pool. Azure contended that eliminating persons from a jury pool based on the first letter of their names did not constitute a random sample of prospective jurors and violated his right to a fair trial. The Supreme Court disagreed. Mere alphabetization of a randomly selected list of names and the elimination of some of those names based exclusively on where they fell in the alphabet did not constitute a systematic exclusion of a distinct identifiable class of the community and did not taint the random jury selection process. Because Azure could not establish that the selection method constituted a substantial failure to comply with jury procurement statutes, the trial court's decision to deny Azure's challenge to the venire was correct, and the Supreme Court affirmed. St. v. Azure, 2005 MT 328, 329 M 536, 125 P3d 1116 (2005), following St. v. Taylor, 168 M 142, 542 P2d 100 (1975), and distinguishing St. v. Lamere, 2000 MT 45, 298 M 358, 2 P3d 204 (2000).

Use of Capsules: When a jury venire was drawn from a jury box in which there had been inserted approximately 30,000 numbers inclosed in separate black capsules and approximately 15,000 numbered slips of unfolded paper not enclosed in capsules, it was proper to issue a Writ of Prohibition restraining the Judge from calling civil and criminal cases to be tried before the jury venire. State ex rel. Henningsen v. District Court, 136 M 354, 348 P2d 143 (1959).

Waiver of Irregularities: Appellant's objection was waived by failure to challenge the panel with knowledge or means of knowledge at hand of the alleged illegal procedure in drawing the jury. Ledger v. McKenzie, 107 M 335, 85 P2d 352 (1938).

Judge's Functions: The judge ordered the drawing of the jury and directed the Clerk during its progress under 3-15-502 (now repealed), as it read prior to the 1981 amendment. State ex rel. Breen v. District Court, 34 M 107, 85 P 870 (1906).

Chapter Attorney General's Opinions

Reapportionment — Holdover Senators: Article V, sec. 3, Mont. Const., provides that state Senators be elected to 4-year terms on a staggered basis. The constitution and statutes provide no authority for changing Senators' terms after reapportionment. The reapportionment plan is the responsibility of the Montana Districting and Apportionment Commission. The Commission has the inherent authority under Art. V, sec. 14, Mont. Const., to do what is necessary to implement a plan that complies with the state's laws. How to deal with holdover Senators is the responsibility of the Commission. The terms of office of members of the Montana State Senate who were elected in 1982 may not be shortened as a result of reapportionment and redistricting. 40 A.G. Op. 2 (1983).

Reapportionment Commission — Exclusive Power to Apportion Legislative and Congressional Districts: The Reapportionment Commission has the exclusive power to determine the size of the legislative houses and the geographical makeup of the legislative and congressional districts, subject only to the restrictions of Art. V, Mont. Const. 35 A.G. Op. 12 (1973).

Constitutional Grant of Power to Apportion — Historical and Current: Prior to the adoption of the 1972 Montana Constitution, the apportionment power was granted to the Legislature. See Art. VI, 1889 Mont. Const. However, with the adoption of the new Constitution, the people of this state divested the Legislature of all power concerning apportionment of the Legislature, except for the power of recommendation in Art. V, sec. 14, 1972 Mont. Const. 35 A.G. Op. 12 (1973).

Reapportionment Plan Becomes Law: Upon submission of the apportionment plan, proposed by the Reapportionment Commission, to the Secretary of State, the plan becomes law and all previous statutory provisions in conflict with that plan are, in effect, repealed. 35 A.G. Op. 12 (1973).

Legislative Determination of Size of Legislative Assembly — Not Controlling: The Reapportionment Commission was not bound by a legislative determination of the size of the legislative assembly, and sections 43-106.6 and 43-106.7, R.C.M. 1947 (repealed by sec. 1, Ch. 14, L. 1975), enacted prior to the adoption of the 1972 Montana Constitution, are not controlling. (See 1987 amendment to 5-1-101.) 35 A.G. Op. 12 (1973).

Contingent Effective Date: Section 7, Ch. 477, L. 1983, provided: "This act becomes effective October 1, 1985, if House Bill No. 151, which requires a constitutional amendment to accelerate Montana's congressional redistricting, is passed by the legislature and approved by the electorate. If the legislature does not pass House Bill No. 151 or the electorate does not approve the constitutional amendment, this act is void." House Bill No. 151 (Ch. 421, L. 1983) was approved by the electorate as Constitutional Amendment No. 14 at the election held Nov. 6, 1984, by a vote of 214,956 to 109,813.

Part Case Notes

No Authority of Legislature to Assign Holdover Senators Following Redistricting: The 2003 Districting and Apportionment Commission plan for redistricting House and Senate districts assigned holdover Senators who were elected under the old districting system to redrawn districts under the new system, and the Commission submitted the plan to the 2003 Legislature for recommendations. In response, the Legislature passed 5-1-116 (now repealed), granting to itself the power to assign holdover Senators to districts for the remainder of their terms and prohibiting the Commission from making those assignments. The Legislature then passed further legislation implementing its recommendations. Three of the holdover Senators challenged the legislative assignments. The District Court declared 5-1-116 (now repealed) and the implementing legislation unconstitutional, and the Supreme Court affirmed. Under Art. V, sec. 14, Mont. Const., the mandate that the Districting and Apportionment Commission effect redistricting is self-executing, and the power to assign districts for holdover Senators is historically an inherent part of the redistricting process. The constitutional grant of redistricting power to the Commission constitutes a denial of any latitude to the Legislature to invoke its plenary powers. Thus, the 2003 legislation designed to transfer the power to assign holdover Senators from the Commission to the Legislature was unconstitutional and of no force and effect.

Wheat v. Brown, 2004 MT 33, 320 M 15, 85 P3d 765 (2004). See also Cargo v. Paulus, 635 P2d 367 (Oreg. 1981).

2002 Redistricting Plan — Legislative Attempts to Change Plan Unconstitutional: Following legislative action pertaining to legislative redistricting, the Commission tendered its plan to the Secretary of State for filing, but the Secretary of State refused to file it. The District Court found that the legislative enactments were unconstitutional and void. The Secretary of State is required to file the Commission's plan, and refusal to do so violates the Montana Constitution. The Secretary of State does not have standing to seek a declaratory judgment on the constitutionality of the Commission's plan. Brown v. Mont. Districting & Apportionment Comm'n, Cause No. ADV-2003-72, First Judicial District Decision and Order, July 2003.

1992 Redistricting Plan — Totality of Circumstances — Lower Court Decision Not Clearly Erroneous: The District Court did not clearly err in determining that the totality of circumstances did not establish vote dilution in the districts where plaintiffs resided. Old Person v. Brown, 312 F3d 1036 (9th Cir. 2002).

1992 Redistricting Plan — No Vote Dilution — Unavailability of Adequate Remedy: On remand to District Court, the court found that plaintiffs had limited standing and failed to show vote dilution in specific legislative districts where they resided. Even if vote dilution had been shown, the claim failed because of unavailability of an adequate remedy because of fast-approaching 2002 elections, the last elections to be conducted under the 1992 plan. Old Person v. Brown, 182 F. Supp. 2d 1002 (D.C. Mont. 2002), affirmed in 312 F3d 1036 (9th Cir. 2002).

1992 Redistricting Plan — District Court Error in Application of Third Prong of Gingles Test: American Indian plaintiffs filed an action in District Court alleging that the 1992 redistricting plan for Montana's state House of Representatives and Senate diluted the voting strength of American Indians in violation of sec. 2 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 and that the Montana Districting and Apportionment Commission adopted the plan with a discriminatory purpose, also in violation of the Voting Rights Act. In Old Person v. Cooney, No. CV-96-00004-PGH (D.C. Mont. 1999), the District Court rejected all claims by the plaintiffs, ruling that the Commission did not discriminate against Montana Indians and that the 1992 redistricting plan did not have the effect of discriminating against the state's Indian voters because the plaintiffs had not proved that non-Indians voted as a bloc to defeat Indian-preferred candidates. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court affirmed the District Court's ruling that the plaintiffs had not demonstrated that Montana's 1992 redistricting plan was adopted with a discriminatory purpose in violation of the Voting Rights Act. However, the Ninth Circuit Court reversed and remanded the lower court's decision, ruling that the District Court erred in its application of the third prong of the Gingles test and that this error resulted in a clearly erroneous finding that white bloc voting was not legally significant. The Ninth Circuit Court also concluded that the District Court erred in finding proportionality between the number of legislative districts in which American Indians constituted an effective majority and the American Indian share of the voting age population in Montana. Because this error may have affected the District Court's ultimate finding that, in the totality of circumstances, no dilution of American Indian voting strength had occurred, the Ninth Circuit Court reversed the District Court's judgment and remanded the case for further proceedings. On remand, a trial date of November 2001 was set to consider evidence pertaining strictly to the Ninth Circuit Court's remand relating to the District Court's previous finding of proportionality and whether, considering the totality of the circumstances, Montana's 1992 redistricting plan diluted American Indian voting strength. Old Person v. Cooney, 230 F3d 1113, (9th Cir. 2000) (Old Person I).

Application of 1983 Reapportionment Commission Criteria — Balancing of Criteria: The 1983 Montana Districting and Apportionment Commission established five criteria to follow in redistricting that addressed governmental boundaries, geographic boundaries, communities of interest, consideration of existing district boundaries, and an attempt to stay within a 5% plus or minus deviation from the ideal district population. The court held that these criteria were considerations and that conflicts between them as they existed within a district or between districts must be balanced in arriving at a plan embracing the entire state. The Commission had to interpret its own criteria, such as what constituted a community of interest and the possible ripple effects of any particular change; thus, when the Commission made a good faith effort to balance the criteria, the reapportionment plan could not be struck down on the contention that the Commission failed to exactly follow its own criteria. McBride v. Mahoney, 573 F. Supp. 913, 40 St. Rep. 1907 (D.C. Mont. 1983).

1983 Reapportionment Plan — Total Population Deviation Over Ten Percent Upheld — Legitimate State Interests: In the 1983 reapportionment plan, the total population deviation between House districts was 10.94% and between Senate districts was 10.18%, which created a prima facie case of discrimination because the totals exceeded 10%. To be upheld, the deviations must be justified by legitimate state objectives. The court determined that legitimate state objectives were stated in criteria established by the Montana Districting and Apportionment Commission. The criteria addressed governmental boundaries, geographic boundaries, communities of interest, consideration of existing district boundaries, and an attempt to stay within a 5% plus or minus deviation from the ideal population. McBride v. Mahoney, 573 F. Supp. 913, 40 St. Rep. 1907 (D.C. Mont. 1983).

Projected Population as Basis for Reapportionment: A reapportionment plan will not be struck down for failure to consider projected population growth when the Montana Districting and Apportionment Commission did not consider population projections and it was not presented with data that would have enabled it to apply population projections in a systematic manner. McBride v. Mahoney, 573 F. Supp. 913, 40 St. Rep. 1907 (D.C. Mont. 1983).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

When Plan to Be Submitted — Recess and Reconvening: The Districting and Apportionment Commission is required under 5-1-109 to submit its plan to the 47th Legislature if census data is available in December 1980. The Legislature may recess and reconvene at a later date and still be within its regular session to receive and make recommendations, according to 5-1-110, on the Commission's plan. 38 A.G. Op. 99 (1980).

Procedure for Submitting Reapportionment Plan: The reapportionment plan should be submitted, with a cover letter signed by each Commission member, to each house of the Legislature by the 10th day of the legislative session, and within 30 days of the return of the reapportionment plan from the Legislature, the final plan should be submitted, with a cover letter signed by each Commission member, to the Secretary of State for filing. 35 A.G. Op. 50 (1973).

Reapportionment Commission — Exclusive Power to Apportion Legislative and Congressional Districts: The Reapportionment Commission has the exclusive power to determine the size of the legislative houses and the geographical makeup of the legislative and congressional districts, subject only to the restrictions of Art. V, Mont. Const. 35 A.G. Op. 12 (1973).

Constitutional Grant of Power to Apportion — Historical and Current: Prior to the adoption of the 1972 Montana Constitution, the apportionment power was granted to the Legislature. See Art. VI, 1889 Mont. Const. However, with the adoption of the new Constitution, the people of this state divested the Legislature of all power concerning apportionment of the Legislature, except for the power of recommendation in Art. V, sec. 14, 1972 Mont. Const. 35 A.G. Op. 12 (1973).

Reapportionment Plan Becomes Law: Upon submission of the apportionment plan, proposed by the Reapportionment Commission, to the Secretary of State, the plan becomes law and all previous statutory provisions in conflict with that plan are, in effect, repealed. 35 A.G. Op. 12 (1973).

Legislative Determination of Size of Legislative Assembly — Not Controlling: The Reapportionment Commission was not bound by a legislative determination of the size of the legislative assembly, and sections 43-106.6 and 43-106.7, R.C.M. 1947 (repealed by sec. 1, Ch. 14, L. 1975), enacted prior to the adoption of the 1972 Montana Constitution, are not controlling. (See 1987 amendment to 5-1-101.) 35 A.G. Op. 12 (1973).

Coordination — Applicability: Section 1, Ch. 3, L. 2003, and sec. 1, Ch. 546, L. 2003, both enacted redistricting criteria. The criteria contained in sec. 1, Ch. 3, L. 2003, are also contained in and expanded upon in sec. 1, Ch. 546, L. 2003. Therefore, the code commissioner has codified both sections as 5-1-115. Section 1, Ch. 3, L. 2003, was effective February 4, 2003, and applies retroactively to any legislative redistricting plan of the districting and apportionment commission that was not filed with the secretary of state on February 4, 2003. Section 11(3), Ch. 546, L. 2003, a coordination section, repealed Ch. 3, L. 2003, effective October 1, 2003. However, sec. 12, Ch. 546, L. 2003, provides that Ch. 546, L. 2003, applies to proceedings begun after October 1, 2003, for the redistricting based on the 2010 decennial census. Therefore, the apparent result of sec. 11(3), Ch. 546, L. 2003, is to apply the repeal of Ch. 3, L. 2003, only to proceedings for redistricting based on the 2010 decennial census.

Section 1, Ch. 3, L. 2003, provided: "Redistricting criteria. (1) In the drawing of legislative districts, the districting and apportionment commission shall comply with the following criteria:

- (a) the districts must be compact and contiguous; and
- (b) the districts must be as equal as practicable.

(2) For the purposes of this section, "as equal as practicable" means within a plus or minus 1% relative deviation from the ideal population of a district as calculated from information provided by the federal decennial census."

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 278, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the Montana Constitution and the verbatim transcripts of the 1972 Constitutional Convention do not address the assignment of holdover senators to districts following the drawing of new legislative districts pursuant to Article V, section 14, of the Montana Constitution; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court has consistently held that the Constitution is a limit on rather than a grant of legislative authority, beginning with State ex rel. Evans v. Stewart, 53 Mont. 18, 161 P. 309 (1916); and

WHEREAS, in spite of the lack of a constitutional limit on legislative authority, the Legislature has acquiesced in the assignment of holdover senators by the Districting and Apportionment Commission because of the fair and nonpartisan assignments that have traditionally occurred; and

WHEREAS, the districting plan submitted to the 58th Legislature for review and comment proposed to assign holdover senators on partisan basis for future partisan gain; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature enacted Senate Bill No. 258 as Chapter 4, Laws of 2003, to authorize the Legislature to assign holdover senators and prohibit the Districting and Apportionment Commission from assigning holdover senators prior to the Districting and Apportionment Commission's adoption of its final plan."

Repealer: Section 1, Ch. 278, L. 2003, provided: "Section 3 of the districting and apportionment plan of 2003, the transition provision assigning holdover senators to new legislative districts, is repealed." Effective April 9, 2003.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 278, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to the districting and apportionment plan adopted by the districting and apportionment commission on February 5, 2003."

Attorney General's Opinions

Applicability of Term Limit Provisions to Appointed Senators — Definitions: Regarding the status of state Senators appointed upon the death or resignation of the incumbent to fill an unexpired term of office that began in 1991, the word "terms" refers to time served in terms beginning or ending before or after January 1993. The word does not refer to a particular date and does not simply exclude or include years prior to the date, but rather includes time by reference to the beginning or ending date of a term of office. Further, the word "year" does not refer strictly to a calendar year of 12 months when used in the context of legislative terms of office because a term does not necessarily begin on the first day of a calendar year. Applying the word “year” in such a strict manner would lead to an unintended, absurd result. A term of office for a state Senator is 4 years beginning on the first Monday in January in the year following the general election. If a Senator accedes to office by appointment or election, that Senator serves to complete the term of the person originally elected. Thus, for a Senator continually serving from the date of appointment or election to fill the unexpired portion of a term that began when the original incumbent took office in 1991, the first term of office counted toward the term limit is the term beginning in January 1995. 47 A.G. Op. 9 (1997).

Reapportionment — Holdover Senators: Article V, sec. 3, Mont. Const., provides that state Senators be elected to 4-year terms on a staggered basis. The constitution and statutes provide no authority for changing Senators’ terms after reapportionment. The reapportionment plan is the responsibility of the Montana Districting and Apportionment Commission. The Commission has the inherent authority under Art. V, sec. 14, Mont. Const., to do what is necessary to implement a plan that complies with the state’s laws. How to deal with holdover Senators is the responsibility of the Commission. The terms of office of members of the Montana State Senate who were elected in 1982 may not be shortened as a result of reapportionment and redistricting. 40 A.G. Op. 2 (1983).

Case Notes

Constitutional Convention Delegate: State and local officers who are prohibited from holding more than one office may not serve as delegates to a State Constitutional Convention. A delegate to a constitutional convention is a “state officer” holding a public office of a civil nature. 42nd Legislative Assembly v. Lennon, 156 M 416, 481 P2d 330 (1971).

Definition of “Civil Office”: A position of employment is a civil office if: (1) it must be created by the Constitution or the Legislature or a municipality pursuant to authority delegated to it; (2) it must possess a delegation of a portion of the sovereign power of government to be exercised for benefit of the public; (3) the powers and duties must be defined, either directly or impliedly, by the Legislature or through legislative authority; (4) the duties must be performed independently and without control of a superior power, unless they are those of an inferior or subordinate office, created or authorized by the Legislature and by it placed under the control of a superior office or body; and (5) it must have permanency and continuity, and the incumbent must take and file an oath, hold a commission, and give an official bond, if required by proper authority. State ex rel. Barney v. Hawkins, 79 M 506, 257 P 411 (1927).

Attorney General’s Opinions

Legislator Prohibited From Appointment to Board of Review: Membership on the Board of Review established in 30-16-302 is considered a public office of a civil nature pursuant to the five-part test in State ex rel. Barney v. Hawkins, 79 M 506, 257 P 411 (1927). Therefore, Art. V, sec. 9, Mont. Const., and this section prohibit the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives from appointing a legislator as a member of the Board of Review, including appointment as a nonvoting member. Because of the prohibition against the appointment of a legislator to a civil office during the legislator's term of office, the President and Speaker may appoint only a nonlegislator as a member of the Board of Review. 49 A.G. Op. 15 (2002).

Mayor Prohibited From Serving as Legislator: An elected Mayor holds a "public office of a civil nature" as defined in State ex rel. Barney v. Hawkins, 79 M 506, 257 P 411 (1927). The office of Mayor is vested with a portion of the sovereign power of government which is executive in character. A Mayor is therefore prohibited by Art. V, sec. 9, Mont. Const., from serving as a member of the Legislature while serving as Mayor. 41 A.G. Op. 79 (1986).

Municipal Officer Holding "Public Office of Civil Nature" Disqualified From Service in Legislature: A municipal officer who holds "public office of a civil nature", as that phrase is defined in State ex rel. Barney v. Hawkins, 79 M 506; 257 P 411 (1927), is prohibited by Art. V, sec. 9, Mont. Const., from serving as a member of the Legislature during his continuance in municipal office. 40 A.G. Op. 46 (1984).

Political Caucuses Considered Person Subject to Suit: A political party caucus is by definition considered an unincorporated association or body of two or more persons having a joint or common interest. Drawing no distinction between presession and session caucuses, the Supreme Court held, on the basis of the plain language in Rule 4A, M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), that a political party caucus is a person subject to court jurisdiction. Assoc. Press v. Mont. Senate Republican Caucus, 286 M 172, 951 P2d 65, 54 St. Rep. 1360 (1997).

for in subsection (1) and the expense allowance provided for in subsection (4), a legislator may receive remuneration for services performed during a legislative session. A legislator choosing to receive remuneration for services performed shall file a request to receive payment under this subsection with the legislative services division. A legislator exercising the option to receive remuneration for services performed may not receive more remuneration than legislators paid pursuant to subsections (1) and (4). Remuneration for services performed must be reduced by an amount a day equal to the daily expense allowance for a legislator established under this section when the legislature recesses for more than 3 days". Amendment effective March 8, 1999.

Chapter 558 in (1) increased legislators' pay from grade 8 to grade 10; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 417 in (3), near beginning, substituted "a daily allowance" for "$50 a day"; in (4), in first sentence after "November 15", deleted "1996, and prior to December 15, 1996" and inserted third sentence providing "The department shall include only states with specific daily allowances in the calculation of the average"; in (8), in fourth sentence, substituted "reduced by an amount a day equal to the daily expense allowance for a legislator established under this section" for "reduced $50 a day"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1995 Amendments: Chapter 455 in (3) inserted "Subject to subsection (4)"; inserted (4) requiring Department of Administration to conduct salary survey; adjusted subsection references; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 545 in (6), near end of introductory clause, substituted "legislative services division" for "office of the legislative council"; in (8), at end of second sentence, substituted "legislative services division" for "accounting office of the legislative council"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1995 Transition: Section 81, Ch. 545, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The members of the legislative council, as provided in 5-11-101, the members of the legislative finance committee, as provided in 5-12-202, the members of the legislative audit committee, as provided in 5-13-202, and the members of the environmental quality council, as provided in 5-16-101, must be appointed as soon as possible following [the effective date of this section] [effective April 27, 1995]."

(2) To implement the changes provided in [this act], the office of the legislative council, the office of budget and program planning, and the department of administration shall establish all necessary authorizations during the accounting preparation process known as the "turnaround" process, beginning in April or May 1995, to administer the several appropriations made by any means to programs of the legislative branch agencies consolidated under [sections 3 and 4] [5-2-503 and 5-2-504] for fiscal year 1996 or 1997 or the biennium ending June 30, 1997, as appropriations to a single legislative agency while maintaining the specific identification, legislative intent, and purpose for which the appropriations were made. During this transition, the executive director may authenticate documents as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act]. Appropriate changes on the statewide budgeting and accounting system and the payroll, personnel, and position control system must also be made and authorized as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act].

(3) Personnel and property of the environmental quality council are transferred to the legislative services division effective July 1, 1995."

1991 Amendment: In (1) substituted "entry grade 8" for "grade 8, step 2"; and made minor change in style. Amendment effective April 29, 1991.

1989 Amendment: In (1), at beginning, inserted exception clause; and inserted (7) allowing legislator to receive remuneration in lieu of salary, requiring legislator to file request for such payment, limiting amount to total of salary and expenses, and allowing for reduction during recess. Amendment effective January 10, 1989.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 1, L. 1989, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to January 1, 1989."

1986 Amendment: In first sentence of (1) substituted "grade 8" for "grade 10" and inserted "in effect when the regular session of the legislature in which they serve is convened under 5-2-103" (effective January 2, 1987).

Title and Effective Date of 1986 Amendment: The title to Ch. 9, Sp. L. June 1986, read: "AN ACT RETURNING THE SALARY OF LEGISLATORS TO THE LEVEL IN EFFECT PRIOR TO THE JANUARY 1, 1987, EFFECTIVE DATE OF THE SALARY RAISE ENACTED BY SECTION 3, CHAPTER 693, LAWS OF 1985; AMENDING SECTION 5-2-301, MCA; AND PROVIDING AN EFFECTIVE DATE." Under sec. 2, Ch. 9, the act was effective January 2, 1987. Thus Ch. 693, L. 1985, went into effect on January 1, 1987, but was nullified by Ch. 9, Sp. L. June 1986, on the next day.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 8 deleted former (3)(b) that provided mileage allowance “for one additional round trip to their place of residence during each session” without submittal of a claim; in (5) near beginning, inserted clause requiring submittal of claim to legislative council and deleted identical clause from end of (5)(a), thus making claim submittal applicable to (5)(b); in (5)(a) increased additional round trips subject to claim submittal requirement from two to three; and inserted (5)(b) relating to additional round trips during special session.

Chapter 693 in (1) increased salary rate from that commensurate to grade 8, step 2, to that commensurate to grade 10, step 2 (effective January 1, 1987); inserted (2) allowing legislators to serve for no salary; and in (3) increased legislative expense allowance from $45 to $50 per day during legislative session.

1981 Amendments: Chapters 7 and 605 increased legislative expense allowance from $40 to $45 during a session.

Chapter 144 inserted subsection (4) allowing two additional trips.

Amendment effective April 27, 2007.

Transition: Section 3, Ch. 334, L. 2007, provided: “(1) A person who is subject to the provisions of 5-2-304 who made an irrevocable election under 5-2-304 after January 1, 2003, and before [the effective date of this act] [April 27, 2007] may rescind the election.

(2) A person who is eligible under subsection (1) to rescind an election previously made by the person pursuant to 5-2-304 shall notify the public employees’ retirement board in writing prior to July 1, 2007, that the person has rescinded the person’s prior election.

(3) A person who rescinds, under subsection (2), the person’s previous election is:

(a) subject to the applicable options available under 5-2-304 and 19-3-412 as provided for in [this act]; and

(b) is eligible to receive retroactively to January 1, 2007, the retirement benefits for which the person would have been eligible absent the original election.”

2001 Amendment: Chapter 99 in (2) at beginning of second sentence deleted “A legislator shall make an irrevocable election within 180 days of taking office whether” and after “system” inserted “a legislator shall, within 180 days of taking office and in a manner prescribed by the appropriate board, file an irrevocable written election with the teachers’ retirement board or the public employees’ retirement board” and deleted former third sentence that read: “A person who is a member of the Montana legislature on July 1, 1999, has until January 1, 2000, to file a written application with the teachers’ or public employees’ retirement board that is the irrevocable election required by this section”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 21, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 111 in (2) in first sentence substituted “is a member of a public retirement system” for “is otherwise eligible to participate as a member or contributor of a public retirement system” and inserted second and third sentences requiring a legislator to make irrevocable election within 180 days of taking office on whether to continue participation in system and providing that a person who is a legislator on July 1, 1999, may file application for election until January 1, 2000; deleted former (3)(b) that read: “(b) continue his payments into the fund of the retirement system at the rate currently in effect in such system based on his monthly salary as a legislator”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

Retroactive Effect: Section 2, Ch. 333, L. 1977, read: “In its application to members of the 45th legislature, this act is retroactive to January 1, 1977.”

Effective Date: Section 3, Ch. 333, L. 1977, provided the act should be effective upon its passage and approval.

Attorney General's Opinions

Applicability of Term Limit Provisions to Appointed Senators — Definitions: Regarding the status of state Senators appointed upon the death or resignation of the incumbent to fill an unexpired term of office that began in 1991, the word "terms" refers to time served in terms beginning or ending before or after January 1993. The word does not refer to a particular date and does not simply exclude or include years prior to the date, but rather includes time by reference to the beginning or ending date of a term of office. Further, the word "year" does not refer strictly to a calendar year of 12 months when used in the context of legislative terms of office because a term does not necessarily begin on the first day of a calendar year. Applying the word "year" in such a strict manner would lead to an unintended, absurd result. A term of office for a state Senator is 4 years beginning on the first Monday in January in the year following the general election. If a Senator accedes to office by appointment or election, that Senator serves to complete the term of the person originally elected. Thus, for a Senator continually serving from the date of appointment or election to fill the unexpired portion of a term that began when the original incumbent took office in 1991, the first term of office counted toward the term limit is the term beginning in January 1995. 47 A.G. Attorney General's Opinions

Applicability of Term Limit Provisions to Appointed Senators — Definitions: Regarding the status of state Senators appointed upon the death or resignation of the incumbent to fill an unexpired term of office that began in 1991, the word "terms" refers to time served in terms beginning or ending before or after January 1993. The word does not refer to a particular date and does not simply exclude or include years prior to the date, but rather includes time by reference to the beginning or ending date of a term of office. Further, the word "year" does not

Legislative Branch Consolidation

1995 Transition: Section 81, Ch. 545, L. 1995, provided: “(1) The members of the legislative council, as provided in 5-11-101, the members of the legislative finance committee, as provided in 5-12-202, the members of the legislative audit committee, as provided in 5-13-202, and the members of the environmental quality council, as provided in 5-16-101, must be appointed as soon as possible following [the effective date of this section] [effective April 27, 1995].

(2) To implement the changes provided in [this act], the office of the legislative council, the office of budget and program planning, and the department of administration shall establish all necessary authorizations during the accounting preparation process known as the “turnaround” process, beginning in April or May 1995, to administer the several appropriations made by any means to programs of the legislative branch agencies consolidated under [sections 3 and 4] [5-2-503 and 5-2-504] for fiscal year 1996 or 1997 or the biennium ending June 30, 1997, as appropriations to a single legislative agency while maintaining the specific identification, legislative intent, and purpose for which the appropriations were made. During this transition, the executive director may authenticate documents as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act]. Appropriate changes on the statewide budgeting and accounting system and the payroll, personnel, and position control system must also be made and authorized as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act].

CHAPTER 4 BILLS

Chapter Case Notes

Statutory Expansion of Jurisdiction: When statutes are enacted by the Legislature that expand previously enacted statutes by broadening the jurisdiction of an administrative agency, the statutes are to be construed in relation to one another, and for construction purposes, considered as forming one consistent body of law. Gwynn v. Eureka, 178 M 191, 582 P2d 1262 (1978).

Chapter Attorney General's Opinions

Statement of Intent Not to Be Used in Interpretation of Clearly Written Statute: Chapter 452, L. 1981, made several substantive changes in the laws relating to health service corporations. The bill's statement of intent, adopted under 5-4-404 (now repealed), stated that certain provisions of the bill were to be implemented only if additional funds were appropriated for their implementation. The Attorney General applied the rule of statutory interpretation that when legislative intent can be determined from a reading of a statute, it is improper to go further in construing the meaning of that statute, and held that the clear meaning of the law must be carried out, regardless of the contents of the statement of intent. 39 A.G. Op. 68 (1982).

District Court's Rewriting of Attorney General's Statements Explaining Initiative Proposal Reversed When Statements Accurate: Plaintiff group sought an initiative petition to include an additional constitutional limit on legislative appropriations to an amount to be determined by applying a formula based on population growth and inflation unless an increase was approved by the electorate. As required, the Attorney General prepared statements explaining the purpose of the measure, the implications of a vote for and against the measure, and a fiscal statement. Plaintiffs were dissatisfied with the statements and filed a complaint. The District Court determined that all the statements were inaccurate, rewrote the statements, and ordered that the court's statements rather than the Attorney General's be placed on the ballot should the measure qualify. The Attorney General appealed, and the Supreme Court reversed. Employing the rules of construction developed under State ex rel. Wenzel v. Murray, 178 M 441, 585 P2d 633 (1978), the Supreme Court held that the District Court was incorrect in determining that the statement of purpose was inaccurate and omitted salient provisions of the measure. It is not the job of a court to add to the requirements of 13-27-312 that to be accurate, a statement of the purpose of an initiative must include a description of how it can be enforced or a statement of when it will become effective. Without engaging in a comparison of the statements, the Supreme Court held that the Attorney General's statement of purpose was adequate to meet the statutory requirements to provide a true and impartial explanation of the proposed ballot issue in plain, easily understood language. Likewise, the statement of implication and the fiscal statement were adequate, if not perfect, satisfied statutory requirements, and were not confusing or misleading, and the Supreme Court ordered that the issue be placed on the ballot containing the statements prepared by the Attorney General. *Stop Over Spending Mont. v. Amendment effective February 17, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 513 inserted (3) concerning appointment to joint subcommittees being made within 30 days of notification of creation of a subcommittee; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 25, 1995.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 513, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legislative Council is assigned the responsibility of effectively and efficiently utilizing the staff and financial resources within its purview; and

WHEREAS, the Legislative Council is also assigned the responsibility of determining priorities for interim studies to be conducted by interim joint subcommittees; and

WHEREAS, the Legislative Council has diligently considered ways of improving certain procedures, including the appointment of members to interim joint subcommittees."

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 301, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, the Joint Interim Subcommittee on Children and Families, established by House Joint Resolution No. 54 of the 1991 Regular Session, studied the following issues: the existing and the ideal continuum of services for children and families, especially programs for those families that are at risk of out-of-home placement of their children; the feasibility of instituting early identification and intervention programs for at-risk families; interagency coordination of programs and services for at-risk children and families in Montana; and the feasibility of establishing a statutory legislative oversight committee to review and monitor public and private programs and services for children and families;

WHEREAS, the Joint Interim Subcommittee on Children and Families concluded its study assignments by recommending numerous policy and programmatic changes related to the above issues, including the establishment of an oversight committee that could monitor the implementation of legislative recommendations or coordinate further study of emerging issues related to programs for children and families in Montana.

THEREFORE, the Legislature of the State of Montana finds it is appropriate to establish a joint oversight committee on children and families."

Establishment of Joint Oversight Subcommittee on Children and Families: Section 1, Ch. 301, L. 1993, provided: "(1) There is a joint oversight committee on children and families [now children, families, health, and human services committee] composed of eight members appointed as follows:

- (a) four members of the house of representatives, not more than two of whom may be from one political party, appointed by the speaker; and
- (b) four members of the senate, not more than two of whom may be from one political party, appointed by the committee on committees.

(2) In case of a vacancy, a replacement must be selected in the manner of the original appointment.

(3) Members are entitled to salary and expenses as provided in 5-2-302.

(4) The oversight committee may request staff assistance from the legislative council, which may be provided within limits established by the council, given other priorities and responsibilities.

(5) Any agency providing services or funding for a program or activity for children and families shall provide assistance and information upon request of the oversight committee."

Duties of Joint Oversight Subcommittee on Children and Families: Section 2, Ch. 301, L. 1993, provided: "The oversight committee shall:

(1) examine public and private programs, services, and planning for children and families for the purpose of identifying duplications, inefficiencies, and any unmet needs within those programs, services, and plans;

(2) review federal, state, local, and private funds available to state and local jurisdictions for programs and services for children and families and consider feasible methods of refinancing of those resources to maximize overall funding for existing and new programs;

(3) monitor implementation of any legislation that mandates interagency coordination of programs and services for children and families and study ways to improve coordination and collaboration among public and private human service providers at all levels of government in Montana;

(4) monitor implementation of any pilot programs designed to provide early identification of and family-based support for families that may be at risk of child abuse and neglect and at risk of out-of-home placement of their children; and

(5) report the results of its study in a written report to the 54th legislature no later than November 30, 1994. The oversight committee shall also provide copies of its report to the governor and appropriate state agencies."

Appropriation: Section 3, Ch. 301, L. 1993, provided an appropriation to support the activities of the Joint Oversight Committee on Children and Families (now Children, Families, Health, and Human Services Committee).

Termination Date: Section 5, Ch. 301, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] terminates June 30, 1995."

1981 Amendment: Substituted "Senate joint subcommittee members shall be appointed by the committee on committees. House joint subcommittee members shall be appointed by the speaker" for "Joint subcommittee members shall be appointed by the legislative council. The chairmen of the appropriate standing committees in each body shall recommend suggested members to serve on each subcommittee. The legislative council shall consider the recommendations, but is not bound thereby" at the beginning of the section; changed "shall" to "may" in the third sentence.

K-12 Public School Funding Study: Section 1, Ch. 580, L. 2001, provided: "Section 1. K-12 public school funding study — duties — hearings. (1) The governor and the superintendent of public instruction shall, within the provisions of the Montana constitution, conduct a study of funding for K-12 public schools, including but not limited to:

(a) analyzing the factors currently in law that are used to compute budget authority for schools to determine if additional factors or changes in those factors are necessary to equitably provide budget authority to public schools;

(b) determining the appropriate allocation of funding to adequately fund elementary, middle school, seventh and eighth grade, and high school programs;

(c) determining if a statewide salary schedule for school staff is possible under the constitutional provision for trustee management of school districts;

(d) determining if the current budget computations are prohibiting or discouraging local decisions to consolidate school districts;

(e) determining the adequacy and equity of the current statutory authority for public schools to access the funds necessary to provide facilities for school districts and state support for school facility costs;

(f) determining the adequacy and equity of current funding for pupil transportation;

(g) determining if appropriate disparity exists in the current local tax effort necessary to fund school districts;

(h) analyzing the current allocation of state funds to public schools to determine its equity;

(i) analyzing the relationship between increasing staffing levels in the classroom in the face of declining enrollment and the resulting financial impacts to school districts and the state;

(j) analyzing appropriate means for school districts to calculate ANB regarding nontraditional, part-time, or distance-learning students;

(k) determining if issues not listed in this section are affecting the equity of school funding in Montana and analyzing those issues;

(l) analyzing the school district structure that currently exists and determining if reducing the number of districts could provide efficiency in the operations of the districts and make existing resources available for classroom activities; and

(m) determining if the existence of 25 budgeted and nonbudgeted funds unreasonably restricts local decisionmakers.

(2) The governor, after consultation with the superintendent of public instruction, shall prepare and submit a preliminary report by December 31, 2001, on the findings and recommendations of the study to the education interim committee.

(3) (a) The education interim committee shall hold hearings and take public comment on the preliminary report prepared and submitted by the governor. The hearings may be held at various locations around the state to facilitate public comment on the governor's report.

(b) by August 1, 2002, the education interim committee shall provide to the governor for the governor's consideration a summary of the hearings and recommendations for changes to the report.

(c) The education interim committee may make any other recommendations on school funding that the committee considers appropriate. The education interim committee shall submit its recommendations and, if appropriate, prepare legislation for consideration by the 2003 legislature.

(4) Upon receipt of the summary and recommendations from the education interim committee, the governor shall issue a final report and, if appropriate, prepare legislation for consideration by the 2003 legislature.

(5) The governor may:

(a) appoint one or more advisory councils pursuant to 2-15-122 to assist in conducting the study;

(b) coordinate with any other legislative interim committee, as appropriate;

(c) request assistance from other legislative and executive branch agencies; and

(d) in addition to any legislative appropriation, accept donations for purposes of the study required in this section."

Chapter Compiler's Comments

1980 Initiative Title: The title to Initiative No. 85, 1980, read: "An act to require public disclosure of money spent to influence action of a public official. All individuals or businesses who employ lobbyists and spend more than $1000 a year to promote or oppose official action of a public official must give a complete accounting of all money spent. The proposal does not apply to individual citizens lobbying on their own behalf. Elected officials are required to publicly disclose their business interests. Criminal and civil penalties are provided for violations of the provisions of this initiative."

Severability: Section 21, Initiative No. 85, 1980, was a severability section.

Effective Date: Section 22, Initiative No. 85, 1980, provided: "This act shall be effective upon passage and approval by the voters of the state of Montana." Approved November 4, 1980.

Chapter Case Notes

Lobbying — Initiative 85 — Attorneys — Constitutionality: Initiative 85, as emended in Mont. Auto. Ass'n v. Greely, 193 M 378, 632 P2d 300, 38 St. Rep. 1174 (1981), is not so vague as to be unconstitutionally uncertain, nor does it intrude on the power of the Supreme Court to regulate the conduct of attorneys. The act applies equally to attorneys and nonattorneys acting in the nonlegislative lobbying field. The right of the court to supervise the conduct of the members of the bar is undiminished by any provision of the Initiative. St. Bar of Mont. v. Krivec, 193 M 477, 632 P2d 707, 38 St. Rep. 1322 (1981).

Ministerial Acts Not Covered: An attorney procuring the performance of a purely ministerial act by a public official, an act that could otherwise be required by mandamus, is not procuring an official to exercise a legislative function and is not acting within the intent and purpose of Initiative 85. St. Bar of Mont. v. Krivec, 193 M 477, 632 P2d 707, 38 St. Rep. 1322 (1981).

Public Service Commission — Quasi-Judicial: Attorneys acting on behalf of clients or for themselves in quasi-judicial proceedings before the Public Service Commission are not covered by Initiative 85. St. Bar of Mont. v. Krivec, 193 M 477, 632 P2d 707, 38 St. Rep. 1322 (1981).

Case Notes

Exemptions for Montana Citizens Unconstitutional: Prior to 1983 amendment, the exemption provided in 5-7-101(2) and 5-7-102(5)(b)(i) from Initiative 85 for Montana citizens was constitutionally impermissible under the Privileges and Immunities Clause of the United States Constitution. There is no basis for creating an exception solely for individual Montana citizens. Citizens of other states may have an interest in some official action in Montana that warrants their efforts to influence the outcome of that action in Montana. The word “Montana” was void and without effect in both sections. Mont. Auto. Ass'n v. Greely, 193 M 378, 632 P2d 300, 38 St. Rep. 1174 (1981).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 402 in definition of elected state official in (a) in first sentence at end after “judges” deleted “but not including legislators for the purposes of this chapter” and inserted (b) providing that elected state official does not include a legislator; in definition of lobbying in (a)(ii) after “official” inserted “or the legislature” and in (b) after “by” deleted “a legislator”; in definition of lobbyist in (b)(ii) after “official” inserted “or the legislature” and in (c) after “officials” inserted “or the legislature”; in definition of payment at end of (a)(i) after “official” inserted “or the legislature”; in definition of public official in (a) after “government” inserted “or a legislator”; in definition of unprofessional conduct in (b), (c), and two places in (d) after “official” inserted “or the legislature”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

2003 Amendments — Composite Section — Coordination: Chapter 52 inserted definitions of appointed state official, elected federal official, elected tribal official, and legislator; substituted elected local official for elected official as defined term and after “means” substituted “an elected officer of a county, a consolidated government, an incorporated city or town, a school district, or a special district. The term includes an individual appointed to fill the unexpired term of an elected local official and an individual who has been elected to a local office but who has not yet been sworn in” for “a public official”; in definition of elected state official near middle of first sentence after “limited to” deleted “legislators” and at end inserted “but not including legislators for the purposes of this chapter”, inserted second sentence including in the definition an individual appointed to fill the unexpired term of an elected state official and an individual who has been elected to a statewide office but who has not yet been sworn in, and deleted former second sentence that read: “The term “official-elect” also applies to the offices”; in definition of lobbying at end of (a)(i) deleted “by a person other than a member of the legislature or a public official" and inserted (b) providing that the term does not include actions described in subsections (11)(a)(i) and (11)(a)(ii) when performed by a legislator, a public official, an elected local official, an elected federal official, or an elected tribal official while acting in an official governmental capacity; in definition of lobbying for hire at end after "principal" substituted "to lobby" for "and whose duties include lobbying. If an individual is reimbursed only for his personal living and travel expenses, which together are less than $1,000 per calendar year, that individual is not considered to be lobbying for hire"; in definition of payment to influence official action at end of (a) after "expenses" deleted "excluding personal living expenses"; in definition of public official after "means an" substituted "elected state official or an appointed state official" for "individual, elected or appointed"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 26, 2003.

Chapter 572 deleted definition of lobbying for hire that read: "'Lobbying for hire" includes activities of the officers, agents, attorneys, or employees of a principal who are paid, reimbursed, or retained by the principal and whose duties include lobbying. If an individual is reimbursed only for his personal living and travel expenses, which together are less than $1,000 per calendar year, that individual is not considered to be lobbying for hire"; in definition of lobbyist in (a) after "lobbying" deleted "for hire", inserted (b)(iii) excluding an individual who receives payments in a calendar year that total less than the amount specified in 5-7-112, and in (c) near beginning after "this" substituted "chapter" for "section" and after "individual" substituted "who is not a lobbyist" for "not lobbying for hire"; in definition of payment inserted (a)(i) concerning rendering to a lobbyist to influence legislation or official action, in (a)(ii) at beginning substituted "directly or indirectly" for "'Payment to influence official action" means any of the following types of payment:

(a) direct or indirect payment" and near end after "reimbursement for" substituted "lobbying expenses" for "expenses, excluding personal living expenses", and inserted (b) excluding personal and necessary living expenses and travel expenses from the definition; in definition of principal after "lobbyist" inserted "or a person required to report pursuant to 5-7-208"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 5, 2003.

Pursuant to sec. 7(1), Ch. 572, L. 2003, a coordination section, the code commissioner in (12)(c) substituted "this chapter deprives an individual who is not a lobbyist" for "this subsection (12) deprives an individual not lobbying for hire".

Retroactive Applicability: Section 11, Ch. 572, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all occurrences concerning filing or reporting on or after September 1, 2002. This section may not be construed to require a refund of any fee paid on or after September 1, 2002."

1991 Amendment: In definition of lobbying, near end of (a) after "official", deleted "acting in his official capacity" and in (b), after "public official", deleted "in the event the person engaged in such practice expends $1,000 per calendar year or more exclusive of personal travel and living expenses"; in definition of lobbyist, in (b)(i) after "individual", deleted "citizen" and in (c), after "deprives", substituted "an individual" for "any citizen"; in definition of lobbying for hire, in second sentence before $1,000, substituted "are less than" for "do not exceed"; in definition of unprofessional conduct, in (b) after "employment", deleted "in opposition thereto"; in definition of principal, after "who", substituted "employs" for "makes payments in excess of $1,000 per calendar year to engage"; in definition of docket, after "register", deleted "and reports"; in definition of business, in (a) after "self-employed", substituted "person" for "individual"; and made minor changes in style.

1983 Amendment: In (3), after "state" deleted "or local"; after "government" deleted "or any political subdivision thereof"; at end of (3) added "or performing ministerial acts"; in (5)(b)(i) after "individual" deleted "Montana"; in (5)(b)(ii) after "personal contact" inserted "involving lobbying"; deleted (7)(c)(i), which read: "(i) the promise of support or opposition at any future election"; deleted (7)(c)(iv), (7)(c)(v), and (7)(d), which read: "(iv) any improper economic reprisal or other unlawful retaliation against any public official; or

(v) any means other than argument on the merits thereof;

(d) attempting to influence a decision or vote by a hearing examiner or quasi-judicial officer in any contested case proceeding under Title 2, chapter 4, part 6, except as provided therein"; deleted (7)(f), which read: "(f) engaging in practices which reflect discredit on the practice of lobbying"; deleted (8)(b), which read: "(b) in the case of a person other than an individual, to solicit, directly, indirectly, or by an advertising campaign, the lobbying efforts of another person"; in (11)(a) after "compensation" inserted "or reimbursement"; after "expenses" substituted "excluding personal living expenses" for "or for any other purpose"; inserted (12)(b) which includes within definition of business any present or past employment from which benefits are received; and made minor changes in punctuation and phraseology.

1980 Initiative Amendment: Substituted "The following definitions apply in this chapter" for "The following words and phrases shall have the meanings respectively ascribed to them" at the beginning of the section; inserted definitions of individual, person, and public official; changed "means" to "includes" at the beginning of subsection (4) and added subsection (4)(b) which includes within the definition of lobbying the practice of promoting or opposing official action by any public official in the event the person engaged in such practice expends $1,000 per calendar year or more exclusive of personal travel and living expenses; deleted "except in the manner authorized by 5-7-304" at the end of subsection (5)(a); inserted subsection (5)(b) relating to what the definition of lobbyist does not include; substituted "deprives" for "shall be construed to deprive", changed "his" to "the" before "constitutional right" and changed "members of the legislature" to "public officials" in subsection (5)(c); changed "shall include" to "includes", substituted "paid, reimbursed, or retained" for "paid a regular salary", changed "a person" to "an individual", inserted "which together do not exceed $1,000 per calendar year," after "expenses," and changed "be" to "that individual" in subsection (6); deleted former subsection (7)(b), which read: "(b) soliciting employment from any principal"; changed "the introduction of legislation" to "action by any public official" in subsection (7)(b); changed "vote of legislators" to "action of any public official" in subsection (7)(c); deleted "by any means other than argument on the merits thereof, or" at the end of subsection (7)(c)(i); inserted "any principal" in (7)(c)(iii); inserted subsections (7)(c)(ii) relating to promise of financial support; inserted (7)(c)(iv) relating to improper economic reprisal; inserted (7)(c)(v) relating to any means other than argument on the merits; inserted (7)(d) relating to influencing a decision by a hearing examiner or quasi-judicial officer in a contested case proceeding; inserted (7)(e) relating to deception or misrepresentation of pertinent facts of an official matter to any public official; deleted "or the legislature" after "lobbying" in subsection (7)(f); in (8) substituted "'Principal' means any person who makes payments in excess of $1,000 per calendar year for any of the following:

(a) to engage a lobbyist; or

(b) in the case of a person other than an individual, to solicit, directly, indirectly, or by an advertising campaign, the lobbying efforts of another person" for "'Principal' means: (a) any person, corporation, or association which engages a lobbyist or other person in connection with any legislation pending before the legislature or to be proposed affecting the pecuniary interest of such person, corporation, or association; or (b) any board, department, commission, or other agency of the state, any county, or municipal corporation which engages a lobbyist or other person in connection with any legislation pending or to be proposed affecting the statutory powers, duties, or appropriation of such agency, county, or municipal corporation"; substituted "register and reports of lobbyists and principals" for "register of licensed lobbyists" and changed "secretary of state" to "commissioner" in subsection (9); deleted former subsection (6), which defined "pecuniary interest"; added definitions of payment, payment to influence official action, business, commissioner, and elected official; and made minor changes in grammar, punctuation, and phraseology.

Case Notes

Quasi-Judicial Capacity — Public Service Commission: In general, when the law commits to any officer the duty of looking into facts and acting upon them, not in a way that is specifically directed but with discretion, the function is termed quasi-judicial; thus, attorneys acting on behalf of clients or for themselves in quasi-judicial proceedings before the Public Service Commission are not covered by Initiative 85. St. Bar of Mont. v. Krivec, 193 M 477, 632 P2d 707, 38 St. Rep. 1322 (1981).

Definition Subsections Impermissibly Vague: Subsections (7)(c)(iv), (7)(c)(v), and (7)(f) of 5-7-102, enacted by Initiative 85 (deleted in 1983 amendment), are impermissibly vague, unconstitutional, and therefore void. (Following U.S. v. Dupree, 544 F2d 1050 (9th Cir. 1976).) The court asks rhetorically: Is there a form of "proper" economic reprisal? How does a lobbyist determine when he may retaliate lawfully against a public official? Can conduct which is potentially criminal be defined as "any means other than" the permitted means of argument on the merits? To "reflect discredit" is not sufficiently definite to give a person of ordinary intelligence fair notice that his conduct is forbidden. Mont. Auto. Ass'n v. Greely, 193 M 378, 632 P2d 300, 38 St. Rep. 1174 (1981).

Prohibition Against Influencing Quasi-Judicial Public Officials — Void: Subsection (7)(d) of 5-7-102, contained in Initiative 85 (deleted in 1983 amendment), is void. It is inconsistent with the intention of a law enacted to regulate lobbying for it to also regulate conduct that is, by the terms of the statute, not lobbying. (See subsection 5-7-102(4)(b), enacted by Initiative 85.) Mont. Auto. Ass'n v. Greely, 193 M 378, 632 P2d 300, 38 St. Rep. 1174 (1981).

Prohibition Against Soliciting Lobbying Efforts as Unconstitutional: Subsection (8)(b) of 5-7-102 from Initiative 85 (deleted in 1983 amendment) is unconstitutional and void for vagueness. Facially, subsection (8)(b) constitutes a more drastic infringement on freedom of the press and freedom of speech than was present in Mills v. Alabama, 384 US 214 (1966). Further, the court is unable to find any compelling state interest which requires the inclusion of subsection (8)(b) in Initiative 85. Mont. Auto. Ass'n v. Greely, 193 M 378, 632 P2d 300, 38 St. Rep. 1174 (1981).

Prohibition Against Voters' Promise of Support as Unconstitutional: Section 5-7-102(7)(c)(i), contained in Initiative 85 (deleted in 1983 amendment), is an unconstitutional infringement of the right of free speech and is therefore void. The prohibited conduct is nothing more than a standard and accepted means of involvement in the political process. It is a free expression of the only real power an elector possesses. Criticism of government is at the very center of the constitutional protection of free speech. No law could stand that would prevent an elector from voting for or against an incumbent. Likewise, no law can stand that would prevent a voter from expressing to an elected official an intention to vote for or against that official if certain action is or is not taken. Further, the first amendment applies to associations as well as individuals and protects the right of associations to engage in advocacy on behalf of their members. Mont. Auto. Ass'n v. Greely, 193 M 378, 632 P2d 300, 38 St. Rep. 1174 (1981).

Unprofessional Conduct of Lobbyists and Principals Limited in Construction: The Supreme Court of Montana construes subsection (7)(a) of 5-7-102, enacted by Initiative 85, to limit "unprofessional conduct" to violations of any of the provisions of this chapter by a lobbyist or principal, not by an elected official. Mont. Auto. Ass'n v. Greely, 193 M 378, 632 P2d 300, 38 St. Rep. 1174 (1981).

Case Notes

Statute Requiring "Necessary" Rules Requires Rulemaking Hearing — Mandamus Proper Remedy: Pursuant to 2-4-315 and this section, Common Cause submitted a petition to the Commissioner of Political Practices requesting the adoption of a definition of "lobbying". When the Commissioner denied the petition, Common Cause brought a petition for mandamus. The District Court dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20). The Supreme Court reversed, citing Commonwealth of Pa. v. Nat'l Ass'n of Flood Insurers, 520 F2d 11 (3d Cir. 1975), and holding that the language in this section requiring rules "necessary" to implement the statute mandated the Commissioner to hold a hearing to determine whether rules were necessary. The Supreme Court held that the discretionary authority contained in 2-4-315 to adopt or not adopt a particular rule does not give the Commissioner the authority to avoid altogether the rulemaking required by this section. For this reason, the Supreme Court also held that mandamus was a proper remedy because the Commissioner had a clear legal duty to conduct rulemaking procedures to determine what rules were necessary. Common Cause of Mont. v. Argenbright, 276 M 382, 917 P2d 425, 53 St. Rep. 386 (1996).

1991 Amendments: Chapter 91 throughout section substituted reference to report for reference to accounting; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 498 in (1), after "commissioner", substituted "a report" for "an accounting"; in (2), in introductory clause after "action", substituted "a report must" for "such accounting shall"; in (2)(c), at beginning, substituted "no later than 30" for "within 60"; in (3), in introductory clause after "action", substituted "a report must" for "such accounting shall"; in (5), at beginning after "Each", substituted "report" for "accounting"; and made minor changes in style.

1983 Amendment: At end of (1), after "made" substituted "for the purpose of lobbying" for "to influence the official action of a public official"; deleted former (5)(a)(i) and (5)(a)(ii), which read: "(i) original and derivative research (for which the cost may be estimated if necessary) done to support a lobbying argument or presentation;

(ii) publication and distribution of each publication, except that the cost of a newsletter or leaflet distributed to the membership of a principal need not be reported unless over one-half of that newsletter or leaflet is devoted to lobbying matters;"; in (5)(a)(i) deleted "other" before "printing"; deleted former (5)(a)(iv), which read: "(iv) news media;"; in (5)(a)(iv) after "travel" deleted "and personal living"; in (5)(b)(i) increased amount of separate payment required to be itemized from $10 to $25; at end of (5)(b)(i) inserted "when the payment was made for the purpose of lobbying"; in (5)(b)(ii) after "benefit" inserted "when the payment was made for the purpose of lobbying"; in (5)(c) after "principal" deleted "regardless of whether it was paid solely"; deleted former (5)(d), which read: "(d) list each political contribution, including anything of value, paid to any candidate for elective public office, to any committee established to support or oppose a candidate for elective public office, or to any committee to support or oppose any initiative, referendum, or other ballot issue, whether such payment is made directly or indirectly by the principal or any lobbyist who received compensation or reimbursement for such payment from the principal;".

Incorporation Into Existing Law: Sections 11 through 16, Initiative No. 85, 1980 (5-7-208 through 5-7-213 (5-7-213 renumbered 2-2-106)), were enacted without a codification instruction. Case Notes

Accounting Requirements Void for Vagueness: Subsections (5)(a)(i) and (5)(a)(iv) of 5-7-208 (amended to cure unconstitutionality in 1983), enacted by Initiative 85, are void for vagueness. It is impossible to tell when “original and derivative” research is being performed; likewise, the court is unable to determine what additional information ought to be disclosed under the subheading of “news media”. Mont. Auto. Ass’n v. Greely, 193 M 378, 632 P2d 300, 38 St. Rep. 1174 (1981).

Language Requiring Nonlobbying Expenses to Be Disclosed — Unconstitutional: The words “regardless of whether it was paid solely” as used in subsection (5)(c) of 5-7-208 (phrase deleted in 1983 amendment) from Initiative 85 are void as a violation of the first amendment right of association which exists as a necessary corollary to the freedoms of speech and assembly. The forced disclosure of contributions and membership fees “regardless of whether . . . paid solely for the purpose of lobbying” compels revelation of information that has no relationship to the ends that the “Lobbying Act” and the Initiative seek to achieve. That some money is in fact spent for lobbying does not lessen the repugnance of 5-7-208(5)(c). Further, the forced disclosure of the name of an individual who contributed $250 reaches too broadly and too blindly into an area that is essential to the exercise of our most basic freedoms. Mont. Auto. Ass’n v. Greely, 193 M 378, 632 P2d 300, 38 St. Rep. 1174 (1981).

Title Not Embracing a Bill Section as Rendering Section Void: Subsection (5)(d) of 5-7-208 from Initiative 85 (deleted in 1983 amendment) is not embraced in the title of Initiative 85 and is therefore void. There is insufficient substantive relationship between the title and this subsection. The “Lobbying Act” was not being transformed into a general campaign finances act. Mont. Auto. Ass’n v. Greely, 193 M 378, 632 P2d 300, 38 St. Rep. 1174 (1981).

Case Notes

Prohibited Compensation Provision Held Unconstitutional: Section 5-7-302 as amended by Initiative 85 is void because it violates the right to petition the government included in the first amendment to the United States Constitution and Art. II, sec. 6, Mont. Const. Section 5-7-302 unduly infringes the rights of those who, while contemplating neither illegal nor unethical conduct, need or desire to employ a lobbyist on a contingent fee basis in order to advance their interests before a public official. LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL AND PUBLICATION OF LAWS

Chapter Compiler's Comments

1995 Transition: Section 81, Ch. 545, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The members of the legislative council, as provided in 5-11-101, the members of the legislative finance committee, as provided in 5-12-202, the members of the legislative audit committee, as provided in 5-13-202, and the members of the environmental quality council, as provided in 5-16-101, must be appointed as soon as possible following [the effective date of this section] [effective April 27, 1995].

(2) To implement the changes provided in [this act], the office of the legislative council, the office of budget and program planning, and the department of administration shall establish all necessary authorizations during the accounting preparation process known as the "turnaround" process, beginning in April or May 1995, to administer the several appropriations made by any means to programs of the legislative branch agencies consolidated under [sections 3 and 4] [5-2-503 and 5-2-504] for fiscal year 1996 or 1997 or the biennium ending June 30, 1997, as appropriations to a single legislative agency while maintaining the specific identification, legislative intent, and purpose for which the appropriations were made. During this transition, the executive director may authenticate documents as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act]. Appropriate changes on the statewide budgeting and accounting system and the payroll, personnel, and position control system must also be made and authorized as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act].

(3) Personnel and property of the environmental quality council are transferred to the legislative services division effective July 1, 1995."

Amendment effective February 17, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 545 in (1), after "consists of", substituted remainder of section regarding Legislative Council membership for former (1) and (2) that read: "(1) four members of the house of representatives appointed by the speaker of the house with the advice of the majority and minority leaders of the house, no more than two of whom may be of the same political party; and

(2) four members of the senate appointed by the committee on committees of the senate, no more than two of whom may be of the same political party"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 27, 1995.

Case Notes

Constitutionality: The appointment of legislators to the council does not constitute an appointment to another civil office in violation of Art. V, sec. 9, Mont. Const. State ex rel. James v. Aronson, 132 M 120, 314 P2d 849 (1957), overruling State ex rel. Mitchell v. Holmes, 128 M 275, 274 P2d 611 (1954).

Method of Appointment: An appointment under this section by the Senate Committee on Committees was effective even though phrased in terms of recommending the appointment to the full Senate. State ex rel. James v. Aronson, 132 M 120, 314 P2d 849 (1957).

Appointments Do Not Need Senate Approval: Appointments under this section made by the Senate Committee on Committees need not be approved by the Senate even though a senate rule provides that committee appointments are subject to ratification by the Senate. State ex rel. James v. Aronson, 132 M 120, 314 P2d 849 (1957).

5-11-102. Term.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 545 near beginning, after "2 years", substituted remainder of section concerning qualification and appointment for former language that read: "and terminates with the appointment of a new council or on the 50th legislative day of the next regular session following the one in which the appointment was made, whichever event occurs first. A new council shall be appointed no later than the 50th day of each regular session." Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Case Notes

Constitutionality: This section does not violate the limit on the length of a legislative session prescribed by Art. V, sec. 6, Mont. Const. State ex rel. James v. Aronson, 132 M 120, 314 P2d 849 (1957), overruling State ex rel. Mitchell v. Holmes, 128 M 275, 274 P2d 611 (1954).

Case Notes*Judicial Recourse to Journal:*

Except to determine whether on its final passage the names of those voting were entered on the legislative journals, courts may not go behind the duly authenticated enrolled bill. Therefore, recourse may not be had to such journals to ascertain whether a substantial provision and an arrangement of section numbers were embodied in a particular bill, different from the bill as it passed one of the houses. Barth v. Pock, 51 M 419, 155 P 282 (1915).

In determining whether an act has been passed, the enrolled bill, signed and approved by the proper officers, is conclusive upon the courts and recourse cannot be had to any other evidence except where the alleged infirmity of the act is based upon a failure to enter the names of those voting upon its final passage, in which case the journals may be consulted. State ex rel. Gregg v. Erickson, 39 M 280, 102 P 336 (1909).

1995 Transition: Section 81, Ch. 545, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The members of the legislative council, as provided in 5-11-101, the members of the legislative finance committee, as provided in 5-12-202, the members of the legislative audit committee, as provided in 5-13-202, and the members of the environmental quality council, as provided in 5-16-101, must be appointed as soon as possible following [the effective date of this section] [effective April 27, 1995].

(2) To implement the changes provided in [this act], the office of the legislative council, the office of budget and program planning, and the department of administration shall establish all necessary authorizations during the accounting preparation process known as the "turnaround" process, beginning in April or May 1995, to administer the several appropriations made by any means to programs of the legislative branch agencies consolidated under [sections 3 and 4] [5-2-503 and 5-2-504] for fiscal year 1996 or 1997 or the biennium ending June 30, 1997, as appropriations to a single legislative agency while maintaining the specific identification, legislative intent, and purpose for which the appropriations were made. During this transition, the executive director may authenticate documents as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act]. Appropriate changes on the statewide budgeting and accounting system and the payroll, personnel, and position control system must also be made and authorized as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act].

(3) Personnel and property of the environmental quality council are transferred to the legislative services division effective July 1, 1995."

Amendment effective March 27, 2007.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 347 deleted former (4) that read: "(4) The budget director shall furnish the legislative fiscal analyst with copies of all budget requests, in a format agreed upon by both the office of budget and program planning and the legislative fiscal analyst, at the time of submission to the budget director as provided by law and, if requested, all underlying and supporting documentation. In preparing the executive budget for the next biennium for submission to the legislature, the budget director shall use the base budget, the present law base, and new proposals as defined in 17-7-102"; deleted former (5) that read: "(5) In the year preceding each legislative session, the budget director shall furnish the legislative fiscal analyst, in a format agreed upon by both the office of budget and program planning and the legislative fiscal analyst:

(a) by October 10, a preliminary budget reflecting the base budget and, by November 1, a present law base for each agency and a copy of the documents that reflect the anticipated receipts and other means of financing the base budget and present law base for each fiscal year of the ensuing biennium;

(b) by November 15, a preliminary budget that must meet the statutory requirements for submission of the budget to the legislature and a summary of the preliminary budget designed for distribution to members and members-elect of the legislature;

(c) by November 12, a paper copy and an electronic copy of the documents that reflect expenditures to the second level, as provided in 17-1-102(3), by funding source and detailed by accounting entity; and

(d) by December 15, all amendments to the preliminary budget"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 545 in (5), in introductory clause near middle after "analyst", deleted "on a confidential basis and"; and in (5)(b), at end, inserted "and a summary of the preliminary budget designed for distribution to members and members-elect of the legislature". Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1993 Special Session Amendment: Chapter 12 in (4), in first sentence, required the budget requests to be "in a format agreed upon by both the office of budget and program planning and the legislative fiscal analyst" and inserted last sentence requiring the budget director to use the base budget, present law base, and new proposals as defined in 17-7-102 in preparing the executive budget for the next biennium; in (5), at end of introductory paragraph, inserted "and in a format agreed upon by both the office of budget and program planning and the legislative fiscal analyst"; in (5)(a), at beginning, substituted "October 10, a preliminary budget reflecting the base budget and, by November 1, a present law base for each agency and" for "December 1" and near end substituted "base budget and present law base" for "budget"; in (5)(b) substituted "November 15" for "December 1"; in (5)(c) substituted "November 12" for "December 3"; in (6) inserted last sentence requiring the fiscal analyst to use the base budget, present law base, and new proposals as defined in 17-7-102 in preparing the budget analysis for the next biennium for submission to the Legislature; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective December 23, 1993.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 20 in (3), at end of second sentence, substituted "removing names, addresses, occupations, social security numbers, and taxpayer identification numbers" for "a masking method that conceals the identity of the taxpayer" and substituted third and fourth sentences prohibiting altering data and restricting disclosure for former language that read: "The masking method may not destroy the statistical integrity of the individual income tax records. The masking method, including how data is masked, must be disclosed to the legislative fiscal analyst"; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendment: In (4) substituted "The budget director" for "Every state agency"; inserted (5)(c) relating to documents reflecting second level expenditures; inserted (6) requiring exchange of expenditure and disbursement recommendations; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1986 Amendment: In (1) substituted "costs and revenues" for "costs" and inserted "and obtain copies of" before "the records"; and inserted (2) relating to unauthorized disclosure of confidential information by the Legislative Fiscal Analyst; inserted (3) relating to income tax data which the Legislative Fiscal Analyst may obtain; and inserted (6) providing that the section does not authorize otherwise unauthorized publication or disclosure of information.

Case Notes

Constitutionality: This section does not impose an unconstitutional burden upon state government, since power to approve appropriation bills and the budget is in the legislative branch, and the committee may require such information from other branches as is reasonably necessary to form a rational basis for budget determinations. Budget Amendments

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Applicability of Budget Amendment Process to Statutory Appropriations: Legislative history and case law support the conclusion that the scope of the budget amendment process is restricted to the expenditure of funds by state agencies in excess of their appropriations. The budget amendment process does not apply to "statutory appropriations", which are those appropriations accomplished by legislative enactment, either with or without specific appropriation laws. 1983 Amendment: In first sentence, inserted "as soon as received by the budget director"; in second sentence substituted "which includes a lawfully approved and valid budget amendment" for "except under authority of a budget amendment"; and changed phraseology.

Case Notes

Constitutionality: Empowering the Finance Committee to approve budget amendments is an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power, because this power is properly exercisable only by either the entire Legislature or an executive officer or agency, and not by an interim committee. Case Notes

Malicious Prosecution of State Employee — Elements Not Shown: Employer brought suit for malicious prosecution against university employee who initiated an investigation against him, the university counsel who conducted the investigation, and the president of the university. Summary judgment for defendants and dismissal of the suit were proper because two of the prima facie elements of malicious prosecution were not established. The County Attorney, not defendants, initiated and continued the prosecution, and plaintiff's bald assertion that defendants caused the prosecution did not raise a genuine issue as to who initiated it. In addition, the defendants were fulfilling a statutory duty. A second unestablished prima facie element was that the prosecution must have terminated favorably for plaintiff. Here, three charges were brought; plaintiff was acquitted of one, and two were dismissed pursuant to a bargained plea of guilty to a substituted charge arising from the investigation. Vehrs v. Piquette, 210 M 386, 684 P2d 476, 41 St. Rep. 1110 (1984).

Case Notes

Payment of Defense Counsel: The Department of Justice rather than counties is responsible for the payment of counsel for indigent defendants in prosecutions under this section. In re Barron, 170 M 218, 552 P2d 70 (1976).

Scope of Power of Prosecution — Retroactive Effect: The grant of authority in this section covers "public offenses disclosed by an audit of a state agency by the legislative auditor" and does not require individual identification of a particular offense or a particular offender by the Legislative Auditor as a precondition to the Attorney General's authority in such a manner as to defeat the obvious purpose of the legislation. The section may be given retroactive effect. St. v. Cline, 170 M 520, 555 P2d 724 (1976).

Limitation on Scope of Grand Jury Inquiry: When a grand jury was empaneled pursuant to this section, the court had authority to limit the area of the grand jury investigation by its charge given at empanelment and could inquire into the proceedings to ascertain if any instructions were not being followed. In re Grand Jury, 170 M 354, 553 P2d 987 (1976).

Investigative Subpoenas: In conducting investigations under this section, the Attorney General does not have general subpoena power and cannot, without an order of a court in a filed case or order of a grand jury, issue investigative subpoenas. TITLE 7

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Part 1

Nature of Self-Government Local Governments

Part Compiler's Comments

Severability: Section 2, Ch. 345, L. 1975, was a severability section.

Part Case Notes

Butte-Silver Bow Self-Government Charter Held Not Superior to Wrongful Discharge From Employment Act: When Babb was appointed the chief executive officer of the Butte-Silver Bow consolidated city-county government, he immediately fired both Johnston and Shea, who had been department heads of the consolidated government for many years. Johnston and Shea then sued Babb for violation of the Wrongful Discharge From Employment Act (WDEA). Babb argued that because the self-government charter of the consolidated government provided that department heads serve "at the pleasure of" the chief executive officer (CEO) of the local government and because self-government charters are superior to statute, Johnston and Shea were "at will" employees to whom the WDEA did not apply. The U.S. Magistrate Judge decided, citing MacMillan v. St. Comp. Ins. Fund, 285 M 202, 947 P2d 75 (1997), that the Montana Supreme Court has held that municipalities operating under self-government charters have limitations as provided in this part, which the self-government charter itself cited, and 7-1-111(2), which applies Title 39 to local governments operating with self-government powers. Further, the Magistrate Judge decided that under Art. XI, sec. 5(3), Mont. Const., and Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222 (1999), the language of the self-government charter requiring department heads to serve "at the pleasure of" the CEO is not such a part of the structure and organization of local government that it is superior to statute. For these reasons, the Magistrate Judge decided that the WDEA did apply to the firing of Johnston and Shea and that they therefore could not be fired without good cause and granted Johnston and Shea's motion for summary judgment. Johnston v. Babb, Cause No. CV-05-03-BU-CSO (D. Mont. 2005).

Regulation of Nude Dancing by Municipality: Under the broad regulatory powers of the twenty-first amendment, a municipality with self-government powers may enact an ordinance that regulates nude and seminude dancing. Billings v. Laedeke, 247 M 151, 805 P2d 1348, 48 St. Rep. 133 (1991).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Authority of City-County Government to Acquire and Operate Electric and Natural Gas Utilities: A consolidated government with self-government powers, such as the city and county of Butte-Silver Bow, has the authority to acquire and operate electric and natural gas utilities both within and outside the boundaries of the local government unit. The Attorney General determined that Butte-Silver Bow was specifically authorized to do so after considering the local government's charter, constitutional ramifications, and whether the exercise of that authority was prohibited by local government law or other statutes applicable to self-government units and was consistent with state provisions in areas affirmatively subjected to state control, as described in 7-1-113. 48 A.G. Op. 14 (2000). See also State ex rel. Swart v. Molitor, 190 M 515, 621 P2d 1100 (1981), D&F Sanitation Serv. v. Billings, 219 M 437, 713 P2d 977 (1986), and Lechner v. Billings, 244 M 195, 797 P2d 191 (1990).

Local Government Authority to Provide Alcohol and Drug Abuse Treatment Services: The city of Billings and Yellowstone County proposed to purchase and renovate a building for use by a nonprofit corporation providing treatment for alcohol and drug-related problems. The city proposed to issue industrial revenue bonds (IRBs) to fund a portion of the project, and the county sought a grant from the Montana Coal Board. Under the proposal, title to the building would vest in the nonprofit corporation once the IRBs have been retired. The questions presented were whether: (1) the building in question is a "governmental facility"; (2) a city or county has the power to expend funds for a building the title to which will eventually vest in a private corporation; and (3) contracting with a private corporation is a legitimate means of providing a governmental service. In the opinion of the Attorney General, a local government unit with self-government powers and counties with general government powers are authorized to provide alcohol and drug abuse treatment services under Title 53, ch. 24. Local governments may contract with nonprofit corporations for the provision of such services. A program of alcohol and drug abuse treatment services provided by contract with a private nonprofit corporation is a "governmental service or facility" under 90-6-205 for the purpose of determining eligibility for coal impact assistance. 39 A.G. Op. 31 (1981).

Case Notes

Power of Local Governments to Require All Residents to Connect to City Water Supply: The defendants argued that a city ordinance requiring them to hook up to the city water system violated their right to privacy by denying them the freedom to choose the type of water they wanted to use. The Supreme Court held that the interest asserted did not involve matters so fundamentally affecting the defendants' rights as to invoke constitutional protection. The court also held that a local government's concern with preventing health problems is a legitimate reason for controlling the water supply and a proper exercise of governmental power. Ennis v. Stewart, 247 M 355, 807 P2d 179, 48 St. Rep. 228 (1991).

System Development Fees Allowable Form of Financing Future Expansion of City Water and Sewer System: When liberally construed, it is within the power of a self-governing municipality, as well as a reasonable extension of a city's express statutory authority, to implement the collection and accumulation of system development fees to fund a portion of the cost of future expansion of municipal water and sewer systems. The fees are proper as long as they are based on reasonably anticipated future costs of the city and the revenue generated from the fees is used solely to fund facility expansion or to pay for bonds sold for that purpose. Lechner v. Billings, 244 M 195, 797 P2d 191, 47 St. Rep. 1512 (1990).

Tax on Sale of Attorney's Services — Invalid: A city ordinance imposing an annual tax on every lawyer or law firm carrying on the practice of law, calculated on the basis of gross revenue generated from attorney-client relationships, was held to be an unconstitutional sales tax. The tax was beyond the scope of self-government powers and in violation of 7-1-112, since it was not related to any regulatory control measure for the health or welfare of the city but was a tax on the sale of attorneys' services. Brueggemann v. Billings, 221 M 375, 719 P2d 768, 43 St. Rep. 905 (1986).

Establishment of Refuse Disposal District by County With Self-Governing Power: Title 7, ch. 13, part 2, is not mandatory upon a county charter form of government when it establishes a refuse disposal district and system. That part applies to the establishment of a refuse disposal district by governments that are of general power status, not those with self-government status. Title 7, ch. 13, part 2, does not direct or require a local government to provide a service within the meaning of 7-1-114. Clopton v. Madison County Comm'n, 216 M 335, 701 P2d 347, 42 St. Rep. 851 (1985).

Regulatory Municipal Business License Applicable to Attorneys — Unconstitutional: A business license ordinance enacted by a self-governing municipality requiring municipal licensure of attorneys and that provided for regulation was an unconstitutional encroachment on the Supreme Court's authority to regulate the bar as provided in Art. III, sec. 2, Mont. Const., because the ordinance conditions attorneys' access to the practice of law. The ordinance included police provisions that could conceivably cover standards of practice, prohibited attorneys from carrying on their occupation without procuring a municipal license, required municipal licensure of nonresident attorneys practicing in the municipality, and provided for fines and incarceration for failing to comply with the ordinance. Harlen v. Helena, 208 M 45, 676 P2d 191, 41 St. Rep. 162 (1984).

Unconstitutional Regulation of Attorneys — Regulatory Business License Required — Self-Government Powers Municipality: A business license ordinance enacted by a self-governing municipality requiring licensure of attorneys was declared invalid in respect to the attorneys because provisions of the ordinance provided for regulation of the practice of law contrary to the Supreme Court's authority to regulate the bar as provided in Art. III, sec. 2, Mont. Const. The Supreme Court recognized the universe of powers available to self-governing local governments that are not available to general power local governments, but said that such powers are restricted by the Montana Constitution. Harlen v. Helena, 208 M 45, 676 P2d 191, 41 St. Rep. 162 (1984).

Power to Prohibit Door-to-Door Solicitation: The city of Billings enacted an ordinance declaring uninvited door-to-door solicitation a nuisance punishable as a misdemeanor. It was argued that a state statute regulating itinerant vendors did not empower a city to prohibit their activities, therefore precluding the ordinance. The Supreme Court disagreed. Under the expanded powers of local self-government provided by Montana's 1972 Constitution, a city possessing those powers may exercise any power not prohibited by the Constitution or state statute. A city possessing self-government powers may prohibit uninvited door-to-door solicitation by itinerant vendors, and a licensing statute does not legalize an activity otherwise prohibited. Any statements to the contrary contained in DeLong v. Downes, 175 M 152, 573 P2d 160 (1977), are expressly overruled. Tipco Corp. v. Billings, 197 M 339, 642 P2d 1074, 39 St. Rep. 600 (1982). See also Stevens v. Missoula, 205 M 274, 667 P2d 440, 40 St. Rep. 1267 (1983).

Attorney General's Opinions

Municipal Grant of Public Funds to Authority Created by Interlocal Agreement Between Self-Governing Municipalities Lawful — Debt Obligations: A self-governing municipality may grant funds for the public purpose of operating the electric and natural gas utility. Debt incurred through corporate bonds issued by a public benefit nonprofit corporation incorporated by an authority created by interlocal agreement between self-governing municipalities is not subject to laws governing municipal debts or obligations if the municipalities are not legally obligated to appropriate money to pay the debt and the debt is without recourse to the spending power of the municipalities. 51 A.G. Op. 5 (2005). See also 48 A.G. Op. 12 (2000), and 49 A.G. Op. 3 (2001).

Mandatory Seatbelt Ordinance: Under Montana law and the Montana Constitution, a municipality with self-governing powers may enact a mandatory seatbelt ordinance that provides for a fine or jail sentence for violation of the ordinance as long as the fine or penalty does not exceed $500 and the imprisonment does not exceed 6 months for any one offense, and as long as such an ordinance is not prohibited by the city charter. 41 A.G. Op. 47 (1986).

Self-Government Powers — Professional Licensing — Conflict With State Statutes: The city of Helena, operating under a home rule charter, passed an ordinance requiring a license fee of all city businesses. State statutes that prohibit municipalities from imposing license fees on certain professions did not apply because the statutes were not made specifically applicable to self-government units. Home rule governments have all powers not specifically denied by the Montana Constitution, law, or charter. 39 A.G. Op. 60 (1982), overruled in Harlen v. Helena, 208 M 45, 676 P2d 191, 41 St. Rep. 162 (1984).

Competitive Bidding Requirements Mandatory: A local government unit with self-government powers cannot supersede by the passage of a resolution or ordinance the competitive bidding requirements set forth in 7-5-4302. 37 A.G. Op. 175 (1978).

Services Under Self-Government Powers — No Doctrine of Implied Preemption: Appellant garbage haulers contended that the Legislature preempted the field of garbage regulation by enacting 7-2-4736. Prior to the 1972 Constitution, cities had only those powers expressly given to them by the Legislature, and if the Legislature considered a subject to be a matter of statewide concern, it could enact laws on the subject and preempt local governments from the field. However, Art. XI, sec. 6, Mont. Const., states that a local government which adopts a self-government charter may exercise any power not prohibited by the Constitution, law, or the charter. The city of Billings adopted a self-government charter in 1976, and this section allows the city to provide services or perform any functions not expressly prohibited. The Supreme Court held in Tipco Corp., Inc. v. Billings, 197 M 339, 642 P2d 1074 (1982), that "the only way the doctrine of pre-emption by the state can co-exist with self-government powers of a municipality is if there is an express prohibition by statute which forbids local governments . . . from acting in a certain area. The doctrine of implied pre-emption, by definition, cannot apply to local governments with self-government powers". Powers specifically denied to local governments are enumerated in 7-1-111 and include the exercise of any power that prohibits the grant or denial of a certificate of public convenience and necessity. Under 69-12-314, garbage haulers are required to get a certificate of public convenience and necessity prior to doing business. The decision by Billings voters that the city should provide garbage services in no way prohibits the grant or denial of a certificate of public necessity. The Supreme Court held that the city was simply exercising its self-government powers to provide a service for its residents and was taxing them for that service. D & F Sanitation Serv. v. Billings, 219 M 437, 713 P2d 977, 43 St. Rep. 74 (1986), overruling Billings v. Weatherwax, 193 M 163, 630 P2d 1216, 38 St. Rep. 1034 (1981).

Provision of Museum, Historical Society, or Community Theater Services: A local government with self-government powers may provide the services or functions of a museum, historical society, or community theater. These services or functions may be provided by a contract with a private organization if such a contract is a reasonable and appropriate method for doing so. 38 A.G. Op. 7 (1979).

Recorded Waiver of Annexation Protest by Prior Property Owner — Present Owner Precluded From Protesting Annexation: In 1966, the city of Whitefish adopted a policy that a landowner outside the city boundary had to agree to waive the right to protest future annexation in order to continue to receive city water and sewer services. The waivers were properly recorded and later used by the city to invalidate annexation protests by current landowners in 1998. The District Court concluded that the waivers constituted a covenant running with the land and that the current owners were precluded from protesting the proposed annexation. On appeal, the current owners argued that the right to protest in 7-2-4710 resided with the current property owner and that the statutory consent to annexation authorized by 7-13-4314 applied only to the initiation of services and could not transfer to subsequent purchasers. The Supreme Court disagreed. Under 7-1-113, a self-governing entity may act even when there are controlling state laws as long as the local government's actions are not inconsistent with or lower or less stringent than state requirements. The purpose of 7-13-4314 is to ensure that property owners outside a municipality can request utility services and to ensure that the local government can later require annexation in exchange for utilities. Creating a covenant that runs with the land furthers this purpose. In addition, 70-17-203 also provides that every covenant made for the direct benefit of the property runs with the land. The waivers directly benefited the property and were allowable, so the District Court was affirmed. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004). See also State ex rel. Swart v. Molitor, 190 M 515, 621 P2d 1100 (1981).

No Presumption That Hookup Fees Reasonable: Seypar, Inc., argued that the sewer district's $500 hookup fee assessed against each of Seypar, Inc.'s, 70 lots was unreasonable. The Supreme Court held that the District Court was wrong in finding that the district was a local self-governing unit and that therefore there was no presumption that the district's fees were reasonable. However, the Supreme Court found that the district had introduced evidence that the fees were reasonable and Seypar, Inc., had presented no contrary evidence. Therefore, Seypar, Inc., had not met its burden of proof to show that the fees were unreasonable. Seypar, Inc. v. Water & Sewer District No. 363, 1998 MT 149, 289 M 263, 960 P2d 311, 55 St. Rep. 578 (1998).

Sewer District Not Local Self-Governing Unit: The lower court granted a multicounty sewer district's motion for summary judgment, ruling that the district had the right to impose hookup inspection fees on the appellant, Seypar, Inc. Seypar, Inc., argued that the district did not have the authority to impose the fee against individual property owners and that the cost should have been assessed against the whole district. The Supreme Court ruled that although state law gave the district the same administrative powers as County Commissioners have over a single county sewer district, those powers are not the same as a local self-governing unit and therefore the district did not have the authority to exercise any power not prohibited by Montana law. The Supreme Court stated that since the district was not self-governing, it could not argue that the statutes relating to municipal districts applied to it by analogy. The Supreme Court held that the district did have the power to impose hookup fees under 7-12-2151. Seypar, Inc. v. Water & Sewer District No. 363, 1998 MT 149, 289 M 263, 960 P2d 311, 55 St. Rep. 578 (1998).

City Ordinance Requiring Developer Surcharge — Valid Exercise of Self-Governing Power: A city ordinance imposing a 5% surcharge on developers of raw land prior to creation of a special improvement district was a valid exercise of the city's self-governing powers. Diefenderfer v. Billings, 223 M 487, 726 P2d 1362, 43 St. Rep. 1934 (1986), distinguished in Seypar, Inc. v. Water & Sewer District No. 363, 1998 MT 149, 289 M 263, 960 P2d 311, 55 St. Rep. 578 (1998).

Limitation on Self-Governing Powers: The city of Billings, a self-governing city, adopted an ordinance purporting to supersede all but two sections in Title 7, ch. 33, part 41, relating to municipal fire departments. The firefighters challenged the ordinance. The District Court held that the ordinance was a permissible exercise of a self-government power. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that under the shared sovereignty concept contained in the Montana Constitution, local governments with self-governing powers are limited only by express prohibitions in the constitution, state statute, or the local government charter itself. By statute, a local government may not establish standards or requirements lower or less stringent than those imposed by state law. The court held that because the ordinance did not contain standards governing several areas it purported to supersede, the ordinance provisions were lower or less stringent than the statutory provisions and therefore invalid. A local government must provide any service required by state law. State law requires every city to have a fire department. Pursuant to Art. XI, sec. 5(3), Mont. Const., the only statutory provisions a self-governing charter may control over are those establishing executive, legislative, and administrative structure and organization. The ordinance was invalid. Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 214 M 481, 694 P2d 1335, 42 St. Rep. 112 (1985), followed in Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222, 56 St. Rep. 23 (1999). Billings Firefighters Local 521 II was followed, as to the power of a consolidated local government CEO to fire government employees not being considered a part of the structure and organization of a self-governing local government, in Johnston v. Babb, Cause No. CV-05-03-BU-CSO (D. Mont. 2005), granting partial summary judgment.

Exercise of Power Under Self-Government Charter Not Limited: A county government operating under a self-government charter which elects to provide a service or perform a function that may also be provided or performed by a general power government unit is not subject to any limitation in the provision of such service or performance of that function except to the extent of such limitations as are found in its charter or in state law specifically applicable to self-government units. Thus, where a county government is not limited by its charter concerning whether it can charge a fee for review by the county-appointed land surveyor and where there is no state statute specifically forbidding self-government units from assessing a fee for the review of certificates of survey, the county's prescribed fee is valid. The county in prescribing such a fee is merely exercising a legislative power that as a self-governing unit it shares with the state. State ex rel. Swart v. Molitor, 190 M 515, 621 P2d 1100, 38 St. Rep. 71 (1981), distinguished in Seypar, Inc. v. Water & Sewer District No. 363, 1998 MT 149, 289 M 263, 960 P2d 311, 55 St. Rep. 578 (1998).

Self-Government Powers — Professional Licensing — Conflict With State Statutes: The city of Helena, operating under a home rule charter, passed an ordinance requiring a license fee of all city businesses. State statutes that prohibit municipalities from imposing license fees on certain professions did not apply because the statutes were not made specifically applicable to self-government units. Home rule governments have all powers not specifically denied by the Montana Constitution, law, or charter. 39 A.G. Op. 60 (1982), overruled in *Harlen v. City Gross Revenue Franchise Fee on Facilities Using Public Right-of-Way Illegal Tax on Goods and Services: The city of Billings by ordinance established a franchise fee on several public utilities and telecommunications corporations with facilities located in the public right-of-way, and the utilities challenged the fee. The District Court held that the fee constituted an unlawful tax, and the city appealed. Despite the fact that the ordinance was subsequently rejected by voters, rendering the issue moot, the Supreme Court noted that the issue was capable of repetition and therefore accepted jurisdiction of the issue as appropriate in order to finally settle the legality of such fees in case similar ordinances were brought forth in the future. The fee in question was characterized as a franchise fee based on 4% of gross annual revenue generated by each utility that occupied the public right-of-way within the city. However, money collected was not earmarked for right-of-way maintenance or regulation, but was to be used to reduce general property taxes and to fund transportation improvement projects, public safety operations, and park maintenance, and the fee was separate from the city's police power over streets and alleys. The Supreme Court agreed that the unilaterally imposed, revenue-generating gross revenue fee, which was unrelated to the use or occupancy of the right-of-way, was in fact a tax based exclusively on the sale of a product or service within the city and was thus prohibited pursuant to 7-1-112. *Mont.-Dak. Local Development Code Regulating Sale of Alcoholic Beverages Not Preempted by State: Montana's statutory framework for the regulation of alcohol clearly contemplates that cities will impose local zoning that regulates the sale of alcohol. The development code of the city of Red Lodge, a self-governing city, being consistent with and stricter than the state's regulations, was not preempted by state law. Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998), overruling State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966).

System Development Fees Allowable Form of Financing Future Expansion of City Water and Sewer System: When liberally construed, it is within the power of a self-governing municipality, as well as a reasonable extension of a city's express statutory authority, to implement the collection and accumulation of system development fees to fund a portion of the cost of future expansion of municipal water and sewer systems. The fees are proper as long as they are based on reasonably anticipated future costs of the city and the revenue generated from the fees is used solely to fund facility expansion or to pay for bonds sold for that purpose. Lechner v. Billings, 244 M 195, 797 P2d 191, 47 St. Rep. 1512 (1990).

Independent Exercise of Eminent Domain Power by Joint Airport Board Member: Plaintiffs argued that 67-10-205(2)(c) mandates that a proceeding for eminent domain may not be brought by a single municipal member of a joint airport board but rather only as a joint action with the other signatories. The Supreme Court found this to be an overly narrow interpretation in light of other statutory authority in Title 67, ch. 10, parts 1 and 2, which empowers municipalities to act either jointly or independently, and under the broad grant of power to cities under Art. XI, sec. 4, Mont. Const. By its terms, 67-10-205(2)(c) requires joint action when an eminent domain proceeding is brought pursuant to the authority of the joint airport board; however, it does not preclude action separate and apart from the board. Lake v. Lake County, 233 M 126, 759 P2d 161, 45 St. Rep. 1354 (1988).

Attorney General's Opinions

Municipal Tiered Resort Tax Allowed: Resort tax statutes neither prohibit nor explicitly permit a differential tax schedule. However, a differential tax structure is not inconsistent with concerns revealed in the legislative history and may arguably further the express statutory purposes by taxing at a higher rate those businesses drawing more of their customers from tourists than those businesses serving a greater proportion of local residents. Therefore, a municipality with self-governing powers may establish a tiered resort tax schedule providing different tax rates for similar goods or services according to the character of the business in which the goods or services are offered, as long as none of the tax rates exceed 3%. 48 A.G. Op. 25 (2000).

Enactment of Local Government Ordinance Providing That Delinquent Solid Waste Service Charges Become Lien on Property Served: A city-county charter that provided that levies for special services were the obligation of the property owners was not in conflict with state constitutional powers delegated to local governments or with state law governing local governments, nor was it inconsistent with state provisions in an area affirmatively subjected to state control. Therefore, a local government with self-governing powers may enact an ordinance that provides that delinquent solid waste management service charges become a lien on the property served, consistent with the remedy available to a solid waste management district for collecting its delinquent service charges under 7-13-233. 44 A.G. Op. 34 (1992).

Mandatory Seatbelt Ordinance: Under Montana law and the Montana Constitution, a municipality with self-governing powers may enact a mandatory seatbelt ordinance that provides for a fine or jail sentence for violation of the ordinance as long as the fine or penalty does not exceed $500 and the imprisonment does not exceed 6 months for any one offense, and as long as such an ordinance is not prohibited by the city charter. 41 A.G. Op. 47 (1986).

Self-Government Powers — Professional Licensing — Conflict With State Statutes: The city of Helena, operating under a home rule charter, passed an ordinance requiring a license fee of all city businesses. State statutes that prohibit municipalities from imposing license fees on certain professions did not apply because the statutes were not made specifically applicable to self-government units. Case Notes

Butte-Silver Bow Self-Government Charter Held Not Superior to Wrongful Discharge From Employment Act: When Babb was appointed the chief executive officer of the Butte-Silver Bow consolidated city-county government, he immediately fired both Johnston and Shea, who had been department heads of the consolidated government for many years. Johnston and Shea then sued Babb for violation of the Wrongful Discharge From Employment Act (WDEA). Babb argued that because the self-government charter of the consolidated government provided that department heads serve "at the pleasure of" the chief executive officer (CEO) of the local government and because self-government charters are superior to statute, Johnston and Shea were "at will" employees to whom the WDEA did not apply. The U.S. Magistrate Judge decided, citing MacMillan v. St. Comp. Ins. Fund, 285 M 202, 947 P2d 75 (1997), that the Montana Supreme Court has held that municipalities operating under self-government charters have limitations as provided in this part, which the self-government charter itself cited, and subsection (2) of this section, which applies Title 39 to local governments operating with self-government powers. Further, the Magistrate Judge decided that under Art. XI, sec. 5(3), Mont. Const., and Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222 (1999), the language of the self-government charter requiring department heads to serve "at the pleasure of" the CEO is not such a part of the structure and organization of local government that it is superior to statute. For these reasons, the Magistrate Judge decided that the WDEA did apply to the firing of Johnston and Shea and that they therefore could not be fired without good cause and granted Johnston and Shea's motion for summary judgment. Johnston v. Babb, Cause No. CV-05-03-BU-CSO (D. Mont. 2005).

No Prohibition Against Utility Regulation by Municipality: Appellants argued that the restriction in subsection (5) of this section, which prohibits a local government unit from establishing a rate or price otherwise determined by a state agency, preempted the city of Billings from assessing new utility fees in the form of system development fees for funding the expansion of water and sewer facilities. However, under Title 69, ch. 7, municipal utility rates are not determined by a state agency; rather, unless the rates result in an increase in total revenue of 12% in any 1 year, the exclusive authority to regulate, establish, and change municipal utility rates rests with the city. Lechner v. Billings, 244 M 195, 797 P2d 191, 47 St. Rep. 1512 (1990).

City Ordinance Requiring Developer Surcharge — Valid Exercise of Self-Governing Power: A city ordinance imposing a 5% surcharge on developers of raw land prior to creation of a special improvement district was a valid exercise of the city's self-governing powers. Diefenderfer v. Billings, 223 M 487, 726 P2d 1362, 43 St. Rep. 1934 (1986).

Garbage Service Under Self-Government — No Doctrine of Implied Preemption: Appellant garbage haulers contended that the Legislature preempted the field of garbage regulation by enacting 7-2-4736. Prior to the 1972 Constitution, cities had only those powers expressly given to them by the Legislature, and if the Legislature considered a subject to be a matter of statewide concern, it could enact laws on the subject and preempt local governments from the field. However, Art. XI, sec. 6, Mont. Const., states that a local government which adopts a self-government charter may exercise any power not prohibited by the Constitution, law, or the charter. The city of Billings adopted a self-government charter in 1976, and 7-1-102 allows the city to provide services or perform any functions not expressly prohibited. Powers specifically denied to local governments are enumerated in this section and include the exercise of any power that prohibits the grant or denial of a certificate of public convenience and necessity. Under 69-12-314, garbage haulers are required to get a certificate of public convenience and necessity prior to doing business. The decision by Billings voters that the city should provide garbage services in no way prohibits the grant or denial of a certificate of public necessity. The Supreme Court held that the city was simply exercising its self-government powers to provide a service for its residents and was taxing them for that service. D & F Sanitation Serv. v. Billings, 219 M 437, 713 P2d 977, 43 St. Rep. 74 (1986), overruling Billings v. Weatherwax, 193 M 163, 630 P2d 1216, 38 St. Rep. 1034 (1981).

Limitation on Self-Governing Powers: The city of Billings, a self-governing city, adopted an ordinance purporting to supersede all but two sections in Title 7, ch. 33, part 41, relating to municipal fire departments. The firefighters challenged the ordinance. The District Court held that the ordinance was a permissible exercise of a self-government power. By statute, a local government may not establish standards or requirements lower or less stringent than those imposed by state law. The court held that because the ordinance did not contain standards governing several areas it purported to supersede, the ordinance provisions were lower or less stringent than the statutory provisions and therefore invalid. A local government must provide any service required by state law. State law requires every city to have a fire department. Pursuant to Art. XI, sec. 5(3), Mont. Const., the only statutory provisions a self-governing charter may control over are those establishing executive, legislative, and administrative structure and organization. The ordinance was invalid. Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 214 M 481, 694 P2d 1335, 42 St. Rep. 112 (1985), followed in Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222, 56 St. Rep. 23 (1999). Billings Firefighters Local 521 II was followed, as to the power of a consolidated local government CEO to fire government employees not being considered a part of the structure and organization of a self-governing local government, in Johnston v. Babb, Cause No. CV-05-03-BU-CSO (D. Mont. 2005), granting partial summary judgment.

Self-Governing Unit Ordinance — State Statute Silent on Subject of Ordinance: A county's ordinance enacted pursuant to a self-government charter that requires payment of a fee for review by the appointed land surveyor of certificates of survey does not prescribe a lower standard than 76-3-611 (requiring review but no fee), is "not less stringent", and therefore, under 7-1-113, is not the exercise of a power inconsistent with state law. State ex rel. Swart v. Molitor, 190 M 515, 621 P2d 1100, 38 St. Rep. 71 (1981).

Attorney General's Opinions

Authority of City-County Government to Acquire and Operate Electric and Natural Gas Utilities: A consolidated government with self-government powers, such as the city and county of Butte-Silver Bow, has the authority to acquire and operate electric and natural gas utilities both within and outside the boundaries of the local government unit. The Attorney General determined that Butte-Silver Bow was specifically authorized to do so after considering the local government's charter, constitutional ramifications, and whether the exercise of that authority was prohibited by local government law or other statutes applicable to self-government units and was consistent with state provisions in areas affirmatively subjected to state control, as described in 7-1-113. 48 A.G. Op. 14 (2000). See also State ex rel. Swart v. Molitor, 190 M 515, 621 P2d 1100 (1981), D&F Sanitation Serv. v. Billings, 219 M 437, 713 P2d 977 (1986), and Lechner v. Billings, 244 M 195, 797 P2d 191 (1990).

City Authority to Enact Photo-Radar Ordinance: No state agency is given exclusive power to establish administrative rules governing speed of traffic in cities and towns, nor is the enforcement of speed regulations exclusively vested in a state agency. Therefore, the city of Billings, under its self-government charter, is not precluded by statute from enacting a photo-radar ordinance providing either for accountability on the part of the registered owner for illegal speeding by any person operating the vehicle with the owner's permission or for a permissive inference that the registered owner was the speeding violator. 45 A.G. Op. 7 (1993).

Enactment of Local Government Ordinance Providing That Delinquent Solid Waste Service Charges Become Lien on Property Served: A city-county charter that provided that levies for special services were the obligation of the property owners was not in conflict with state constitutional powers delegated to local governments or with state law governing local governments, nor was it inconsistent with state provisions in an area affirmatively subjected to state control. Therefore, a local government with self-governing powers may enact an ordinance that provides that delinquent solid waste management service charges become a lien on the property served, consistent with the remedy available to a solid waste management district for collecting its delinquent service charges under 7-13-233. 44 A.G. Op. 34 (1992).

Public Utility Contractor Not to Install Certain Service Lines in Billings Unless Licensed by State as Plumber — City Required to Check License Qualifications: The city of Billings may not allow public utility contractors to install water and wastewater service lines that extend from the public water or sewer main to a point within the walls of the private property or within 20 feet from any foundation wall of the private residence unless the contractor also has a plumber's license issued by the state. The city is required to determine whether a person applying for a plumbing permit pursuant to the Uniform Plumbing Code is licensed by the state as a plumber if the type of work described in the permit requires licensure as a requisite to performance. 44 A.G. Op. 12 (1991). In clarifying this opinion, the Attorney General noted that work done on a public water supply or public sewer system that does not include work falling within the statutory distances for plumbing or drainage systems does not require a state-issued plumber's license. Therefore, the city of Billings may not allow public utility contractors to install water service lines that extend from the public water main to a point within the walls of the private property or within 20 feet from any foundation wall of the premises, whichever distance is shorter as measured from the foundation wall, or wastewater service lines that extend from the public sewer main to a point within 2 feet from any foundation wall of the premises, unless the contractor also has a plumber's license issued by the state. 44 A.G. Op. 39 (1992).

Extraterritorial Extension of City Zoning Regulations: In the absence of applicable county zoning regulations, 76-2-310 authorizes a city of the first class that has adopted a master plan (now growth policy) to extend its zoning regulations extraterritorially within a 3-mile radius of its corporate limits without reference to county boundary lines. 43 A.G. Op. 22 (1989).

Case Notes

Self-Government Local Governments Not Prohibited From Adopting No-Smoking Ordinances Affecting Gambling Establishments: Former section 7-1-120 (now repealed) provided: "An establishment that has been granted a permit under Title 23, chapter 5, part 6, for the placement of video gambling machines on the premises is exempt from any local government ordinance that is more restrictive than the provisions of Title 50, chapter 40, part 1", which is the Montana

Clean Indoor Air Act of 1979. Under Art. XI, sec. 6, Mont. Const., "A local government unit adopting a self-government charter may exercise any power not prohibited by this constitution, law, or charter." To exempt is not to prohibit. A prohibition cuts off the power to act in the first instance. An exemption assumes that there is authority or power to act and grants freedom or immunity from that power. Section 7-1-120 did not effect an express prohibition of self-governing powers. Therefore, it did not preempt any no-smoking ordinances adopted by a self-governing entity. The state argued that it had preempted the area of state-licensed video gambling machines and that city ordinances limiting or prohibiting smoking in buildings open to the public, one ordinance of which expressly applied to premises with state licenses for video gambling machines, were inconsistent with that preemption. Subsection (5) of this section prohibits a local government with self-government powers from exercising the power to regulate any form of gambling. The cities' clean air ordinances are not an attempt to regulate gambling in contravention of the subsection (5) prohibition; the ordinances regulate clean indoor air, and if that regulation incidentally impacts video gambling machine establishments, that fact does not invalidate the ordinances. The ordinances have incidental impacts on all buildings open to the public. Am. Cancer Soc'y v. St., 2004 MT 376, 325 M 70, 103 P3d 1085 (2004).

City Gross Revenue Franchise Fee on Facilities Using Public Right-of-Way Illegal Tax on Goods and Services: The city of Billings by ordinance established a franchise fee on several public utilities and telecommunications corporations with facilities located in the public right-of-way, and the utilities challenged the fee. The District Court held that the fee constituted an unlawful tax, and the city appealed. Despite the fact that the ordinance was subsequently rejected by voters, rendering the issue moot, the Supreme Court noted that the issue was capable of repetition and therefore accepted jurisdiction of the issue as appropriate in order to finally settle the legality of such fees in case similar ordinances were brought forth in the future. The fee in question was characterized as a franchise fee based on 4% of gross annual revenue generated by each utility that occupied the public right-of-way within the city. However, money collected was not earmarked for right-of-way maintenance or regulation, but was to be used to reduce general property taxes and to fund transportation improvement projects, public safety operations, and park maintenance, and the fee was separate from the city's police power over streets and alleys. The Supreme Court agreed that the unilaterally imposed, revenue-generating gross revenue fee, which was unrelated to the use or occupancy of the right-of-way, was in fact a tax based exclusively on the sale of a product or service within the city and was thus prohibited pursuant to this section. Mont.-Dak. Util. Co. v. Billings, 2003 MT 332, 318 M 407, 80 P3d 1247 (2003), distinguishing State ex rel. Malott v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 89 M 37, 296 P 1 (1930). See also *St. Louis v. W. Union Tel. System Development Fee as Service Charge, Not Tax: System development fees that are placed in a special fund earmarked for expanding a city's water and sewer facilities or for retiring bonds issued for that purpose, rather than being held in a general revenue fund to be used on projects unrelated to water and sewer systems, are not taxes but service charges, which the city is not prohibited from adopting by this section. Lechner v. Billings, 244 M 195, 797 P2d 191, 47 St. Rep. 1512 (1990).

Tax on Sale of Attorney's Services — Invalid: A city ordinance imposing an annual tax on every lawyer or law firm carrying on the practice of law, calculated on the basis of gross revenue generated from attorney-client relationships, was held to be an unconstitutional sales tax. The tax was beyond the scope of self-government powers and in violation of 7-1-112, since it was not related to any regulatory control measure for the health or welfare of the city but was a tax on the sale of attorneys' services. Brueggemann v. Billings, 221 M 375, 719 P2d 768, 43 St. Rep. 905 (1986).

Fee for Occupancy of Motel Room Held a Sales Tax: Where the city of Billings imposed a fee of $1 on each adult transient for each day he occupied a hotel or motel room, the District Court erred in holding that the fee was not a sales tax, prohibited by law, on a service. The fact that the tax is imposed on the occupant rather than upon the passage of possession of the room is not persuasive on the issue of whether the fee is a tax upon a service. The fee is directly connected to the renting of the room, as such a fee is not imposed upon any other type of business. The ordinance imposing the fee is illegal and void. Mont. Innkeepers Ass'n v. Billings, 206 M 425, 671 P2d 21, 40 St. Rep. 1753 (1983).

Attorney General's Opinions

Municipal Tiered Resort Tax Allowed: Resort tax statutes neither prohibit nor explicitly permit a differential tax schedule. However, a differential tax structure is not inconsistent with concerns revealed in the legislative history and may arguably further the express statutory purposes by taxing at a higher rate those businesses drawing more of their customers from tourists than those businesses serving a greater proportion of local residents. Therefore, a municipality with self-governing powers may establish a tiered resort tax schedule providing different tax rates for similar goods or services according to the character of the business in which the goods or services are offered, as long as none of the tax rates exceed 3%. 48 A.G. Op. 25 (2000).

City Authority to Enact Photo-Radar Ordinance: No state agency is given exclusive power to establish administrative rules governing speed of traffic in cities and towns, nor is the enforcement of speed regulations exclusively vested in a state agency. Therefore, the city of Billings, under its self-government charter, is not precluded by statute from enacting a photo-radar ordinance providing either for accountability on the part of the registered owner for illegal speeding by any person operating the vehicle with the owner's permission or for a permissive inference that the registered owner was the speeding violator. 45 A.G. Case Notes

Local Development Code Regulating Sale of Alcoholic Beverages Not Preempted by State: Montana's statutory framework for the regulation of alcohol clearly contemplates that cities will impose local zoning that regulates the sale of alcohol. The development code of the city of Red Lodge, a self-governing city, being consistent with and stricter than the state's regulations, was not preempted by state law. Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998), overruling State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966).

No Mandatory Application of Wastewater Treatment Regulation by Local Board of Health: Under 76-3-501, review and approval or disapproval of a subdivision under the Montana Subdivision and Platting Act may occur only under regulations in effect at the time that an application is submitted to the governing body. The Lewis and Clark County Commission approved the Green Acres subdivision in July 1990, at which time the Lewis and Clark County Board of Health's onsite wastewater treatment regulations mandated shallow standard treatment systems, rather than the present regulation requiring intermittent sand filters. Skinner Enterprises, Inc., argued that the 1990 regulation should be applied pursuant to 76-3-501. However, local boards of health derive authority to regulate subdivisions from 50-2-116, not from the Montana Subdivision and Platting Act. Therefore, the local board's own onsite wastewater treatment regulations did not obligate the local board to apply the 1990 regulation. Further, 50-2-130 allows local boards of health to promulgate regulations that are more stringent than comparable state regulations, notwithstanding the provisions of this section prohibiting a local government from exercising any power inconsistent with state law or administrative regulations. The facts regarding whether shallow-capped drainfields or intermittent sand filters are considered more stringent were not the subject of the present appeal. The discretionary authority of the local board of health to regulate subdivision sanitation by requiring intermittent sand filters was affirmed. Skinner Enterprises, Inc. v. Lewis & Clark County Bd. of Health, 286 M 256, 950 P2d 733, 54 St. Rep. 1398 (1997). In early 1998, prior to trial, the Board again amended the onsite wastewater treatment regulations, superseding the 1995 regulations to which Skinner objected. As a result, the legality of the 1995 amendments were no longer of any practical consequence to the parties and Skinner's objections to the process by which the 1995 amendments were adopted were moot and properly dismissed. Skinner Enterprises, Inc. v. Lewis & Clark City-County Health Dept., 1999 MT 106, 294 M 310, 980 P2d 1049, 56 St. Rep. 438 (1999).

Setting of Municipal Utility Rates Not Subjected to State Control: The setting of rates and charges for municipal utilities has not been affirmatively subjected to state control within the meaning of this section. The enforcement of standards or requirements and the power to establish administrative rules in the area of municipal ratemaking are not vested in any state agency or officer. Rather, 69-7-201 requires the municipal utility, with the concurrence of the municipal governing body, to adopt rules for operating the utility. Lechner v. Billings, 244 M 195, 797 P2d 191, 47 St. Rep. 1512 (1990).

City Ordinance Requiring Developer Surcharge — Valid Exercise of Self-Governing Power: A city ordinance imposing a 5% surcharge on developers of raw land prior to creation of a special improvement district was a valid exercise of the city's self-governing powers. Diefenderfer v. Billings, 223 M 487, 726 P2d 1362, 43 St. Rep. 1934 (1986).

Limitation on Self-Governing Powers: The city of Billings, a self-governing city, adopted an ordinance purporting to supersede all but two sections in Title 7, ch. 33, part 41, relating to municipal fire departments. The firefighters challenged the ordinance. The District Court held that the ordinance was a permissible exercise of a self-government power. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that under the shared sovereignty concept contained in the Montana Constitution, local governments with self-governing powers are limited only by express prohibitions in the constitution, state statute, or the local government charter itself. By statute, a local government may not establish standards or requirements lower or less stringent than those imposed by state law. The court held that because the ordinance did not contain standards governing several areas it purported to supersede, the ordinance provisions were lower or less stringent than the statutory provisions and therefore invalid. A local government must provide any service required by state law. State law requires every city to have a fire department. Pursuant to Art. XI, sec. 5(3), Mont. Const., the only statutory provisions a self-governing charter may control over are those establishing executive, legislative, and administrative structure and organization. The ordinance was invalid. Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 214 M 481, 694 P2d 1335, 42 St. Rep. 112 (1985), followed in Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222, 56 St. Rep. 23 (1999). Billings Firefighters Local 521 II was followed, as to the power of a consolidated local government CEO to fire government employees not being considered a part of the structure and organization of a self-governing local government, in Johnston v. Babb, Cause No. CV-05-03-BU-CSO (D. Mont. 2005), granting partial summary judgment.

Self-Governing Unit Ordinance — State Statute Silent on Subject of Ordinance: A county's ordinance enacted pursuant to a self-government charter that requires payment of a fee for review by the appointed land surveyor of certificates of survey does not prescribe a lower standard than 76-3-611 (requiring review but no fee), is "not less stringent", and therefore, under 7-1-113, is not the exercise of a power inconsistent with state law. State ex rel. Swart v. Molitor, 190 M 515, 621 P2d 1100, 38 St. Rep. 71 (1981).

Attorney General's Opinions

Municipal Authority to Set Water and Sewer Service Rates — Applicability of Human Rights Act to Setting of Water and Sewer Rates: A provision in 7-13-4304 provides that the rates for municipal water and sewer charges may be fixed in advance and must be uniform for like services in all parts of the municipality. The city of Bozeman sought to provide discounts or preferential rates to senior citizens on water and wastewater charges. The question was whether the senior rates violated the statutory requirement for uniform or equitable rates. The Attorney General held that because water and sewer ratemaking is not an area affirmatively subject to state control, a local government with self-government powers may set rates for those services without regard to the requirements of 7-13-4304. However, the Attorney General noted that age discrimination does violate Title 49, ch. 2, commonly known as the Montana Human Rights Act, that Bozeman is subject to the Act despite its status as a self-governing municipality, and that discrimination in government services is affirmatively subject to state control. Without deciding whether Bozeman's proposed ordinance would meet the standard of strict construction of reasonable grounds based on age, the Attorney General nevertheless concluded that 49-2-308 of the Act did apply to the Bozeman ordinance setting senior rates for municipal water and sewer services. 50 A.G. Op. 10 (2004).

Authority of City-County Government to Acquire and Operate Electric and Natural Gas Utilities: A consolidated government with self-government powers, such as the city and county of Butte-Silver Bow, has the authority to acquire and operate electric and natural gas utilities both within and outside the boundaries of the local government unit. The Attorney General determined that Butte-Silver Bow was specifically authorized to do so after considering the local government's charter, constitutional ramifications, and whether the exercise of that authority was prohibited by local government law or other statutes applicable to self-government units and was consistent with state provisions in areas affirmatively subjected to state control, as described in this section. 48 A.G. Op. 14 (2000). See also State ex rel. Swart v. Molitor, 190 M 515, 621 P2d 1100 (1981), D&F Sanitation Serv. v. Billings, 219 M 437, 713 P2d 977 (1986), and Lechner v. Billings, 244 M 195, 797 P2d 191 (1990).

No Authority for Self-Governing City to Assess Fire Service Fees to State Property Within Fire Service Area: The city of Helena, a self-governing city, is precluded from assessing fire service fees to state property located in the city fire service area because the fees are a tax for services provided for the general public good, and thus prohibited by 15-6-201(1)(a)(ii), rather than an assessment commensurate with a specific benefit conferred on the assessed property. 46 A.G. Op. 7 (1995).

City Authority to Enact Photo-Radar Ordinance: No state agency is given exclusive power to establish administrative rules governing speed of traffic in cities and towns, nor is the enforcement of speed regulations exclusively vested in a state agency. Therefore, the city of Billings, under its self-government charter, is not precluded by statute from enacting a photo-radar ordinance providing either for accountability on the part of the registered owner for illegal speeding by any person operating the vehicle with the owner's permission or for a permissive inference that the registered owner was the speeding violator. 45 A.G. Op. 7 (1993).

Enactment of Local Government Ordinance Providing That Delinquent Solid Waste Service Charges Become Lien on Property Served: A city-county charter that provided that levies for special services were the obligation of the property owners was not in conflict with state constitutional powers delegated to local governments or with state law governing local governments, nor was it inconsistent with state provisions in an area affirmatively subjected to state control. Therefore, a local government with self-governing powers may enact an ordinance that provides that delinquent solid waste management service charges become a lien on the property served, consistent with the remedy available to a solid waste management district for collecting its delinquent service charges under 7-13-233. 44 A.G. Op. 34 (1992).

Funeral Procession Vehicles Not to Be Exempted From Traffic Laws by City Ordinance: A city with self-government powers may not enact an ordinance exempting vehicles in a funeral procession from obeying traffic control devices by designating the vehicles as authorized emergency vehicles. 43 A.G. Op. 53 (1990).

Sale of City Land by City With Self-Government Powers — Vote Required: Although subsection (2)(a) of 7-8-4201 requires a two-thirds vote of the city commission to sell city land, a city with self-governing powers may enact a superseding ordinance allowing the sale of city land by a simple majority vote. 43 A.G. Op. 41 (1989). After analyzing 7-8-4201(2)(b), the Attorney General applied the same analysis and conclusion to allow the governing body of a local government unit with self-governing powers to enact an ordinance providing for the disposition by majority vote of the council of property held in trust for a specific purpose. 43 A.G. Op. 55 (1990).

Local Governments Preempted by State Law From Controlling Beer Sales: By enacting 16-1-102, the Legislature reserved to the state the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of beer. Thus, neither cities nor counties have authority to enact ordinances requiring distributors of keg beer to keep and maintain records of the sales or distribution of all beer kegs within the city or county. 40 A.G. Op. 48 (1984).

Self-Government Powers — Professional Licensing — Conflict With State Statutes: The city of Helena, operating under a home rule charter, passed an ordinance requiring a license fee of all city businesses. State statutes that prohibit municipalities from imposing license fees on certain professions did not apply because the statutes were not made specifically applicable to self-government units. Home rule governments have all powers not specifically denied by the Montana Constitution, law, or charter. 39 A.G. Op. 60 (1982), overruled in Harlen v. Helena, 208 M 45, 676 P2d 191, 41 St. Rep. 162 (1984).

County Powers — Revenue Funds: Unless a specific mode or manner of action is mandated by statute, counties may contract with individuals or private organizations, including nonprofit service organizations, for the purchase of services or materials the counties are authorized by statute to provide their constituents if the contracts are reasonable and appropriate methods of furnishing services or materials. Counties may use federal revenue sharing funds to purchase any services or materials they could use county tax revenues to purchase. 37 A.G. Op. 105 (1978).

Increase in County Attorney's Salary: A county having self-government powers may grant an increase in salary to its County Attorney in excess of the amount provided in 7-4-2503, but the increase must be borne by the general fund of the county. 37 A.G. Op. 70 (1977).

Case Notes

Recorded Waiver of Annexation Protest by Prior Property Owner — Present Owner Precluded From Protesting Annexation: In 1966, the city of Whitefish adopted a policy that a landowner outside the city boundary had to agree to waive the right to protest future annexation in order to continue to receive city water and sewer services. The waivers were properly recorded and later used by the city to invalidate annexation protests by current landowners in 1998. The District Court concluded that the waivers constituted a covenant running with the land and that the current owners were precluded from protesting the proposed annexation. On appeal, the current owners argued that the right to protest in 7-2-4710 resided with the current property owner and that the statutory consent to annexation authorized by 7-13-4314 applied only to the initiation of services and could not transfer to subsequent purchasers. The Supreme Court disagreed. Under 7-1-113, a self-governing entity may act even when there are controlling state laws as long as the local government’s actions are not inconsistent with or lower or less stringent than state requirements. The purpose of 7-13-4314 is to ensure that property owners outside a municipality can request utility services and to ensure that the local government can later require annexation in exchange for utilities. Creating a covenant that runs with the land furthers this purpose. In addition, 70-17-203 also provides that every covenant made for the direct benefit of the property runs with the land. The waivers directly benefited the property and were allowable, so the District Court was affirmed. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004). Suspension of Firefighters — All Cities Required to Present Charges to City Council for Hearing — Suspension Procedure Not Part of “Structure” of City Government Under Applicable Definitions — Statute Not Superseded by Charter: Elsenpeter, a Billings firefighter, was suspended from duty by the Billings fire chief. The firefighters’ union filed a lawsuit in which the union contended that the suspension procedure used by the city was unlawful because the charges against Elsenpeter were not presented to the Billings City Council for hearing pursuant to 7-33-4124. The city contended that the suspension procedure that it used is part of the structure and organization of the city under its charter and that, pursuant to Art. XI, sec. 5, Mont. Const., and 7-3-701(2), which allow the structure of a chartered city government to supersede statutory requirements, the city may override the statutory requirements for hearing contained in 7-33-4124 because the definition of “structure” contained in 7-1-4121(24) is the definition that should apply. The Supreme Court held that in as much as the definitions in 7-1-4121 are, by the terms of that section, limited in their application to 7-1-4121 through 7-1-4149, the dictionary definition of “structure” is the definition that applies. Because the dictionary definition of structure was narrower, the Supreme Court held that the disciplinary suspension procedure used by the city was not part of the “structure” of city government. Therefore, the Supreme Court held that the statutory procedure contained in 7-33-4124, requiring presentment of the charges to the City Council, was not superseded by the city charter and had to be followed for the purposes of the suspension of Elsenpeter. *Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Statutory Duty of City Council to Hold Termination Hearing Not Superseded by City Policy or Collective Bargaining Agreement: Phillips was terminated from his employment as a full-time firefighter for the city of Livingston. Before his termination, the city manager held a termination hearing. Phillips argued that the hearing was held in violation of 7-33-4124, requiring the hearing to be held before the City Council. The city responded that the termination procedures followed were provided in the city policy and procedures manual that was included in the firefighters’ collective bargaining agreement and that the provisions of that agreement controlled pursuant to 39-31-306(3). The Supreme Court noted that the agreement adopted the city’s procedures manual that allowed the manager to hold the hearing but that the agreement also referenced termination action "by the appropriate authority". Because the appropriate authority under 7-33-4124 was the City Council, the Supreme Court held that the agreement and the city's policies did not supersede state statute. Phillips v. Livingston, 268 M 156, 885 P2d 528, 51 St. Rep. 1227 (1994), followed, as to the inability of a city charter to supersede the statutory duty of a City Council to hold a disciplinary hearing, in Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222, 56 St. Rep. 23 (1999).

City Ordinance Requiring Developer Surcharge — Valid Exercise of Self-Governing Power: A city ordinance imposing a 5% surcharge on developers of raw land prior to creation of a special improvement district was a valid exercise of the city's self-governing powers. (See 1999 amendment.) Diefenderfer v. Billings, 223 M 487, 726 P2d 1362, 43 St. Rep. 1934 (1986).

Establishment of Refuse Disposal District by County With Self-Governing Power: Title 7, ch. 13, part 2, is not mandatory upon a county charter form of government when it establishes a refuse disposal district and system. That part applies to the establishment of a refuse disposal district by governments that are of general power status, not those with self-government status. Title 7, ch. 13, part 2, does not direct or require a local government to provide a service within the meaning of this section. Clopton v. Madison County Comm'n, 216 M 335, 701 P2d 347, 42 St. Rep. 851 (1985).

Limitation on Self-Governing Powers: The city of Billings, a self-governing city, adopted an ordinance purporting to supersede all but two sections in Title 7, ch. 33, part 41, relating to municipal fire departments. The firefighters challenged the ordinance. The District Court held that the ordinance was a permissible exercise of a self-government power. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that under the shared sovereignty concept contained in the Montana Constitution, local governments with self-governing powers are limited only by express prohibitions in the constitution, state statute, or the local government charter itself. By statute, a local government may not establish standards or requirements lower or less stringent than those imposed by state law. The court held that because the ordinance did not contain standards governing several areas it purported to supersede, the ordinance provisions were lower or less stringent than the statutory provisions and therefore invalid. A local government must provide any service required by state law. State law requires every city to have a fire department. Pursuant to Art. XI, sec. 5(3), Mont. Const., the only statutory provisions a self-governing charter may control over are those establishing executive, legislative, and administrative structure and organization. The ordinance was invalid. Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 214 M 481, 694 P2d 1335, 42 St. Rep. 112 (1985), followed in Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222, 56 St. Rep. 23 (1999). Billings Firefighters Local 521 II was followed, as to the power of a consolidated local government CEO to fire government employees not being considered a part of the structure and organization of a self-governing local government, in Johnston v. Babb, Cause No. CV-05-03-BU-CSO (D. Mont. 2005), granting partial summary judgment.

Attorney General's Opinions

Municipal Planning Board Not to Be Vested With Municipal Zoning Commission Powers: Authorization does not exist for designation of a city planning board as a zoning commission, and this section prohibits establishment of an alternative zoning system by local ordinance. Therefore, a city exercising self-government powers may not vest its municipal planning board with powers vested in municipal zoning commissions by 76-2-307. 47 A.G. Op. 4 (1997).

No Authority for Self-Governing City to Assess Fire Service Fees to State Property Within Fire Service Area: The city of Helena, a self-governing city, is precluded from assessing fire service fees to state property located in the city fire service area because the fees are a tax for services provided for the general public good, and thus prohibited by 15-6-201(1)(a)(ii), rather than an assessment commensurate with a specific benefit conferred on the assessed property. 46 A.G. Op. 7 (1995).

City Authority to Enact Photo-Radar Ordinance: No state agency is given exclusive power to establish administrative rules governing speed of traffic in cities and towns, nor is the enforcement of speed regulations exclusively vested in a state agency. Therefore, the city of Billings, under its self-government charter, is not precluded by statute from enacting a photo-radar ordinance providing either for accountability on the part of the registered owner for illegal speeding by any person operating the vehicle with the owner's permission or for a permissive inference that the registered owner was the speeding violator. 45 A.G. Op. 7 (1993).

Enactment of Local Government Ordinance Providing That Delinquent Solid Waste Service Charges Become Lien on Property Served: A city-county charter that provided that levies for special services were the obligation of the property owners was not in conflict with state constitutional powers delegated to local governments or with state law governing local governments, nor was it inconsistent with state provisions in an area affirmatively subjected to state control. Therefore, a local government with self-governing powers may enact an ordinance that provides that delinquent solid waste management service charges become a lien on the property served, consistent with the remedy available to a solid waste management district for collecting its delinquent service charges under 7-13-233. 44 A.G. Op. 34 (1992).

City Not Authorized to Reduce Office Hours: The phrase “unless otherwise provided by law”, as used in 7-4-102, does not authorize a city to enact a municipal ordinance reducing the number of hours during which city offices must be open. Subsection (1)(f) of this section prohibits a city from reducing its office hours beyond those required by 7-4-102. 43 A.G. Op. 16 (1989).

Local Government Subject to State Zoning Laws — Ordinance Creating Appeal Prohibited: Section 7-1-114 prohibits a local legislative body from providing for an optional appeal of decisions from the local zoning Board of Adjustment to the legislative body since 76-2-327 provides that appeal may only be to a court of record. Section 76-2-321 authorizes the local legislative body to act instead of the Board of Adjustment in certain cases, not in addition to the Board. 38 A.G. Op. 98 (1980).

Mandatory Provisions — Procedural Laws: Section 7-1-114 applies to procedural as well as substantive laws. 38 A.G. Op. 98 (1980).

Local Governments — Authority to Borrow From Financial Institutions: A county, city, or town with general government or self-government powers can incur indebtedness by borrowing money directly from a financial institution. This authority to borrow does not change the debt limitations on the local government. 38 A.G. Op. 14 (1979).

Competitive Bidding Requirements Mandatory: A local government unit with self-government powers cannot supersede by the passage of a resolution or ordinance the competitive bidding requirements set forth in 7-5-4302. 37 A.G. Op. 175 (1978).

Self-Government Powers: Section 7-4-2503 does not apply to self-government units since it may be superseded by ordinance or resolution of the Commission and is not prohibited by 7-1-114(1)(g). 37 A.G. Op. 68 (1977).

Case Notes

Standing of Board of Adjustment to Appeal District Court Review of Board Decision: After plaintiffs built an addition on their house, they applied for a zoning variance because the addition violated the subdivision setback requirement. The variance was denied by the defendant board of adjustment, and plaintiffs appealed to District Court for a writ of certiorari. The court granted the variance, and the board appealed. Plaintiffs contended that the board lacked standing because the board was a quasi-judicial body, not an aggrieved party, and because under this section, an administrative board may not sue or be sued independently of the local government unless authorized by state law. The Supreme Court disagreed. The writ of certiorari was directed to the board, and plaintiffs' petition named the board as the opposing party, so the board was a party to the litigation and had standing to appeal. Arkell v. Middle Cottonwood Bd. of Zoning Adjustment, 2007 MT 160, 338 M 77, 162 P3d 856 (2007).

County Powers Not Inclusive of Legislative Powers — Closing of County Incinerator Considered Administrative Act Not Subject to Initiative and Referendum: Absent a charter granting self-government powers, a county that exercises only general powers is limited to whatever powers that the Legislature expressly or impliedly grants. Even though the Montana Constitution extends initiative and referendum authority to voters of local government entities, that power is limited to the local government's legislative authorization. Beyond basic corporate powers exercised by a Board of County Commissioners, a general government county functions through administrative boards, districts, and commissions created under specific statutory authority. In this case, Park County created an administrative refuse district and subsequently closed the county-owned incinerator. The closing of the incinerator was subject to the powers of initiative and referendum only if it was within the county's legislative jurisdiction. However, the incinerator closing was an administrative rather than legislative act and thus was not subject to initiative and referendum. 50 A.G. Op. 8 (2004).

Part 21 Counties

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Local Government Authority to Provide Alcohol and Drug Abuse Treatment Services: The city of Billings and Yellowstone County proposed to purchase and renovate a building for use by a nonprofit corporation providing treatment for alcohol and drug-related problems. The city proposed to issue industrial revenue bonds (IRBs) to fund a portion of the project, and the county sought a grant from the Montana Coal Board. Under the proposal, title to the building would vest in the nonprofit corporation once the IRBs have been retired. The questions presented were whether: (1) the building in question is a "governmental facility"; (2) a city or county has the power to expend funds for a building the title to which will eventually vest in a private corporation; and (3) contracting with a private corporation is a legitimate means of providing a governmental service. In the opinion of the Attorney General, a local government unit with self-government powers and counties with general government powers are authorized to provide alcohol and drug abuse treatment services under Title 53, ch. 24. Local governments may contract with nonprofit corporations for the provision of such services. A program of alcohol and drug abuse treatment services provided by contract with a private nonprofit corporation is a "governmental service or facility" under 90-6-205 for the purpose of determining eligibility for coal impact assistance. 39 A.G. Decisions Under 1972 Constitution	696
Decisions Under 1889 Constitution	696

DECISIONS UNDER 1972 CONSTITUTION

Powers of Self-Government Charter Counties: Under the 1889 Montana Constitution, legislative control over counties was supreme; counties could exercise only such powers as were expressly granted to them by the state, together with such implied powers as were necessary for the execution of the powers expressly granted. The 1972 Montana Constitution opened to local government units new vistas of shared sovereignty with the state through the adoption of self-government charters. Article XI, sec. 4, Mont. Const., continues to provide that general local government forms have such powers as are expressly provided or implied by law (to be liberally construed), but Art. XI, sec. 6, Mont. Const., provides that a local government unit may act under a self-government charter with its powers uninhibited except by express prohibitions of the constitution, law, or charter. The broad expanse of shared sovereignty given to self-governing local units is illustrated by 7-1-103 and 7-1-106. Madison County, having a self-governing charter form of local government, may exercise legislative powers it shares with the state. State ex rel. Swart v. Molitor, 190 M 515, 621 P2d 1100, 38 St. Rep. 71 (1981).

DECISIONS UNDER 1889 CONSTITUTION

Political Subdivision of State: A county is one of the civil divisions of the state for political and judicial purposes, created by the sovereign power of the state of its own will, without the consent of the people who inhabit it. It is quasi-corporate in character but has only such powers as are expressly provided by law or are necessarily implied by those expressed. Lewis v. Petroleum County, 92 M 563, 17 P2d 60, 86 ALR 575 (1932); Franzke v. Fergus County, 76 M 150, 245 P 962 (1926); Edwards v. Lewis & Clark County, 53 M 359, 165 P 297 (1917); Hersey v. Neilson, 47 M 132, 131 P 30 (1913); Yellowstone County v. First Trust & Savings Bank, 46 M 439, 128 P 596 (1912); Independent Publishing Co. v. Lewis & Clark County, 30 M 83, 75 P 860 (1904); State ex rel. Lambert v. Coad, 23 M 131, 57 P 1092 (1899).

Ultra Vires Contracts:

Where a party assumes to deal with a county on the supposition that it possesses powers which it does not in fact possess, he may not recover even though he has performed his part of the contract. Lewis v. Petroleum County, 92 M 563, 17 P2d 60, 86 ALR 575 (1932).

A party assuming to deal with a county on the supposition that it possesses powers which it does not cannot maintain an action against it upon its unauthorized action. Sullivan v. Big Horn County, 66 M 45, 212 P 1105 (1923).

Limit of Powers:

Counties are subdivisions of the state of purely statutory creation, and when they assume to exercise a power, authority therefor must be found in the statute conferring it upon them or necessarily implied from the power expressly conferred. Wherever a power is conferred upon the Board of County Commissioners but the mode in which the authority is to be exercised is not indicated, it may in its discretion select any appropriate mode or course of procedure. State ex rel. Blair v. Kuhr, 86 M 377, 283 P 758 (1930).

Counties and school districts are subdivisions of the state government with fixed powers and duties, and any act taken by the Commissioners of the former or the trustees of the latter must be justified by the provisions of the statutes defining and limiting their powers. State ex rel. School District v. McGraw, 74 M 152, 240 P 812 (1925).

"Prerogative" or its synonym "sovereignty" means the inherent power of the people; it must involve the general interest of the state at large, and though the prerogative of the state may be invoked for the protection of the rights of a county, the county, in the absence of express authority granting it, does not itself possess the power of the sovereign. Bignell v. Cummins, 69 M 294, 222 P 797, 36 ALR 634 (1923).

Construction of Existence of Powers — Prior to 1972 Montana Constitution: Aside from the powers granted to counties by statute and those necessarily implied from the powers expressed, they have none, and where there is a fair and reasonable doubt as to the existence of a particular power, it must be resolved against them and the power denied. Sullivan v. Big Horn County, 66 M 45, 212 P 1105 (1923).

Unlawful Detainer — Penal Liability — Ejectment: A municipal corporation, such as a county, being no more than a political subdivision of the state for governmental purposes, cannot be subject to a penal liability, and therefore an action for treble (or penal) damages for unlawful detainer does not lie. While an action for unlawful detainer in which treble damages are sought does not lie against a county, one in ejectment may be maintained against it. Sullivan v. Big Horn County, 66 M 45, 212 P 1105 (1923).

Distinguished From Municipal Corporation:

A county is a body corporate but does not possess the powers of local legislation and control that are the distinguishing characteristics of a municipal corporation. Hersey v. Neilson, 47 M 132, 131 P 30 (1913).

While in a strict sense a county is not a municipal corporation, yet in the sense that it is a body corporate with such powers only as are expressly conferred by the code and special statutes and such as are necessarily implied from those expressed, it comes within the rules and principles applicable to such corporations. Morse v. Granite County, 44 M 78, 119 P 286 (1911); State ex rel. Lambert v. Coad, 23 M 131, 57 P 1092 (1899).

Action in Name of County: A county by its corporate name is the proper party to bring "all actions and proceedings touching its corporate rights, property and duties"; hence, a mandamus proceeding to compel a Board of County Commissioners to reapportion an indebtedness between an old county and a new one should be brought in the name of the county; the Board itself is not authorized to bring such a proceeding in its own name. *State ex rel. Case Notes

One Governmental Subdivision Not Subject to Suit by Another: School districts sued the county for recovery of lost revenue and investment income on decreased reserve funds. The Supreme Court found that dismissal of the suit was proper because absent specific statutory or constitutional authority, one governmental subdivision may not sue another for damages. School District No. 55 v. Musselshell County, 245 M 525, 802 P2d 1252, 47 St. Rep. 2249 (1990).

County May Bring Action for Acquisition by Prescription: The defendant argued that the county did not have legal standing to bring an action on behalf of the public to acquire a road by prescription. The Supreme Court held that the general powers granted to counties must be liberally construed, and in so doing, it was clear that the county could maintain the action. Granite County v. Komberec, 245 M 252, 800 P2d 166, 47 St. Rep. 2061 (1990).

Tax Sales:

In the sale of land acquired by tax deed, county had the power to reserve the right to take road building material from the land for authorized public purpose. Helena Gun Club v. Lewis & Clark County, 141 M 490, 379 P2d 436 (1963).

Board of County Commissioners has the power and the authority to dispose of and convey real estate acquired through tax deeds. Flom v. Unknown Heirs of Conrad, 132 M 574, 319 P2d 499 (1957).

Tort Liability of County — Prior to 1972 Montana Constitution: The court is not precluded from holding a county liable for the torts of its employees on the theory that a "sovereign" cannot be sued without its consent, since this section provides that counties may "sue and be sued". Johnson v. Billings, 101 M 462, 54 P2d 579 (1936), distinguished in Goldwater v. St. Highway Comm'n, 118 M 65, 162 P2d 772 (1945), explained in Rhoades v. School District, 115 M 352, 142 P2d 890 (1943).

Sale of County Property: A county is merely a subdivision of the state for governmental purposes and as such is subject to legislative regulation and control. The Legislature may, within the limitations prescribed by the constitution, circumscribe or extend the powers to be exercised by a county, legislative authority to regulate or control the disposition of county property not having been limited by the 1889 Montana Constitution. The Legislature could properly declare, as it did by this section and section 4465, Revised Codes of 1921, that such property may be sold only under the restrictions and in the manner therein indicated. Franzke v. Fergus County, 76 M 150, 245 P 962 (1926).

Action Against County for Penal Liability Prohibited: A municipal corporation, such as a county, being no more than a political subdivision of the state for governmental purposes, cannot be subjected to a penal liability, and therefore an action for treble (or penal) damages for unlawful detainer does not lie. Sullivan v. Big Horn County, 66 M 45, 212 P 1105 (1923).

Ejectment Against County: While an action for unlawful detainer in which treble damages are sought does not lie against a county, one in ejectment may be maintained against it. Sullivan v. Big Horn County, 66 M 45, 212 P 1105 (1923).

Unauthorized Action: A party assuming to deal with a county on the supposition that it possesses powers which it does not cannot maintain an action against it upon its unauthorized action. Sullivan v. Big Horn County, 66 M 45, 212 P 1105 (1923).

Attorney General's Opinions

Cross-County Annexation Lawful — County Approval Not Required: Montana law does not expressly or impliedly limit annexation by county boundaries. In liberally construing the powers of incorporated cities and towns and counties, the Attorney General held that cross-county annexation is permitted by Montana law and is not dependent upon county approval. (See 7-2-4208.) 51 A.G. Op. 18 (2006).

County Powers Not Inclusive of Legislative Powers — Closing of County Incinerator Considered Administrative Act Not Subject to Initiative and Referendum: Absent a charter granting self-government powers, a county that exercises only general powers is limited to whatever powers that the Legislature expressly or impliedly grants. Even though the Montana Constitution extends initiative and referendum authority to voters of local government entities, that power is limited to the local government's legislative authorization. However, the incinerator closing was an administrative rather than legislative act and thus was not subject to initiative and referendum. 50 A.G. Op. 8 (2004).

Authority of County to Issue General Obligation Bonds for Demolition of Abandoned County Building: Under its general duty to care for and maintain its property, a county, through its Board of County Commissioners, may issue general obligation bonds to fund demolition of a county-owned building that has been abandoned and poses a threat to the public safety and welfare. 44 A.G. Op. 31 (1992).

Exception to County Travel Policy — Certain County Officers Entitled to Actual Travel Expenses: In attending the annual state convention for the office held, a County Attorney, Sheriff, Assessor, or Justice of the Peace is entitled to reimbursement for actual travel expenses. These expenses may exceed the levels established in a county travel policy. 42 A.G. Op. 124 (1988).

County Power to Grant Franchises — Interlocal Agreements Not Precluded: Article XI, sec. 4, Mont. Const.; 7-3-144; 7-4-2611; and 7-5-2129, as well as applicable case law, imply that a county vested with general government powers may exercise the power to grant franchises. Under 7-11-104, a city-county interlocal franchise agreement is possible. 42 A.G. Op. 87 (1988).

Parameters of County Commission Authority to Permit County Road Use for Pipelines: A Board of County Commissioners is charged with a significant amount of discretion under this section, 7-14-2102, and 7-14-2107 in determining whether to permit the use of a county road right-of-way for the laying of permanent or temporary pipelines. This discretion is potentially limited by state regulations under Title 69, ch. 13, concerning pipeline carriers, depending on specific factual situations. To be consistent with the holding in Bolinger v. Bozeman, 158 M 507, 493 P2d 1062 (1972), the Board must find that the action: (1) is necessary for the best interest of the county roads and the road districts; (2) does not unreasonably impair the special easements of abutting owners in the street for purposes of access, light, and air; and (3) is conducive to the public welfare and serves one of the purposes for which highways and streets are dedicated. 42 A.G. Op. 40 (1987).

Authority of County Commissioners to Adopt Meal and Lodging Expense Regulations: Section 2-18-501 does not, by its own terms, govern meal and lodging expense payments to county officers or employees. Except as may otherwise be specified statutorily, a Board of County Commissioners with general governmental powers may adopt rules and regulations providing for payment or reimbursement of reasonable meal and lodging expenses incurred by county officers or employees in the performance of official duties. 40 A.G. Op. 77 (1984).

County Buildings — Use of Rent for Costs: If no sale of the building is being attempted, a Board of County Commissioners may use money obtained from tenants of a county building to defray the operational and maintenance costs of the building. 40 A.G. Op. 33 (1984).

Case Notes

Actions by County: The powers of a county are exercised by the Commissioners, but they are not therefore authorized to bring actions in their official capacity on behalf of the county in the absence of a provision conferring upon them the right to do so. State ex rel. Furnish v. Mullendore, 53 M 109, 161 P 949 (1916).

Attorney General's Opinions

County Powers Not Inclusive of Legislative Powers — Closing of County Incinerator Considered Administrative Act Not Subject to Initiative and Referendum: Absent a charter granting self-government powers, a county that exercises only general powers is limited to whatever powers that the Legislature expressly or impliedly grants. Even though the Montana Constitution extends initiative and referendum authority to voters of local government entities, that power is limited to the local government's legislative authorization. Beyond basic corporate powers exercised by a Board of County Commissioners, a general government county functions through administrative boards, districts, and commissions created under specific statutory authority. In this case, Park County created an administrative refuse district and subsequently closed the county-owned incinerator. The closing of the incinerator was subject to the powers of initiative and referendum only if it was within the county's legislative jurisdiction. However, the incinerator closing was an administrative rather than legislative act and thus was not subject to initiative and referendum. 50 A.G. Op. 8 (2004).

Section 39(2), Ch. 556, L. 1999, provided that this section applies to fiscal years beginning after June 30, 2000.

Severability: Section 37, Ch. 556, L. 1999, was a severability clause.

1997 Amendments: Chapter 121 inserted (2)(d) concerning taxable value attributable to trailers, pole trailers, and certain semitrailers; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1998.

Chapter 466 in (2)(e) substituted "15-36-324(13)" for "15-36-324(10)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 30, 1997.

Chapter 496 in (1), in introductory clause near end, substituted "61-3-504" for "61-3-504(2)"; in (1)(b) through (1)(f), before dollar amount of valuation, deleted "more than" and after dollar amount of valuation inserted "or more"; in (2)(b) inserted "manufacturer's"; inserted (2)(c) concerning portion of taxable valuation attributable to buses, certain trucks, and truck tractors; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1998.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 42(1), Ch. 496, L. 1997, provided: "Except for the purposes of subsection (2), [this act] is effective January 1, 1998, and applies to tax years beginning after December 31, 1997."

1995 Amendment: Chapter 451 in (1), in introductory clause after "according to", substituted "the taxable" for "that percentage of the true and full"; substituted (2)(c) concerning value provided by Department for "the amount of taxes levied on new production, production from horizontally completed wells, and incremental production, as provided in 15-23-607, divided by the appropriate tax rates described in 15-23-607(2)(a), (2)(b), or (2)(c) and multiplied by 60%"; deleted former (2)(d) that read: "(d) the amount of value represented by new production or production from horizontally completed wells exempted from tax as provided in 15-23-612 multiplied by 60%, plus the value of any other production occurring after December 31, 1988, multiplied by 60%"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1996.

Applicability: Section 55, Ch. 451, L. 1995, provided: "(1) [This act] applies to oil and natural gas produced and sold on or after January 1, 1996.

(2) (a) [Sections 21 through 26] [7-1-2111, 7-7-2101, 7-7-2203, 7-14-2524, 7-14-2525, and 7-16-2327] apply to county fiscal years beginning after June 30, 1996.

(b) [Sections 38 through 46] [20-9-104, 20-9-141, 20-9-161, 20-9-331, 20-9-333, 20-9-501, 20-9-507, 20-10-144, and 20-10-146] apply to school fiscal years beginning after June 30, 1996.

(3) (a) An operator is subject to provisions of Title 15, chapter 23, parts 1 and 6 [part 6 now repealed]; Title 15, chapter 36; Title 15, chapter 38; and Title 82, chapter 11, part 1, as those laws read on December 31, 1995, for all oil and natural gas produced and sold by the operator before January 1, 1996. [On December 31, 1995, Title 15, ch. 36, contained only part 1, now repealed. Part 3 of that chapter became effective January 1, 1996.]

(b) Except as provided in subsection (3)(c), the payment, collection, and distribution of taxes on oil and natural gas production occurring before January 1, 1996, must be made according to the provisions of the laws referred to in subsection (3)(a) governing the tax in effect on the last day of the tax period in which the activity, enterprise, or product being taxed was engaged in, took place, or was produced and sold.

(c) [Section 19] [15-36-325, now repealed] applies to the payment, collection, and distribution of the local government severance tax for oil and natural gas produced and sold after December 31, 1994, and before January 1, 1996.

(d) All taxes collected pursuant to audit or collected after the date the tax is payable under the laws referred to in subsection (3)(a) must be distributed according to the statute governing allocation of the tax in effect on the date when the tax liability was incurred."

1993 Special Session Amendment: Chapter 9 in (2)(c), after "amount of", substituted "taxes levied on new production, production from horizontally completed wells, and incremental production" for "interim production and new production taxes levied" and near end inserted reference to subsection (2)(c); near beginning of (2)(d), after "new production", inserted "or production from horizontally completed wells"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective December 17, 1993.

Report Required: Section 21, Ch. 9, Sp. L. November 1993, provided: "The board of oil and gas conservation shall report at least once a year to the revenue oversight committee [now revenue and transportation interim committee] regarding the implementation of [this act]. The reports must include but are not limited to information regarding:

- (1) the methods used to determine production decline rates;
- (2) rules adopted to implement [this act];
- (3) the number of enhanced recovery projects completed or anticipated to be completed in a year; and
- (4) the number of horizontal wells completed or anticipated to be completed in a year and the method of recovery from the horizontal wells."

Severability: Section 23, Ch. 9, Sp. L. November 1993, was a severability clause.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 24, Ch. 9, Sp. L. November 1993, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval [approved December 17, 1993] and applies to oil production from new or expanded enhanced recovery projects and to tax years that begin after December 31, 1993."

1991 Amendment: Inserted (2)(e) revising definition of taxable valuation to include 6% of the taxable value of the county on January 1 of each tax year. Amendment effective March 25, 1991.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 161, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1989."

1989 Special Session Amendment: At end of (2)(d) inserted "multiplied by 60%, plus the value of any other production occurring after December 31, 1988, multiplied by 60%"; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective August 11, 1989, and applies retroactively to net proceeds taxes, severance taxes, and local government taxes on oil and gas, other than interim production and new production, produced after December 31, 1988.

1989 Amendment: Inserted (2)(b) including a portion attributable to vehicles with capacity of more than three-quarters of a ton but less than or equal to 1 ton.

1987 Amendments: Chapter 611 near end of (1), before "as follows", inserted exception clause.

Chapter 655 in (2)(b), before "new production taxes", inserted "interim production and"; and inserted (2)(c) defining taxable valuation as to the amount of value represented by new production exempted from tax.

Effective Date — Applicability — 1987 Enactment: Section 28, Ch. 655, L. 1987, provided: "This act is effective on passage and approval [approved April 13, 1987] and applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to taxable quarters beginning on or after April 1, 1987. The tax rate and filing method applicable to a well that qualifies as interim production under section 10 but which did not qualify as new production under 15-23-601 [now repealed] prior to the applicability date of this act does not change for tax periods prior to the applicability date."

1985 Amendment: Inserted (2)(b) relating to oil and gas production net proceeds.

1981 Amendment: Inserted (2) relating to meaning of taxable valuation.

Effective Date — 1981 Enactment: Section 66, Ch. 614, L. 1981, provided: "(1) Except as provided in subsection (2), this act is effective January 1, 1982.

(2) Section 5 [61-3-535] is effective on passage and approval."

Clause Not Codified: A proviso at the end of section 16-2419, R.C.M. 1947, providing that no reclassifications of counties, except for new counties, shall take place until after March 10, 1921, was not codified in the MCA because it was temporary. This clause is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 1, Ch. 24, Ex. L. 1919.

Case Notes

Operates Automatically: This statute operates automatically to place a county in a certain class on the ascertainment of such valuation as shown from the records of the assessor's office in even-numbered years. State ex rel. Jaumotte v. Zimmerman, 105 M 464, 73 P2d 548 (1937).

Salary Reduction From Reclassification — Constitutionality: Since county officers elected in 1936 were charged with the knowledge that their salaries might be changed by a reclassification of their county as provided by this section, an act in force since 1905, they took office with the knowledge that their salaries might be reduced depending upon assessed valuation of property in the county. Thus the provision of Art. V, sec. 31, 1889 Mont. Const. [no similar provision in 1972 Mont. Const.], prohibiting the passing of a law increasing or diminishing an official's salary after his election was not violated. (See 2001 amendments to county salary laws, particularly 7-4-2503.) State ex rel. Jaumotte v. Zimmerman, 105 M 464, 73 P2d 548 (1937).

Change in Boundaries of County: When a portion of one county is attached to another county, the last assessment on the territory so attached may be ascertained by reference to the assessment books of the former county in determining the classification of the latter county as established by the assessed valuation of property within its boundaries. State ex rel. Herford v. Cook, 14 M 201, 36 P 44 (1894).

Attorney General's Opinions

Change in County Classification — Adjustment of Salaries of County Officials: When the classification of a county under this section changes, salaries of County Commissioners, the County Attorney, and county officials listed in 7-4-2503(1) must be adjusted as of July 1 of the following year. Adjustments are computed as follows: (1) for County Commissioners, according to 7-4-2107; (2) for a part-time County Attorney, according to 7-4-2503(3); and (3) for county officials listed in 7-4-2503(1), according to 7-4-2503. (See 2001 amendments to county salary laws, particularly 7-4-2503.) 42 A.G. Op. 85 (1988).

Timing of Salary Increases Caused by County Classification Change: Under the reasoning of 40 A.G. Op. 81 (1984), when a county's classification changes according to this section, the salaries of the County Commissioners, as provided for in 7-4-2107, must change as of July 1 of the following year, the onset of a new fiscal year for the county. (See 2001 amendments to county salary laws, particularly 7-4-2503.) 41 A.G. Op. 6 (1985)

Change in County Classification — Time for Setting County Officials' Salaries: When a county's classification changes pursuant to this section, the salaries of the county officials listed in 7-4-2503(1) must also change. The salaries must change as of July 1 of the following year, with the onset of a new fiscal year for the county. (See 2001 amendments to county salary laws, particularly 7-4-2503.) 40 A.G. Op. 81 (1984), followed in 41 A.G. Op. 6 (1985).

Part 41 Municipalities

Part Case Notes

Equitable Estoppel as Applied to Municipal Corporations: Bullock received a building permit issued by the town of Boulder. A year later the building inspector discovered that the building being constructed encroached upon a city street. At a City Council meeting Bullock was told that he would never be required to tear down his house but that he should cease construction until he submitted a survey to the Council. Construction ceased and a survey was completed. When Bullock submitted the survey to the Council, they indicated that arrangements would be made to allow Bullock to occupy that portion of the street on which the encroachment existed. Relying on this representation, Bullock resumed construction. At a later Council meeting, the Council decided to require Bullock to remove his building from the street. Bullock received no notice of this meeting. A suit was brought, and the court found that the town of Boulder is equitably estopped from requiring the removal of the encroachment. Equitable estoppel is applied to municipal corporations with great caution and only in exceptional cases. The court set out six elements that are necessary to make out a case for the application of the doctrine of equitable estoppel. All six elements were present in this case. Boulder v. Bullock, 193 M 463, 632 P2d 716, 38 St. Rep. 1344 (1981), distinguished in Baertsch v. Lewis & Clark County, 256 M 114, 845 P2d 106, 49 St. Rep. 1162 (1992).

Case Notes

Power Conferred by Grant or Implication: A city has no powers except such as are conferred upon it by legislative grant either directly or by necessary implication. Stephens v. Great Falls, 119 M 368, 175 P2d 408 (1946); Sharkey v. Butte, 52 M 16, 155 P 266 (1916); Palmer v. Helena, 40 M 498, 107 P 512 (1910); Helena v. Kent, 32 M 279, 80 P 259 (1905); Davenport v. Kleinschmidt, 6 M 502, 13 P 249 (1887).

Doubt as to Power — Prior to 1972 Montana Constitution: A city has only such authority as is conferred upon it by express legislative declaration or necessary implication, and where there is a fair and reasonable doubt as to the existence of a particular power, it must be resolved against the municipality and the power denied. State ex rel. Billings v. Billings Gas Co., 55 M 102, 173 P 799 (1918); Sharkey v. Butte, 52 M 16, 155 P 266 (1916); Shapard v. Missoula, 49 M 269, 141 P 544 (1914); Helena Light & Ry. v. Helena, 47 M 18, 130 P 446 (1913); State ex rel. Quintin v. Edwards, 40 M 287, 106 P 695 (1910); Helena v. Kent, 32 M 279, 80 P 258 (1905); Davenport v. Kleinschmidt, 6 M 502, 13 P 249 (1887).

Mode of Exercising Power: When the mode of exercising any power is pointed out in the statute granting it to a municipal corporation, the mode thus prescribed must be pursued in all substantial particulars. Shapard v. Missoula, 49 M 269, 141 P 544 (1914); Carlson v. Helena, 39 M 82, 102 P 39 (1909); McGillie v. Corby, 37 M 249, 95 P 1063 (1908).

Street Improvements — Negligence: It is the duty of a city organized under the laws of this state to establish and improve streets, and damages can be recovered by one who is injured by its negligence in permitting its streets to become and remain in a dangerous condition. Ford v. Great Falls, 46 M 292, 127 P 1004 (1912); May v. Anaconda, 26 M 140, 66 P 759 (1901); Snook v. Anaconda, 26 M 128, 66 P 756 (1901); Sullivan v. Helena, 10 M 134, 25 P 94 (1890).

Construction of Section:

The entire municipal code is to be treated as one statute whose provisions are interdependent. Brown v. Foster, 48 M 114, 135 P 993 (1913).

No consistency whatever has been observed in the legislative use of the term "town". State ex rel. Powers v. Dale, 47 M 227, 131 P 670 (1913).

This section, taken in connection with 7-1-4103 (since repealed) and 7-5-4101, constitutes a general grant of power, as well as a limitation of power, for authority is given to the city to pass all ordinances necessary for its government and management, and such ordinances shall not contravene constitutional or statutory provisions. Helena v. Kent, 32 M 279, 80 P 259 (1905).

Judicial Notice: In an action against a city to recover damage for injuries to real property, an averment in the complaint that the city "is a municipal corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the state" was sufficient as against the objection that the pleading did not state a cause of action. Judicial notice will be taken of the fact that during a certain year a city was a municipal corporation existing under the laws of this state. Drew v. Butte, 44 M 124, 119 P 279 (1911).

Suspension of Firefighters — All Cities Required to Present Charges to City Council for Hearing — Suspension Procedure Not Part of “Structure” of City Government Under Applicable Definitions — Statute Not Superseded by Charter: Elsenpeter, a Billings firefighter, was suspended from duty by the Billings fire chief. The firefighters’ union filed a lawsuit in which the union contended that the suspension procedure used by the city was unlawful because the charges against Elsenpeter were not presented to the Billings City Council for hearing pursuant to 7-33-4124. The city contended that the suspension procedure that it used is part of the structure and organization of the city under its charter and that, pursuant to Art. XI, sec. 5, Mont. Const., and 7-3-701(2), which allow the structure of a chartered city government to supersede statutory requirements, the city may override the statutory requirements for hearing contained in 7-33-4124 because the definition of “structure” contained in subsection (24) of this section is the definition that should apply. The Supreme Court held that in as much as the definitions in this section are, by the terms of this section, limited in their application to 7-1-4122 through 7-1-4149 and this section, the dictionary definition of “structure” is the definition that applies. Because the dictionary definition of structure was narrower, the Supreme Court held that the disciplinary suspension procedure used by the city was not part of the “structure” of city government. Therefore, the Supreme Court held that the statutory procedure contained in 7-33-4124, requiring presentment of the charges to the City Council, was not superseded by the city charter and had to be followed for the purposes of the suspension of Elsenpeter. *Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Case Notes

Applicability to Attorney of Ordinance Requiring Safety Inspection Certificate: A city ordinance requiring a business to obtain an annual safety inspection certificate to ensure that the place of business is safe for the public did not carry a penalty that would prohibit an attorney from practicing law. The penalty for a violation is a fine or jail time. In addition, the Supreme Court’s exclusive authority to regulate the practice of law does not prohibit certain limited legislative actions in the area. The amount of the certificate fee, which is determined by the square footage of the business, is reasonable in relation to the safety inspection services. The certificate requirement is a minimal and inoffensive intrusion on the Supreme Court’s constitutional authority to regulate attorneys, and the defendant attorney could be convicted for nonpayment. St. v. Radford, 2001 MT 36, 304 M 198, 19 P3d 809 (2001).

Arbitrary Denial of Building Permit by City Council — City, City Council, and Individual Council Members Liable: In an action under 43 U.S.C. 1983, the court of appeals upheld the District Court’s holding that the Billings City Council’s refusal to issue a building permit after the applicant had satisfied all the requirements for issuing the permit was an arbitrary and capricious action that deprived the applicant of his substantive due process rights. The city, City Council, and individual members of the City Council have no immunity from such action and are all liable for damages. Bateson v. Geisse, 857 F2d 1300 (9th Cir. 1988).

Licensing Fee for Adult Movie Video Booths as Regulatory Measure — Free Speech Not Violated: The Supreme Court affirmed a city ordinance imposing a $300 annual fee for adult movie video booths, finding the city met its burden of proving the fee was both reasonable and designed as a regulatory measure to provide funds for administrative costs, policing of the booths, and health enforcement costs and expenses. The court held that estimates of future expenses may be included for purposes of setting a fee and that, being regulatory in nature, the fee did not violate the right to free speech guaranteed by the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution and Art. II, sec. 7, Mont. Const. Great Falls v. M.K. Enterprises, Inc., 225 M 292, 732 P2d 413, 44 St. Rep. 242 (1987).

Attorney General's Opinions

Regulation of Live Dance Performance in Licensed Liquor Establishment — Abridgment of Free Expression: The validity of a city ordinance regulating live dance performances in establishments licensed to serve liquor must be measured against free expression standards imposed by Art. II, sec. 7, Mont. Const., and the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Therefore, a proposed city ordinance prohibiting any live performance involving dance or the removal of clothing in licensed liquor establishments is an unconstitutional abridgment of the constitutional standards because: (1) it fails to distinguish carefully between protected and unprotected conduct; and (2) the requisite governmental interest in regulating such conduct has not been sufficiently established. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

Case Notes

Power of General Powers Town to Arbitrate Contract Held Included in Power to Contract: Holm-Sutherland contracted with the town of Shelby to construct sewer and water improvements within the town. The contract included a provision requiring that all disputes involving the interpretation of the contract documents or breach of the contract were to be settled by arbitration. When a dispute arose, Holm-Sutherland sought arbitration. Litigation ensued, and the town argued that as a noncharter government, it had only those powers granted by the Legislature and that a municipality's council had a duty pursuant to 7-6-4301 and 7-6-4302 to determine the validity of claims and that duty could not be delegated to an arbitrator. The Supreme Court agreed with the District Court that a general powers municipality has broad powers to enter into contracts pursuant to subsections (4) and (23) of this section, that Title 27, ch. 5, evidences a general state policy favoring arbitration, and that the powers granted a municipality establish its ability to be bound to the terms of a contract that contains a binding arbitration clause. Holm-Sutherland Co., Inc. v. Shelby, 1999 MT 150, 295 M 65, 982 P2d 1053, 56 St. Rep. 595 (1999).

Tax Sales: County acquiring tax deeds to lots advertised them for sale but received no offer. Purchase of lots by city being authorized by City Council because of housing and sanitary conditions, it had the right to sell them at varying prices, much higher than purchase price paid to county. Flom v. Unknown Heirs of Conrad, 132 M 574, 319 P2d 499 (1957).

Creditor's Residence as Place of Trial — Not Applicable to Municipal Corporations: The rule that where a contract for payment of money is entered into between persons residing at different places and place of payment is not agreed upon, creditor's residence becomes place of performance and therefore place of trial does not apply to municipal corporations. *Lillis v. Mandamus to Compel Payment of Bill: Mandamus will lie to compel a city to audit and pay a bill which it owes to a water company for the rent of hydrants, although 7-1-4103 (the predecessor to this section, since repealed) provides that cities may sue or be sued. *State ex rel. Municipal Grant of Public Funds to Authority Created by Interlocal Agreement Between Self-Governing Municipalities Lawful — Debt Obligations: A self-governing municipality may grant funds for the public purpose of operating the electric and natural gas utility. Debt incurred through corporate bonds issued by a public benefit nonprofit corporation incorporated by an authority created by interlocal agreement between self-governing municipalities is not subject to laws governing municipal debts or obligations if the municipalities are not legally obligated to appropriate money to pay the debt and the debt is without recourse to the spending power of the municipalities. 51 A.G. Op. 5 (2005). See also 48 A.G. Op. 12 (2000), and 49 A.G. Op. 3 (2001).

Long-Term Lease With Contractual Nonappropriation Clause Not Considered Accumulation of Municipal Debt — Vote Not Required: A question arose regarding the applicability of laws regulating municipal government debt based on a proposal by the city of Great Falls to enter a contract for the development and operation of a water park. Under the arrangement, the city would enter a long-term lease to a private party of real property adjacent to the municipal swimming pool and concurrently lease from that party certain personal property to be used for the water park. The personalty lease would include an option for the city to purchase the personal property at the close of the lease terms and a nonappropriation clause under which the personalty lease would terminate without penalty to the city if the city chose not to appropriate funds for the lease payment in any fiscal year, in which case possession of the personal property would revert to the lessor, who would retain possession under a separate realty lease until that lease expired. The Attorney General concluded that such an arrangement did not create a debt and thus would not violate provisions of state law limiting the accumulation of debt by municipal governments. Further, the city's proposal would not pledge the taxing power of the city to make the full term of lease payments and therefore would not qualify as an obligation for which the general credit of the city is pledged that would require a vote of the people under 7-7-4221. 49 A.G. Op. 3 (2001), distinguishing 38 A.G. Op. 56 (1979). 38 A.G. Op. 56 was overruled in 52 A.G. Op. 3 (2007).

County Authorized to Appropriate Money for Museum — City Authorized to Appropriate Money for Public Purpose — Constitutionality Analyzed: Pursuant to 7-16-2202, a county, but not a city, is authorized to create a program to provide grants to private, nonprofit museums. However, pursuant to this section, a city is allowed to grant money to public or private entities as long as the grant is for a public purpose, such as a museum that would enhance the education and enjoyment of the general public, but that would not be merely for the gain of a private entity. The Attorney General declined to opine regarding the constitutionality of 7-16-2202 or this section, in light of the prohibition in Art. V, sec. 11(5), Mont. Const., against the appropriation of public funds for any private individual, private association, or private corporation not under control of the state, but did analyze that constitutional provision as it related to the question of county or city expenditures for grants to private museum programs, concluding that the constitutional prohibition applies only to the appropriation of public funds by the Legislature, not by local governmental entities. 48 A.G. Op. 12 (2000), overruling prior opinions to the contrary in 37 A.G. Op. 25 (1977), 37 A.G. Op. 105 (1978), and 39 A.G. Op. 25 (1981).

Motor Vehicle Parking Offenses — Civil Penalty: A city with general government powers may not establish a civil penalty and collection system for motor vehicle parking offenses. (See 1999 amendment.) 40 A.G. Op. 31 (1984).

Mayor, Not Chief of Police, as Chief Law Enforcement Administrator in Commission-Executive Form of Government: In a commission-executive form of local government, the Mayor, not the Chief of Police, is the chief law enforcement administrator. The Code Commissioner redesignated (2)(d) (formerly (2)(c)) as 7-2-2206(4) for more logical placement.

Section 6(1), Ch. 742, L. 1985, concerning means of determining number of signatures needed on petition, was enacted as part of a separate section but is codified as (3) of this section for logic and convenience.

Case Notes

Withdrawal From Petition:

The right of one who had signed a petition for the creation of a new county and then signed a withdrawal of his name therefrom to thereafter and before the hearing, withdraw from the withdrawal is not absolute, and therefore, no clear legal duty being imposed upon the Board of County Commissioners to give effect to the withdrawal from the withdrawal, mandamus does not lie to compel it to do so. State ex rel. Faragher v. Moulton, 68 M 219, 216 P 804 (1923), explained in Ford v. Mitchell, 103 M 99, 61 P2d 815 (1936).

The matter of the creation of a new county must be determined on the case as made upon the date fixed for the hearing, save as it may be affected by subsequent withdrawals before final action taken; therefore, protests against its creation or petitions for the exclusion of territory from within its proposed boundaries filed after the date fixed for the hearings may not be entertained by the Board of County Commissioners. State ex rel. Lang v. Furnish, 48 M 28, 134 P 297 (1913).

In the absence of legislative expression to the contrary, signers of a petition may withdraw their names at any time before final action thereon. The Board of County Commissioners was in error in refusing to consider withdrawals from petitions theretofore filed asking the exclusion of certain territory from a proposed new county upon the ground that the withdrawals of signatures, though filed before final action, had not been presented until after the date fixed for the hearing. State ex rel. Lang v. Furnish, 48 M 28, 134 P 297 (1913), explained in Ford v. Mitchell, 103 M 99, 61 P2d 815 (1936).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 61 made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1985 Amendment — Redesignation by Code Commissioner — Subsection Enactment: In (1)(a) substituted requirement for legal description for "a particular description of the boundaries of the proposed new county"; inserted (1)(b) relating to map requirement; deleted former (2) that read: "a statement that no line thereof passes within 15 miles of the courthouse situated at the county seat of any county proposed to be divided, except as otherwise provided in this part"; in (1)(d) inserted "and a statement that the surveyed area of the territory proposed to be transferred is greater than 49 square miles"; inserted (1)(e) relating to criminal sanctions; in (1)(f) inserted "if the proposed new county is to be formed from one existing county, or from portions of two or more existing counties"; inserted (1)(g) relating to adding territory to an existing county; made minor changes in phraseology and punctuation in (1); inserted (2) relating to signature requirements; and inserted (3) relating to numbered lines for petitions.

The Code Commissioner redesignated 7-2-2205(2)(d) (formerly (2)(c)), concerning signatures on several petitions, as 7-2-2206(4) for more logical placement.

Section 5, Ch. 742, L. 1985, requiring submission of a sample petition to the county election administrator prior to circulation and providing for procedures if the petition form is rejected or approved, was enacted as a separate section but is codified as (5) of this section for logic and convenience.

Section 6(2), Ch. 742, L. 1985, providing time limit within which petition signatures must be collected and filed, was enacted as part of a separate section but is codified as (6) of this section for logic and convenience.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 61 made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1985 Amendment — Subsection Enactment: In introductory clause of (1) substituted affidavit requirements of petition circulator for "There shall be attached and filed with said petition or petitions an affidavit of five qualified electors residing within each county sought to be divided, to the effect that:

(a) they have read said petition and examined the signatures affixed thereto and they believe that the statements therein are true"; in (1)(c) substituted "the proposed new county or of the portion thereof taken from an existing county" for "such county therein sought to be divided"; and deleted former (2) that read: "Such petition or petitions, so verified, and the verification thereof shall be accepted in all proceedings permitted or provided for in this part as prima facie evidence of the truth of the matters and facts therein set forth."

Section 8, Ch. 742, L. 1985, requiring the Clerk of the County to verify that all petition signers are registered electors of the proposed territory to be taken from the county and to randomly compare signatures, was enacted as a separate section but is codified as (2) of this section for logic and convenience.

Case Notes

Verified Petition Prima Facie Evidence: Applying the provisions of this section by analogy to proceedings for the consolidation of school districts, the court held that a verified petition for such consolidation was prima facie evidence that it contained a majority of the resident freeholders of a district affected at the time it was filed. Swaim v. Redeen, 101 M 521, 55 P2d 1 (1936).

7-2-2209. Hearing and notice on petition.

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 354 in (1) in first sentence after "a date to hear the" substituted "petition" for "proof of the petitions"; in (2) substituted "The county clerk shall also publish notice as provided in 7-1-2121 in the old counties and also within the boundaries of the proposed new county. The notice must be published in substantially the following form" for "The county clerk shall also, at the same time, designate a newspaper of general circulation published in the old counties but not within the proposed new county and also a newspaper of general circulation published within the boundaries of the proposed new county, if there be such, in which the county clerk shall order and cause to be published, at least once a week for 2 weeks preceding the date fixed for such hearing, a notice in substantially the following form"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

1985 Amendment: In "Dated" line of notice form, deleted "at" after "Dated".

Notice as Jurisdictional Requirement:

The Board of County Commissioners is without jurisdiction to proceed with a hearing of a petition for the creation of a new county unless publication of the notice as required by this section has been made; if not so made and the Board proceeds with the hearing, its action is void. Garry v. Martin, 70 M 587, 227 P 573 (1924), distinguished in Scilley v. Red Lodge-Rosebud Irrigation District, 83 M 282, 272 P 543 (1928).

Publication of notice of hearing on petitions for the creation of a new county required by this act, in certain newspapers for at least once a week for 2 weeks next preceding the date fixed for it, is jurisdictional, and failure of publication in one of the papers designated in the week immediately preceding the date of the hearing was fatal to jurisdiction and rendered all subsequent proceedings, including the election, invalid. (See 2001 amendment.) State ex rel. Stevens v. McLeish, 59 M 527, 198 P 357 (1921).

Period of Notice:

Under the rule that where a notice is required to be published at least once a week for a period next preceding a certain date, the word "for" means "throughout" or "during the continuance of" the period prescribed; the provision of this section, requiring publication of notice of hearing of a petition for the creation of a new county "at least once a week for two weeks next preceding the date fixed for such hearing", means that 2 full weeks' notice, 14 days, shall be given and that therefore publication made for a shorter period of time is insufficient. (See 2001 amendment.) Garry v. Martin, 70 M 587, 227 P 573 (1924), distinguished in Scilley v. Red Lodge-Rosebud Irrigation District, 83 M 282, 272 P 543 (1928).

The requirement of this act that notice of the hearing of new county petitions shall be published "at least once a week for two weeks next preceding the date fixed for such hearing" means 2 weeks immediately preceding the hearing. (See 2001 amendment.) State ex rel. Stevens v. McLeish, 59 M 527, 198 P 357 (1921).

7-2-2211. Hearing on petition — protest.

Case Notes

When Protest Must Be Filed: Petitions for the exclusion of territory and protests against the exclusion must, but protests against the creation of a new county need not, be filed at least 1 day before the date set for hearing to entitle them to consideration by the Board of County Commissioners. It is sufficient if such latter protests are filed on or before the time fixed for the hearing. State ex rel. Faragher v. Moulton, 68 M 219, 216 P 804 (1923).

7-2-2212. Exclusions and additions of territory upon petition.

One Block:

The requirement that territory sought to be excluded from a proposed new county must be in one block (the word "block" implying solidity or compactness) was not met by a petition describing an irregularly shaped tract distributed over 14 townships, the exterior boundaries of which ran back and forth in all directions of the compass, alternately including and excluding small tracts, so threaded together as to preserve its continuity, and including those against the creation of the new county and excluding those favoring it. State ex rel. Woodward v. Moulton, 57 M 414, 189 P 59 (1920), distinguished in State ex rel. Keane v. County Comm'rs, 83 M 540, 273 P 290 (1929).

The intent of the Legislature in enacting the provision that territory sought to be excluded from a proposed new county must be in one block was held to have been that a block should be mapped out irrespective of the personnel of those residing within it, the majority of the residents thereof to determine whether, as a whole and not as individuals, they go with the new or remain with the old county. State ex rel. Woodward v. Moulton, 57 M 414, 189 P 59 (1920), distinguished in State ex rel. Keane v. County Comm'rs, 83 M 540, 273 P 290 (1929).

Counterpetition for Exclusion — Verification:

A verification to a counterpetition asking for the exclusion of territory sought to be included in a proposed new county, which merely averred that each affiant believed that the counterpetition was signed by at least 50% of the qualified electors of the territory sought to be excluded, was of no probative value as to the facts alleged. State ex rel. Wood v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 49 M 165, 140 P 728 (1914).

Since the statute does not require the verification of counterpetitions and does not authorize the acceptance of them as probative, the counterpetitions, though verified, cannot be given any evidentiary value. State ex rel. Wood v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 49 M 165, 140 P 728 (1914).

A recital in the affidavit verifying a petition for the elimination of certain territory from the area included within the boundaries of a proposed new county that 50% of the qualified electors of the territory sought to be withdrawn had signed such petition was sufficient prima facie showing of that fact. State ex rel. Arthurs v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 44 M 51, 118 P 804 (1911). But this is not so where the petition is unaccompanied by such affidavit, in which case it may not be taken as prima facie evidence of such facts. State ex rel. Lang v. Furnish, 48 M 28, 134 P 297 (1913).

Number in Exclusion Area — Burden: The burden of establishing the number of electors residing in territory sought to be excluded from a proposed new county is upon the petitioners seeking exclusion and not upon the proponents of the new county. State ex rel. Lang v. Furnish, 48 M 28, 134 P 297 (1913).

Exclusion Without Counterpetition for Exclusion: A valid petition describing the territory to be included within the proposed new county was the very foundation of the proceedings for the creation of a new county. While under certain circumstances the Board of County Commissioners was authorized to exclude territory, there was no authority in the Board to incorporate within the boundaries of a proposed new county territory which was not included in the petition praying for its creation or to exclude territory unless a proper petition for withdrawal thereof was presented. State ex rel. Jacobson v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 47 M 531, 134 P 291 (1913).

Counterpetition for Exclusion — Sufficiency:

The Board of County Commissioners, which is entrusted with the duty of passing upon the sufficiency of the petition required to be filed to effect the elimination of certain territory from a proposed new county, must read it in connection with the original petition for the creation of such county; and if thus, by any fair intendment, a description of the territory sought to be eliminated may be arrived at, it is the duty of the Board to give the intention of the petitioners full force and effect. State ex rel. Arthurs v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 44 M 51, 118 P 804 (1911).

The petition for an elimination of certain territory from the area included within the boundaries of a proposed new county must contain a description of the territory sought to be eliminated and a prayer for the relief demanded. The other facts may be made to appear by evidence upon the hearing without being specially alleged. State ex rel. Arthurs v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 44 M 51, 118 P 804 (1911).

Mandamus — Rejection of Petition: The fact that a Board of County Commissioners, in erroneously rejecting as insufficient a petition seeking the elimination of certain territory from the area of a proposed new county, acted in a quasi-judicial capacity is not any defense to the issuance of mandamus. State ex rel. Arthurs v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 44 M 51, 118 P 804 (1911).

7-2-2213. Resolution of board of county commissioners.

Compiler's Comments

1991 Amendment: In (4), after "county", substituted "and affected existing counties meet the limitations contained in 7-2-2202" for "will contain property, according to the last preceding assessment, which will equal in amount at least $4 million, inclusive of all assessed valuation"; deleted former (5) and (6) that read: "(5) whether the area of any existing county from which territory is taken to form the new county will be reduced to less than 1,200 square miles of surveyed land by taking the territory proposed to be taken therefrom to form the new county;

(6) whether the area of the proposed new county will contain at least 1,000 square miles of surveyed land to form the new county"; and made minor changes in style.

7-2-2215. Election on question of creating new county — proclamation and notice.

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 387 in (1), near beginning after "give", deleted "proclamation and" and after "held" deleted "on a specified day, not less than 60 days thereafter"; in (2) substituted "regular or primary election" for "countywide primary, general, or school election" and near end substituted "order" for "proclamation"; and made minor changes in style.

1985 Amendment: Near middle of (1) after "not less than", substituted "60 days thereafter" for "90 days or more than 120 days thereafter, in the territory which is proposed to be taken for the new county", substituted "the territory proposed to be taken from the county" for "such territory", inserted "or enlarged", and at end of (1) inserted "formed from a portion of one existing county or from portions of two or more existing counties"; inserted (2) relating to when the question is to be voted on; in (3) near beginning after "All registered electors", deleted "residing within the proposed new county who are registered electors", and after "of the county", deleted "or counties from which territory is taken to form the proposed new county and who are to be registered under the provisions of the registration laws of the state"; deleted former (3) and (4) that read: "(3) The proclamation and notice of election shall be published as provided in 13-1-108, and a copy thereof shall be mailed immediately by the election administrator of the county in which the petition is filed to the election administrator of each county from which territory is to be taken for the proposed new county.

(4) The proclamation calling the election and the notice thereof provided for in this part shall be made and given exclusively by the board with which the petition for the formation and establishment of the new county is filed"; and inserted (4) relating to procedure when existing county is enlarged.

Case Notes

Rehearing on Question of Election: After an order calling an election to determine whether a new county should be created had been made and the Board of County Commissioners clothed with jurisdiction had adjourned sine die, it was without power to grant a rehearing. 7-2-2226. Term of office for initial officers of new county.Case Notes

Term of Office: To "hold their offices until the time provided by general law for the election and qualification of such officers" does not mean the officers' terms are up for election at the next general election but when the term of the officers' election expires. Thus three County Commissioners elected concurrently with the election for the formation of a new county on staggered 2-, 4-, and 6-year terms continue in office until the expiration of their elected terms irrespective of intervening general election dates. 7-2-2241. Commission to determine and adjust indebtedness and assessments for old and new counties.Case Notes

Mandamus — School District Boundaries — Discretion of County Commissioners: The matter of dividing a new county into school districts being lodged in the discretion of the Commissioners of the old county out of which the new one is created, a court cannot, upon finding that the discretion had been erroneously exercised, substitute its discretion and establish the boundaries so as to exclude territory which should not have been included or hold the order valid as to the portion properly included and invalid as to the other. State ex rel. School District v. Urton, 76 M 458, 248 P 369 (1926).

Laches — Dismissal of Mandamus: Where two counties, out of which a third was created, made no objection to the report of the Commissioners appointed to adjust the indebtedness between the counties, and with knowledge of mandamus proceedings instituted by the new county to have the Board's findings reviewed, did not intervene, though they were represented by their respective County Attorneys who took part in the hearing, but waited until the final decision in such proceeding and until the new county had incurred expense in the issuance of bonds to pay the indebtedness due the parent counties and then commenced proceedings to compel the Board of Adjustment to reassemble and correct its findings, they were guilty of laches warranting dismissal of the proceedings. State ex rel. Cascade County v. Poland, 66 M 286, 213 P 800 (1923).

Breach of Promise to Transfer Assets of Old to New County — No Mandamus: Where the Board of Commissioners of a county, a portion of which was thereafter included in a new county, in order to obtain favorable action by the electors of that portion on a proposed issue of road bonds, passed a resolution, amounting to a promise merely, that in the event the bonds were authorized, a certain portion of the receipts would be devoted to road improvement in their district, their breach of trust in thereafter failing to carry out their promise could not be remedied by Writ of Mandate to compel the Board of Adjusters of the indebtedness between the old and the new county to charge the old county with the amount the district should have received under the resolution, the New Counties Act (Ch. 226, L. 1919) not authorizing the adjusters to take such action. State ex rel. Judith Basin County v. Poland, 61 M 600, 203 P 352 (1921).

When Mandamus Is Proper to Compel Adjustment of Indebtedness: Mandamus is the proper remedy to compel Commissioners appointed to adjust county indebtedness between an old and a new county to reassemble and correctly apportion such indebtedness; the fact of their adjournment is immaterial. Such proceedings should be brought in the name of the county and not by the Board of County Commissioners in their official capacity. State ex rel. Furnish v. Mullendore, 53 M 109, 161 P 949 (1916).

Constitutionality: In proceedings for the organization of a new county, the Board of County Commissioners is required to act as a quasi-judicial tribunal, and this constitutes no invasion of the constitutional provisions of the 1889 Montana Constitution that lodge the judicial power of the state in its courts. State ex rel. Lang v. Furnish, 48 M 28, 134 P 297 (1913); State ex rel.

Jacobson v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 47 M 531, 134 P 291 (1913); State ex rel. Arthurs v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 44 M 51, 118 P 804 (1911).

Property of the County — Bridges:

Since a completed and used bridge belongs to the state and therefore is not "property of the county" within the meaning of Art. XVI, sec. 3, 1889 Mont. Const., prescribing the method by which, in the creation of a new county out of an old one, the proportion of the net indebtedness of the old county chargeable to the new one shall be ascertained, the Legislature was without power to authorize the Commissioners appointed to adjust the indebtedness between a new and an old county as it did by the enactment of sec. 7, Ch. 139, L. 1915, to take into consideration steel bridges constructed and in use for a period of less than 10 years, in determining the value of county property. (Section 7, Ch. 139, L. 1915, was repealed by Ch. 226, L. 1919, that enacted this section. This section, containing a subsection identical to the subsection declared unconstitutional, was in effect when this case was decided, and the court declared a repealed law unconstitutional.) State ex rel. Missoula County v. Brown, 73 M 371, 236 P 548 (1925).

A partly finished bridge constructed with funds obtained by a bond issue is not such county property as it may sell and therefore cannot be taken into consideration as county property in the adjustment of indebtedness between an old and a new county. State ex rel. Judith Basin County v. Poland, 61 M 600, 203 P 352 (1921).

Generally speaking, bridges are not such county property as that their value shall enter into consideration in the adjustment of the indebtedness of the old county with the new one. A bridge is to be treated as but a portion of a public highway. State ex rel. Foster v. Ritch, 49 M 155, 140 P 731 (1914).

Property of the County: "Property of the county", within the meaning of Art. XVI, sec. 3, 1889 Mont. Const., under which, when a new county is created, the net indebtedness of the old county, its ratable proportion of which the new county must pay, is to be determined by deducting from its total indebtedness the value of all property of the old county, means such property as a county holds and can sell. State ex rel. Judith Basin County v. Poland, 61 M 600, 203 P 352 (1921).

7-2-2251. Collection of delinquent taxes.

Case Notes

Delinquent Taxes: Taxes that are delinquent upon creation of the new county or were delinquent and remain unpaid for previous years are collectible by and belong to the new county. Delinquent taxes paid on property incorporated in a new county, in the interim between the passing of the resolution by the Board of Commissioners of the parent county and the expiration of the 90-day period after its filing with the Secretary of State, belong to the parent and not to the new county. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Part 26
Removal of County Seat

7-2-2601. Petition to remove county seat.

Case Notes

Selection of County Seat — Decision of Electorate: Conceding that the selection or removal of a county seat is a purely political function, that function has not been confided to judges of election or to the canvassers of the returns but to a certain proportion of the qualified electors of the county affected. It rests with the courts to ascertain and decide whether the choice actually made by the requisite proportion of the qualified electors has been duly declared and, if not, to declare it and make it effective. Poe v. Sheridan County, 52 M 279, 157 P 185 (1916).

Inapplicable to Temporary County Seat: The words "changing" and "removing" found in Art. XVI, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (no comparable provision in 1972 Mont. Const.), and the statute laws refer to the act of changing or removing a county seat that has been definitely located and have no reference to a so-called temporary or provisional county seat. State ex rel. 7-2-2604. Consideration of petition — submission to voters.Case NotesSufficiency of Petition — Statutory Requirements:

Under this section, prior to amendment in 1973, the Board of County Commissioners is limited in its investigation of the sufficiency of a petition for the removal of the county seat to a comparison of the names appearing thereon with the pollbooks to ascertain whether the signers are voters and with the assessment roll to ascertain whether they are taxpayers. The Board may not, therefore, eliminate from the petition names of persons who have ceased to be legal voters or taxpayers. Ainsworth v. McKay, 55 M 270, 175 P 887 (1918).

Prior to amendment of this section in 1973, a petition for the removal of a county seat is sufficient if it is signed by the required number of ad valorem taxpayers of the county, provided all the persons necessary to make up such number are qualified voters. State ex rel. Stringfellow v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 42 M 62, 111 P 144 (1910).

Official Duty Presumed Performed: The official duty devolving upon the Commissioners is presumed to have been regularly performed; thus, it is presumed that the Board compared the names signed to the petition with the pollbooks of the "last election". State ex rel. Stringfellow v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 42 M 62, 111 P 144 (1910).

Sufficiency of Petition — Judicial Function of County Commissioners: A Board of County Commissioners exercises judicial functions when it decides whether a petition for the submission of the removal of the county seat to the electors of the county is signed by sufficient number to require such submission. State ex rel. Buck v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 21 M 469, 54 P 939 (1898).

Part Case Notes

Presumption of Regularity of Incorporation Proceedings: In a proceeding to enjoin a town from collecting municipal taxes on a 40-acre tract of land originally owned by an Indian ward on the ground that when the town was incorporated the consent of the federal government had not been given to include it in the city limits, the court held, under the rule that every presumption will be indulged in favor of the regularity of the proceedings if the corporate charter shows compliance with the applicable statutes, particularly in view of 26-1-602(15), that official duty is presumed regularly performed, judgment of dismissal affirmed. *Ogle v. Attorney General's Opinions

Cross-County Annexation Lawful — County Approval Not Required: Montana law does not expressly or impliedly limit annexation by county boundaries. In liberally construing the powers of incorporated cities and towns and counties, the Attorney General held that cross-county annexation is permitted by Montana law and is not dependent upon county approval. Approval by Mayor and Council: The approval of the Mayor and a majority of the Council endorsed on the map or plat of an addition to a city or town is essential to bring the territory included therein within the jurisdiction of the Council. Pool v. Townsend, 58 M 297, 191 P 385 (1920).

Attorney General's Opinions

Growth Policy Required Prior to Annexation of New Territory but Not for Continued Subdivision Review: Under 7-2-4734, a growth policy covering an area proposed for municipal annexation is required before a municipality may extend corporate limits under Title 7, ch. 2, part 47, but the requirement does not apply to annexations conducted under 7-2-4301, 7-2-4401, 7-2-4501, 7-2-4601, or this section. A growth policy is also required before certain subdivision review procedures and city powers of annexation are authorized. However, a growth policy is not required to continue subdivision review unless the city or county wishes to qualify for streamlined review processes. 49 A.G. Op. 23 (2002).

Attorney General's Opinions

Cross-County Annexation Lawful — County Approval Not Required: Montana law does not expressly or impliedly limit annexation by county boundaries. In liberally construing the powers of incorporated cities and towns and counties, the Attorney General held that cross-county annexation is permitted by Montana law and is not dependent upon county approval. Case Notes

Annexation Without Detraction — Methods of Annexation Separate and Distinct: The 1979 amendments to Montana municipal annexation law created methods of annexation that are separate and independent of each other and allow a city to annex real property by statute without detraction prior to annexation. Therefore, a 1974 permanent injunction barring a city from annexing any lands outside city limits that were situated within a rural fire district was properly dissolved, and the decision set out in Missoula Rural Fire District v. Missoula, 168 M 70, 540 P2d 958 (1975), which affirmed the 1974 injunction, was statutorily overruled. Missoula Rural Fire District v. Missoula, 237 M 444, 775 P2d 209, 46 St. Rep. 936 (1989).

Each Method of Annexation as Separate Procedure: Each of the eight methods of municipal annexation is a separate and distinct procedure. Therefore, the statutory exemption for golf courses found in 7-2-4503 does not apply to annexations commenced under Title 7, ch. 2, part 47 (Planned Community Development Act). *State ex rel. Case Notes

Compliance With Statutory Annexation Provisions Required — Standard of Review: Municipal annexation statutes contain numerous and detailed requirements for a city to annex property, some of which charge city planners to make subjective value judgments and statements of opinion, especially those concerning plans for the future. Pursuant to Gregory v. Forsyth, 187 M 132, 609 P2d 248 (1980), and Nilson Enterprises, Inc. v. Great Falls, 190 M 341, 621 P2d 466 (1980), the cardinal considerations for requiring substantial compliance with the annexation laws are public notice and participation, particularly for those affected by a proposed annexation. If all of the substantive and procedural requirements are included and complied with by a municipality, the law will have been followed, and if each of the statutory mandates that contain a subjective component are considered and included in the required plans, notice and the opportunity to participate are considered proper. Thus, compliance with annexation statutes must be complete and must be substantial when a statute requires a municipality to exercise discretion in making planning decisions. If there are no disputed issues of fact, the Supreme Court will review a District Court's decision on whether there was compliance with the law de novo. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004).

Former Law: Prior to the enactment of this section, the exclusive manner of annexation was through statutory provisions and failure to substantially comply with such provisions defeated annexation. Gregory v. Forsyth, 187 M 132, 609 P2d 248, 37 St. Rep. 277 (1980); Balock v. Melstone, 186 M 303, 607 P2d 545, 37 St. Rep. 288 (1980).

Attorney General's Opinions

Statutory Applicability: This section applies to tracts or parcels of land on which municipal taxes have been paid without protest for 7 years, even when a portion of the 7-year period passed prior to the 1981 enactment of this section. 42 A.G. Op. 93 (1988).

Part 43Annexation of Contiguous Land*Part Case Notes

Contiguous to Newly Annexed Land — Standing Based Upon Additional Taxation — Annexation Void Ab Initio: A taxpayer appealed a District Court decision upholding the annexation of land by the city of Great Falls. The appellant contended that a taxpayer who has been assessed special improvement taxes under a statute authorizing taxation of land that is "contiguous" to a city has the capacity to challenge the annexation proceeding that made its own land contiguous to the city. The Supreme Court noted that the trial court had cited its language in the Sharkey case that when such proceedings are void ab initio for want of jurisdiction of the subject matter, as here, equity will afford relief to the property owner whose taxes would be increased if his property were included within the city's limits. Having determined that the proceedings by Great Falls were indeed void at inception for want of proper jurisdiction, the court held that the taxpayer here had standing and was entitled to relief. Other affected taxpayers who, like appellant, paid the assessments under protest would also have an equitable right to relief for lack of consent. Nilson Enterprises, Inc. v. Great Falls, 190 M 341, 621 P2d 466, 37 St. Rep. 1977 (1980), following Sharkey v. Butte, 52 M 16, 155 P 266 (1916).

"Freeholder" Defined: The term "freeholder", as used in 7-2-4323 (now repealed) and 7-2-4324 (now repealed), means the purchaser and not the seller under a contract for deed. State ex rel. Stephens v. Hamilton, 161 M 1, 504 P2d 283 (1972).

Contiguous Land — Constitutionality: Annexation of contiguous land and annexation of wholly surrounded land do not violate Art. III, sec. 14, 1889 Mont. Const. (comparable to Art. V, sec. 29, 1972 Mont. Const.), or amendment five of the United States Constitution, which provides that private property may not be taken for public use without payment of just compensation, and do not violate Art. III, sec. 27, 1889 Mont. Const. (Art. II, sec. 17, 1972 Mont. Const.), or amendments 5 and 14 of the United States Constitution, which provide that private property cannot be taken without due process of law. Brodie v. Missoula, 155 M 185, 468 P2d 778 (1970), following Harrison v. Missoula, 146 M 420, 407 P2d 703 (1965).

Constitutionality — Annexation Generally: Annexation, in the absence of a constitutional prohibition, is a political matter exclusively for the Legislature to control, and unless specifically restrained by the Montana Constitution, the Legislature can authorize annexation without the consent or even against the wishes of the people living in the annexed corporation or territory. Harrison v. Missoula, 146 M 420, 407 P2d 703 (1965).

Evidence of Annexation Benefits to Landowner: In action for injunctive relief against resolution of intention of City Council to annex land, court properly excluded all evidence relating to benefits. Penland v. Missoula, 132 M 591, 318 P2d 1089 (1957).

Remedy for Illegal Inclusion: The remedy of injunction is available to one whose taxes would be increased by an illegal inclusion of his property within the limits of a city. Sharkey v. Butte, 52 M 16, 155 P 266 (1916).

Case Notes

Annexation of City Street Upheld as Basis for Subsequent Annexation of Other Land: The Missoula Rural Fire District and private property owners sued the city of Missoula to enjoin the annexation of their property by the city. The District Court held that the city could use previously annexed land consisting of all or parts of three city streets as a basis for subsequent annexation of parcels of land enclosed by those city streets because those parcels were "wholly surrounded" by city land. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment of the District Court, holding that a street is an annexable "tract or parcel" of land, pursuant to this section, and that when the contiguity of those streets with other city land at city intersections was considered with the public purpose of the annexations, the streets were valid annexations of contiguous land, pursuant to this section. The Supreme Court then held that since the parcels of land owned by the fire district and the private property owners were then "wholly surrounded" by properly annexed city land, the contested parcels of land were themselves properly annexed, pursuant to 7-2-4501. Missoula Rural Fire District v. Missoula, 286 M 387, 950 P2d 758, 54 St. Rep. 1459 (1997).

Strip of Land Too Small for Platting: Triangular piece of unplatted land separated area sought to be annexed into two tracts of land. Although the triangular strip was a part of a much larger tract, that fact was immaterial. The only part of the land which was significant was the strip separating the area sought to be annexed, not the larger area of which the separating strip was a part. If the triangular separating strip is too small or too narrow to be platted, then the tracts separated by it will be considered contiguous. Penland v. Missoula, 132 M 591, 318 P2d 1089 (1957).

Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 485 in three places in introduction, after "city", inserted "or town", and near beginning after "judgment", substituted "of any city or town council" for "of any city council of a city of the first class"; in (1), after "writing", substituted "all registered voters" for "addressed to the address to which tax notices are sent, all owners and purchasers under contracts for deed of property"; and made minor changes in style.

Case Notes

Discretion of City Council: Determination of question of whether annexation of tract of realty into city is in best interest of city and inhabitants of such area to be annexed is expressly granted to City Council by this section, and exercise of such discretion is subject to judicial review only where Council has proceeded contrary to statute or where they have acted so arbitrarily or capriciously that it may be said they exercised no discretion at all. Brodie v. Missoula, 155 M 185, 468 P2d 778 (1970); Penland v. Missoula, 132 M 591, 318 P2d 1089 (1957), distinguished in Klamm v. Miles City, 138 M 65, 353 P2d 752 (1960).

Case Notes

Protest When Annexation Void — Taxpayer's Relief Not Estopped for Lack of Timely Protest: A taxpayer's failure to protest annexation or a special improvement tax at a hearing does not estop him from challenging the annexation later when the jurisdiction of the city to annex and assess is held void ab initio. When there is a substantial defect in the original proceedings that operates to deprive a city of the jurisdiction to act from the outset, estoppel does not bar a taxpayer's prayer for relief. Nilson Enterprises, Inc. v. Great Falls, 190 M 341, 621 P2d 466, 37 St. Rep. 1977 (1980), distinguishing Power v. Helena, 43 M 336, 116 P 415 (1911).

implementation of resolution by voters for "the boundaries of the city must be extended to include the platted tracts or parcels of land or unplatted land for which a certificate of survey has been filed" and in second sentence, after "on which", substituted "the proposed annexation is intended to take effect" for "the annexation takes effect"; inserted (1)(c) requiring submission of annexation resolution to voters within 45 days of adoption and requiring notification of voters by mail; inserted (1)(d) authorizing city or town council to adopt resolution for area containing less than 300 parcels and providing use and time limitations; at beginning of (2) substituted exception clause for "The resolution may not be adopted by the city council if disapproved in writing by a majority of the real property owners of the area proposed to be annexed" and at end substituted "for a period of 5 years from the date of disapproval by the voters as provided in subsection (1)" for "for a period of 1 year from the date of disapproval"; and made minor changes in style.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 66 in (2) substituted "real property owners of the area" for "resident freeholders of the territory"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 16, 1995.

Case Notes

Constitutionality — Resident Freeholder Provision: Classifications established by Legislature in limiting protests to annexation to resident freeholders (see 1995 and 1997 amendments) in first-class cities while permitting protest by freeholders without regard to residence in smaller cities is not only a rational distinction but also promotes a compelling governmental interest and is therefore constitutional. Burritt v. Butte, 161 M 530, 508 P2d 563 (1973).

Meaning of "Resident Freeholder":

Neither a corporation nor a partnership is a "resident freeholder" (see 1995 and 1997 amendments) within the meaning of this section since it is clear that this section requires actual residence on the property sought to be annexed in order to qualify for protest and excludes those entities which possess no actual residence as distinguished from a legal residence. Burritt v. Butte, 161 M 530, 508 P2d 563 (1973).

A freeholder becomes a resident under 1-1-215 upon union of act and intent. If the intention to establish a permanent residence is ascertained, the recency of the establishment is immaterial. A resident freeholder (see 1995 and 1997 amendments) qualified to protest annexation is a resident within the area to be annexed, holding a present legal title to a freehold estate in real property located within the area to be annexed. It is not necessary for resident freeholder to reside upon his freehold in order to protest annexation. The date through which timely protest could be received determines qualifications of resident freeholders to protest annexation. Kunesh v. Great Falls, 132 M 285, 317 P2d 297 (1957).

Disapproval by Residents:

The filing of sufficient protests by resident freeholders (see 1995 and 1997 amendments) of a first-class city deprives the City Council of authority to do anything except to sustain the protests and terminate the proceedings. State ex rel. Konen v. Butte, 144 M 95, 394 P2d 753 (1964).

Residents of an area sought to be annexed must register their disapproval by showing such disapproval in writing to the City Clerk as required by statute. They cannot do so in courts of law. Penland v. Missoula, 132 M 591, 318 P2d 1089 (1957).

Mandamus for Termination of Proceedings: Where a majority of the resident freeholders (see 1995 and 1997 amendments) of a first-class city validly protested proposed annexation but City Council, instead of terminating the annexation proceedings, took arbitrary action, mandamus was proper to compel Council to terminate the process. The Uniform Declaratory Judgments Act (Title 27, ch. 8) did not furnish the protestants a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy. State ex rel. Konen v. Butte, 144 M 95, 394 P2d 753 (1964).

Number of Protests — Burden of Proof: A first-class city has the burden of determining if a majority of the resident freeholders (see 1995 and 1997 amendments) have protested the proposed annexation. State ex rel. Konen v. Butte, 144 M 95, 394 P2d 753 (1964).

Part 44Annexation of Contiguous Government Land*Part Case Notes

Statutory Requirements to Be Fulfilled Fully — Consent of State: The taxpayer, assessed special improvement taxes after a city annexed land, attacked the city's failure to file a land description, certificate of ownership, or owner's statement of a desire to have the land annexed. He argued that the city failed to comply with all the mandatory requirements because it did not obtain the state's consent to annex state land and that failure voided the annexation and taxation which followed. Without the state's consent, the city was without jurisdiction to proceed with the annexation. The court held that when statutory language provided the manner in which a city or town could annex, it had to be complied with completely and strictly. Nilson Enterprises, Inc. v. Great Falls, 190 M 341, 621 P2d 466, 37 St. Rep. 1977 (1980), reaffirming Pool v. Townsend, 58 M 297, 191 P 385 (1920); Balock v. Melstone, 186 M 303, 607 P2d 545, 37 St. Rep. 288 (1980); Gregory v. Forsyth, 187 M 132, 609 P2d 248, 37 St. Rep. 277 (1980).

Constitutionality — Annexation Generally: Annexation, in the absence of a constitutional prohibition, is a political matter exclusively for the Legislature to control, and unless specifically restrained by the Montana Constitution, the Legislature can authorize annexation without the consent or even against the wishes of the people living in the annexed corporation or territory. *Harrison v. Growth Policy Required Prior to Annexation of New Territory but Not for Continued Subdivision Review: Under 7-2-4734, a growth policy covering an area proposed for municipal annexation is required before a municipality may extend corporate limits under Title 7, ch. 2, part 47, but the requirement does not apply to annexations conducted under 7-2-4201, 7-2-4301, 7-2-4501, 7-2-4601, or this section. A growth policy is also required before certain subdivision review procedures and city powers of annexation are authorized. Case Notes

Annexation Without Detraction — Methods of Annexation Separate and Distinct: The 1979 amendments to Montana municipal annexation law created methods of annexation that are separate and independent of each other and allow a city to annex real property by statute without detraction prior to annexation. Therefore, a 1974 permanent injunction barring a city from annexing any lands outside city limits that were situated within a rural fire district was properly dissolved, and the decision set out in Missoula Rural Fire District v. Missoula, 168 M

70, 540 P2d 958 (1975), which affirmed the 1974 injunction, was statutorily overruled. Missoula Rural Fire District v. Missoula, 237 M 444, 775 P2d 209, 46 St. Rep. 936 (1989).

Case Notes

Compliance With Statutory Annexation Provisions Required — Standard of Review: Municipal annexation statutes contain numerous and detailed requirements for a city to annex property, some of which charge city planners to make subjective value judgments and statements of opinion, especially those concerning plans for the future. Pursuant to Gregory v. Forsyth, 187 M 132, 609 P2d 248 (1980), and Nilson Enterprises, Inc. v. Great Falls, 190 M 341, 621 P2d 466 (1980), the cardinal considerations for requiring substantial compliance with the annexation laws are public notice and participation, particularly for those affected by a proposed annexation. If all of the substantive and procedural requirements are included and complied with by a municipality, the law will have been followed, and if each of the statutory mandates that contain a subjective component are considered and included in the required plans, notice and the opportunity to participate are considered proper. Thus, compliance with annexation statutes must be complete and must be substantial when a statute requires a municipality to exercise discretion in making planning decisions. If there are no disputed issues of fact, the Supreme Court will review a District Court's decision on whether there was compliance with the law de novo. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004).

Part 45

Annexation of Wholly Surrounded Land

Part Case Notes

Wholly Surrounded Land Annexation — Constitutionality: Annexation of contiguous land and annexation of wholly surrounded land do not violate Art. III, sec. 14, 1889 Mont. Const. (similar to Art. II, sec. 29, 1972 Mont. Const.), or amendment five of the United States Constitution, which provides that private property may not be taken for public use without payment of just compensation, and do not violate Art. III, sec. 27, 1889 Mont. Const. (similar to Art. II, sec. 17, 1972 Mont. Const.), or amendments 5 and 14 of the United States Constitution, which provide that private property cannot be taken without due process of law. Brodie v. Missoula, 155 M 185, 468 P2d 778 (1970), following Harrison v. Missoula, 146 M 420, 407 P2d 703 (1965).

Constitutionality — Annexation Generally: Annexation, in the absence of a constitutional prohibition, is a political matter exclusively for the Legislature to control, and unless specifically restrained by the Montana Constitution, the Legislature can authorize annexation without the consent or even against the wishes of the people living in the annexed corporation or territory. Harrison v. Missoula, 146 M 420, 407 P2d 703 (1965).

Evidence of Annexation Benefits to Property Owners: In action for injunctive relief against resolution of intention of City Council to annex land, court properly excluded all evidence relating to benefits. Penland v. Missoula, 132 M 591, 318 P2d 1089 (1957).

Remedy for Illegal Inclusion: The remedy of injunction is available to one whose taxes would be increased by an illegal inclusion of his property within the limits of a city. Sharkey v. Butte, 52 M 16, 155 P 266 (1916).

Case Notes

Annexation of City Street Upheld as Basis for Subsequent Annexation of Other Land: The Missoula Rural Fire District and private property owners sued the city of Missoula to enjoin the annexation of their property by the city. The District Court held that the city could use previously annexed land consisting of all or parts of three city streets as a basis for subsequent annexation of parcels of land enclosed by those city streets because those parcels were "wholly surrounded" by city land. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment of the District Court, holding that a street is an annexable "tract or parcel" of land, pursuant to 7-2-4301, and that when the contiguity of those streets with other city land at city intersections was considered with the public purpose of the annexations, the streets were valid annexations of contiguous land, pursuant to 7-2-4301. The Supreme Court then held that since the parcels of land owned by the fire district and the private property owners were then "wholly surrounded" by properly annexed city land, the contested parcels of land were themselves properly annexed, pursuant to this section. Missoula Rural Fire District v. Missoula, 286 M 387, 950 P2d 758, 54 St. Rep. 1459 (1997).

No Certificate of Survey Required: Contention that 30-acre tract was improperly annexed to city due to failure of City Council to survey unplatted land and file certificate of survey prior to annexation was without merit since entire tract was surrounded by city and therefore, under this section, no certificate of survey was necessary. Brodie v. Missoula, 155 M 185, 468 P2d 778 (1970).

Wholly Surrounded Property — Congruity Unnecessary: Contention on appeal that city had improperly annexed certain platted lots due to the fact that one side of lots was contiguous with outdoor theater and thus such lots were not "wholly surrounded" by city, as required by this section, was without merit since "wholly surrounded", as used in this section, does not mean city property must also be wholly contiguous to such property; rather it means that tract is so located that it is impossible to reach it without crossing city property. Calvert v. Great Falls, 154 M 213, 462 P2d 182 (1969), followed in Missoula Rural Fire District v. Missoula, 283 M 113, 938 P2d 1328, 54 St. Rep. 480 (1997). See also *Missoula Rural Fire District v. Attorney General's Opinions

Growth Policy Required Prior to Annexation of New Territory but Not for Continued Subdivision Review: Under 7-2-4734, a growth policy covering an area proposed for municipal annexation is required before a municipality may extend corporate limits under Title 7, ch. 2, part 47, but the requirement does not apply to annexations conducted under 7-2-4201, 7-2-4301, 7-2-4401, 7-2-4601, or this section. A growth policy is also required before certain subdivision review procedures and city powers of annexation are authorized. However, a growth policy is not required to continue subdivision review unless the city or county wishes to qualify for streamlined review processes. 49 A.G. Op. 23 (2002).

Case Notes

Annexation of Golf Club: The city of Billings began proceedings to annex a golf club. Upon petition of the golf club, the District Court issued a Writ of Mandamus and then ruled, after trial, that 7-2-4503 deprived the city of the authority to annex a golf club. The city appealed, claiming that it had been proceeding under the Planned Community Development Act and that golf courses were not exempt from annexation under that Act. The Supreme Court agreed with the city that golf courses were not exempt from annexation under the Planned Community Development Act but held that under that Act, the golf club could prevent annexation. The court further ruled that because the Planned Community Development Act provides for judicial review, issuance of a Writ of Mandamus was premature. State ex rel. Hilands Golf Club v. Billings, 198 M 475, 647 P2d 345, 39 St. Rep. 1132 (1982).

Each Method of Annexation as Separate Procedure: Each of the eight methods of municipal annexation is a separate and distinct procedure. Therefore, the statutory exemption for golf courses found in 7-2-4503 does not apply to annexations commenced under Title 7, ch. 2, part 47 (Planned Community Development Act). State ex rel. Hilands Golf Club v. Billings, 198 M 475, 647 P2d 345, 39 St. Rep. 1132 (1982).

"Industrial Purpose" Defined: "Industrial purpose" is limited to any factory, business, or concern that is engaged primarily in the manufacture or assembly of goods or processing of raw materials unserviceable in their natural state which are extracted, processed, or made fit for use or are substantially altered or treated so as to create commercial products or materials. Burritt v. Butte, 161 M 1, 508 P2d 563 (1973).

Incidental Agricultural Use of Land Annexed: Contention that 30-acre tract of land was improperly annexed to city since such land was being used for agricultural purposes and therefore exempt from annexation under this section was without merit, since evidence indicated that land was primarily held as developmental parcel for housing development and agricultural use was only incidental thereto. Brodie v. Missoula, 155 M 185, 468 P2d 778 (1970).

Strip of Land Too Small for Platting: A triangular piece of unplatted land separated the area sought to be annexed into two tracts of land. Although the triangular strip was a part of a much larger tract, that fact was immaterial. The only part of the land which was significant was the strip separating the area sought to be annexed, not the larger area of which the separating strip was a part. If the triangular separating strip is too small or too narrow to be platted, then the tracts separated by it will be considered contiguous. Penland v. Missoula, 132 M 591, 318 P2d 1089 (1957).

Part 46Annexation by Petition*Part Case Notes

Standing to Sue Government in General — Annexation Proceedings in Particular: Before one has standing to sue a governmental entity, there must be a case or controversy. The plaintiff must clearly allege past, present, or threatened injury to a property or civil right, and the injury must be distinguishable from injury to the public in general, though it need not be exclusive to the plaintiff. In an annexation protest, annexation is a political matter exclusively for legislative control, absent a constitutional prohibition. The annexation must be void ab initio, and the challenger must be a property owner who would suffer a tax increase. The available remedy is an injunction, not monetary damages. A count of petition signatures for only one of many annexed areas, by a plaintiff who used his own criteria for the count, is insufficient to support a claim that the government entity inaccurately counted the signatures. Since plaintiff here had no standing to directly attack the annexation, he could not collaterally attack it by attempting to show negligence. O'Donnell Fire Serv. & Equip. Co. v. Billings, 219 M 317, 711 P2d 822, 42 St. Rep. 2051 (1985), followed in Knudsen v. Ereaux, 275 M 146, 911 P2d 835, 53 St. Rep. 83 (1996), and *Lohmeier v. Case Notes

Lack of Property Ownership Within Proposed Annexation — No Standing to Challenge Annexation Resolution — Summary Judgment Proper Despite Lack of Notice to Parties of Intent to Convert Motion to Dismiss Into Motion for Summary Judgment: It is error for a court to fail to give formal notice of the intent to convert a motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment, giving the party opposing the motion an opportunity to produce additional facts by affidavit or otherwise that would create a genuine issue of material fact to preclude summary judgment. However, in this case, plaintiffs lacked standing to challenge an annexation resolution because they did not own property within the proposed annexation. Without standing to state a claim, plaintiffs could prove no set of facts in support of their action that would entitle them to relief. Therefore, failure by the court to give the parties notice of conversion of the motion to dismiss was harmless error. Knudsen v. Ereaux, 275 M 146, 911 P2d 835, 53 St. Rep. 83 (1996), following O'Donnell Fire Serv. & Equip. v. Billings, 219 M 317, 711 P2d 822 (1985).

Attorney General's Opinions

Growth Policy Required Prior to Annexation of New Territory but Not for Continued Subdivision Review: Under 7-2-4734, a growth policy covering an area proposed for municipal annexation is required before a municipality may extend corporate limits under Title 7, ch. 2, part 47, but the requirement does not apply to annexations conducted under 7-2-4201, 7-2-4301, 7-2-4401, 7-2-4501, or this section. A growth policy is also required before certain subdivision review procedures and city powers of annexation are authorized. However, a growth policy is not required to continue subdivision review unless the city or county wishes to qualify for streamlined review processes. 49 A.G. Op. 23 (2002).

Annexation Without Detraction — Methods of Annexation Separate and Distinct: The 1979 amendments to Montana municipal annexation law created methods of annexation that are separate and independent of each other and allow a city to annex real property by statute without detraction prior to annexation. Therefore, a 1974 permanent injunction barring a city from annexing any lands outside city limits that were situated within a rural fire district was properly dissolved, and the decision set out in Missoula Rural Fire District v. Missoula, 168 M 70, 540 P2d 958 (1975), which affirmed the 1974 injunction, was statutorily overruled. Missoula Rural Fire District v. Missoula, 237 M 444, 775 P2d 209, 46 St. Rep. 936 (1989).

Case Notes

Compliance With Statutory Annexation Provisions Required — Standard of Review: Municipal annexation statutes contain numerous and detailed requirements for a city to annex property, some of which charge city planners to make subjective value judgments and statements of opinion, especially those concerning plans for the future. Pursuant to Gregory v. Forsyth, 187 M 132, 609 P2d 248 (1980), and Nilson Enterprises, Inc. v. Great Falls, 190 M 341, 621 P2d 466 (1980), the cardinal considerations for requiring substantial compliance with the annexation laws are public notice and participation, particularly for those affected by a proposed annexation. If all of the substantive and procedural requirements are included and complied with by a municipality, the law will have been followed, and if each of the statutory mandates that contain a subjective component are considered and included in the required plans, notice and the opportunity to participate are considered proper. Thus, compliance with annexation statutes must be complete and must be substantial when a statute requires a municipality to exercise discretion in making planning decisions. If there are no disputed issues of fact, the Supreme Court will review a District Court's decision on whether there was compliance with the law de novo. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004).

Former Law: Prior to the enactment of this section, the exclusive manner of annexation was through statutory provisions and failure to substantially comply with such provisions defeated annexation. Gregory v. Forsyth, 187 M 132, 609 P2d 248, 37 St. Rep. 277 (1980); Balock v. Melstone, 186 M 303, 607 P2d 545, 37 St. Rep. 288 (1980).

Part Case Notes

Provision Made for Water and Sewer Mains — City Annexation Plan in Substantial Statutory Compliance: Plaintiff was one of 277 property owners who contended that a plan for the extension of services into areas annexed by the city of Whitefish did not comply with annexation statutes. The Supreme Court examined the plan and concluded that: (1) the statement required by 7-2-4731 regarding extension of municipal services was included; (2) provision for future development in conformance with 7-2-4732 was made; (3) the plan included a financing method conforming with 7-2-4732 and 76-3-510; (4) tax burden statements conforming to 7-2-4732 and voting methodology statements conforming to 7-2-4733 were included; (5) the plan contained a long-range plan as required in 7-2-4732; (6) a timetable required by 7-2-4732 was included; and (7) the plan included maps of general land use, the city's present and proposed boundaries, and present and proposed streets and water mains, and a statement regarding other boundaries was included in conformance with 7-2-4731. The District Court's conclusion that the plan for the extension of services met statutory requirements was affirmed. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004).

Each Method of Annexation as Separate Procedure: Each of the eight methods of municipal annexation is a separate and distinct procedure. Therefore, the statutory exemption for golf courses found in 7-2-4503 does not apply to annexations commenced under Title 7, ch. 2, part 47 (Planned Community Development Act). State ex rel. Hilands Golf Club v. Billings, 198 M 475, 647 P2d 345, 39 St. Rep. 1132 (1982).

Constitutionality — Annexation Generally: Annexation, in the absence of a constitutional prohibition, is a political matter exclusively for the Legislature to control, and unless specifically restrained by the Montana Constitution, the Legislature can authorize annexation without the consent or even against the wishes of the people living in the annexed corporation or territory. Harrison v. Missoula, 146 M 420, 407 P2d 703 (1965).

Remedy for Illegal Inclusion: The remedy of injunction is available to one whose taxes would be increased by an illegal inclusion of his property within the limits of a city. Sharkey v. Butte, 52 M 16, 155 P 266 (1916).

Case Notes

Annexation of Golf Club: The city of Billings began proceedings to annex a golf club. Upon petition of the golf club, the District Court issued a Writ of Mandamus and then ruled, after trial, that 7-2-4503 deprived the city of the authority to annex a golf club. The city appealed, claiming that it had been proceeding under the Planned Community Development Act and that golf courses were not exempt from annexation under that Act. The Supreme Court agreed with the city that golf courses were not exempt from annexation under the Planned Community Development Act but held that under that Act, the golf club could prevent annexation. The court further ruled that because the Planned Community Development Act provides for judicial review, issuance of a Writ of Mandamus was premature. *State ex rel. Hilands Golf Club v. 1985 Amendment: Near beginning of (1) increased protest period from 20 to 45 days; in (1) and (2) deleted "resident" before "freeholders".

Case Notes

Failure to Stop Annexation Process — Judicial Review Not Precluded: The right to protest annexation under this section is separate from the right to request judicial review under 7-2-4741. Thus, even though a property owner does not stop the annexation process under this section, the property owner is still entitled to the judicial review in 7-2-4741 to ensure that a city met the statutory requirements of this part. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004).

City Resolution Allowing Implied Consent to Annexation Upon Continued Use of Utility Services Affirmed: The city of Whitefish adopted a municipal resolution requiring that property owners consent to annexation in order to continue to receive city utility services and allowing the city to imply consent to annexation from property owners that continued to receive the services after they received notice requiring them to disconnect from the utilities. Property owners contended that the resolution was invalid, but the District Court held the resolution valid, and the Supreme Court affirmed. The Attorney General held in 46 A.G. Op. 12 (1995), that a municipality may establish a rule requiring consent to annexation as a condition for continued receipt of services, and that opinion is in accord with 69-7-201. Further, the utility rule in this case put the burden on the property owner to arrange to disconnect from services if protesting annexation, so once proper notice was given, under 28-2-503 and this section, the city's procedure to imply consent was a proper method to determine if a property owner wished to continue to receive city services or to protest annexation. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004).

Recorded Waiver of Annexation Protest by Prior Property Owner — Present Owner Precluded From Protesting Annexation: In 1966, the city of Whitefish adopted a policy that a landowner outside the city boundary had to agree to waive the right to protest future annexation in order to continue to receive city water and sewer services. The waivers were properly recorded and later used by the city to invalidate annexation protests by current landowners in 1998. The District Court concluded that the waivers constituted a covenant running with the land and that the current owners were precluded from protesting the proposed annexation. On appeal, the current owners argued that the right to protest in this section resided with the current property owner and that the statutory consent to annexation authorized by 7-13-4314 only applied to the initiation of services and could not transfer to subsequent purchasers. The Supreme Court disagreed. Under 7-1-113, a self-governing entity may act even when there are controlling state laws as long as the local government's actions are not inconsistent with or lower or less stringent than state requirements. The purpose of 7-13-4314 is to ensure that property owners outside a municipality can request utility services and to ensure that the local government can later require annexation in exchange for utilities. Creating a covenant that runs with the land furthers this purpose. In addition, 70-17-203 also provides that every covenant made for the direct benefit of the property runs with the land. The waivers directly benefited the property and were allowable, so the District Court was affirmed. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004). Annexation Without Cost-Benefit Analysis and Resulting Increased Tax Burden Not Unconstitutional: Kudloff brought an action against the city of Billings, alleging that the city had wrongfully annexed his property because no cost-benefit analysis had been performed by the city and the annexation would result in an increase in Kudloff's tax burden. The Supreme Court held that a regulatory taking of property by a municipality is allowed even if the value of that property and its usefulness is diminished. The Supreme Court cited Harrison v. Missoula, 146 M 420, 407 P2d 703 (1965), for the proposition that the levying of future taxes after annexation does not constitute a taking of property. *Kudloff v. Attorney General's Opinions

Growth Policy Required Prior to Annexation of New Territory but Not for Continued Subdivision Review: Under this section, a growth policy covering an area proposed for municipal annexation is required before a municipality may extend corporate limits under this part, but the requirement does not apply to annexations conducted under 7-2-4201, 7-2-4301, 7-2-4401, 7-2-4501, or 7-2-4601. A growth policy is also required before certain subdivision review procedures and city powers of annexation are authorized. However, a growth policy is not required to continue subdivision review unless the city or county wishes to qualify for streamlined review processes. 49 A.G. Op. 23 (2002).

1987 Amendment: In (1), near end of introductory clause, inserted "any person or business located in"; in (1)(b) substituted "after the expiration of 5 years, if a majority of the residents of the annexed or incorporated area sign a petition requesting the municipality to provide the service" for "after the expiration of 5 years, the municipality may provide such service only if a majority of the residents of the annexed or incorporated area request in writing to the municipality that such service be provided by the municipality"; in (2), after "incorporated area or", inserted "after the expiration of 5 years", after "residents" substituted "sign a petition requesting" for "request", and near end substituted "provide" for "assume sole jurisdiction for"; and inserted (3) relating to adequate motor carrier service.

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 381, L. 1987, which amended this section, provided: "WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court, in D & F Sanitation Service v. Billings, [219] Mont. [437], 713 P.2d 977, 43 St. Rep. 74 (1986), interpreted section 7-2-4736, MCA; and

WHEREAS, the Supreme Court's interpretation of the section was contrary to the commonly understood intent of the statute and results in an unwieldy provision of services."

Case Notes

Adoption of Self-Government Charter — Doctrine of Implied Preemption: Appellant garbage haulers contended that the Legislature preempted the field of garbage regulation by enacting 7-2-4736. Powers specifically denied to local governments are enumerated in 7-1-111 and include the exercise of any power that prohibits the grant or denial of a certificate of public convenience and necessity. Under 69-12-314, garbage haulers are required to get a certificate of public convenience and necessity prior to doing business. The decision by Billings voters that the city should provide garbage services in no way prohibits the grant or denial of a certificate of public necessity. The Supreme Court held that the city was simply exercising its self-government powers to provide a service for its residents and was taxing them for that service. D & F Sanitation Serv. v. Billings, 219 M 437, 713 P2d 977, 43 St. Rep. 74 (1986), overruling Billings v. Weatherwax, 193 M 163, 630 P2d 1216, 38 St. Rep. 1034 (1981).

Annexation — Preservation of Existing Garbage Service — Constitutionality: The city of Billings contended that 7-2-4736 was a special or local act which violated Art. V, sec. 12, Mont. Const. The Supreme Court determined that the legislative purpose of the section to encourage private garbage service to unannexed areas was a sufficiently important governmental interest to justify the classification; hence, 7-2-4736 was held to be a general law which does not violate Art. V, sec. 12, Mont. Const. D & F Sanitation Serv. v. Billings, 219 M 437, 713 P2d 977, 43 St. Rep. 74 (1986).

Classification Rationally Related to Governmental Interest: The city of Billings alleged that 7-2-4736 violated Art. II, sec. 4, Mont. Const., by placing a greater tax on annexed taxpayers than on unannexed taxpayers, thereby denying equal protection to both classes of taxpayers. The court found that the classification of people in annexed areas using private garbage services prior to annexation bears a rational relation to the governmental purpose of encouraging private garbage service in unannexed areas. Therefore, 7-2-4736 was held to be constitutional under Art. II, sec. 4, Mont. Const. D & F Sanitation Serv. v. Billings, 219 M 437, 713 P2d 977, 43 St. Rep. 74 (1986).

Franchise Not Irrevocable — Constitutionality: On cross-appeal, respondent city of Billings contended that 7-2-4736 violated Art. II, sec. 31, Mont. Const., because it granted an irrevocable franchise to appellant private garbage haulers. The Supreme Court agreed that 7-2-4736 conferred a special privilege or franchise upon the garbage haulers, but noted that the franchise was not an irrevocable one within the meaning of Art. II, sec. 31, Mont. Const., since the privilege could be terminated by either a showing that the private carrier was unable or refused to provide adequate service or by written request of a majority of residents after a set period of time. Therefore, 7-2-4736 was held to be constitutional under Art. II, sec. 31, Mont. Const. D & F Sanitation Serv. v. Billings, 219 M 437, 713 P2d 977, 43 St. Rep. 74 (1986).

Interpretation of Statute — Customers After Annexation: The Supreme Court upheld the District Court's interpretation of this section (prior to 1987 amendment), which interpretation stated that in the event of annexation, a private garbage carrier may continue to provide services only to those customers it had prior to annexation. D & F Sanitation Serv. v. Billings, 219 M 437, 713 P2d 977, 43 St. Rep. 74 (1986).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 66 in (1), near beginning, substituted "real property owners of the area to be annexed" for "resident freeholders in the territory" and at end, after "governing", substituted "body" for "board and serve a copy of the petition on the municipality in the manner of service of civil process"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 16, 1995.

Case Notes

Failure to Stop Annexation Process — Judicial Review Not Precluded: The right to protest annexation under 7-2-4710 is separate from the right to request judicial review under this section. Thus, even though a property owner does not stop the annexation process under 7-2-4710, the property owner is still entitled to the judicial review in this section to ensure that a city met the statutory requirements of this part. *Gregg v. Case Notes

Compliance With Statutory Annexation Provisions Required — Standard of Review: Municipal annexation statutes contain numerous and detailed requirements for a city to annex property, some of which charge city planners to make subjective value judgments and statements of opinion, especially those concerning plans for the future. Pursuant to Gregory v. Forsyth, 187 M 132, 609 P2d 248 (1980), and Nilson Enterprises, Inc. v. Great Falls, 190 M 341, 621 P2d 466 (1980), the cardinal considerations for requiring substantial compliance with the annexation laws are public notice and participation, particularly for those affected by a proposed annexation. If all of the substantive and procedural requirements are included and complied with by a municipality, the law will have been followed, and if each of the statutory mandates that contain a subjective component are considered and included in the required plans, notice and the opportunity to participate are considered proper. Thus, compliance with annexation statutes must be complete and must be substantial when a statute requires a municipality to exercise discretion in making planning decisions. If there are no disputed issues of fact, the Supreme Court will review a District Court's decision on whether there was compliance with the law de novo. Gregg v. Whitefish City Council, 2004 MT 262, 323 M 109, 99 P3d 151 (2004).

Former Law: Prior to the enactment of this section, the exclusive manner of annexation was through statutory provisions and failure to substantially comply with such provisions defeated annexation. Gregory v. Forsyth, 187 M 132, 609 P2d 248, 37 St. Rep. 277 (1980); Balock v. Melstone, 186 M 303, 607 P2d 545, 37 St. Rep. 288 (1980).

ALTERNATIVE FORMS OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Alternative Forms and Self-Government Powers Bills: Local Government Review Bulletin, Vol. 1, No. 3, November 8, 1974, published by the State Commission on Local Government, is an annual report to the Legislature that proposed and discussed the Alternative Forms Bill (passed as Ch. 344, L. 1975) and Self-Government Powers Bill (passed as Ch. 345, L. 1975).

Sections Not Codified — Officials' and Employees' Transition for 1975-1976 Voter Review: Sections 16-5115.11(part) and 16-5115.12 through 16-5115.14, R.C.M. 1947, were not codified because the sections were temporary. They cover the election of new officials and transitions of officials and employees based upon the 1976-1977 Voter Review Process. These sections have not been repealed and are still valid law. They may be referred to as sec. 14 through 17, Ch. 513, L. 1975. These sections were exempted from the automatic termination provision of sec. 23, Ch. 513, L. 1975, by sec. 12, Ch. 477, L. 1977.

Section Not Codified: Section 16-5115.11(1), R.C.M. 1947, was not codified because it was redundant with 7-3-111 through 7-3-114. This subsection has not been repealed and is still valid law. It may be referred to as sec. 14, Ch. 513, L. 1975. See 1-2-208, stating that amendment to a codified provision is given effect over an uncoded provision.

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Special Election on Alternative Form of Government — Study Commission to Recommend Adoption: Under 7-3-187, a special election on an alternative form of government is scheduled only if the study commission recommends an alternative. Therefore, a local government study commission may not have an alternative form of local government placed on the ballot unless the study commission recommends adoption of the alternative plan. 41 A.G. Op. 56 (1986).

Failure to Adopt Alternate Form of Government — Statutory Basis of Government: A local government which fails in an election to adopt an alternate form of government in the manner provided by Art. XI, sec. 3 and 9, Mont. Const., is bound by the features of the existing form of government. The provisions of 7-3-201 through 7-3-224 allow voters to adopt a mayor-council structure with either partisan or nonpartisan elections. The procedures for recommending such a change are set forth in 7-3-121 through 7-3-161 and 7-3-171 through 7-3-193. If a nonpartisan election structure is not adopted, local elections must be conducted on a partisan basis after May 2, 1977, under the provisions of 7-3-113. 41 A.G. Op. 37 (1985).

Mandatory Procedure for Abandonment of Government Form: Section 7-3-4334 (now repealed) must be followed when a local government unit abandons the commission-manager form of government. 38 A.G. Op. 89 (1980).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 387 in (2), at end, substituted "submitted to the electors at the next regular or primary election" for "submitted to the electors as soon as possible after the submission of a petition or enactment of a resolution, either at a regularly scheduled election or at a special election"; and made minor changes in style.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 319 in first sentence of (2), after "electors", inserted "registered at the last general election".

Case Notes

Form of Government Unchanged by Recodification: The relevant portions of 7-3-102, et seq., contain the same essential characteristics of form of government as were presented under the former codification. Therefore, constitutional mandates were observed and an alternative and the established (whether called "present" or "existing") forms were presented to the electors for their choice. *Schuman v. Attorney General's Opinions

Nonapplicability to Proposed Alternative Forms of Government: The structural characteristics of government required by this section were intended to apply if voters did not adopt an alternate form of local government. The section does not apply to proposed alternate forms of government, which may recommend any of the structural characteristics permitted in the local government statutes; therefore, a proposed municipal commission-executive form of government is not restricted by the structural characteristics in this section. 41 A.G. Op. 88 (1986).

Failure to Adopt Alternate Form of Government: A local government which fails in an election to adopt an alternate form of government in the manner provided by Art. XI, sec. 3 and 9, Mont. Const., is bound by the features of the existing form of government. The provisions of 7-3-201 through 7-3-224 allow voters to adopt a mayor-council structure with either partisan or nonpartisan elections. The procedures for recommending such a change are set forth in 7-3-121 through 7-3-161 and 7-3-171 through 7-3-193. If a nonpartisan election structure is not adopted, local elections must be conducted on a partisan basis after May 2, 1977, under the provisions of 7-3-113. 41 A.G. Op. 37 (1985).

Provision Requiring Partisan Elections to Govern: This section provides that if a local government organized under the general statutes authorizing the mayor-council form of government did not adopt a new form of government, then it is governed by certain statutes after May 2, 1977, including 7-3-219(1) (formerly section 47A-3-203(h)(i), R.C.M. 1947), which requires partisan elections. Failure of such local government to adopt a new form of government binds it to the features of the existing government, including partisan elections; however, city officials elected on a nonpartisan basis are considered de facto public officials, and their official acts are regarded as legal. Local elections must be conducted on a partisan basis in the future unless the voters adopt a different plan of government. 41 A.G. Op. 37 (1985).

Attorney General's Opinions

Appointment of Heads of City Departments by City Council Allowed: The city council in a council-manager form of government may adopt an ordinance pursuant to 7-3-304 authorizing the city council rather than the city manager to appoint the heads of city departments. 45 A.G. Op. 1 (1993).

Increase in Number of City Commissioners — Study Commission Recommendation: A local government study commission may not recommend that the number of City Commissioners be increased from five to seven unless it does so as part of a recommendation to adopt a form of government that permits a seven-member City Commission. 41 A.G. Op. 48 (1986).

7-3-121. Purpose.Compiler's Comments

Commissioner Correction: The free joint conference committee report on HB 851 (Ch. 675, L. 1979) deleted a section of the original bill but did not alter the internal references within the bill accordingly. The Code Commissioner, 1979, has corrected these internal references in 7-3-125, 7-3-143 through 7-3-145, and 7-3-149.

Severability: Section 28, Ch. 675, L. 1979, was a severability section.

7-3-122. Definitions.Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 inserted definitions of form of government and plan of government; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "parts 1 through 7" for "parts 1 through 6" at the end of (3).

7-3-123. Alteration of existing forms of local government.Attorney General's Opinions

Election Required in 1984 on Whether to Establish Study Commission — Existing Study Committee: The question of conducting local government review and establishing a study commission must appear on the June 1984 primary election ballot pursuant to 7-3-173, notwithstanding any recommendations made by a study committee now reviewing a county government or the placing of its recommendations on the ballot. 40 A.G. Op. 30 (1984).

7-3-124. Election procedure.Attorney General's Opinions

Timetables for Filing Declarations of Nomination and Changing Precinct Boundaries — Study Commission Recommendations: The timetable for filing declarations of nomination found in 13-10-201(6) and the timetable for changing precinct boundaries found in 13-3-102(1) apply to candidates for County Commissioner positions created by the adoption of a local government study commission proposal. 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

7-3-125. Petition for alteration.Case Notes

County Government in Transition Period After Vote to Change Form of Government — Not Empowered to Order Special Election on Further Change: In November 1982, the voters in a county voted to change the county form of government from a charter government, provided for in Title 7, ch. 3, part 7, to a commission government, provided for in Title 7, ch. 3, part 4. The new commission government was to take effect in June 1983, after election of new county officers. During the transition period, the existing charter government, in response to a petition filed under 7-3-125, authorized a special election on the question of returning to a charter government. This special election was then challenged in an action for a Writ of Prohibition under Title 27, ch. 27. The Supreme Court upheld the District Court's issuance of the Writ, ruling that placing on the ballot the question of changing the form of county government was in excess of the charter government's jurisdiction. Allen v. Madison County Comm'n, 211 M 79, 684 P2d 1095, 41 St. Rep. 1226 (1984).

7-3-141. Permissible recommendations.Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 in (1)(b) and (2)(b) substituted "form of government" for "plan of government"; in (2) after "alter" deleted "an existing form of"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "parts 1 through 6" for "parts 1 through 7" at the end of (2)(b).

7-3-142. Requirements for petition.Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 in introductory clause after "alteration of" deleted "an existing form of"; in (2) near end and in two places in (4) before "government" deleted "local"; in (4) near beginning after "existing" inserted "form of government", after "plan" inserted "of government", after "proposed" inserted "form of government and", near middle after "proposed" inserted "forms and", near end after "proposed" inserted "form and", and near end after "present" inserted "form and"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

7-3-143. Special requirements if consolidation recommended.Compiler's Comments

1983 Amendment: In (1)(e)(i), after "absorption of" substituted "all existing boards, bureaus, special districts" for "existing boards", and near end after "school districts" deleted "authorities"; and in (1)(e)(ii) after "adjust boundaries" inserted "(and may provide a method for adjusting boundaries)", after "existing boards" inserted "bureaus, special districts", and after "school districts" deleted "authorities".

7-3-144. Special requirements if county merger recommended.Attorney General's Opinions

County Power to Grant Franchises — Interlocal Agreements Not Precluded: Article XI, sec. 4, Mont. Const.; 7-3-144; 7-4-2611; and 7-5-2129, as well as applicable case law, imply that a county vested with general government powers may exercise the power to grant franchises. Under 7-11-104, a city-county interlocal franchise agreement is possible. 42 A.G. Op. 87 (1988).

7-3-146. Filing of petitions.Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 483 in (1) after "department of" substituted "administration" for "commerce"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

1983 Amendment: Substituted reference to department of commerce for reference to department of administration.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "department of administration" for "department of community affairs" in (1).

7-3-149. Election on alteration of form of government.Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 in (1) in first sentence near middle after "question of an" substituted "alteration of the" for "alternative" and after "government" inserted "or change in a plan of government proposed by petition"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 387 in first sentence of (1), after "held at", inserted "the next regular or primary election that is at" and before "the date" deleted "within 120 days of", deleted former second sentence that read: "The special election may be held in conjunction with any other election", and at end of second sentence, before "election", deleted "special"; and made minor changes in style.

1985 Amendment: In (1) in first sentence, substituted "75 days" for "40 days".

1983 Amendment: In (1), after "to be held" inserted "at least 40 days after the call and".

Attorney General's Opinions

Study Commission to Establish Election Date on Question of Amendments: A local government study commission, rather than a Board of County Commissioners, is authorized to call for and establish an election date on the question of amendments to the existing form of government proposed in the study commission's final report. (See 1995 amendment.) 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

Election Required in 1984 on Whether to Establish Study Commission — Existing Study Committee: The question of conducting local government review and establishing a study commission must appear on the June 1984 primary election ballot pursuant to 7-3-173, notwithstanding any recommendations made by a study committee now reviewing a county government or the placing of its recommendations on the ballot. 40 A.G. Op. 30 (1984).

7-3-150. General ballot requirements.

Attorney General's Opinions

Ballot Division by Precinct: The ballot division required for local government ballots in this section should be done according to the boundaries of precincts, as that term is defined in 13-3-101. 41 A.G. Op. 88 (1986).

Election Required in 1984 on Whether to Establish Study Commission — Existing Study Committee: The question of conducting local government review and establishing a study commission must appear on the June 1984 primary election ballot pursuant to 7-3-173, notwithstanding any recommendations made by a study committee now reviewing a county government or the placing of its recommendations on the ballot. 40 A.G. Op. 30 (1984).

2007 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 61 made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

Chapter 521 in (2) in first sentence near beginning after "proposed" inserted "change of the form of government or change in a", after "plan" inserted "of government", and after "within the" substituted "form" for "alternative plan"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

Style changes were slightly different in the chapters. In each case, the codifier chose appropriate text.

1983 Amendment: In (1) inserted last sentence relating to effect of suboption of failed form.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "parts 1 through 6" for "parts 1 through 7" in (2).

7-3-152. Effect of adoption of new form of government or change in plan of government.

Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 near middle after "new" inserted "form of government or a change in a". Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

7-3-153. Filing of approved plan.

Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 in (1) near beginning after "copy of the" substituted "new form of government or change in a" for "existing or proposed" and after "plan of government" inserted "that is proposed by petition and that is"; and in (2) near beginning after "approved" inserted "form of government or change in a" and after "plan" inserted "of government". Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 483 in (1) and (2) after "department of" substituted "administration" for "commerce"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

1983 Amendment: Substituted references to department of commerce for references to department of administration.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "department of administration" for "department of community affairs" in (1) and (2).

7-3-154. Judicial review.Case Notes

Judicial Review Procedure Not Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy Precluding Writ of Prohibition: In an appeal of the District Court's issuance of a Writ of Prohibition prohibiting the County Commission and the County Recorder from placing on an election ballot the question of retaining the charter form of county government, appellants claimed that prohibition did not lie because there were other plain, speedy, and adequate remedies available to petitioners. The Supreme Court affirmed the Writ's issuance, ruling that a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy was not afforded by: (1) the judicial review procedure set forth in 7-3-154; (2) the injunction procedure set forth in Title 27, ch. 19; or (3) the declaratory judgment procedure set forth in Title 27, ch. 8. Allen v. Madison County Comm'n, 211 M 79, 684 P2d 1095, 41 St. Rep. 1226 (1984).

7-3-155. Three-year moratorium.Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 in (1) near middle after "plan" deleted "or upon the question of amending the alternative form, charter, or consolidation plan" and after "changing" deleted "or amending"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1983 Amendment: Inserted (2) relating to computation of moratorium.

7-3-156. Effective date of alternative form or amendment — officers.Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 in (1) in first sentence at beginning substituted "A change in form of government or plan of government" for "An alternative plan of local government", near middle after "office" inserted "pursuant to 7-3-161", and near end substituted "transition" for "consolidation"; and in (3) near beginning after "amendment to" substituted "the plan of an existing form" for "an existing plan" and at end inserted "unless the plan provides for an increase in the number or type of elective officers, in which case the amendment takes effect when the new officers take office". Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

Attorney General's Opinions

Study Commission Recommendations — Effective Date: A local government study commission report that proposes an alternative plan of local government, if approved by the electors, takes effect when the new officers take office unless otherwise provided in any charter or consolidation plan, under 7-3-156(1). A study commission proposal involving the creation of new offices and establishing qualifications for office becomes effective immediately upon adoption of the change by the electors, under 7-3-156(2). An amendment to an existing plan of government, including changing from partisan to nonpartisan elections for officers other than County Commissioners, takes effect at the beginning of the local government's fiscal year commencing after the election results are officially declared, under 7-3-156(3). (See 2007 amendment.) 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

7-3-157. General transition provisions.Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 in (1) in first sentence near middle after "new" inserted "form of government or" and after "plan of" substituted "government proposed by petition" for "local government"; in (2) in first sentence near middle after "new" inserted "form of government or"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

7-3-158. Transition provisions affecting personnel.Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 in (1) at end deleted "whereupon the prior governing body is abolished"; inserted (2) concerning holding of office under new form of government or change to plan of government; in (3) near beginning after "positions" deleted "whether elective or appointive"; in (4) at beginning substituted "A change in a form of government or a plan of government" for "A charter or a petition proposing an alteration to an existing form of local government", after "elected officers" substituted "of an office that is abolished may" for "shall", and after "existing elected officers" deleted "shall"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1981 Amendment: Deleted "or resolution" after "petition" in (3).

Attorney General's Opinions

Required Election Schedule for Nonelected Position: Where the existing office of city treasurer is a nonelected position and the proposed plan of local government calls for an elected city treasurer, the election schedule required by 7-3-160 is to be followed. The exceptions in this section apply only to elected officers. (See 2007 amendment.) 41 A.G. Op. 88 (1986).

Holdover Officers — Exclusive Exceptions: Subsection (3) of 7-3-158 provides the only two exclusive exceptions regarding holdover officers of an existing governing body once a new form of local government has been adopted. If neither exception is provided for by charter or petition, then the general rule in 7-3-158(1) would operate to abolish the prior governing body at the time the new body is elected and qualified for office. (See 2007 amendment.) 41 A.G. Op. 70 (1986).

Increase in Number of County Commissioners — Holdovers — Alteration of District Boundaries: If the electors were to adopt a proposal to increase the number of County Commissioners, all of the incumbent Commissioners would lose their positions unless otherwise required by the adopted plan, pursuant to 7-3-158. If no provision were made for holdovers in the local government study commission plan, they would remain in office only until the newly elected Commissioners take office. However, a study commission proposal is not invalid because it provides for holdover County Commissioners, even when the proposal alters the commission district boundaries. (See 2007 amendment.) (See 40 A.G. Op. 1 (1983)). 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

7-3-160. Election of new officials.

2007 Amendment: Chapter 521 in (1) in first sentence near beginning after "which" substituted "a new form" for "the new plan", after "government" inserted "or change in a plan of government", and near end after "form" inserted "or plan" and in second sentence after "officials" substituted "must" for "may" and at end inserted "of that government"; in (2)(a) near end substituted "government's next regularly scheduled" for "next regularly scheduled city or county"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1986 Amendment: Substituted (2) relating to scheduling of primary and general elections for former (2) that read: "The order shall specify a date for the primary election not more than 120 days or less than 75 days after the election approving the new form and a date for the general election 75 days after the primary."

1985 Amendment: In (2) after "less than", substituted "75 days" for "20 days" and near end of sentence, substituted "75 days" for "60 days".

Required Election Schedule for Nonelected Position: Where the existing office of city treasurer is a nonelected position and the proposed plan of local government calls for an elected city treasurer, the election schedule required by this section is to be followed. The exceptions in 7-3-158 apply only to elected officers. (See 2007 amendment to 7-3-158.) 41 A.G. Op. 88 (1986).

Study Commission to Establish Election Dates for New Officers: Under 7-3-187(1)(c), a local government study commission, rather than a Board of County Commissioners, is responsible for setting the dates of a special primary and a general election for officers of a new government, if the proposal is approved by the electors. However, the dates must fall within the time periods provided in 7-3-160(2) (decided prior to 1986 amendment). 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

Timetables for Filing Declarations of Nomination and Changing Precinct Boundaries — Study Commission Recommendations: The timetable for filing declarations of nomination found in 13-10-201(6) and the timetable for changing precinct boundaries found in 13-3-102(1) apply to candidates for County Commissioner positions created by the adoption of a local government study commission proposal. 41 A.G. Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

Attorney General's Opinions

Mill Levy Question Precluded on Study Commission Ballot: A local governing body is required to conduct a decennial election on the question of local government review and establishment of a study commission. Prior to 1999, under 7-3-184, a local government under study was also required to appropriate an amount necessary to conduct the study and local governments were allowed a mill levy to do so. However, the 1999 Legislature eliminated a local government's authority to levy for a study commission in favor of a generic mill levy election procedure. Thus, local governments may now choose whether or not to fund study commissions, but any appropriation for that purpose is subject to the mill levy limitations of 15-10-420. The ballot form in 7-3-175 is limited to the single question of establishing a local government study commission, so a local government may not combine a mill levy question with the study commission question. Rather, the mill levy question may be presented pursuant to the general-purpose mill levy election procedure in 15-10-425. 50 A.G. Op. 5 (2004).

Existing Nonelected Study Committee — 1984 Election Required: The question of conducting local government review and establishing a study commission must appear on the June 1984 primary election ballot pursuant to this section, notwithstanding any recommendations made by a nonelected study committee now reviewing a county government or the placing of its recommendations on the ballot. 40 A.G. Op. 30 (1984).

Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 584 at beginning of (2)(a) substituted "Subject to 15-10-420" for "For the support of the study commission", substituted "may" for "shall", and after "study" deleted "not to exceed 1 mill, and the local government may levy up to 1 mill in excess of all other mill levies authorized by law to fund the appropriation for the support of the study commission"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 10, 1999.

Severability: Section 172, Ch. 584, L. 1999, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 175, Ch. 584, L. 1999, provided that this section applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax years beginning after December 31, 1998.

1991 Amendment: Near middle of (2)(a), after "appropriate", substituted "an amount necessary to fund the study, not to exceed 1 mill" for "the equivalent of at least 1 mill".

7-3-185. Scope of study commission recommendations.Compiler's Comments

1985 Amendment: In both (1) and (2), in (a) substituted "examining" for "elected to examine" and inserted (b) allowing services studies.

Attorney General's Opinions

Service Consolidations Submitted to Governing Bodies: A local government study commission may recommend a change in the form or structure of local government. Recommended changes in structure are to be set forth in the study commission's final report and placed on the ballot for voter approval. A study commission may also recommend a service consolidation or transfer in cooperation with a study commission of another county or municipality. A recommendation to consolidate services is to be set forth in a supplemental report and submitted to the appropriate governing bodies for reaction within 1 year. 41 A.G. Op. 80 (1986).

Special Election on Alternative Form of Government — Study Commission to Recommend Adoption: Under 7-3-187, a special election on an alternative form of government is scheduled only if the study commission recommends an alternative. Therefore, a local government study commission may not have an alternative form of local government placed on the ballot unless the study commission recommends adoption of the alternative plan. 41 A.G. Op. 56 (1986).

Recommendation of Shorter Terms of County Commission Office: A local government study commission may recommend that terms of office for County Commissioners be less than 6 years if the county has adopted the statutory county "commission form" of government. A local government study commission may not recommend that the terms of office for County Commissioners be less than 6 years if the county has retained the form of government organized under the statutes listed in 7-3-111. 41 A.G. Op. 51 (1986).

Increase in Number of City Commissioners — Study Commission Recommendation: A local government study commission may not recommend that the number of City Commissioners be increased from five to seven unless it does so as part of a recommendation to adopt a form of government that permits a seven-member City Commission. 41 A.G. Op. 48 (1986).

1985 Amendment: In (4) substituted "two copies" for "one copy" and "department of commerce" for "department of administration" and inserted "one of which the department shall forward to the state library"; and inserted (6) relating to deposit of minutes and records.

Attorney General's Opinions

Service Consolidations Submitted to Governing Bodies: A local government study commission may recommend a change in the form or structure of local government. Recommended changes in structure are to be set forth in the study commission's final report and placed on the ballot for voter approval. A study commission may also recommend a service consolidation or transfer in cooperation with a study commission of another county or municipality. A recommendation to consolidate services is to be set forth in a supplemental report and submitted to the appropriate governing bodies for reaction within 1 year. 41 A.G. Op. 80 (1986).

Special Election on Alternative Form of Government — Study Commission to Recommend Adoption: Under 7-3-187, a special election on an alternative form of government is scheduled only if the study commission recommends an alternative. Therefore, a local government study commission may not have an alternative form of local government placed on the ballot unless the study commission recommends adoption of the alternative plan. 41 A.G. Op. 56 (1986).

Study Commission to Establish Election Date on Question of Amendments: A local government study commission, rather than a Board of County Commissioners, is authorized to call for and establish an election date on the question of amendments to the existing form of government proposed in the study commission's final report. (See 1995 amendment.) 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

Study Commission to Establish Election Dates for New Officers: Under 7-3-187(1)(c), a local government study commission, rather than a Board of County Commissioners, is responsible for setting the dates of a special primary and a general election for officers of a new government, if the proposal is approved by the electors. However, the dates must fall within the time periods provided in 7-3-160(2) (decided prior to 1985 and 1995 amendments). 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

Attorney General's Opinions

Holdover Officers — Exclusive Exceptions: Subsection (3) of 7-3-158 provides the only two exclusive exceptions regarding holdover officers of an existing governing body once a new form of local government has been adopted. If neither exception is provided for by charter or petition, then the general rule in 7-3-158(1) would operate to abolish the prior governing body at the time the new body is elected and qualified for office. (See 2007 amendment to 7-3-158.) 41 A.G. Op. 70 (1986).

Increase in Number of County Commissioners — Holdovers — Alteration of District Boundaries: If the electors were to adopt a proposal to increase the number of County Commissioners, all of the incumbent Commissioners would lose their positions unless otherwise required by the adopted plan, pursuant to 7-3-158. If no provision were made for holdovers in the local government study commission plan, they would remain in office only until the newly elected Commissioners take office. However, a study commission proposal is not invalid because it provides for holdover County Commissioners, even when the proposal alters the commission district boundaries. (See 2007 amendment to 7-3-158.) (See 40 A.G. Op. 1 (1983)). 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

Study Commission Recommendations — Effective Date: A local government study commission report that proposes an alternative plan of local government, if approved by the electors, takes effect when the new officers take office unless otherwise provided in any charter or consolidation plan, under 7-3-156(1). A study commission proposal involving the creation of new offices and establishing qualifications for office becomes effective immediately upon adoption of the change by the electors, under 7-3-156(2). An amendment to an existing plan of government, including changing from partisan to nonpartisan elections for officers other than County Commissioners, takes effect at the beginning of the local government's fiscal year commencing after the election results are officially declared, under 7-3-156(3). (See 2007 amendment to 7-3-156.) 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

Study Commission to Establish Election Dates for New Officers: Under 7-3-187(1)(c), a local government study commission, rather than a Board of County Commissioners, is responsible for setting the dates of a special primary and a general election for officers of a new government, if the proposal is approved by the electors. However, the dates must fall within the time periods provided in 7-3-160(2) (decided prior to 1985 and 1995 amendments). 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

Staggered, At-Large Election of County Commissioners Violates Section 2 of Voting Rights Act: The United States Department of Justice brought a civil action against Blaine County, Montana, claiming that the county's adoption of an at-large system of electing County Commissioners violated the Voting Rights Act of 1965 (VRA) (42 U.S.C 1973) because it allowed block voting of whites against Indian candidates, largely from the Fort Belknap Indian Reservation, thereby excluding Indians from participating equally in the county's political process. The District Court found that there was a violation of section 2 of the VRA, enjoined the county from using the at-large election system, and required the county to adopt a curative plan and implement it. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the U.S. District Court's decision and held: (1) U.S. Supreme Court summary affirmances of lower court decisions may be relied on as precedent, unless circumstances have changed since the court's order; (2) Congress did not exceed its authority in failing to limit the application of section 2 of the VRA to only certain geographic localities found by the Congress to have discriminated against minorities in the past; (3) the VRA was constitutional in its requirement that only a discriminatory result, rather than a discriminatory intent, be found for there to be a violation of the law; (4) the District Court was correct in its conclusion that, taking into consideration the totality of the circumstances existing in Blaine County, an at-large voting system violated section 2 of the VRA; and (5) although the District Court did fail to rule on the reliability of some of the expert witnesses used by the United States, the error was harmless error and would not require the court of appeals to overturn the District Court's judgment. *U.S. v. County Government in Transition Period After Vote to Change Form of Government — Not Empowered to Order Special Election to Further Change: In November 1982, the voters in a county voted to change the county form of government from a charter government, provided for in Title 7, ch. 3, part 7, to a commission government, provided for in Title 7, ch. 3, part 4. The new commission government was to take effect in June 1983, after election of new county officers. During the transition period, the existing charter government, in response to a petition filed under 7-3-125, authorized a special election on the question of returning to a charter government. This special election was then challenged in an action for a Writ of Prohibition under Title 27, ch. 27. The Supreme Court upheld the District Court's issuance of the Writ, ruling that placing on the ballot the question of changing the form of county government was in excess of the charter government's jurisdiction. *Allen v. Butte-Silver Bow Self-Government Charter Held Not Superior to Wrongful Discharge From Employment Act: When Babb was appointed the chief executive officer of the Butte-Silver Bow consolidated city-county government, he immediately fired both Johnston and Shea, who had been department heads of the consolidated government for many years. Johnston and Shea then sued Babb for violation of the Wrongful Discharge From Employment Act (WDEA). Babb argued that because the self-government charter of the consolidated government provided that department heads serve “at the pleasure of” the chief executive officer (CEO) of the local government and because self-government charters are superior to statute, Johnston and Shea were “at will” employees to whom the WDEA did not apply. The U.S. Magistrate Judge decided, citing MacMillan v. St. Comp. Ins. Fund, 285 M 202, 947 P2d 75 (1997), that the Montana Supreme Court has held that municipalities operating under self-government charters have limitations as provided in Title 7, ch. 1, part 1, which the self-government charter itself cited, and 7-1-111(2), which applies Title 39 to local governments operating with self-government powers. Further, the Magistrate Judge decided that under Art. XI, sec. 5(3), Mont. Const., and Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222 (1999), the language of the self-government charter requiring department heads to serve “at the pleasure of” the CEO is not such a part of the structure and organization of local government that it is superior to statute. For these reasons, the Magistrate Judge decided that the WDEA did apply to the firing of Johnston and Shea and that they therefore could not be fired without good cause and granted Johnston and Shea’s motion for summary judgment. Johnston v. Babb, Cause No. CV-05-03-BU-CSO (D. Mont. 2005).

Establishment of Refuse Disposal District by County With Self-Governing Power: Title 7, ch. 13, part 2, is not mandatory upon a county charter form of government when it establishes a refuse disposal district and system. That part applies to the establishment of a refuse disposal district by governments that are of general power status, not those with self-government status. Title 7, ch. 13, part 2, does not direct or require a local government to provide a service within the meaning of 7-1-114. Clopton v. Madison County Comm’n, 216 M 335, 701 P2d 347, 42 St. Rep. 851 (1985).

Case Notes

Suspension of Firefighters — All Cities Required to Present Charges to City Council for Hearing — Suspension Procedure Not Part of “Structure” of City Government Under Applicable Definitions — Statute Not Superseded by Charter: Elsenpeter, a Billings firefighter, was suspended from duty by the Billings fire chief. The firefighters’ union filed a lawsuit in which the union contended that the suspension procedure used by the city was unlawful because the charges against Elsenpeter were not presented to the Billings City Council for hearing pursuant to 7-33-4124. The city contended that the suspension procedure that it used is part of the structure and organization of the city under its charter and that, pursuant to Art. XI, sec. 5, Mont. Const., and subsection (2) of this section, which allow the structure of a chartered city government to supersede statutory requirements, the city may override the statutory requirements for hearing contained in 7-33-4124 because the definition of “structure” contained in 7-1-4121(24) is the definition that should apply. The Supreme Court held that in as much as the definitions in 7-1-4121 are, by the terms of that section, limited in their application to 7-1-4121 through 7-1-4149, the dictionary definition of “structure” is the definition that applies. Because the dictionary definition of structure was narrower, the Supreme Court held that the disciplinary suspension procedure used by the city was not part of the “structure” of city government. Therefore, the Supreme Court held that the statutory procedure contained in 7-33-4124, requiring presentment of the charges to the City Council, was not superseded by the city charter and had to be followed for the purposes of the suspension of Elsenpeter. Billings Firefighters Local 521 v. Billings, 1999 MT 6, 293 M 41, 973 P2d 222, 56 St. Rep. 23 (1999). Billings Firefighters Local 521 II was followed, as to the power of a consolidated local government CEO to fire government employees not being considered a part of the structure and organization of a self-governing local government, in *Johnston v. Combination of Legislative and Executive Powers Under Charter County Government: Under this section, a charter may provide that the executive and administrative functions of the government will be performed by one or more members of the legislative body, which clearly allows the entire legislative body or commission to perform the executive functions. Accordingly, a county charter may provide that the legislative body or commission will perform the executive functions in addition to its legislative duties. The language of the charter determines whether the executive functions are performed by one or all of the members of the legislative body or commission. 46 A.G. Op. 14 (1996).

Authority of City-County Government to Acquire and Operate Electric and Natural Gas Utilities: A consolidated government with self-government powers, such as the city and county of Butte-Silver Bow, has the authority to acquire and operate electric and natural gas utilities both within and outside the boundaries of the local government unit. The Attorney General determined that Butte-Silver Bow was specifically authorized to do so after considering the local government's charter, constitutional ramifications, and whether the exercise of that authority was prohibited by local government law or other statutes applicable to self-government units and was consistent with state provisions in areas affirmatively subjected to state control, as described in 7-1-113. 48 A.G. 2007 Amendment: Chapter 187 in (2) near middle of first sentence after "exceeds" substituted "2.5%" for "1.51%". Amendment effective July 1, 2007.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 29 in (2) near middle of first sentence after "aggregate" substituted "that exceeds 1.51% of the total assessed value of taxable property, determined as provided in 15-8-111, within the municipality" for "exceeding 28% of the taxable value of the taxable property therein"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Saving Clause: Section 33, Ch. 29, L. 2001, was a saving clause.

Applicability: Section 35, Ch. 29, L. 2001, provided: "(1) [This act] applies to the authorization and issuance of bonds occurring on or after July 1, 2001.

(2) Debt limits established under [this act] do not apply to bonds authorized before July 1, 2001, regardless of when the bonds are issued."

1981 Amendment: Changed "The municipality shall not" to "The municipality may not" at the beginning of (2); and substituted "exceeding 28% of the taxable value" for "exceeding 5% of the value" in the middle of (2).

Validation: Section 64, Ch. 614, L. 1981, provided: "Notwithstanding any provisions of this act, any outstanding indebtedness or bond issue on January 1, 1982, of any governmental subdivision is not invalidated because of any changes in the taxable valuation of the subdivision due to removal of automobiles and trucks having a rated capacity of three-quarters of a ton or less from the tax base."

Effect of 1981 Amendment: The primary purpose of Ch. 614, L. 1981, was to replace the system of taxation of automobiles and light trucks with a fee system. With the adoption of the fee system, automobiles and light trucks are no longer taxable property. The resulting loss of taxable valuation has a direct effect on the amount of indebtedness a political subdivision can incur. Thus it was necessary in Ch. 614 to increase the percentage of taxable valuation used as a limitation on indebtedness to offset the loss of taxable valuation attributable to automobiles and light trucks.

City Gross Revenue Franchise Fee on Facilities Using Public Right-of-Way Illegal Tax on Goods and Services: The city of Billings by ordinance established a franchise fee on several public utilities and telecommunications corporations with facilities located in the public right-of-way, and the utilities challenged the fee. The District Court held that the fee constituted an unlawful tax, and the city appealed. Despite the fact that the ordinance was subsequently rejected by voters, rendering the issue moot, the Supreme Court noted that the issue was capable of repetition and therefore accepted jurisdiction of the issue as appropriate in order to finally settle the legality of such fees in case similar ordinances were brought forth in the future. The fee in question was characterized as a franchise fee based on 4% of gross annual revenue generated by each utility that occupied the public right-of-way within the city. However, money collected was not earmarked for right-of-way maintenance or regulation, but was to be used to reduce general property taxes and to fund transportation improvement projects, public safety operations, and park maintenance, and the fee was separate from the city's police power over streets and alleys. The Supreme Court agreed that the unilaterally imposed, revenue-generating gross revenue fee, which was unrelated to the use or occupancy of the right-of-way, was in fact a tax based exclusively on the sale of a product or service within the city and was thus prohibited pursuant to 7-1-112. *Mont.-Dak. Removal of Chief of Fire Department: The chief of a fire department of a city operating under the commission form of government was removed by the Council, his name, however, being restored to the roll of members, thus entitling him to the safeguards afforded him as such member under the civil service rules of 7-33-4121 through 7-33-4131. He later was suspended under this section, but a hearing on his appeal was not accorded him. Held, that failure to hear his appeal rendered the order of suspension of no effect, automatically reinstated him, and entitled him to compensation during the period of his suspension. State ex rel. Daly v. Dryburgh, 62 M 36, 203 P 508 (1921).

Removal of Police Officer:

A police officer may be suspended or discharged for neglect of duty or disobedience of orders by the Chief of Police under this section, subject to review by the Superintendent of the Police Department, from whose order of approval the accused may appeal to the City Council or the Police Commission, under 7-32-4155 through 7-32-4164, upon charges filed with it, a copy of which must be furnished to him. State ex rel. Lease v. Wilkinson, 59 M 327, 196 P 878 (1921).

Where an acting Chief of Police merely recommended to the Council that a police officer be removed from office but did not actually suspend or discharge him, in conformity with this section, there was no order from which he could appeal, and his attempted appeal was ineffectual for any purpose. *State ex rel. Vacation of Street by Mayor-Council Government — Legal Effect on City's Interest in Street: Under 7-14-4114, a municipality has the authority to close all or part of a street to through traffic without giving up its legal interest in the street or to vacate all or part of the street and revoke its legal interest in it. A municipality with a mayor-council form of government is bound by the procedures in 7-14-4114 rather than by 7-3-4448, which applies only to commission-manager forms of government, when it seeks to discontinue, close, or vacate a street. The choice between vacating a street and closing a street is a matter for the discretion of the municipal officers of a mayor-council form of government. 46 A.G. Op. 4 (1995), clarifying *Wynia v. The District Court held that under 7-32-4153 the city manager, rather than the Mayor, was the proper party to review the decision of the police commission. The Supreme Court affirmed the District Court decision and held that under the commissioner-manager form of government, the city manager, not the Mayor, is the chief executive with power to affirm, modify, or veto decisions of the police commission. Raynes v. Great Falls, 215 M 114, 696 P2d 423, 42 St. Rep. 224 (1985).

Case Notes

Authority of Board of County Commissioners to Approve Subdivisions Within Three-Mile Area Outside Corporate Limits: The city of Bozeman sought a reversal of 43 A.G. Op. 26 (1989), in which the Attorney General held that the Board of County Commissioners has final authority to approve subdivisions that are within the 3-mile area immediately outside the corporate limits of the city when the city has a commission-manager form of government. Bozeman asserted that 76-2-312 was not a limitation on the authority of commission-manager governments but rather an acknowledgement by the Legislature that such municipal governments already had extraterritorial subdivision authority under this section and that 76-2-312 exempted cities with a commission-manager form of government from procedural requirements that other forms of municipal government have to follow in order to exercise their extraterritorial subdivision authority. However, this section does not refer to the city commission, but instead clearly provides that the authority granted is to the city director of public services to ensure that the involved plat complies with platting regulations. If the plat complies, the director must approve it. The District Court properly found that 76-2-312 took away the extraterritorial subdivision authority over subdivisions that Bozeman, as a commission-manager form of government, would otherwise have had under 76-2-310 and 76-2-311. Bozeman v. Racicot, 253 M 204, 832 P2d 767, 49 St. Rep. 435 (1992).

1983 Amendment: In (2), after "persons" deleted "whose" and inserted "who are owners or purchasers under contracts for deed of"; and after "property" inserted "that".

Case Notes

Closure Versus Vacation: Closure and vacation are not synonymous. The former merely alters the use of a street, while the latter effects the vacation of the city's legal interest in the street. Therefore, a city may close a street without meeting the notice requirements of 7-3-4448 if it complies with the notice requirements of 7-14-4114, and in such a case the requirement of 7-3-4448 that the right of access be maintained does not apply. Further, there is no reversion to the lot owners of half the closed street since the city retains its rights in the street. Wynia v. Great Falls, 183 M 458, 600 P2d 802, 36 St. Rep. 1589 (1979).

Standing: Plaintiffs whose property abutted a portion of the street affected had standing to bring action to invalidate ordinance vacating street for parking facilities, even though plaintiffs' property did not abut portion of street vacated. Kemmer v. Bozeman, 158 M 354, 492 P2d 211 (1971).

Attorney General's Opinions

Vacation of Street by Mayor-Council Government — Legal Effect on City's Interest in Street: Under 7-14-4114, a municipality has the authority to close all or part of a street to through traffic without giving up its legal interest in the street or to vacate all or part of the street and revoke its legal interest in it. A municipality with a mayor-council form of government is bound by the procedures in 7-14-4114 rather than by this section, which applies only to commission-manager forms of government, when it seeks to discontinue, close, or vacate a street. The choice between vacating a street and closing a street is a matter for the discretion of the municipal officers of a mayor-council form of government. 46 A.G. Op. 4 (1995), clarifying Wynia v. Great Falls, 183 M 458, 600 P2d 802 (1979).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 216 in (1), in first sentence after "business", substituted "during the office hours determined by the governing body by resolution after a public hearing and only if consented to by any affected elected county officer" for "continuously from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m." and deleted second sentence that read: "Every officer shall keep his office open at such other times as the accommodation of the public or the proper transaction of business requires"; in (3), at end, deleted "that are different from the days and times required by subsection (1)"; and made minor changes in style.

1989 Special Session Amendment: In (1), after "requires", deleted "except county"; in (2), at beginning, inserted "County" and after "city treasurers" deleted "who in their discretion"; inserted (3) allowing third-class cities and towns to establish the days and times municipal offices are open; and made minor changes in phraseology and form. Amendment effective July 1, 1989.

Attorney General's Opinions

Secretarial Services for Private Practice of County Attorney: A secretary employed by the county to assist a County Attorney may work on the County Attorney's private business during time when the secretary's services are not needed on county business. The County Attorney must account for the time that the secretary spends on private business and reimburse the county for any county-compensated time spent on the County Attorney's private business. A claim by a County Attorney for secretarial services reasonably required for the conduct of the County Attorney's official duties is a legitimate claim against the county. The reasonableness of the claim is a question of fact vested in the sound discretion of the county governing body. 46 A.G. Op. 10 (1995). See also 46 A.G. Op. 20 (1996), in which the Attorney General held that a County Attorney may not compel the County Commissioners to authorize the hiring as a county employee of a legal secretary for the County Attorney absent a showing that any other arrangement would prevent the County Attorney from performing the minimum statutory duties.

Establishment of City Court Office Hours by Governing Body: Subsection (3) of this section permits the governing body of a third-class city or town to set the office hours of the City Court at times other than between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, except on Sundays and other legal holidays. (See 1995 amendment.) 43 A.G. Op. 61 (1990).

Legality of Evening City Court Hours: A City Judge is not prohibited by 3-1-301, 3-1-302, or 3-11-101 from establishing regular sessions of the court during evening hours as long as regular sessions are not convened on Sundays or other legal holidays and the court is open for business on judicial days. These sections place no limitations on the hours of business. Although this section requires that City Court offices be open for business continuously from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on weekdays, this does not prohibit a City Judge from setting office hours after 5 p.m. on weekdays. As long as the office is open during the required hours for the transaction of business, such as the filing of court documents with the clerk, the City Judge may set additional hours for regular court sessions. (See 1995 amendment.) 43 A.G. Op. 61 (1990).

City Not Authorized to Reduce Office Hours: The phrase “unless otherwise provided by law”, as used in this section, does not authorize a city to enact a municipal ordinance reducing the number of hours during which city offices must be open. Subsection (1)(f) of 7-1-114 prohibits a city from reducing its office hours beyond those required by this section. (See 1995 amendment.) 43 A.G. Op. 16 (1989).

Heritage Day — Single Calendar Day Only: The governing body of a political subdivision must schedule the Heritage Day legal holiday on a single calendar day each year. 42 A.G. Op. 22 (1987).

Office Closure When Employees Observe Holidays: Public officer must close on the appropriate day if office employees are entitled to have off the Friday preceding a legal holiday falling on a Saturday or the Monday following a legal holiday falling on a Sunday. 34 A.G. Op. 27 (1971).

County Commissioners

Manner of Exercising Power:

Where by law the Board of County Commissioners or other county officer is required to do an act but the method of doing it is not provided, any reasonable and suitable means may be adopted for performing it. Ransom v. Pingel, 104 M 119, 65 P2d 616 (1937); Simpson v. Silver Bow County, 87 M 83, 285 P2d 195 (1930); Arnold v. Custer County, 83 M 130, 269 P 396 (1928), distinguished in Judith Basin County ex rel. Vralsted v. Livingston, 89 M 438, 298 P 356 (1931).

Where the Legislature has prescribed with particularity the essential steps necessary to be taken by a county in the exercise of a power granted, the statute must be held to exclude any other mode of procedure, under the doctrine expressio unius est exclusio alterius. Franzke v. Fergus County, 76 M 150, 245 P 962 (1926).

Contracts:

While the Board of County Commissioners is without power to enter into a contract for services the performance of which is cast upon another county official or board, it may contract with a private individual for information relative to matters of taxation to aid it in the performance of its duties as a County Board of Equalization (now County Tax Appeal Board), even though, incidentally, the information received may aid other officials in the performance of their duties, provided the grant power is to be found in the statutes. Simpson v. Silver Bow County, 87 M 83, 285 P 195 (1930).

A contract made by a Board of County Commissioners, a few weeks before the expiration of its term of office and upon the expiration of a prior contract, for county printing for the 2 succeeding years, is valid in the absence of fraud or bad faith in the making and is not against public policy. Picket Publishing Co. v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 36 M 188, 92 P 524 (1907).

A contract with an attorney for his services, entered into by the Chairman of the Board individually, is not binding on the county, since the Commissioners have power to bind the county only where they act as a legal entity. Williams v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 28 M 360, 72 P 755 (1903).

Existence of Power:

The Board of County Commissioners may exercise powers not specifically granted if they are necessarily implied from those granted, and under its implied power it may contract to have work done which is necessary for the proper management of the county's business and the preservation of its property, if the law does not make it the duty of some county officer to do the work. Arnold v. Custer County, 83 M 130, 269 P 396 (1928).

Counties and school districts are subdivisions of the state government with fixed powers and duties, and any act taken by the Commissioners of the former or the trustees of the latter must be justified by the provisions of the statutes defining and limiting their powers. State ex rel. School District v. McGraw, 74 M 152, 240 P 812 (1925).

A Board of County Commissioners is one of limited powers and must in every instance justify its action by reference to the provisions of law defining and limiting these powers. If, however, there is no question of the existence of the power to do the act proposed [decided prior to the adoption of Art. XI, sec. 4(2), Mont. Const.—Annotator], and the mode of its exercise is not pointed out, the Board is left free to use its own discretion in selecting the mode it shall adopt or the course it shall pursue, and the result cannot be called in question if the course pursued is reasonably well adapted to the accomplishment of the end proposed. Hersey v. Neilson, 47 M 132, 131 P 30 (1913); Morse v. Granite County, 44 M 78, 119 P 286 (1911); State ex rel. Gillett v. Cronin, 41 M 293, 109 P 144 (1910); State ex rel. Lambert v. Coad, 23 M 131, 57 P 1092 (1899).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Office of County Commissioner Incompatible With Office of School Trustee: The current nature and duties of the offices of County Commissioner and county high school trustee could give rise to possible conflicts of governmental interest if one person were to retain both offices simultaneously. The Attorney General affirmed the decision in 8 A.G. Op. at 402 (1920), holding that the offices are incompatible in light of the fact that under state law a County Commissioner has certain supervisory powers over a school trustee. However, nothing in state law prohibits an individual from holding one of these offices while seeking the other. 42 A.G. Op. 94 (1988).

Absence of County Commissioner From State: A County Commissioner is subject to the provisions of 7-4-2208 requiring all county officers to secure consent of the Board of County Commissioners before absenting themselves from the state for a period of more than 5 days. 37 A.G. Op. 19 (1977).

Case Notes

At-Large Voting System Invalid as Discriminatory: Blaine County, located in north central Montana, is vast and sparsely populated. Its 7,009 residents are spread out over 4,638 square miles, which places the county in the top 5% of counties nationwide in terms of size. American Indians constitute 45.2% of the population and 38.8% of the voting age population, while whites make up 52.6% of the population and 59.4% of the voting age population. The American Indian population is geographically concentrated, with 80% of the county's American Indians residing on the Fort Belknap Reservation. Despite their geographic concentration, no American Indians were ever elected to the Blaine County Commission under the at-large voting system. Under the at-large voting system, the Blaine County Commission consisted of three Commissioners, each of whom was required to reside in one of three different residential districts. Each Commissioner was elected by a majority vote of the entire county, not just by voters in the Commissioner's residential district. The Commissioners served 6-year staggered terms, so that each even-numbered year, one Commissioner stood for election. The United States brought an action under section 2 and section 12(d) of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, challenging the county's at-large voting system. The United States sought a declaration that the existing at-large voting system violated section 2. The United States also sought an injunction to prevent the county from using at-large voting in future elections and to require the county to submit a new districting plan for the District Court's approval. The Supreme Court applied section 2 to multimember districts in Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 US 30 (1986). In that case, the court held that when plaintiffs challenge at-large voting schemes under section 2, they must prove at a minimum that "a bloc voting majority must usually be able to defeat candidates supported by a politically cohesive, geographically insular minority group". Broken down, this test has three requirements known as the "Gingles factors": (1) compactness; (2) cohesive minority voting; and (3) a bloc voting majority that can usually defeat the minority preferred candidate. If the plaintiff establishes these three factors, the court then must consider whether under the totality of circumstances, the at-large voting system operates to prevent the minority group from participating equally in the political process and electing representatives of its choice. The evidence presented in this case established that Blaine county's at-large voting system violated section 2. U.S. v. Blaine County, 363 F3d 897 (9th Cir. 2004).

Applicability of Deadline to Redistricting: The Supreme Court, in Barthelmess v. Bergerson, 218 M 398, 708 P2d 1010, 42 St. Rep. 1685 (1985), ordered the redistricting of Custer County to comply with 7-4-2102, including the provision that "no change in the boundary lines of any commissioner district shall be made within 6 months next preceding a primary election". A primary election was scheduled for June 2, 1986, necessitating a December 2, 1985, deadline for redistricting. On December 3, 1985, the two judges of the district issued a memorandum expressing concern over the inability to create new districts within the time prescribed by 7-4-2102, and not until January 3, 1986, was a redistricting plan reviewed and approved. The Supreme Court noted that the purpose of the deadline was to prevent gerrymandering and to provide sufficient time for candidates for County Commissioner to file for election. The provision should not be construed so as to prevent the formation and filing of districts when, as here, the former districts did not meet the statutory requirements of compactness and equality of population. Strict enforcement of the 6-month provision in this case would prevent the residents from legally electing their Commissioners, disenfranchising the voters and impeding county business. The court stated the concept in 1-3-201 that when the reason for a rule ceases, the reason for its enforcement also ceases. By way of declaratory relief, the court upheld the January 3, 1986, districting plan and allowed the County Commissioners to append to the plan a copy of the court order in lieu of the requirement of 7-4-2103 that the certificate shall be dated and signed by the District Judges. Barthelmess v. Bergerson, 220 M 74, 713 P2d 990, 43 St. Rep. 186 (1986).

Equality of Area: Custer County Commissioner district lines were redrawn according to the latest federal census report to achieve simple, identifiable districts as equal in population as possible. No attempt was made to equalize geographic area, as required by this section. The Supreme Court held that the County Commissioners have limited discretion in determining boundaries and mathematical exactness is required only when reasonably possible. However, compliance with the statute requires at least an attempt to equalize both area and population, and hence the new districts are void and the prior districts remain valid until the county is redistricted. Barthelmess v. Bergerson, 218 M 398, 708 P2d 1010, 42 St. Rep. 1685 (1985).

Attorney General's Opinions

Eligibility for Election of Person Transferred Into County Commission District Through Reapportionment: A person who is transferred into a County Commission district by virtue of a reapportionment conducted pursuant to this section is not disqualified from standing for election as long as the person has resided at the same address in the new district for the requisite 2-year period set out in 7-4-2104. 49 A.G. Op. 17 (2002).

Increase in Number of County Commissioners — Holdovers — Alteration of District Boundaries: If the electors were to adopt a proposal to increase the number of County Commissioners, all of the incumbent Commissioners would lose their positions unless otherwise required by the adopted plan, pursuant to 7-3-158. If no provision were made for holdovers in the local government study commission plan, they would remain in office only until the newly elected Commissioners take office. However, a study commission proposal is not invalid because it provides for holdover County Commissioners, even when the proposal alters the commission district boundaries. (See 40 A.G. Op. 1 (1983)). 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

primary election was scheduled for June 2, 1986, necessitating a December 2, 1985, deadline for redistricting. On December 3, 1985, the two judges of the district issued a memorandum expressing concern over the inability to create new districts within the time prescribed by 7-4-2102, and not until January 3, 1986, was a redistricting plan reviewed and approved. The Supreme Court noted that the purpose of the deadline was to prevent gerrymandering and to provide sufficient time for candidates for County Commissioner to file for election. The provision should not be construed so as to prevent the formation and filing of districts when, as here, the former districts did not meet the statutory requirements of compactness and equality of population. Strict enforcement of the 6-month provision in this case would prevent the residents from legally electing their Commissioners, disenfranchising the voters and impeding county business. The court stated the concept in 1-3-201 that when the reason for a rule ceases, the reason for its enforcement also ceases. By way of declaratory relief, the court upheld the January 3, 1986, districting plan and allowed the County Commissioners to append to the plan a copy of the court order in lieu of the requirement of this section that the certificate shall be dated and signed by the District Judges. Barthelmess v. Bergerson, 220 M 74, 713 P2d 990, 43 St. Rep. 186 (1986).

2001 Amendment: Chapter 183 in (2) after "county commissioners" substituted "unless the person has resided in the county and the district for at least 2 years preceding the general election" for "who has not resided in the county for at least 2 years next preceding the time he shall become a candidate for said office and was not a resident of the district at the time of filing for the primary election"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 3, 2001.

1987 Amendment: In (2) substituted "the county" for "said district"; and at end of (2) inserted "and was not a resident of the district at the time of filing for the primary election".

Case Notes

At-Large Voting System Invalid as Discriminatory: Blaine County, located in north central Montana, is vast and sparsely populated. Its 7,009 residents are spread out over 4,638 square miles, which places the county in the top 5% of counties nationwide in terms of size. American Indians constitute 45.2% of the population and 38.8% of the voting age population, while whites make up 52.6% of the population and 59.4% of the voting age population. The American Indian population is geographically concentrated, with 80% of the county's American Indians residing on the Fort Belknap Reservation. Despite their geographic concentration, no American Indians were ever elected to the Blaine County Commission under the at-large voting system. Under the at-large voting system, the Blaine County Commission consisted of three Commissioners, each of whom was required to reside in one of three different residential districts. Each Commissioner was elected by a majority vote of the entire county, not just by voters in the Commissioner's residential district. The Commissioners served 6-year staggered terms, so that each even-numbered year, one Commissioner stood for election. The United States brought an action under section 2 and section 12(d) of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, challenging the county's at-large voting system. The United States sought a declaration that the existing at-large voting system violated section 2. The United States also sought an injunction to prevent the county from using at-large voting in future elections and to require the county to submit a new districting plan for the District Court's approval. The Supreme Court applied section 2 to multimember districts in Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 US 30 (1986). In that case, the court held that when plaintiffs challenge at-large voting schemes under section 2, they must prove at a minimum that "a bloc voting majority must usually be able to defeat candidates supported by a politically cohesive, geographically insular minority group". Broken down, this test has three requirements known as the "Gingles factors": (1) compactness; (2) cohesive minority voting; and (3) a bloc voting majority that can usually defeat the minority preferred candidate. If the plaintiff establishes these three factors, the court then must consider whether under the totality of circumstances, the at-large voting system operates to prevent the minority group from participating equally in the political process and electing representatives of its choice. The evidence presented in this case established that Blaine county's at-large voting system violated section 2. U.S. v. Blaine County, 363 F3d 897 (9th Cir. 2004).

Separation of Powers Doctrine Not to Preclude Compliance With Employee Grievance Procedure by Justice's Court: A Justice of the Peace involved in a disciplinary action against the court office manager contended that a grievance hearing before the County Commission would violate the separation of powers doctrine by interfering with the independence of the court by requiring the Justice of the Peace to be an adverse witness against court personnel, allowing the Justice of the Peace's decision on personnel matters to be overruled by another branch of government, and possibly requiring the Justice of the Peace to accept an employee believed to be unsatisfactory. However, as established in Hillis v. Sullivan, 48 M 320, 137 P 392 (1913), the hiring by the County Commission of a clerk to assist a court does not violate the separation of powers doctrine. In addition, the County Commission is statutorily required to provide a Justice of the Peace with clerical assistance. Thus, a grievance hearing before the County Commission does not violate the separation of powers doctrine because the County Commission's independent hiring of the office manager is consistent with the doctrine; nor does the County Commission's hearing of the grievance constitute an exercise of authority belonging to the Judicial Branch. Clark v. Dussault, 265 M 479, 878 P2d 239, 51 St. Rep. 642 (1994).

Election of Nonresident — Redistricting: Custer County Commissioner district lines were redrawn prior to election of respondent as County Commissioner. Respondent ran for and was elected to the office of County Commissioner for new district 2, although he resided in new district 3. Appellants claimed this section precluded respondent from holding office because of nonresidency. However, the new district boundaries were held void in this decision as not having been established in compliance with 7-4-2102, so respondent was allowed to hold office from the previous district 2 (of which he was a resident) until the next general election, at which time the district boundaries were to be reestablished. Barthelmess v. Bergerson, 218 M 398, 708 P2d 1010, 42 St. Rep. 1685 (1985).

Eligibility for Election of Person Transferred Into County Commission District Through Reapportionment: A person who is transferred into a County Commission district by virtue of a reapportionment conducted pursuant to 7-4-2102 is not disqualified from standing for election as long as the person has resided at the same address in the new district for the requisite 2-year period set out in this section. 49 A.G. Op. 17 (2002).

Residency Requirements for County Commissioners — Study Commission Recommendations: The residency requirements of 7-4-2104(2) apply to candidates for County Commissioner positions created by the adoption of a local government study commission proposal. 41 A.G. Op. 44 (1986).

1997 Amendment: Chapter 421 in (1) substituted "at 12:01 a.m. on January 1" for "on the first Monday of January"; and inserted (2) relating to taking the oath of office.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 421, L. 1997, provided: "WHEREAS, current law requires an elected official to take the oath of office on the first Monday of January succeeding the election; and

WHEREAS, the first Monday in January can be as late as the 7th day of January; and

WHEREAS, employing two elected officials in the same month can cause confusion and disagreement regarding compensation and benefits to each official; and

WHEREAS, employing the newly elected official on January 1 would simplify the payroll process, save local governments and taxpayers money, and make it easier for all concerned to remember the official transition date."

1985 Amendment: Inserted second sentence relating to when commissioner takes office.

Attorney General's Opinions

Recommendation of Shorter Terms of Office by Local Government Study Commission: A local government study commission may recommend that terms of office for County Commissioners be less than 6 years if the county has adopted the statutory county "commission form" of government. A local government study commission may not recommend that the terms of office for County Commissioners be less than 6 years if the county has retained the form of government organized under the statutes listed in 7-3-111. 41 A.G. Op. 51 (1986).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 219 inserted (5) concerning multiple vacancies occurring simultaneously or when prior appointments have not been made. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 42 in (4) substituted "subsection (2)" for "7-4-2106(2)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 12, 1997.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 250 throughout section substituted references to 75 days for references to 50 days; and in (3)(b) in fourth sentence, substituted "75th day" for "40th day".

Chapter 551 in (2), near middle of first sentence, substituted "remaining county commissioners" for "district judge or judges in whose district the vacancy occurs" and after first sentence, inserted lead-in to (a) and (b) and inserted (a) and (b) relating to procedure based upon party affiliation or lack thereof; and in (4) near end, substituted "remaining county commissioners" for "district judge".

Case Notes

Prospective Appointment to Fill Vacancy: Under 2-16-501, refusal or neglect of an officer-elect to file his bond within the time prescribed creates a vacancy in the office, and in the case of a County Commissioner (prior to the 1985 amendment of this section) the District Judge had authority under this section, upon the expiration of the 30-day period provided for the filing of a bond, to declare the office vacant and make a prospective appointment, to fill the vacancy when it did occur, i.e., at the commencement of the new term. State ex rel. Wallace v. Callow, 78 M 308, 254 P 187 (1927).

Annulment of Order Filling Vacancy: The power to fill a vacancy in the office of County Commissioner was conferred by Art. XVI, sec. 4, 1889 Mont. Const., upon the District Judge of the district in which the vacancy occurred. The provisions of this section were enacted in pursuance thereof (amended in 1985 to change power of appointment to remaining commissioners and amended in 2007 to require the County Compensation Board or a District Judge to make the appointments to multiple positions). Such appointing power is ministerial, not judicial, in character. Certiorari does not lie to annul an order filling a vacancy deemed by the Judge to exist in that office in a newly created county because of the alleged unconstitutionality of the act under which the office was filled by election and because the incumbent was holding two other offices regarded by him as incompatible. State ex rel. Downen v. District Court, 50 M 249, 146 P 467 (1915).

Attorney General's Opinions

Filling Vacant Office: Prior to the 1979 amendment of this section, the Attorney General held that if the office of County Commissioner has become vacant with no opportunity to nominate candidates in the primary election, the selection of candidates for the general election will be made by each political party according to 13-10-327; and, pursuant to 13-12-208 (now repealed), write-in candidates may also seek the office. The appointee to fill the immediate vacancy will hold that office until the next general election. 37 A.G. Op. 147 (1978).

2001 Amendment: Chapter 507 in (1) in first sentence at beginning substituted "Subject to subsection (2)" for "Except as provided in subsection (3)" after "board of county commissioners" deleted "in counties of the first, second, third, and fourth class" and deleted former second sentence that read: "However, the county commissioners may, for all or the remainder of each fiscal year, in conjunction with setting salaries for other officers as provided in 7-4-2504(1), set their salaries at the prior fiscal year level if that level is lower than the level required by this subsection"; in (2) in first sentence at beginning substituted "Each board may elect to serve on a part-time rather than a full-time basis and receive part-time annual salaries based on the annual salary established in 7-4-2503(1)(a)" for "Each member of the board in all other counties may receive an annual salary equal to the annual salary established in 7-4-2503(1)(a)(ii)" and at end after "clerk and recorder" deleted "or a salary at a per-day rate determined by using the salary established in 7-4-2503(1)(a)(ii) for the clerk and recorder" and deleted former second and third sentences that read: "However, the county commissioners may, for all or the remainder of each fiscal year, in conjunction with setting salaries for other officers as provided in 7-4-2504(1), set their salaries at the prior fiscal year level if that level is lower than the level required by this subsection. The salary determined by the board must apply uniformly to all board members"; deleted former (3) that read: "(3) Each member of the board of fourth-class counties may receive a salary at a daily rate determined by using the salary established in subsection (1). If a daily rate is used, then all board members must be paid on that basis"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 2001.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 28 in (1), at beginning, inserted exception clause; inserted (3) regarding salary of Board members of fourth-class counties at a daily rate; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 10, 1993.

1991 Amendment: Near beginning of (2), after “counties”, substituted language concerning Board member salary being equal to annual salary or per-day rate based upon salary established in 7-4-2503 for Clerk and Recorder for language setting salary for Board member of $60 per day beginning July 1, 1985, and adjusted every July 1 thereafter by adding a cost-of-living adjustment to $60 amount and inserted last sentence concerning established salary being applied uniformly to all Board members. Amendment effective April 22, 1991.

1986 Amendment: In (1) following “$2,000” inserted remainder of subsection allowing a uniform freeze in compensation; and in (2) following “calculated as provided in 7-4-2504” inserted remainder of subsection allowing a uniform freeze in compensation.

1985 Amendment: In (2) in first sentence, after “salary”, deleted “of not more than $50”, and inserted the second and third sentences setting $60, then $60 plus a cost-of-living increment, for a daily salary.

1981 Amendment: Substituted “an annual salary equal to the annual salary established in 7-4-2503 for the clerk and recorder plus $2,000” for “an annual salary to be established by resolution of the board in an amount not to exceed the annual salary established in the schedule in 7-4-2503 for the clerk and recorder” at the end of (1); and substituted (2) establishing a $50-maximum daily salary for “Each member of the board in all other counties is entitled to a salary to be established by the board by resolution in an amount not to exceed $40 per day for each day’s attendance on the sessions of the board.”

Attorney General’s Opinions

Change in County Classification — Adjustment of Salaries of County Officials: When the classification of a county under 7-1-2111 changes, salaries of County Commissioners, the County Attorney, and county officials listed in 7-4-2503(1) must be adjusted as of July 1 of the following year. Adjustments are computed as follows: (1) for County Commissioners, according to this section; (2) for a part-time County Attorney, according to 7-4-2503(3); and (3) for county officials listed in 7-4-2503(1), according to 7-4-2503. (See 2001 amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 85 (1988).

Timing of Salary Increases Caused by County Classification Change: Under the reasoning of 40 A.G. Op. 81 (1984), when a county’s classification changes according to 7-1-2111, the salaries of the County Commissioners, as provided for in 7-4-2107, must change as of July 1 of the following year, the onset of a new fiscal year for the county. 41 A.G. Op. 6 (1985).

Computation of Cost-of-Living Increase: The cost-of-living increase authorized for county officials by this section applies only to the annual base salary plus population increment established by 7-4-2503(1) and not to the additional sums included in the salaries of the Superintendent of Schools, Sheriff, and Commissioners under 7-4-2503(2) and this section. (See 2001 amendment.) 39 A.G. Op. 65 (1982).

Board of County Commissioners Not to Reduce Workload of One County Commissioner and Reduce His Pay Accordingly: A County Commissioner of a first-, second-, third-, or fourth-class county may not reduce his workload relative to the workloads of the other Commissioners and have his pay reduced accordingly. 36 A.G. County Assessor as Agent of Department of Revenue: This section grants to the Board of County Commissioners supervisory control of County Assessors “under such limitations and restrictions as are prescribed by law”. Section 15-8-102 is such a limitation and removes supervision of all internal operations of the County Assessor's office from the County Commissioners and places it with the Department of Revenue. Cantwell v. Geiger, 228 M 330, 742 P2d 468, 44 St. Rep. 1574 (1987).

Supervision of Officers: The Board of County Commissioners has general supervision and control over the officers, affairs, and finances of its county, and it may be conceded that, unless authority therefor shall be found in the statutes, no other county officer may bind the county by contract. A person dealing with a county through one of its agents is bound to know the extent of such agent's authority, and if he enters into an unauthorized contract, he does so at his own risk. *Hicks v. Attorney General's Opinions

County Attorney as Employee for Purposes of Lawsuit Regarding Administrative Actions: A County Attorney is not liable for civil damages for conduct within the scope of his prosecutorial duties; however, that immunity does not extend to the discretionary administrative business of running a County Attorney's office. Thus, a County Attorney is considered a county employee for purposes of the Montana Comprehensive State Insurance Plan and Tort Claims Act whenever the County Attorney is named in a civil lawsuit for actions regarding county administrative business, such as the hiring and firing of staff. 44 A.G. Op. 29 (1992).

Office of County Commissioner Incompatible With Office of School Trustee: The current nature and duties of the offices of County Commissioner and county high school trustee could give rise to possible conflicts of governmental interest if one person were to retain both offices simultaneously. The Attorney General affirmed the decision in 8 A.G. Op. at 402 (1920), holding that the offices are incompatible in light of the fact that under state law a County Commissioner has certain supervisory powers over a school trustee. However, nothing in state law prohibits an individual from holding one of these offices while seeking the other. 42 A.G. Op. 94 (1988).

Departmental Responsibility for Operation of County Assessor's Office — Exceptions: The Department of Revenue is responsible for the internal operation of a County Assessor's office, including employment practices, except with regard to County Assessors and their deputies, who serve at the instance of the electorate or appointing power, as determined statutorily. 42 A.G. Op. 52 (1988).

Manner in Which Duties Performed — No Control by Commissioners: The County Commissioners, in the exercise of their statutory supervisory control over county officers, may assure that the officers fulfill their statutory duties but may not assume control over the manner in which those duties are performed. 38 A.G. Supervisory Power Over All Enumerated County Officers: The supervisory power of the County Commissioners under 7-4-2110 extends to all county executive officers enumerated in 7-4-2203. 38 A.G. Op. 85 (1980).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Authority of Board of County Commissioners to Reduce County Auditor Office to Part-Time Position: Montana statutes contemplate a full-time County Auditor with a full-time salary in every county with a population of greater than 15,000. Although County Commissions do have the authority to consolidate certain county offices, including the County Auditor's office, no existing statute contemplates a reduction of the office of County Auditor to a part-time position. Had the Legislature intended to expressly authorize County Commissions to reduce the office, it would have adopted legislation similar to that for County Attorneys and County Superintendents. The authority in 7-6-2412 extends to the imposition of additional County Auditor duties, not to the reduction of hours worked. There is no express or implied authority for counties with general powers to reduce the office of County Auditor to a half-time position. 47 A.G. Op. 18 (1998).

Departmental Responsibility for Operation of County Assessor's Office — Exceptions: The Department of Revenue is responsible for the internal operation of a County Assessor's office, including employment practices, except with regard to County Assessors and their deputies, who serve at the instance of the electorate or appointing power, as determined statutorily. 42 A.G. Sheriff's Unauthorized Absence From State — Reimbursement of Expenses: A Sheriff predicated his demand for reimbursement for expenses incurred by him for services performed beyond the state line upon his legal rights incident to his position as Sheriff and not upon a contract of employment by the County Attorney at whose direction he acted. The Sheriff did not show that he first obtained the consent of the Board of County Commissioners to absent himself from the state, thus he was not entitled to recover on the theory that the claim was allowable under authority of 7-6-2426, making the county chargeable with expenses necessarily incurred by the County Attorney in criminal cases arising within the county. *Brannin v. Case Notes

Application of Section: A county extension officer is not a county officer subject to this section. Neither the law relating to his office nor section 16-2403, R.C.M. 1947 (since repealed), enumerating county officers, designates him as county officer. Turnbull v. Brown, 128 M 254, 273 P2d 387 (1954).

Attorney General's Opinions

Secretarial Services for Private Practice of County Attorney: A secretary employed by the county to assist a County Attorney may work on the County Attorney's private business during time when the secretary's services are not needed on county business. The County Attorney must account for the time that the secretary spends on private business and reimburse the county for any county-compensated time spent on the County Attorney's private business. A claim by a County Attorney for secretarial services reasonably required for the conduct of the County Attorney's official duties is a legitimate claim against the county. The reasonableness of the claim is a question of fact vested in the sound discretion of the county governing body. 46 A.G. Op. 10 (1995). See also 46 A.G. Op. 20 (1996), in which the Attorney General held that a County Attorney may not compel the County Commissioners to authorize the hiring as a county employee of a legal secretary for the County Attorney absent a showing that any other arrangement would prevent the County Attorney from performing the minimum statutory duties.

County Clerk and Recorder — No Refusal to Record a Valid Deed: Since the Clerk and Recorder of a county is not a law enforcement officer and enforcement of a criminal statute is not within his prescribed duties, he may not refuse to record a deed that has not met the prerequisite, set forth in the Montana Subdivision and Platting Act (Title 76, ch. 3), that an approved, certified plat be filed before the land is transferred. 35 A.G. Case Notes

No Legal Duty to Fund Deputy Position: The Lewis and Clark County Auditor petitioned for a Writ of Mandamus to compel the Board of County Commissioners to fund a Deputy Auditor position eliminated by the Commissioners because of budget cuts. The District Court dismissed the petition on the ground that there was no legal duty of the Commissioners to fund the position. On appeal, the Supreme Court had to reconcile three statutes: 7-4-2401(1), under which county officers may appoint as many deputies or assistants as necessary to discharge the duties of the office; 7-4-2402, which provides the County Commissioners with authority to fix and determine the number of county deputy officers; and 7-6-2413, which provides that the number of Deputy Auditors in first-, second-, and third-class counties must not exceed one. The court held that the specific statute, 7-6-2413, must control over the general statute, 7-4-2401(1). The specific statute does not mandate a Deputy Auditor but merely permits one deputy. Based on 7-4-2402, the court held that the authority to determine whether to appoint a deputy resides with the Commissioners and not the Auditor. Based on this statutory scheme, the court held that the Commissioners had no clear legal duty to fund the position of Deputy Auditor. Spotorno v. Bd. of Comm'rs, 212 M 253, 687 P2d 720, 41 St. Rep. 1722 (1984).

Appointment of Deputy County Attorneys:

Although 7-4-2703 provides that a County Attorney of a first- or second-class county may appoint only one Chief Deputy and one Deputy County Attorney, this section provides for appointment of such additional Deputy County Attorneys as may be reasonably necessary to discharge the duties of the office. The prosecutors here were appointed properly and had the lawful authority to prosecute the matter. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698, 37 St. Rep. 760 (1980).

Under 2-16-213 and this section, a County Attorney may appoint a deputy to serve without compensation and such deputy may legally act in the name of his principal in the filing of informations and the prosecution of criminal action. St. v. Crouch, 70 M 551, 227 P 818 (1924).

The provisions of this section have no application to the appointment by the court of counsel to assist a County Attorney in prosecuting persons charged with crime. St. v. Whitworth, 26 M 107, 66 P 748 (1901).

Attorney General's Opinions

Authority of County Commission to Restrict Number of Deputies Hired by Elected Officials: A Board of County Commissioners has authority through control of the county budget to restrict the number of deputies hired by elected officials. Therefore, a Clerk of the District Court may not employ a chief deputy or any other deputies without authorization of the Board. 43 A.G. Op. 77 (1990).

Departmental Responsibility for Operation of County Assessor's Office — Exceptions: The Department of Revenue is responsible for the internal operation of a County Assessor's office, including employment practices, except with regard to County Assessors and their deputies, who serve at the instance of the electorate or appointing power, as determined statutorily. (See 1993 special session amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 52 (1988).

Addition or Elimination of Salaried Deputy Position — Authority Resident With County Commission: As between the County Assessor and the Board of County Commissioners, the authority to add or eliminate a salaried deputy position resides with the Board of County Commissioners. 42 A.G. Op. 23 (1987).

Establishment and Elimination of Deputy Position in County Office — Authority Resident With County: As between the state and county governments, the authority to establish a deputy position and the commensurate authority to eliminate a deputy position in the office of the county reside with county government. 42 A.G. Op. 23 (1987).

7-4-2402. Authorization to exceed limitation on number of deputy officers.

Compiler's Comments

Section Not Codified: The phrase relating to payment of deputies in section 16-3704, R.C.M. 1947, was not codified because it was redundant with 7-4-2505. That phrase has not been repealed and is still valid law. It may be referred to as sec. 1, Ch. 365, L. 1971. See 1-2-208, stating that amendment to a codified provision is given effect over an uncoded provision.

Authority of Sheriff to Appoint Deputies — Consolidated City-County Government: Where the charter of a consolidated city-county government, which was approved by the voters on November 2, 1976, and took effect on May 2, 1977, specified the manner in which promotions of Sheriff's deputies were to be made, promotions made on April 12, 1977, were governed not by the provisions of the charter but by provisions of state law requiring that the appointment of a greater number of deputies than that allowed by statute is subject to the approval of the Board of County Commissioners. As the promotions were not so approved, they are void. Butler v. Local 2033 Am. Fed'n of County Employees, 186 M 28, 606 P2d 141, 37 St. Rep. 168 (1980).

Employee on Commission Basis: If the services the County Commissioners seek to have done involve only an investigation of county offices for abstracting purposes, that can be done by a regularly appointed deputy county officer. There is no statutory authority for the Commissioners to employ anyone to perform such services on a commission basis. Kelly v. Silver Bow County, 125 M 272, 233 P2d 1035 (1951).

Disposition of Money Received by County Officers for Preparation of Abstracts: Preparation of abstracts by a Clerk of District Court, a County Clerk, or their respective deputies is an official service of the office. Therefore, compensation paid to them by title companies, credit bureaus, banks, realtors, and others for preparation on a regular basis of abstracts of instruments recorded in their respective offices may not be retained for their personal use, but rather must be paid to the county general fund, District Court fund, or state, as provided by law. 43 A.G. Authority of Public Safety Commission to Set Salary of Deputy Sheriff: In a department of public safety created pursuant to Title 7, ch. 32, part 1, the public safety commission may set the salary of a department Deputy Sheriff under 7-32-104 at any level at or above the amount that would be paid to the deputy under 7-4-2508. To the extent that 7-4-2508 and 7-32-104 conflict, the provisions of 7-32-104, which allow the public safety commission to set the salaries of department employees, are the more specific and therefore are controlling. 48 A.G. Op. 20 (2000).

Part-Time Deputy County Attorney Entitled to Longevity Pay — Year of Service Composed of Calendar Year: The Legislature did not distinguish full-time Deputy County Attorneys from part-time Deputy County Attorneys for purposes of eligibility pay. Therefore, a part-time Deputy County Attorney is entitled to longevity pay under 7-4-2503 after completing the required years of service. As used in that section, the term "year of service" means a calendar year rather than 2,080 hours of employment. 48 A.G. Op. 19 (2000), following Phillips v. Lake County, 222 M 42, 721 P2d 326 (1986), and overruling 39 A.G. Op. 78 (1982), 40 A.G. Op. 61 (1984), and 43 A.G. 77 (1990), to the extent that a different definition of year of service was applied.

Calculation of Years of Service of Part-Time County Employee: The Board of County Commissioners may calculate the years of service of a part-time county employee based on the number of hours worked rather than the number of calendar years in part-time service. 43 A.G.

Op. 77 (1990), overruled in 48 A.G. Op. 19 (2000), in which, pursuant to Phillips v. Lake County, 222 M 42, 721 P2d 326 (1986), the term "year of service" was construed to mean a calendar year.

Computation of Salaries, Longevity Payments, and Overtime for Sheriffs, Undersheriffs, and Deputy Sheriffs: Chapter 603, L. 1981, amended 7-4-2505 and 39-3-406 and enacted 7-4-2507 through 7-4-2510. Under Ch. 603, the following holdings were made:

(1) an individual Undersheriff or Deputy Sheriff is entitled to an initial longevity payment on his first employment anniversary occurring after October 1, 1981;

(2) years of service prior to October 1, 1981, must be considered in determining the amount of longevity payments to Deputy Sheriffs and Undersheriffs;

(3) the "minimum base annual salary" for calculating longevity payments is the statutory minimum level for the county involved, as specified in 7-4-2508;

(4) the "salary" of a Sheriff, for purposes of calculating the annual compensation of Deputy Sheriffs and Undersheriffs, includes the additional $2,000 received by the Sheriff pursuant to 7-4-2503; and

(5) the payment of overtime compensation to Undersheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs is within the discretion of the individual Boards of County Commissioners. 39 A.G. Op. 21 (1981).

1981 Amendments: Chapter 518 and Ch. 575 deleted subsection (3) which provided: "The coroner is entitled to receive a salary established prior to July 1 of each year by the board of county commissioners. The salary must be in effect upon the first day of each ensuing fiscal year."

Composite Section: This section was amended by Ch. 371 and Ch. 443, L. 1979, and a composite section was prepared by the Code Commissioner, 1979. Chapter 443 was a Code Commissioner bill and was not intended to make substantive changes. Consequently a conflict of language in subsection (1) between Ch. 371 and Ch. 443 has been resolved in favor of the language used in Ch. 371.

Compensation Plan: Chapter 545, L. 1979, established a County Compensation Board to consider the salaries of elected county officials and present to the Legislature an ongoing salary plan.

Case Notes

"Fees" Defined: In this section the term "fees" means a mode of compensation different from salary. St. v. Story, 53 M 573, 165 P 748 (1917).

Officers Receive Salaries: Subsection (2) is unnecessary, unless its purpose is to advise the people that salaried officers are not to have "fees and emoluments" other than salaries from the state or county. Scharrenbroich v. Lewis & Clark County, 33 M 250, 83 P 482 (1905).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 230 in (2) at beginning after "The" substituted "funding for the salary and health insurance benefits for" for "salary of" and after "attorney is" substituted "a shared responsibility of the state and the county. The state's share is payable as provided in subsection (3)" for "payable one-half from the general fund of the county and, if the county has supplied the information to the department of justice for inclusion in its budget, the other one-half from the state treasury upon the warrant of the state treasurer. (b) The county commissioners of each county shall, within 30 days after the election or appointment to fill a vacancy for any cause in the office of county attorney, certify the election or appointment to the department of justice. The department shall notify the state treasurer of the salary of the county attorney. The state treasurer shall draw warrants for the county attorney salaries in the same manner as for state officers. In case of a vacancy, the county commissioners shall immediately notify the department of justice, and the department shall compute the salary due on the basis of the notification"; inserted (3) establishing the state's share of county attorney funding and defining terms; inserted (4) providing that the amount to be paid to each county is statutorily appropriated; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2007.

Legislative Findings: Section 1, Ch. 230, L. 2007, provided: "The legislature finds that:

(1) a significant portion of the work done by county attorneys is for the prosecution of criminal cases under state law and for the enforcement of state civil law concerning child abuse and neglect pursuant to Title 41, chapter 3;

(2) the county attorney workloads vary greatly from county to county;

(3) it is in the state's best interest to promote consistent statewide prosecution services and to support the office of county attorney as a career position that will attract experienced and well-qualified attorneys, especially considering the enactment of a statewide public defender system in 2005;

(4) because a county attorney is an elected county official and has a vital role in providing civil legal services to the county and because each county has unique needs to consider, the county attorney's salary should be set by the county;

(5) because county attorneys provide both state and county services, the responsibility for funding county attorney salaries should be a responsibility shared by the state and the counties; and

(6) the state's funding responsibility should be met through a predictable and ongoing appropriation, thus through a statutory appropriation."

2003 Amendment: Chapter 114 in (3) near end deleted reference to subsection (1) of 7-4-2504. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 75 at beginning of (1) deleted exception clause; at beginning of (2)(a) deleted "salaries of the county attorney and deputy county attorneys authorized by 7-4-2703 are payable monthly, with" and inserted last sentence concerning payment of state's share every 2 weeks; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 16, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 325 in (2)(a), at end of first sentence, and (2)(b), in second and third sentences, substituted "state treasurer" for "auditor"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 332 in (2)(a), in first sentence after "county and", inserted "if the county has supplied the information to the department of justice for inclusion in its budget" and inserted last sentence providing that if the county has not provided a proposed County Attorney salary increase to the Department for inclusion in the budget, the county must pay the increase; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendment: In (2)(b), at end of first sentence after "appointment to the", substituted "department of justice" for "state auditor, who shall thereafter draw warrants for such salary in the same manner as for state officers", inserted second and third sentences concerning Department notifying State Auditor of salary of County Attorney and Auditor drawing warrants for County Attorney salary, and in fourth sentence, near middle after "notify the", substituted "department of justice" for "state auditor" and before "shall compute" substituted "department" for "auditor". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1986 Amendments: Chapter 12 in (3) following "payment of the same" inserted remainder of subsection allowing a uniform freeze in compensation.

Chapter 17 in (2)(a) substituted "salary of the county attorney" for "salaries of the county attorney and no more than two deputies"; at end of (2)(a) deleted "Such salaries for the deputy county attorneys include the longevity increases provided by 7-4-2503(3)(d)"; and in first sentence of (2)(b) after "county attorney" deleted "or within 30 days after the appointment of a deputy county attorney authorized by 7-4-2703".

1985 Amendment: In (2)(a) substituted "The salaries of the county attorney and deputy county attorneys authorized by 7-4-2703 are payable monthly, with the salaries of the county attorney and no more than two deputies payable one-half from the general fund of the county and the other one-half from the state treasury upon the warrant of the state auditor. Such salaries for the deputy county attorneys include the longevity increases provided by 7-4-2503(3)(d)" for "The salary of the county attorney is payable monthly, with one-half from the general fund of the county and the other one-half from the state treasury upon the warrant of the state auditor"; and in (2)(b) near middle of first sentence, after "office of county attorney", inserted "or within 30 days after the appointment of a deputy county attorney authorized by 7-4-2703".

Composite Section: This section was amended by Ch. 109 and Ch. 443, L. 1979, and a composite section was prepared by the Code Commissioner, 1979. Ch. 109 provided for twice monthly and biweekly paychecks in subsection (1)(a) and in former subsection (1)(b). Ch. 443, a Code Commissioner bill, deleted subsection (1)(b) referring to payment from the contingency fund as inconsistent with subsection (1)(a) referring to payment from the general fund. The composite deleted subsection (1)(b) to avoid the inconsistency. The intent of Ch. 109 is preserved in subsection (1).

Case Notes

County Properly Ordered to Pay County Attorney's Salary Increase: Although the Board of County Commissioners had been notified that the state would be unable to pay an increased contribution to the County Attorney's salary, the Board awarded the County Attorney a salary in excess of twice the amount appropriated by the state. When the state's one-half share of the salary failed to cover the salary increase, the County Attorney sued the county for the shortfall. The District Court ordered the county to pay the salary increase, and the county appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that counties are responsible for any increases in County Attorneys' salaries that are not taken into account and included in the state appropriation for paying County Attorneys' salaries (decision issued before the 2007 amendment to this section). Oster v. Valley County, 2006 MT 180, 333 M 76, 140 P3d 1079 (2006).

Justice of the Peace — Reduction From Full-Time Status: Absent a voluntary waiver by the incumbent, the proper time at which to reduce a full-time Justice of the Peace position to a part-time position is before the next election. 38 A.G. Op. 90 (1980).

Justice of the Peace — When Pay Raise May Be Diminished: Any pay raises given a Justice of the Peace must stand for the remainder of the term, and only at the beginning of the next term may such raises be diminished. 38 A.G. Op. 90 (1980).

Salary Diminution Prohibited for Justices of the Peace: The reduction of a full-time Justice of the Peace to a part-time Justice of the Peace with a salary commensurate to the workload and office hours constitutes a prohibited salary diminution within the language of Art. VII, sec. 7, Mont. Const. 38 A.G. Op. 90 (1980).

Increase in County Attorney's Salary: A county having self-government powers may grant an increase in salary to its County Attorney in excess of the amount provided in 7-4-2503, but the increase must be borne by the general fund of the county. 37 A.G. Op. 70 (1977).

Joint Employment: A County Attorney, for purposes of administration, is jointly employed by both the county and the state. 36 A.G. Op. 32 (1975).

Method of Setting Salary of County Attorney: The County Commissioners must set the salary of the County Attorney by resolution and must forward a copy of the resolution to the State Auditor (see 1995, 1999, and 2007 amendments) for proper payment of the County Attorney. 35 A.G. Op. 24 (1973).

Method of Paying County Attorneys' Salaries: Upon implementation of the 1972 Constitution of Montana, on July 1, 1973, the salaries of County Attorneys shall be payable monthly, one-half from the general fund of the county and the other half from the state treasury, upon the warrant of the State Auditor (function now transferred to State Treasurer — see 1995, 1999, and 2007 amendments). 35 A.G. Op. 15 (1973).

7-4-2503. Salary schedule for certain county officers — county compensation board.

Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 200 in (1)(b) at beginning inserted exception clause; inserted (2)(e) allowing a county treasurer to receive up to $2,000 a year in addition to the base salary and providing that the additional salary may not be included when computing compensation for other county officers or employees; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2007.

Chapter 230 in (3)(a) substituted "Subject to subsection (3)(b), the salary for the county attorney must be set as provided in subsection (4)" for "In each county with a population in excess of 30,000, the county attorney must be a full-time official under 7-4-2704, and the salary is $50,000 a year, subject to adjustment as provided in subsection (3)(c). In counties with a population less than 30,000, the county attorney who is a part-time official is entitled to receive an annual base salary equal to the salary received for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2001.

(b) In those counties where the office of the county attorney has been established as a full-time position pursuant to 7-4-2706, the salary of the county attorney is the same as that established for full-time county attorneys in subsection (3)(a)"; in (3)(b) at beginning inserted "If the uniform base salary set for county officials pursuant to subsection (1) is increased, then the" and after "entitled to" substituted "at least the same increase unless the increase would cause the county attorney's salary to exceed the salary of a district court judge" for "an increase in salary based upon the schedule developed and approved by the county compensation board as provided in subsection (4)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2007.

Legislative Findings: Section 1, Ch. 230, L. 2007, provided: "The legislature finds that:

(1) a significant portion of the work done by county attorneys is for the prosecution of criminal cases under state law and for the enforcement of state civil law concerning child abuse and neglect pursuant to Title 41, chapter 3;

(2) the county attorney workloads vary greatly from county to county;

(3) it is in the state's best interest to promote consistent statewide prosecution services and to support the office of county attorney as a career position that will attract experienced and well-qualified attorneys, especially considering the enactment of a statewide public defender system in 2005;

(4) because a county attorney is an elected county official and has a vital role in providing civil legal services to the county and because each county has unique needs to consider, the county attorney's salary should be set by the county;

(5) because county attorneys provide both state and county services, the responsibility for funding county attorney salaries should be a responsibility shared by the state and the counties; and

2005 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 36 in (2)(c) near middle of first sentence substituted "sheriff's office" for "sheriff's department". Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

Chapter 182 inserted (2)(d) providing that a clerk and recorder who is also the county election administrator may receive up to $2,000 a year in addition to the base salary, which may not be included as salary when computing the compensation of any other county officer or employee. Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 487 in (4)(a) in first sentence substituted "two to four resident taxpayers" for "two resident taxpayers" and in two places substituted "one or two taxpayer members" for "one taxpayer member"; and inserted (4)(d) relating to inapplicability of subsection (4) to certain forms of local government. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 7 near end of (1)(a)(i) and near end of (1)(a)(ii) substituted "latest federal decennial census" for "1990 federal decennial census"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001. The amendment by Ch. 507, rendered the amendment by Ch. 7 void.

Chapter 507 in (1)(a) inserted reference to justice of the peace and at end substituted "established by the county governing body based upon the recommendations of the county compensation board provided for in subsection (4)" for "established by the county governing body at no less than 80% of the annual base salary of:

(i) $25,000 for counties of the first through fifth class added to the population increment of $10 for each 100 persons or major fraction of 100 persons included in the county's population as determined by the 1990 federal decennial census; or

(ii) $18,000 for counties of the sixth and seventh class added to the population increment of $10 for each 100 persons or major fraction of 100 persons in the county's population as determined by the 1990 federal decennial census"; in (1)(b) substituted "annual salary established pursuant to subsection (1)(a)" for "annual base established by the county governing body in subsection (1)" and at end substituted "subsection (1)(a)" for "subsection (1)"; in (2)(c) near beginning of first sentence substituted "1% of the salary determined under subsection (1)" for "1% of the base salary set forth in subsection (1)" and near middle of second sentence substituted "salary" for "base salary"; in (3)(a) at end of first sentence inserted reference to adjustment made in subsection (3)(c), in second sentence after "part-time official" deleted "for a county of the first, second, or third class" and substituted "receive an annual base salary equal to the salary received for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2001" for "receive an annual salary equal to 60% of the annual salary of a full-time county attorney", and deleted former third sentence that read: "A county attorney who is a part-time official for a county of the fourth, fifth, sixth, or seventh class is entitled to receive an annual salary equal to 50% of the annual salary of a full-time county attorney"; in (3)(c) substituted "Each county attorney is entitled to an increase in salary based upon the schedule developed and approved by the county compensation board as provided in subsection (4)" for "On August 1 of each year, each county attorney is entitled to an increase in salary calculated by adding to the annual salary a percentage of up to 100% of the previous calendar year's consumer price index for all urban consumers, U.S. department of labor, bureau of labor statistics, or other index that the bureau of business and economic research of the university of Montana-Missoula may in the future recognize as the successor to that index. However, the county commissioners may, for all or the remainder of each fiscal year, in conjunction with setting salaries for other officers as provided in 7-4-2504(1), set the salary at the prior fiscal year level if that level is lower than the level required by this subsection (3)(c). The cost-of-living increment for each fiscal year must be added to all cost-of-living increments granted for previous years unless salaries were set for the fiscal year at the level of salaries received in the prior fiscal year. Unless restored pursuant to 7-4-2504(2), a cost-of-living increment that would have been received for the fiscal year, computed on the prior fiscal year, may not be added to previous increments"; in (3)(d)(i) near middle of third sentence substituted "for each year of additional service" for "for each year of service thereafter"; at end of (3)(d)(ii) after "longevity increase" deleted "but, unless longevity increases are restored pursuant to 7-4-2504(2), the years of service during a year in which the salary was set at the level of the salary of the prior fiscal year may not be included in a calculation of longevity increases"; deleted former (4) that read: "(4) The latest federal decennial census statistics are the basis for computation of population increments under this section. During the intervening 9 years, the computation of population increments applicable on July 1 of each year is based on the most current calendar year's estimates of counties' populations compiled by the federal-state cooperative program for estimates of the university of Montana-Missoula bureau of business and economic research and the U.S. bureau of the census or other estimate that the bureau of business and economic research may certify"; inserted (4)(a) establishing county compensation board; inserted (4)(b) requiring board to establish compensation schedule for county officials; inserted (4)(c) requiring majority vote of board to establish recommended compensation schedule, including at least two county commissioners; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 411 in four places in (3)(a) and two places in (3)(b) before "salary" inserted "base"; inserted (3)(d)(ii) authorizing county with full-time county attorney to pay same longevity increase provided for deputy county attorneys; at beginning of (3)(d)(iii) deleted "The years of service as a deputy county attorney accumulated prior to July 1, 1985, must be included in the calculation of the longevity increase, but"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999, and terminates July 1, 2001.

1995 Amendments: Chapter 230 near end of (1)(a), after "authorized", deleted "for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1991, and each year thereafter"; at beginning of (3)(c) substituted "On August 1 of each year" for "Beginning July 1, 1991, and on July 1 of each succeeding year"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 24, 1995.

Chapter 233 in (1)(a), (3)(a), (3)(b), and in two places in (3)(c) deleted provision applying law beginning July 1, 1991; in first sentence of (3)(c) substituted "a percentage of up to 100% of" for "the percentage change in" and in third sentence deleted provision applying law beginning July 1, 1983; at beginning of (4) deleted "For each 10th year after the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1981"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Name Change — Directions to Code Commissioner: Pursuant to sec. 36, Ch. 308, L. 1995, in this section the Code Commissioner changed "university of Montana" to "university of Montana-Missoula".

1993 Amendment: Chapter 10 in (3)(c), near middle of first sentence after "1991", substituted "the percentage change in" for "an increment of 100% of the last"; in (4), in second sentence, substituted "most current calendar year's estimates" for "last calendar year's annual estimates"; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 527 near end of (1)(a) substituted "1991" for "1981" and substituted "and each year thereafter must be established by the county governing body at no less than 80% of" for "is computed by adding"; at beginning of (1)(a)(i) increased base salary from $14,000 to $25,000 and near end updated reference from 1980 to 1990 federal decennial census; in (1)(a)(ii) increased base salary from $12,000 to $18,000, decreased population increment from $20 to $10, and near end updated reference from 1980 to 1990 federal decennial census; inserted (1)(b) concerning annual base established by county governing body being uniform for subject county officers; near beginning of (3)(c) substituted "1991" for "1982" and near middle substituted "1991" for "1981" and increased increment from 70% to 100%; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 22, 1991.

Chapter 667 in (3)(a), (3)(b), and (3)(c) substituted "1991" for "1981"; in (3)(a), at end of first sentence, increased County Attorney salary from $36,500 to $50,000; in (3)(b), at end after "shall be", substituted "the same as that established for full-time county attorneys in subsection (3)(a)" for "$36,500"; and in (3)(c), near beginning of first sentence, substituted "1991" for "1982" and near middle increased increment of consumer price index from 70% to 100%. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1989 Amendments: Chapter 257 at beginning of last sentence of (3)(c) substituted "Unless restored pursuant to 7-4-2504(2), any" for "In such case the"; and in middle of (3)(d)(ii) inserted "unless longevity increases are restored pursuant to 7-4-2504(2), the". Amendment effective June 30, 1989.

Chapter 505 inserted (1)(c) providing for longevity payment of 1% of base salary for County Sheriffs and excluding additional salary from use in computing compensation for Deputy Sheriffs and undersheriffs; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective July 1, 1989.

1986 Amendment: In (3)(c) inserted second sentence allowing a uniform freeze in compensation and following "previous years" inserted remainder of subsection relating to increments occurring after a freeze in compensation; and at end of (3)(d)(ii) following "longevity increase" inserted remainder of subsection relating to calculation when compensation had been frozen.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 562 in (2)(a), at beginning of sentence substituted "An elected county superintendent" for "The county superintendent" and at end of sentence, after "$400 per year", inserted remainder of (a) relating to increased compensation for greater education and endorsement.

Chapter 719 in (1) in introductory clause after "clerk of the district court", deleted "part-time county attorney"; in former (2)(c) deleted first sentence that read: "In counties with a population less than 30,000, the county attorney who is a part-time official shall receive, in addition to the salary based upon subsection (1), the sum of $1,200 per year"; renumbered second sentence of former (2)(c) as (3)(a) and in (3)(a) inserted second and third sentences all relating to part- or full-time County Attorney status and salary percentages; renumbered first sentence of former (2)(d) as (3)(b) (full time pursuant to 7-4-2706); renumbered remainder of former (2)(d) as (3)(c) (computation of cost-of-living increments); inserted (3)(d)(i) and (3)(d)(ii) concerning longevity increases; and renumbered former (2)(e) as (4) (computation of population).

1981 Amendment: Rewrote entire section (see sec. 1, Ch. 518, L. 1981, for text) to substitute language for specific dollar amounts based on population. For former text see sec. 1, Ch. 459, L. 1979, and sec. 4, Ch. 669, L. 1979. For language of former composite section, see 7-4-2503, MCA 1979.

Attorney General's Opinions

Part-Time Deputy County Attorney Entitled to Longevity Pay — Year of Service Composed of Calendar Year: The Legislature did not distinguish full-time Deputy County Attorneys from part-time Deputy County Attorneys for purposes of eligibility pay. Therefore, a part-time Deputy County Attorney is entitled to longevity pay under this section after completing the required years of service. As used in this section, the term "year of service" means a calendar year rather than 2,080 hours of employment. 48 A.G. Op. 19 (2000), following Phillips v. Lake County, 222 M 42, 721 P2d 326 (1986), and overruling 39 A.G. Op. 78 (1982), 40 A.G. Op. 61 (1984), and 43 A.G. 77 (1990), to the extent that a different definition of year of service was applied.

County Attorney Longevity Increase for Time as Deputy County Attorney — 1999 Statutory Amendment: The 1999 amendment to subsection (3)(d)(ii) of this section authorizes a Board of County Commissioners to grant a longevity increase to a full-time County Attorney for years served as a Deputy County Attorney, in addition to years served as a County Attorney. (See 2007 amendment.) 48 A.G. Op. 8 (1999).

Provision of Office Space and Equipment by County for Part-Time County Attorney: A county governing body may satisfy its obligation to provide office space for a part-time County Attorney by providing space in a county building or, if no suitable space is available, by renting office space. Use of the space for the County Attorney's private practice is allowed only through a written agreement between the county and the County Attorney leasing the use of the space for private business purposes. Alternatively, the governing body may allow a claim by the County Attorney for the rental of office space needed to conduct the county's business if suitable office space is not available in county buildings. A county governing body may satisfy its obligation to provide necessary equipment for a part-time County Attorney by providing the use of the equipment owned by the county or, if no suitable equipment is available, by renting equipment. Use of the equipment for the County Attorney's private practice is allowed only through a written agreement between the county and the County Attorney leasing the use of the equipment for private business purposes. 46 A.G. Op. 10 (1995), followed in 46 A.G. Op. 20 (1996).

Office Manager/Secretary Defined as Assistant — Determination of Salary: An office manager/secretary hired as a county employee to assist a County Attorney is considered an assistant whose compensation may be set by the Board of County Commissioners under 7-4-2505. However, the statute is limited to persons who serve as county employees and does not apply to independent contractors or consultants. Assistants must be paid a salary to be determined by the Commissioners at no more than 90% of the principal officer's salary, unless a specific provision allows greater compensation. 46 A.G. Op. 6 (1995).

Calculation of Base Salary of Sheriff — Longevity to Include Total Years of Service: The base salary of a Sheriff under this section is based on the class of the county and the county population. For purposes of calculating a Sheriff's longevity payments, total years of service with the Sheriff's Department are included. 43 A.G. Op. 44 (1989).

Change in County Classification — Adjustment of Salaries of County Officials: When the classification of a county under 7-1-2111 changes, salaries of County Commissioners, the County Attorney, and county officials listed in 7-4-2503(1) must be adjusted as of July 1 of the following year (see 1995 amendment). Adjustments are computed as follows: (1) for County Commissioners, according to 7-4-2107; (2) for a part-time County Attorney, according to 7-4-2503(3); and (3) for county officials listed in 7-4-2503(1), according to 7-4-2503. (See 2001 amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 85 (1988).

Change in County Classification — Time for Setting County Officials' Salaries: When a county's classification changes pursuant to 7-1-2111, the salaries of the county officials listed in 7-4-2503(1) must also change. The salaries must change as of July 1 of the following year (see 1995 and 2001 amendments), with the onset of a new fiscal year for the county. 40 A.G. Op. 81 (1984), followed in 41 A.G. Op. 6 (1985).

Computation of Cost-of-Living Increases: The cost-of-living authorized for county officials by 7-4-2504 applies only to the annual base salary plus population increment established by subsection (1) of this section and not to the additional sums included in the salaries of the Superintendent of Schools, Sheriff, and Commissioners under subsection (2) of this section and 7-4-2107. (See 2001 amendment.) 39 A.G. Op. 65 (1982).

Compensation of County Clerk and Recorder for Work as Election Administrator: A County Clerk and Recorder (see 2005 amendment) is not entitled to compensation for services as an election administrator. Without a specific grant of authority to allow additional compensation beyond that for the duties as a County Clerk and Recorder, no additional compensation is allowed. An election administrator who is not also the County Clerk and Recorder may be compensated for his election duties. 39 A.G. Op. 7 (1981).

Full-Time County Attorney — County Population Requirements: A county with a population of less than 30,000 may establish a full-time County Attorney position. The position need not be filled on July 1 but may be filled at some specified reasonable time after July 1 (see 1995 amendment). The salary for such a full-time County Attorney is the same as a full-time County Attorney in a county having more than 30,000 population. (See 1999, 2001, and 2007 amendments.) 38 A.G. Op. 22 (1979).

Full-Time County Attorney — Residency Requirements: A practicing attorney who has declared his intention to make a county his permanent home, is actively seeking a permanent residence in that county, and is in the process of terminating his personal business affairs at his former residence has become a resident of the county and is eligible for appointment as a full-time County Attorney once he has resided in the county for 30 days if he becomes a qualified registered elector and meets other qualifications for the office. 38 A.G. Op. 22 (1979).

Self-Government Powers: This section does not apply to self-government units since it may be superseded by ordinance or resolution of the Commission and is not prohibited by 7-1-114(g). 37 A.G. Op. 68 (1977).

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 507 near middle inserted reference to justice of the peace and at end substituted "by adding to the annual salary provided for in 7-4-2503(1) a cost-of-living increment based upon the schedule developed and approved by the county compensation board provided for in 7-4-2503(4)" for "The salaries fixed may be no less than 80% of the annual base salary provided for in 7-4-2503(1) plus a cost-of-living increment based on a percentage of up to 100% of the previous calendar year's consumer price index for all urban consumers, U.S. department of labor, bureau of labor statistics, or other index that the bureau of business and economic research of the university of Montana-Missoula may in the future recognize as the successor to that index" and deleted former third, fourth, and fifth sentences that read: "The county governing body may, however, for all or the remainder of each fiscal year, in conjunction with setting salaries for the same action on the salaries of justices of the peace (if applicable), the county governing body, the county attorney, and the coroner, set the salary at the prior fiscal year level if that level is lower than the level required by this subsection. The cost-of-living increment for each fiscal year must be added to all cost-of-living increments granted for previous years unless salaries were set for the fiscal year at the level of salaries received in the prior fiscal year. In such a case, the cost-of-living increment that would have been received for the fiscal year, computed on the prior fiscal year, may not be added to previous increments"; deleted former (2) and (3) that read: "(2) The county governing body may, in any subsequent fiscal year, restore for 1 or more years the annual cost-of-living increments withheld pursuant to subsection (1). If cost-of-living increments are restored, the longevity increases provided for sheriffs in 7-4-2503, for deputy county attorneys in 7-4-2503(3)(d)(i), and for undersheriffs and deputy sheriffs in 7-4-2510 must also be restored for the years for which the cost-of-living increment was restored.

(3) The county governing body shall by resolution, prior to August 1 of each year, establish the salary of the coroner and may, for all or the remainder of each fiscal year, in conjunction with setting salaries for other officers as provided in subsection (1), set the salary at the prior fiscal year level. The salary must be in effect on the first day of each ensuing fiscal year"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 2001.

1995 Amendments: Chapter 230 in (1), in first sentence after "before", substituted "August 1 of each year" for "July 1, 1992, and on or before July 1 of each year thereafter" and in fourth sentence, after "increment for", deleted "the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1992"; deleted former (3) that read: "(3) If the application of 7-4-2503 does not qualify a county official for a salary increase, the salary base for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1991, must be the fiscal year 1990-91 salary plus 100% of the last previous calendar year's consumer price index for all urban consumers, as set forth in subsection (1)"; near beginning of (3) substituted "August" for "July"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 24, 1995.

Chapter 233 in two places in (1) deleted references to July 1, 1992, and subsequent years and at beginning of second sentence deleted "Except as provided in subsection (3)" and near middle inserted "a percentage of up to 100%"; deleted former (3) establishing a salary base for fiscal 1991 and subsequent years; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 10 in (1), near middle of second sentence, deleted "last" before "previous calendar year's"; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendment: Near beginning of (1) substituted "1992" for "1982", at end of first sentence, after "salary)", deleted "for cost-of-living increase by adding to the annual salary computed under 7-4-2503 an increment calculated by applying to the annual salary established by 7-4-2503(1) plus previous cost-of-living increments, 70% of", at beginning of second sentence inserted exception clause and language fixing salaries at no less than 80% of annual base salary plus a cost-of-living increment, and near beginning of fourth sentence substituted "1992" for "1983"; and in (3), after "increase", substituted language concerning salary for fiscal year beginning July 1, 1991, being the 1990-91 salary plus 100% of previous calendar year's consumer price index for "of at least 7% on July 1, 1981, his salary on that date shall be increased by an amount sufficient to provide him total salary equal to 7% more than during the previous year". Amendment effective April 22, 1991.

1989 Amendments: Chapter 257 inserted (2) authorizing restoration of cost-of-living increments and longevity increases for Deputy County Attorneys, undersheriffs, and Deputy Sheriffs. Amendment effective June 30, 1989.

Chapter 505 inserted (2) authorizing restoration of cost-of-living increments and longevity increases for County Sheriffs. Amendment effective July 1, 1989.

1989 Composite: The language of the amendments made by Ch. 257 and Ch. 505 was identical except for the officials dealt with. The Code Commissioner has combined the amendments in order to keep internal references correct.

1986 Amendment: In (1) inserted second sentence allowing a uniform compensation freeze and following "previous years" inserted remainder of subsection relating to cost-of-living increments after a compensation freeze; and in (3) following "coroner" inserted remainder of first sentence relating to a compensation freeze.

1981 Amendments: Chapter 518 rewrote entire section (see sec. 3, Ch. 518, L. 1981, for text) to provide for cost-of-living increments. For former text see sec. 10, Ch. 443, L. 1979, and sec. 2, Ch. 459, L. 1979. For language of composite section, see 7-4-2504, MCA 1979.

Chapter 575 deleted "(if he receives a salary)" after "county coroner" in two places. Chapter 518 also deleted this language.

Attorney General's Opinions

Seven Percent Increase as Cost of Living Increment — Addition to 1982 Base Salary: The 7% increase in subsection (3) (prior to the 1991 amendment; see also 1995 amendment) of this section must be considered a cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) used to determine salaries for elected county officials in fiscal year 1982 and must be added to the base salary on July 1, 1982, before computing the COLA for fiscal year 1982-83. 43 A.G. Op. 58 (1990).

County Reclassification — Section Application Limited to Initial Salary Computation: The language of this section confines its application to the initial computation of salaries in accordance with the 1981 amendments; therefore, subsection (2) of this section is not applicable to salary adjustments due to reclassification of counties. A county official's base salary established under this section on July 1, 1981, lasts only until county reclassification necessitates a salary adjustment in accordance with 7-4-2503. 42 A.G. Op. 85 (1988).

Change in County Classification — Time for Setting County Officials' Salaries: When a county's classification changes pursuant to 7-1-2111, the salaries of the county officials listed in 7-4-2503(1) must also change. The salaries must change as of July 1 of the following year (see 1995 amendment), with the onset of a new fiscal year for the county. (See 2001 amendment.) 40 A.G. Op. 81 (1984).

Computation of Cost-of-Living Increase: The cost-of-living increase authorized for county officials by this section applies only to the annual base salary plus population increment established by 7-4-2503(1) and not to the additional sums included in the salaries of the Superintendent of Schools, Sheriff, and Commissioners under 7-4-2503(2) and 7-4-2107. (See 2001 amendment.) 39 A.G. Op. 65 (1982).

Full-Time County Attorney — County Population Requirements: A county with a population of less than 30,000 may establish a full-time County Attorney position. The position need not be filled on July 1 but may be filled at some specified reasonable time after July 1 (see 1995 amendment). The salary for such a full-time County Attorney is the same as a full-time County Attorney in a county having more than 30,000 population. 38 A.G. Op. 22 (1979).

Full-Time County Attorney — Residency Requirements: A practicing attorney who has declared his intention to make a county his permanent home, is actively seeking a permanent residence in that county, and is in the process of terminating his personal business affairs at his former residence has become a resident of the county and is eligible for appointment as a full-time County Attorney once he has resided in the county for 30 days if he becomes a qualified registered elector and meets other qualifications for the office. 38 A.G. Op. 22 (1979).

7-4-2505. Amount of compensation for deputies and assistants.

Compiler's Comments

1993 Special Session Amendment: Chapter 27 deleted former (1)(d) that listed the assessor; deleted (2)(c) that provided for deputy assessors' salaries; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1994.

Applicability: Section 171(2), Ch. 27, Sp. L. November 1993, provided that the amendments to this section apply to tax years after December 31, 1993.

1985 Amendment: In (2)(a), in first sentence near middle, after "subsection (1)", inserted "other than a deputy county attorney", and inserted second sentence limiting total salary of a Deputy County Attorney.

1981 Amendment: In (1), substituted "Subject to" for "Except as provided in", and deleted "sheriff" from the list of officers; in (2)(a), substituted "The salary of a deputy or an assistant listed in subsection (1) may not be" for "Except as provided in subsection (2)(b), the salary of no deputy or assistant shall be"; and deleted former subsection (2)(b), which read:

"In fixing the compensation allowed the undersheriff, the board must fix the same at 95% of the salary of the officers under whom such undersheriff is serving. In fixing the compensation allowed the deputy sheriffs, the board must fix the same at 90% of the salary of the officer under whom such deputy sheriff is serving, except in counties of the first, second, or third class, in which the board must fix the same at not less than 75% or more than 90% of the salary of the officer under whom such deputy sheriff is serving."

Case Notes

County Properly Ordered to Pay County Attorney's Salary Increase: Although the Board of County Commissioners had been notified that the state would be unable to pay an increased contribution to the County Attorney's salary, the Board awarded the County Attorney a salary in excess of twice the amount appropriated by the state. When the state's one-half share of the salary failed to cover the salary increase, the County Attorney sued the county for the shortfall. The District Court ordered the county to pay the salary increase, and the county appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that counties are responsible for any increases in County Attorneys' salaries that are not taken into account and included in the state appropriation for paying County Attorneys' salaries. Oster v. Valley County, 2006 MT 180, 333 M 76, 140 P3d 1079 (2006).

Equitable Estoppel Inapplicable When County Knew That Insufficient Money Would Be Available to Pay County Attorney's Salary: County Attorney Oster brought an action against Valley County for underpayment of salary. The county contended that Oster should be equitably estopped from bringing suit because Oster actively knew and concealed the fact that the state would be contributing a lesser amount toward Oster's salary and because Oster misled County Commissioners into believing that the state would pay half of Oster's salary increase. The Supreme Court held that equitable estoppel did not apply because the county knew the truth of the facts that Oster allegedly misrepresented at the time that the County Commissioners approved Oster's pay raise. Oster v. Valley County, 2006 MT 180, 333 M 76, 140 P3d 1079 (2006).

Salary of Deputy Sheriff: Plaintiff was not entitled to the salary of a Deputy Sheriff when she did not perform duties required of a Deputy Sheriff. Bynum v. Howard, 34 St. Rep. 1285 (D.C. Mont. 1977) (apparently not reported in Federal Supplement).

Salary for Time Not Served — Illness: Where Deputy Sheriff did not serve for 3 months because of illness, the County Commissioners could not be forced to pay him his salary for those 3 months. State ex rel. Rusch v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 121 M 162, 191 P2d 670 (1948).

Fixing Compensation:

Board of County Commissioners may exercise its statutory power to fix the compensation of deputies and assistants in the county offices by providing for such compensation in the annual budget. State ex rel. Thompson v. Gallatin County, 120 M 263, 184 P2d 998 (1947).

Designation of compensation in the budget is not the only way in which the Board of County Commissioners can exercise its power to fix salaries, but the Board can fix such salaries by minute entry, motion, or in any of the ways employed before passage of the Budget Act (Ch. 148, L. 1929, codified in Title 7, ch. 6, part 23, now repealed). State ex rel. Thompson v. Gallatin County, 120 M 263, 184 P2d 998 (1947).

Where Board of County Commissioners appropriated funds for office at rate of $170 a month but in their journal stated that the salary for the office was fixed by the Board at $150 a month, the salary for the office was $150 a month. State ex rel. Thompson v. Gallatin County, 120 M 263, 184 P2d 998 (1947).

Extra Deputies — Temporary Service: While the Board of County Commissioners had no power to decrease the compensation of regular deputies of county officers fixed by section 25-603, R.C.M. 1947 (since repealed), it has discretion, under this section, to fix the compensation of extra deputies appointed for temporary service at any rate it may deem expedient, provided it does not exceed the rate paid the regular deputies. Modesitt v. Flathead County, 57 M 216, 187 P 911 (1920). See also Farrell v. Yellowstone County, 68 M 313, 218 P 559 (1923).

Attorney General's Opinions

Office Manager/Secretary Defined as Assistant — Determination of Salary: An office manager/secretary hired as a county employee to assist a County Attorney is considered an assistant whose compensation may be set by the Board of County Commissioners under this section. However, the statute is limited to persons who serve as county employees and does not apply to independent contractors or consultants. Assistants must be paid a salary to be determined by the Commissioners at no more than 90% of the principal officer's salary, unless a specific provision allows greater compensation. 46 A.G. Op. 6 (1995).

Authorization by County Commission of Increase in Salary of County Officer: Even if the county budget allows for an increase in the salary of a county officer, only the Board of County Commissioners may authorize an increase through the budgetary process. Therefore, a Clerk of Court is not authorized to promote a deputy clerk to a chief deputy position at a higher pay scale without authorization in the county budget and approval of the Board. 43 A.G. Op. 77 (1990).

No Salary Limitation as to Assistants to County Commissioners: The salaries of administrative assistants employed by a Board of County Commissioners are not limited by 7-4-2505, since County Commissioners are not included in the definitive list of county officers to which that section applies. Salaries of the administrative assistants may be set pursuant to 7-5-2107, which contains no limitation as to amount. 38 A.G. Op. 43 (1979).

Deputies as Ambulance Drivers — Stipends: Deputy Sheriffs receiving maximum statutory salary may receive a stipend for operating the county ambulance in addition to their regular salary. 37 A.G. Op. 13 (1977).

7-4-2507. Deputy sheriff and undersheriff provisions — construction.

Case Notes

Deputy Sheriffs' Overtime and On-Call Time Before and After "Garcia Decision": Section 39-3-405 relates to overtime compensation generally, while 7-4-2507 through 7-4-2509 specifically address the salary and overtime compensation of Deputy Sheriffs. Therefore, under the rule that the specific statute governs over the general, 39-3-405 does not apply to Deputy Sheriffs. Furthermore, 7-4-2507 provides that 7-4-2508 through 7-4-2510 govern if they conflict with any other law. Under 7-4-2509, payment of overtime for time worked beyond the regularly scheduled work period is not mandatory and lies in the discretion of the Board of County Commissioners. Since 39-3-405 does not apply to the deputies, the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) and Garcia v. San Antonio Metropolitan Transit Authority, 469 US 528, 83 L Ed 2d 1016, 105 S Ct 1005 (1985), set the threshold (171 hours per 28-day work period) above which the deputies must be paid overtime, retroactive to April 15, 1985, the date Garcia was decided; it could not be argued that the FLSA intended that the lower of the FLSA and the 39-3-405 (160 hours) threshold for a 28-day period should be used to determine when overtime begins. The deputies' claim for compensation for on-call time was another claim for overtime, and payment for on-call time prior to Garcia was in the discretion of the County Commissioners. On-call time since Garcia did not constitute work under a United States Supreme Court test that for FLSA purposes work is physical or mental exertion controlled or required by the employer and pursued necessarily and primarily for the benefit of the employer. Phillips v. Lake County, 222 M 42, 721 P2d 326, 43 St. Rep. 1046 (1986).

Salary for Time Not Served — Illness: Where deputy did not serve 3 months because of illness, he could not, by mandamus, force payment of his salary for those 3 months. State ex rel. Rusch v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 121 M 162, 191 P2d 670 (1948).

Attorney General's Opinions

Authority of Public Safety Commission to Set Salary of Deputy Sheriff: In a department of public safety created pursuant to Title 7, ch. 32, part 1, the public safety commission may set the salary of a department (now Sheriff's office) Deputy Sheriff under 7-32-104 at any level at or above the amount that would be paid to the deputy under this section. To the extent that 7-32-104 and this section conflict, the provisions of 7-32-104, which allow the public safety commission to set the salaries of department (now Sheriff's office) employees, are the more specific and therefore are controlling. 48 A.G. Op. 20 (2000).

Calculation of Base Salary of Deputy Sheriff and Undersheriff — Longevity to Include Each Year of Service: The minimum base annual salary of a Deputy Sheriff or undersheriff for purposes of determining longevity payments under 7-4-2510 is based on the Sheriff's base salary as set forth in this section. Each year of service with the Sheriff's Department is included when calculating longevity payments for a Deputy Sheriff or undersheriff. 43 A.G. Op. 44 (1989).

Attorney General's Opinions

Applicability of State Law Other Than Montana Minimum Wage and Maximum Hours Law to Workers Covered by Fair Labor Standards Act: The federal Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 requires provisions of state law other than the Montana minimum wage and maximum hours law (Title 39, ch. 3, part 4), which set shorter workweeks for specified groups of employees, to be given effect. 41 A.G. Op. 58 (1986).

Deputy Sheriffs and Undersheriffs — Compensatory Time: Since no statutory right to compensation for overtime for Deputy Sheriffs and undersheriffs existed prior to enactment of 7-4-2509 in 1981, they are not entitled to a cash payment in lieu of compensatory time off for overtime hours worked before July 1, 1981. The enactment of 7-4-2509 was not expressly retroactive. 40 A.G. Op. 55 (1984).

Case Notes

"Year of Service" Defined: As used in this section, "year of service" means calendar year, not 2,080 hours of work. Phillips v. Lake County, 222 M 42, 721 P2d 326, 43 St. Rep. 1046 (1986).

Attorney General's Opinions

Calculation of Base Salary of Deputy Sheriff and Undersheriff — Longevity to Include Each Year of Service: The minimum base annual salary of a Deputy Sheriff or undersheriff for purposes of determining longevity payments under this section is based on the Sheriff's base salary as set forth in 7-4-2508. Each year of service with the Sheriff's Department (now Sheriff's office) is included when calculating longevity payments for a Deputy Sheriff or undersheriff. 43 A.G. Op. 44 (1989).

Mandatory Method of Calculating Longevity — Collective Bargaining Not Applicable: A Board of County Commissioners sought to implement a collective bargaining agreement provision that authorized longevity increases to Deputy Sheriffs, predicated on years of service, including any years during which the Deputy's base salary was set at the same level as the previous year. However, this section constitutes a mandatory condition of employment that a Board of County Commissioners may not deviate from or alter through collective bargaining. Therefore, the collective bargaining agreement provision was held unenforceable to the extent it permitted inclusion of service years for the purpose of calculating longevity pay increases expressly excluded under this section. 43 A.G. Op. 34 (1989). See also 42 A.G. Op. 37 (1987).

Effect of Pay Freeze on Deputy Sheriff's Longevity Pay: If the County Commissioners set the salary of a Deputy Sheriff at the same level as for the previous fiscal year, that year may not be used when calculating longevity pay and the Deputy's longevity pay is, in effect, frozen. If the pay freeze is lifted and the salary increased, the Deputy's longevity pay does not include additional longevity pay for the period when the salary was set at the same level as the prior fiscal year. Pursuant to this section, loss of an increase in longevity pay due to a pay freeze is permanent. 42 A.G. Op. 76 (1988).

Part-Time Deputies — "Year of Service" Defined: Under this section, "year of service" means each 2,080 hours of employment when used to compute longevity payments for deputy sheriffs or undersheriffs who have worked for the department (now Sheriff's office) on a part-time basis. 39 A.G. Op. 78 (1982), overruled in 48 A.G. Op. 19 (2000), in which, pursuant to Phillips v. Lake County, 222 M 42, 721 P2d 326 (1986), the term "year of service" was construed to mean a calendar year.

Case Notes

Passport Execution Not "Official Service": Execution of a passport by a Clerk of District Court is not an "official service" within the meaning of subsection (2) of this section. Platz v. Hamilton, 201 M 184, 653 P2d 144, 39 St. Rep. 2041 (1982).

Retention of Passport Execution Fees by Clerk of District Court: Because the execution of passport applications is not an official duty imposed upon a Clerk of District Court by state statute and since the Legislature has not enacted a specific statute with regard to the disposition of execution fees, the Clerk has no duty to remit the fees to the county general fund. Platz v. Hamilton, 201 M 184, 653 P2d 144, 39 St. Rep. 2041 (1982).

"Fees" Defined: The term "fees", as used in this section, imports specific charges to be collected from private individuals for particular services. St. v. Story, 53 M 573, 165 P 748 (1917).

Clerk of District Court — Probate Fees: The fees of the Clerk in probate proceedings, exacted under section 25-233, R.C.M. 1947 (since repealed), must be paid by him to the County Treasurer, and they become a part of the public money of the county. Hauser v. Miller, 37 M 22, 94 P 197 (1908).

Attorney General's Opinions

Sheriff Authorized to Accept Compensation From Federal Agency for Performance of Services Outside Official Duties: A Sheriff may receive compensation from a federal agency under the terms of a cooperative law enforcement agreement without violating any Montana statutory or constitutional provision, so long as the services rendered by the Sheriff fall outside the scope of the Sheriff's official duties. 49 A.G. Op. 12 (2001).

Court Reporter Filing Fee — Clerk of District Court to Collect Fee in Appeal From Justice's Court or City Court — Appeal Is "Civil Action" Under Statutes: The Attorney General was asked whether a Clerk of District Court must collect the $20 filing fee, required by 25-1-202 and used to help pay the salary of the court reporter, in appeals filed in District Court from judgments of a Justice's or City Court. The Attorney General concluded that: (1) a private legal action in a Justice's or City Court is a civil action; (2) an appeal from a Justice's or City Court may include appeal of a civil action; (3) an appeal from either of those courts results in most cases in a new trial in District Court and that the need for a court reporter in that instance is obvious; and (4) the payment of the additional $20 filing fee required by 25-1-202 is mandatory. 48 A.G. Op. 1 (1999).

District Court Clerk Not Authorized to Charge Nonparty State Agency for Copies and Certification of Public Records: Access to and fees for copying public court records are not absolute and are controlled by state law. Fees allowed by law are enumerated in 25-1-201, and the collection of those fees is mandatory. Fees for preparing copies and for certification of documents are also specified in that section. Section 25-10-405 clarifies that fees are collectible from state agencies that are a party to an action but has no effect in cases in which the agency is not a litigant. In those cases, the rule in 7-4-2516 applies, exempting agencies of state and county government from paying official fees. Therefore, a Clerk of District Court may not charge a nonparty state agency for copies and certification of public District Court records. 47 A.G. Op. 3 (1997).

County Attorney Serving as City Attorney — Acceptance of Fee From Private Company Prohibited: A full-time County Attorney serving as city attorney pursuant to an interlocal agreement may not personally receive a fee from a private company for work performed on a city-county bond issue. Attorney fees so paid should be remitted to the county general fund. 45 A.G. Op. 14 (1993).

Disposition of Money Received by County Officers for Preparation of Abstracts: Preparation of abstracts by a Clerk of District Court, a County Clerk, or their respective deputies is an official service of the office. Therefore, compensation paid to them by title companies, credit bureaus, banks, realtors, and others for preparation on a regular basis of abstracts of instruments recorded in their respective offices may not be retained for their personal use, but rather must be paid to the county general fund, District Court fund, or state, as provided by law. 43 A.G. Op. 75 (1990).

Passport Fees — Retention by Clerk of Court: County Clerks of Court may personally retain the fees collected for issuance of passports. 34 A.G. Op. 41 (1972).

Motor Vehicle Ownership Transfer — Late Penalty: Penalties assessed for failure to register a motor vehicle pursuant to 61-3-201 must be credited to the county general fund by the County Treasurer. 34 A.G. Op. 38 (1972).

Clerk's Refusal to File Until Fee Paid: It was proper for the Clerk of the District Court to hold proffered answer in suspense and not file it until the officially required filing fee had been paid. Johnson v. Murray, 201 M 495, 656 P2d 170, 39 St. Rep. 2257 (1982).

Payment of Fees to County Clerk: Under subsection (2), the County Clerk may but is not required to demand prepayment of filing or other fees. Subsection (1), having to do with the Insufficient Demand: A statement of the amount of the fee for filing made upon a request for the fee amount is not a demand for prepayment as contemplated by subsection (2). Minneapolis Steel & Mach. Co. v. Thomas, 54 M 132, 168 P 40 (1917).

Recovery of Illegal Fees: A civil suit to recover illegal fees that had been demanded and received under color of office can be brought against an officer who has not been convicted in a criminal action. *Ming v. Irrigation Districts: An irrigation district created under Title 85, ch. 7, must be considered a subdivision of the state under this section relieving it from payment of fees for recordation in the County Clerk's office. *Crow Creek Irrigation District v. District Court Clerk Not Authorized to Charge Nonparty State Agency for Copies and Certification of Public Records: Access to and fees for copying public court records are not absolute and are controlled by state law. Fees allowed by law are enumerated in 25-1-201, and the collection of those fees is mandatory. Fees for preparing copies and for certification of documents are also specified in that section. Therefore, a Clerk of District Court may not charge a nonparty state agency for copies and certification of public District Court records. 47 A.G. Op. 3 (1997).

Liability for County Recording and Copying Fees: The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation must pay the fees set forth in 7-4-2631 for recording of water use permits, despite the language in 7-4-2516, but the County Clerk and Recorder may not collect a fee from the Department for the copying of documents on file with the county. 38 A.G. 7-4-2519. Prohibition upon receiving other fees.

Case Notes

Reward Not a Fee: The State sought treble damages from a County Sheriff for receiving prohibited fees. Summary judgment was granted the Sheriff and upheld on appeal. The Supreme Court held the reward money received by the Sheriff from the state prison was not a fee under 7-4-2519. Further, it was noted that 7-32-2301 deals with the entitlement of Sheriffs to rewards. It does not address rewards from the state prison but does indicate rewards are not equivalent to fees. Finally, the plain language indicates rewards are not covered by the prohibitions of 7-4-2519. "Fees" in that section refers to charges authorized by law to be made by the Sheriff for the performance of specific services enumerated in 7-32-2141 and 7-32-2142. It does not refer to or include reward money. Because 7-4-2519 was the only statute the Sheriff was charged with violating, he was entitled to summary judgment as a matter of law. St. v. DeMers, 192 M 367, 628 P2d 676, 38 St. Rep. 877 (1981), distinguishing State ex rel. Holt v. District Court, 103 M 438, 63 P2d 1026 (1936), and State ex rel. Matson v. O'Hern, 104 M 126, 65 P2d 619 (1937).

Recovery of Illegal Fees: A civil suit to recover illegal fees that had been demanded and received under color of office can be brought against an officer who has not been convicted in a criminal action. Ming v. Truett, 1 M 322 (1871); overruled on other grounds, Ming v. Foote, 9 M 201, 23 P 515 (1890).

1980 Name Change by Initiative: Section 19, Initiative No. 85, 1980, provided: "The office of the commissioner of campaign finances and practices, created by 13-37-102, shall be known as the office of the commissioner of political practices." The Code Commissioner has changed the name in this section accordingly. See 1-11-101(2)(g).

Case Notes

Right to Question Legality of Claims against County: The duty of the County Clerk to issue warrants for claims passed upon by the Board of County Commissioners is ministerial only, and he is not clothed with supervisory power to either question or determine the legality of the claims, except where they are void upon their face as without the jurisdiction of the Board to pass upon. State ex rel. Lockwood v. Tyler, 64 M 124, 208 P 1081 (1922).

May Not Question Constitutionality of Statute: A ministerial officer, such as a County Clerk, to whom no injury can result and to whom no violation of duty can be imputed by reason of his compliance with a statute cannot refuse to perform a duty imposed by it on the ground of its unconstitutionality, since such an officer is not liable for his official acts when acting under process, warrants, or other instruments fair upon their face and issued from a superior tribunal or board. State ex rel. Lockwood v. Tyler, 64 M 124, 208 P 1081 (1922).

County Power to Grant Franchises — Interlocal Agreements Not Precluded: Article XI, sec. 4, Mont. Const.; 7-3-144; 7-4-2611; and 7-5-2129, as well as applicable case law, imply that a county vested with general government powers may exercise the power to grant franchises. Under 7-11-104, a city-county interlocal franchise agreement is possible. 42 A.G. Op. 87 (1988).

Record of Board Proceedings: The responsibility of the County Clerk and Recorder, as it relates to proceedings of the Board of County Commissioners, is to record the minutes of the proceedings into the minute book maintained pursuant to 7-5-2129, and to make the book available for public examination upon request. The Board is responsible for the preparation, content, and publication of the minutes. The County Clerk and Recorder is not required to attend the meetings of the Board and take the original notes, unless the Board so requests. 41 A.G. Op. 19 (1985).

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 37 in (1)(c) at beginning substituted "an acknowledged statement indicating that the holder of a nonprobate interest in real property is deceased" for "except as provided in 72-16-503, a document on a form provided by the department of revenue certifying that the holder of a nonprobate interest in real property is deceased and that the deceased's interest is terminated", at end of second sentence deleted "or any other interest not requiring probate", deleted former third sentence that read: "The document may be on the form used by the department of revenue for responding to the application for determination of estate tax", and at beginning of last sentence substituted "The acknowledged statement" for "It"; deleted former (3)(b) that read: "(b) a certification by the county treasurer that the estate tax, if any tax was due, has been paid or that estate tax was not due"; in (1)(c)(ii) before "description" inserted "legal"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 13, 2001.

Chapter 412 in (1)(a)(i) near middle after "mortgages" inserted "reconveyances by trustees of deeds of trust, assignments of mortgages and deeds of trust"; inserted (2) concerning instrument qualifying for recording incorporating language by reference from another properly recorded instrument; and made minor changes in style. 1995 Amendment: Chapter 391 in (3), at beginning, inserted exception clause; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 12, 1995.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 5, Ch. 391, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to deaths of holders of nonprobate interests occurring after July 1, 1979."

1993 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 366 at beginning of (1)(a) inserted "subject to subsection (1)(b)"; inserted (1)(b) requiring County Clerk to record instrument or deed evidencing a division or merger of real property only if accompanied by certification from County Treasurer that taxes and special assessments have been paid; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 420 near beginning of introductory clause, after "record", deleted "photograph, or correctly copy, separately, in large and well-bound or to be bound separate books, either in a fair hand or" and near end, after "photographic", inserted "micrographic, or electronic"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 20, 1993.

Style changes in introductory clause, (3)(a), and (3)(b) were slightly different in the two chapters. In each case, the codifier chose the more appropriate of the two.

1981 Amendment: Inserted (3) relating to certification to Department of Revenue on termination of deceased person's interest in nonprobate property.

Case Notes

Recording Not Condition Precedent to Judgment Becoming a Lien: This section and 70-21-306 define the effect of recording a final judgment as far as imparting constructive notice is concerned, but they are not controlling as to when the judgment becomes a lien. Section 25-9-301 determines when the lien becomes effective—that the lien attaches when the judgment is docketed; recordation of the judgment is not made a condition precedent to its becoming a lien. Gaines v. Van Demark, 106 M 1, 74 P2d 454 (1937).

Option to Purchase Land: Since an option to purchase land is not itself a contract to purchase the land, the book kept for the recording of contracts for the purchase or sale of real property is not the proper book for recordation. The miscellaneous record book for the entry of such other items required or permitted by law to be recorded is the proper book for such contracts. Guerin v. Sunburst Oil & Gas Co., 68 M 365, 218 P 949 (1923).

Blanket Document Listing Multiple Reconveyances of Trust Indentures Allowed: Generally, a County Clerk and Recorder must record reconveyances of trust indentures, which operate the same as a release or satisfaction of a mortgage. In order to effectuate release of a mortgage, the mortgagee or its agent must acknowledge and certify that a release has taken place by presenting a certificate to the County Clerk and Recorder. There is no requirement that each certificate be on a separate piece of paper. As long as each reconveyance meets the statutory requirements for release of a mortgage, the County Clerk and Recorder is obligated to accept for filing a multiple page or "blanket" document listing more than one reconveyance on each page. 48 A.G. Op. 23 (2000).

Survey Requirements for Remainder Created When Highway Right-of-Way Obtained by State: A County Clerk and Recorder may not require a survey or plat for the recordation of an instrument transferring title to a remainder that was created when the state obtained property for a highway right-of-way. 44 A.G. Op. 25 (1992).

Recordation of Trust Indenture — Amount and Maturity Date Not Required: A County Clerk and Recorder may not refuse to accept for filing a trust indenture that does not include an amount secured and a maturity date because there are no specific requirements that such matters be set forth in the instrument. 41 A.G. Op. 11 (1985).

No Duty to Accept Invalid Continuation of Financing Statement: The County Clerk and Recorder is not required to accept for filing a continuation statement made under 30-9-403 (now repealed) but filed outside the 6-month period required by that section. 40 A.G. Op. 60 (1984).

Recording Prerequisites: Transfers of land that do not involve "divisions of land" or "subdivisions", as defined by the Montana Subdivision and Platting Act (Title 76, ch. 3), do not require the certificate of survey or a plat before being recorded by the Clerk and Recorder. (See 1993 amendment.) 37 A.G. Op. 88 (1977). See also 44 A.G. Op. 25 (1992).

County Clerk and Recorder — No Refusal to Record a Valid Deed: Since the Clerk and Recorder of a county is not a law enforcement officer and enforcement of a criminal statute is not within his prescribed duties, he may not refuse to record a deed that has not met the prerequisite, set forth in the Montana Subdivision and Platting Act (Title 76, ch. 3), that an approved, certified plat be filed before the land is transferred. 35 A.G. Case Notes

No Duty of Clerk and Recorder to Record Invalid Deed — Writ of Mandamus Improper: Under this section, a County Clerk and Recorder is obligated to record only an instrument, paper, or notice that is authorized by law to be recorded. Under 76-3-302, a County Clerk and Recorder has a mandatory duty not to accept and record an otherwise proper deed if it fails to comply with the applicable survey requirements. The District Court did not err in refusing to issue a writ of mandamus requiring recording of deeds when a landowner attempted to divide a large parcel of land into smaller parcels by executing a deed in which the landowner was both grantor and grantee, which is not authorized by law, and when the statutorily required plat was not filed. Rocky Mtn. Timberlands, Inc. v. Lund, 265 M 463, 877 P2d 1018, 51 St. Rep. 653 (1994).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Duty in County Clerk and Recorder to Accept Common-Law Liens for Filing: Although a County Clerk and Recorder has a statutory duty to accept for filing any instrument, paper, or notice authorized by law to be recorded, there is no apparent authority in Montana law for allowing the filing of a common-law lien. It is unclear whether Montana even recognizes common-law liens. Because a common-law lien is not authorized by law to be received, County Clerk and Recorders may refuse to accept for filing written instruments purporting to be liens when the writing does not qualify as a statutory lien or lien created by contract. 38 A.G. Op. 114 (1980).

County Clerk and Recorder — No Refusal to Record a Valid Deed: Since the Clerk and Recorder of a county is not a law enforcement officer and enforcement of a criminal statute is not within his prescribed duties, he may not refuse to record a deed that has not met the prerequisite, set forth in the Montana Subdivision and Platting Act (Title 76, ch. 3), that an approved, certified plat be filed before the land is transferred. 35 A.G. Appropriate Fee for Recording Blanket Document Listing Multiple Reconveyances of Trust Indentures: A flat fee of $6 is chargeable by the County Clerk and Recorder for each page of a blanket document listing multiple reconveyances of trust indentures. 48 A.G. Op. 23 (2000).

Disposition of Money Received by County Officers for Preparation of Abstracts: Preparation of abstracts by a Clerk of District Court, a County Clerk, or their respective deputies is an official service of the office. Therefore, compensation paid to them by title companies, credit bureaus, banks, realtors, and others for preparation on a regular basis of abstracts of instruments recorded in their respective offices may not be retained for their personal use, but rather must be paid to the county general fund, District Court fund, or state, as provided by law. 43 A.G. Office of County Attorney

Restrictions on Authority of County Attorney Regarding Involuntary Commitment of Alcoholic: A County Attorney does not have authority to file a petition for the involuntary commitment of an alcoholic pursuant to 53-24-302, nor may a County Attorney represent a spouse, guardian, relative, certifying physician, or the chief of an approved public treatment facility in a proceeding for the involuntary commitment of an alcoholic. 43 A.G. Op. 40 (1989).

Case Notes

Student Attorney Considered to Be Practicing Law: Following the resignation of the acting County Attorney, Jefferson County Commissioners interviewed applicants and subsequently selected Valerie Wilson to fill the position effective August 18, 1995. To be qualified for the position, state law requires an attorney to be admitted to practice for at least 5 years prior to appointment or election. The District Court concluded that although Wilson had begun practicing law as a student attorney in 1990, she was not admitted to the Montana Bar until October 1991 and thus would not achieve the required 5 years until October 1996. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed, ruling that state law does not require that one must be admitted to the State Bar in order to be "deemed practicing law" in Montana. Certification of student attorneys by Supreme Court order along with certification by the dean of the law school provide the guidelines for admission of a student attorney to the practice of law. Shapiro v. Jefferson County, 278 M 109, 923 P2d 543, 53 St. Rep. 848 (1996).

Attorney General's Opinions

Full-Time County Attorney — County Population Requirements: A county with a population of less than 30,000 may establish a full-time County Attorney position. The position need not be filled on July 1 but may be filled at some specified reasonable time after July 1. The salary for such a full-time County Attorney is the same as a full-time County Attorney in a county having more than 30,000 population. 38 A.G. Op. 22 (1979), followed in 42 A.G. Op. 125 (1988).

Full-Time County Attorney — Residency Requirements: A practicing attorney who has declared his intention to make a county his permanent home, is actively seeking a permanent residence in that county, and is in the process of terminating his personal business affairs at his former residence has become a resident of the county and is eligible for appointment as a full-time County Attorney once he has resided in the county for 30 days if he becomes a qualified registered elector and meets other qualifications for the office. 38 A.G. Op. 22 (1979), followed in 42 A.G. Op. 125 (1988).

7-4-2702. Procedure to fill vacancy in office of county attorney.Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 160 near beginning deleted prerequisite that there be no licensed attorney residing in county and at end inserted authorization for County Commissioners to appoint an attorney to fill vacancy; deleted former provisions regarding employment, duties, and compensation of acting County Attorney; deleted (2) containing requirement for County Commissioners to appoint a resident attorney to fill vacancy of County Attorney rather than special attorney (see 1997 Session Law for former text); and made minor changes in style.

Attorney General's Opinions

Appointment of County Attorney — Procedure — Eligibility: In a county with a population of less than 30,000, if no licensed attorney (see 1997 amendment) in the county wishes to be appointed County Attorney, the Board of County Commissioners should proceed to fill a vacancy under this section as if there were no licensed attorneys in the county. If one or more licensed attorneys are residents of the county and wish to be appointed but the County Commissioners do not want to appoint one of them, the County Commissioners may recruit and appoint an out-of-county attorney only if the attorney will be a county resident and meet other eligibility requirements by the time of appointment. 42 A.G. Op. 125 (1988).

7-4-2703. Limitation on number of deputies.Case Notes

Appointment of Deputy County Attorneys: Although 7-4-2703 provides that a County Attorney of a first- or second-class county may appoint only one Chief Deputy and one Deputy County Attorney, 7-4-2401 provides for appointment of such additional Deputy County Attorneys as may be reasonably necessary to discharge the duties of the office. The prosecutors here were appointed properly and had the lawful authority to prosecute the matter. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698, 37 St. Rep. 760 (1980).

2007 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 61 made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

Chapter 230 in (2) at beginning inserted exception clause, after "county" substituted "in which the office of county attorney is a full-time position pursuant to 7-4-2706" for "with a population in excess of 30,000", and at end deleted "and except as provided in subsection (4)"; in

(3) at beginning inserted exception clause, after "county" substituted "in which the office of county attorney is a full-time position pursuant to 7-4-2706 and" for "with a population in excess of 30,000", and at end deleted "and except as provided in subsection (4)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2007.

Style changes were slightly different in the chapters. In each case, the codifier chose appropriate text.

Legislative Findings: Section 1, Ch. 230, L. 2007, provided: "The legislature finds that:

(1) a significant portion of the work done by county attorneys is for the prosecution of criminal cases under state law and for the enforcement of state civil law concerning child abuse and neglect pursuant to Title 41, chapter 3;

(2) the county attorney workloads vary greatly from county to county;

(3) it is in the state's best interest to promote consistent statewide prosecution services and to support the office of county attorney as a career position that will attract experienced and well-qualified attorneys, especially considering the enactment of a statewide public defender system in 2005;

(4) because a county attorney is an elected county official and has a vital role in providing civil legal services to the county and because each county has unique needs to consider, the county attorney's salary should be set by the county;

(5) because county attorneys provide both state and county services, the responsibility for funding county attorney salaries should be a responsibility shared by the state and the counties; and

(6) the state's funding responsibility should be met through a predictable and ongoing appropriation, thus through a statutory appropriation."

1981 Amendment: Inserted "and except as provided in subsection (4)" at the end of (2) and (3); inserted (4) allowing up to 3 months in office to complete pending private matters.

Case Notes

Prosecutorial Discretion — Deputy's Prior Representation: The Lemmons were divorced after 20 years of marriage. Leroy was seeing Donna Myers, and Koralyn was seeing John Sweeting. Myers and Sweeting had just ended a personal and business relationship. Sweeting asked Koralyn to get a briefcase out of Leroy's truck. The briefcase actually belonged to Myers. Leroy and Myers returned to the truck and found the briefcase missing. They concluded Koralyn had taken it since the truck was not broken into. Leroy and Myers went to Koralyn's home. She heard them drive up and put a gun in the waistband of her pants. Leroy and Koralyn fought, and Leroy struck her in the head with the gun. Leroy and Myers put Koralyn on the floor of the truck and went to the Sheriff's department. The Sheriff was not immediately available, so Leroy and Myers left, with Koralyn still on the floor of the truck, to find Sweeting. A high speed chase ensued in which the cars rammed together and gunshots were exchanged. The chase ended when Leroy's transmission caught fire. The charges arising from the pursuit were dropped. Leroy was charged with aggravated assault and kidnapping. He was convicted of assault and unlawful restraint. Leroy contended the County Attorney abused his discretion in not acting on his complaints against Koralyn and for not disqualifying the office since a deputy had represented Koralyn in the divorce. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that the abuse of discretion issue had not been raised at trial and could not be raised on appeal. The court also stated that selectivity in enforcement is not a violation of the U. S. Constitution if the selection is not based on an unjustifiable or arbitrary classification. The court construed DR 5-105(D) to concern conflicts in representation, not prosecution. Also, the court stated that it was not established that the County Attorney would have been disqualified from the prosecution for representing Koralyn, let alone a deputy. St. v. Lemmon, 214 M 121, 692 P2d 455, 41 St. Rep. 2359 (1984). See also Helena Parents Comm'n v. Lewis & Clark County Comm'rs, 277 M 367, 922 P2d 1140, 53 St. Rep. 687 (1996).

Attorney Fees Award — Disposition: Attorney fees awarded on appeal of Fair Labor Standards Act claim must be paid into the Cascade County general fund and not given to the County Attorney as private attorney fees because the population of Cascade County is in excess of 30,000 people, prohibiting profits by the County Attorney from private practice of law. St. v. Holman Aviation Co., 176 M 31, 575 P2d 925 (1978).

Attorney General's Opinions

County Attorney Serving as City Attorney — Acceptance of Fee From Private Company Prohibited: A full-time County Attorney serving as city attorney pursuant to an interlocal agreement may not personally receive a fee from a private company for work performed on a city-county bond issue. Attorney fees so paid should be remitted to the county general fund. 45 A.G. Op. 14 (1993).

Rural Improvement Districts — Representation by Part-Time County Attorney in Private Practice Permitted: After a rural improvement district has been created pursuant to 7-12-2113, a part-time County Attorney may represent a rural improvement district in his private practice and receive payment for such legal representation. 40 A.G. Op. 27 (1983).

State Conservation Districts — Legal Representation: The Attorney General is responsible for civil legal representation upon request from supervisors of a state conservation district, but private counsel may be employed as Special Assistant Attorneys General. The compensation may be set by the supervisors and becomes a district obligation. County Attorneys' duty to represent districts extends only to giving their opinion in writing to the officers of the district on matters pertaining to their offices. 37 A.G. Op. 76 (1977).

Presumption of Regular Appointment: On appeal from a conviction for assault which was prosecuted by a special prosecutor where the record does not show whether any appointment was made under this section, the court will indulge the presumption that the appointment was regularly made in the absence of a showing to the contrary. St. v. Cockrell, 131 M 254, 309 P2d 316 (1957).

7-4-2706. County attorney to be full or part time — resolution.

Compiler's Comments

2007 Amendment: Chapter 230 in (1)(a) near end after "full-time" inserted "or part-time" and after "position" deleted "subject to the provisions of 7-4-2701 and 7-4-2704" and deleted former second sentence that read: "The salary for this position is the salary established pursuant to 7-4-2503"; inserted (1)(b) requiring that a copy of a resolution be provided to the department of justice; in (2) substituted "In a county with a population of 30,000 or more, the office of county attorney must be a full-time position" for "In any county in which the office of county attorney has been established as a full-time position under subsection (1), the county commissioners may, by resolution and upon the consent of the county attorney, establish the office as a part-time position on July 1 of any year"; and made minor changes in style. 2001 Amendment: Chapter 507 in (1) at end of second sentence substituted "the salary established pursuant to 7-4-2503" for "the salary provided by 7-4-2503 for the office of county attorney in a county with a population in excess of 30,000". Amendment effective May 1, 2001.

1981 Amendment: Inserted (2) relating to reducing the office from full- to part-time.

Authority of County Commissioners to Employ Private Attorney: A County Attorney may not unreasonably withhold his consent to the employment of another attorney by the Board of County Commissioners to perform legal services in connection with the civil business of the county. No Opportunity for Parties to Address Issues — Award of Attorney Fees Premature: An award of attorney fees based on this section is premature unless and until an appropriate record is created and the parties have a full and fair opportunity to address the issues. Clark v. Dussault, 265 M 479, 878 P2d 239, 51 St. Rep. 642 (1994).

County Attorney — Conflict of Interests: The County Attorney should advise the school boards they should retain independent counsel to raise the privilege against self-incrimination as a defense to interrogatories propounded by the Human Rights Commission in the investigation of alleged violations of the antidiscrimination law since it is his duty to obtain the evidence and to prosecute if he determines there is a criminal violation. School District v. Human Rights Comm'n, 173 M 113, 566 P2d 799 (1977).

Legal Adviser of Justice of Peace: It is the duty of the County Attorney to advise the Justice of the Peace in preparation of a proper record for appeal to the District Court, and improper submission of such record may not bar defendant's right to appeal. Clark v. District Court, 142 M 56, 381 P2d 472 (1963); Reidelbach v. District Court, 142 M 52, 381 P2d 470 (1963).

County Attorney Not Obligated to Serve Hospital District: A County Attorney has no obligation to act as legal counsel for a hospital district formed under 7-34-2101. 43 A.G. Op. 15 (1989).

Authority of County Commissioners to Employ Private Attorney: A County Attorney may not unreasonably withhold his consent to the employment of another attorney by the Board of County Commissioners to perform legal services in connection with the civil business of the county. The decision of a County Attorney to withhold his consent is subject to the supervisory authority of the Attorney General. 41 A.G. Op. 34 (1985). See 1989 amendment that does away with the requirement of obtaining the County Attorney's consent.

District Boards of Health — Formation and Insurance — County Attorney Not Legal Advisor: A District Board of Health formed pursuant to 50-2-107 stands in place of the County Board of Health in those counties that formed the District Board of Health. Once a county joins a District Board of Health, there is no need for the county to maintain a County Board of Health. The District Board of Health has the responsibility of providing its own legal advisor because there is no specific statutory mandate that the County Attorney act as legal advisor to the District Board of Health. The counties creating a District Board of Health are responsible for providing liability insurance for their District Board of Health. 41 A.G. Op. 22 (1985).

Rural Improvement Districts — County Attorney Not Legal Advisor: Except for legal work required by the Board of County Commissioners in connection with the creation of a rural improvement district, it is not the duty of a County Attorney to represent rural improvement districts formed under Title 7, ch. 12, part 21. 40 A.G. Op. 27 (1983).

Rural Improvement Districts — Representation by Part-Time County Attorney in Private Practice Permitted: After a rural improvement district has been created pursuant to 7-12-2113, a part-time County Attorney may represent a rural improvement district in his private practice and receive payment for such legal representation. 40 A.G. Op. 27 (1983).

County Attorney to Provide Legal Services — Conservation District: Sections 7-4-2711 and 76-15-319 require the County Attorney to provide upon request such legal services as the conservation district may require. 38 A.G. Op. 73 (1980).

Defense of County Officers: The County Attorney is not responsible for defending lawsuits brought against a county official in his individual capacity. 37 A.G. Op. 171 (1978).

Failure of District Court to Grant Motions to Dismiss as Directed by Attorney General for Government Misconduct — Violation of Separation of Powers: The Attorney General directed the Lincoln County Attorney to file motions to dismiss charges against certain criminal defendants for the reason that outrageous government misconduct had occurred in the course of the prosecution. The Lincoln County Attorney filed the motions, but they were denied by the District Court. In a proceeding for supervisory control, the Supreme Court held that the Attorney General was within his authority to direct the County Attorney to move to dismiss the charges and held that the Attorney General's conclusion that there had been outrageous government misconduct in the cases served as a basis under 46-13-401(1) for the District Court to dismiss the charges. The refusal of the District Court to dismiss the charges was an abuse of discretion and a violation of the doctrine of separation of powers. By refusing to grant the motions to dismiss, the District Court intruded upon the lawful functions of the County Attorney and the Attorney General, who belong to the Executive Branch of government. State ex rel. Fletcher v. District Court, 260 M 410, 859 P2d 992, 50 St. Rep. 992 (1993). See also St. v. Schneiderhan, 261 M 161, 862 P2d 37, 50 St. Rep. 1242 (1993).

Authority of Prosecutor to Charge Under Alternate Statutes: Defendants Richard and David Fertterer were convicted of felony criminal mischief for illegally killing game. They contended on appeal that they should have been charged under the misdemeanor provisions of Title 87 and not under the felony provisions of Title 45. Citing St. v. Brady, 249 M 290, 816 P2d 413 (1991), the Supreme Court held that the state has the authority to charge under any statute if the conduct of the defendants meets the elements of the crime. St. v. Fertterer, 255 M 73, 841 P2d 467, 49 St. Rep. 846 (1992).

County Attorney's Discretion to Bring Action — Prosecutorial Authority Not Exceeded: In a suit against a county for liability of the County Attorney while carrying out county policy, the Supreme Court found no evidence or specific allegation that the County Attorney exceeded his authority or was derelict in his duty under the law. A determination by the County Attorney to bring an action is discretionary and is his duty under the law. Ronek v. Gallatin County, 227 M 514, 740 P2d 1115, 44 St. Rep. 1275 (1987).

Delegation of Powers Restricted: County Attorney cannot delegate to unofficial counsel his right to advise the grand jury, assist them in their investigations, and examine witnesses, and an order of the District Judge appointing such special prosecutor when the County Attorney was present and able to act could not give such authority. State ex rel. Porter v. District Court, 124 M 249, 220 P2d 1035 (1950).

Duty to Prosecute: Except when the County Attorney is himself the accused, the duty devolves upon him to prosecute public offenses. State ex rel. McGrade v. District Court, 52 M 371, 157 P 1157 (1916).

Duty Upon Appeal to Supreme Court — Expenses: After a criminal case has been appealed to the Supreme Court, the duties of the County Attorney therein and his power to contract expenses for the county cease. Independent Publishing Co. v. Lewis & Clark County, 30 M 83, 75 P 860 (1904).

Attorney General's Opinions

County Attorney as Employee for Purposes of Lawsuit Regarding Administrative Actions: A County Attorney is not liable for civil damages for conduct within the scope of his prosecutorial duties; however, that immunity does not extend to the discretionary administrative business of running a County Attorney's office. Thus, a County Attorney is considered a county employee for purposes of the Montana Comprehensive State Insurance Plan and Tort Claims Act whenever the County Attorney is named in a civil lawsuit for actions regarding county administrative business, such as the hiring and firing of staff. 44 A.G. Op. 29 (1992).

County Responsible for Charges Incurred by City Police — Criminal Prosecutions: The county bears the financial responsibility for charges incurred at the request of the County Attorney, after an arrest by city police, for the preservation and preparation of evidence to be used in felony cases. 38 A.G. Op. 94 (1980).

Private Citizen Cannot Prosecute Complaint: Since the term "magistrate" includes Justices of the Peace in this section, the County Attorney is charged with the responsibility of prosecuting complaints in Justices' Courts and a Justice of the Peace cannot allow a private citizen to prosecute a complaint. However, a County Attorney is vested with normal discretion and need not file and prosecute every individual's complaint when there is insufficient evidence to warrant prosecution or when such a prosecution would not be in the interests of justice. 36 A.G. Op. 47 (1975).

Joint Employment: A County Attorney, for purposes of administration, is jointly employed by both the county and the state. 36 A.G. Op. 32 (1975).

Case Notes

Failure of State to Appeal — County Attorney Representation of State Position as Sufficient Opportunity for Hearing: Despite a District Court order in 1993, Sheppard was not admitted to phase II of the sexual offender program at the state prison. In 1995, Sheppard moved the District Court to order his enrollment in the program, serving the motion on the County Attorney who had prosecuted him for the underlying offense, but not on the state attorney for the Department of Corrections. The County Attorney appeared at the hearing on the motion and, pursuant to this section, advanced the state's position that Sheppard was not eligible for the treatment program because he failed to accept responsibility for the crime. The court affirmed its 1993 order and ordered that Sheppard be allowed into the program. The state did not timely appeal the decision and thus was bound by the 1993 order. The representation by the County Attorney of the state's position at the hearing, coupled with the state's opportunity to address the issue at prior hearings, was adequate consideration. *St. v. County Responsibility for Medical Costs of Detained Person Unable to Pay — "Nature of the Crime" Approach: In determining whether a city or a county is responsible for medical costs incurred by a person ultimately charged with a violation of state law but who is unable to pay, the Supreme Court adopted the "nature of the crime" approach. This approach determines financial responsibility not on the basis of which agency first takes a person into custody, but rather on the basis of the crime charged. Because the county is vested with the primary responsibility for enforcing state law and maintaining facilities to accomplish that responsibility, performance of the task necessarily includes assumption of the associated financial burden. *Mont. Power of Attorney General to Institute Actions in District Court:

Although County Attorney may be ordered by Attorney General to initiate a felony prosecution in a District Court, the Attorney General has no power to initiate the action independent of the County Attorney. State ex rel. Woodahl v. District Court, 159 M 112, 495 P2d 182 (1972).

The statutes of this state do not authorize the institution of an action in the District Courts by the Attorney General on behalf of the state, but rather they specifically state that such an action must be brought by the County Attorney of the county; however, under the common-law powers and duties of the Attorney General, he can institute such an action where the public interest is affected and the state is a party in interest. State ex rel. Olsen v. P.S.C., 129 M 106, 283 P2d 594 (1955); State ex rel. Ford v. Young, 54 M 401, 170 P 947 (1918); State ex rel. Nolan v. District Court, 22 M 25, 55 P 916 (1899).

Prosecution in Name of State: Criminal cases arising under the state laws must be prosecuted in the name of the state and by the County Attorney under this section and Art. VIII, sec. 27, 1889 Mont. Const. (No comparable provision in 1972 Mont. Const., however, the provision is codified at 46-11-401). State ex rel. Streit v. Justice Court, 45 M 375, 123 P 405 (1912).

Supervision by Attorney General: The County Attorney, in his every duty, is under the supervisory powers of the Attorney General. There are no official acts to be discharged by him in the performance of which he may not, where public interests require it, be assisted by that official. State ex rel. Nolan v. District Court, 22 M 25, 55 P 916 (1899).

Case Notes

Test of Statute's Constitutionality: The constitutionality of a statute is tested by the constitution in effect when the law was enacted. The recodification of a statute does not act as a reenactment of the law but is merely a ministerial and administrative function. Therefore, appellant could not be denied his right to hold the office of County Surveyor as the statute was unconstitutional at its inception and was not reenacted under the 1972 Constitution. Gallatin County v. McClue, 222 M 201, 721 P2d 338, 43 St. Rep. 1174 (1986).

Case Notes

Purchase of Deepfreeze: County Surveyor could not bind the county in ordering, receiving, charging, and purchasing a deepfreeze. Although the written order described the item as a countershaft and pulley and the county paid the claim, the payment of the claim by the county did not ratify the actions of the County Surveyor or make the transaction a legal sale of the freezer to the county. St. v. Bourdeau, 126 M 266, 246 P2d 1037 (1952).

Compensation for Equipment: The complaint of a County Surveyor in an action against the county to recover the reasonable value of the use of a transit employed by him in the performance of his duties during his term of office, with the knowledge and acquiescence of the County Commissioners and for the benefit of the county, stated a cause of action as upon an implied contract, in view of the provisions of this section making it the duty of the county to furnish plaintiff with the necessary equipment for the proper discharge of his duties in making surveys, Appointment of Chief of Police and Police Officers: Insofar as the method of appointment of members of the police force, including the Chief of Police, is concerned, this section is repealed by the Metropolitan Police Act (Ch. 136, L. 1907, codified primarily in Title 7, ch. 41). The method of appointment and removal by the later law is wholly inconsistent with the notion that the Mayor and Council are authorized to exercise the power of appointment as provided in the older law. State ex rel. Wynne v. Quinn, 40 M 472, 107 P 506 (1910).

Execution of Power Granted: The grant of power contained in this section, in the matter of prescribing the duties and fixing the compensation of city officers, is subject not only to the express and implied limitations found elsewhere in the title under which the section falls but contains in itself a limitation as to the mode in which the power granted may be executed. McGillic v. Corby, 37 M 249, 95 P 1063 (1908).

Attorney General's Opinions

Administrative Assistant — Mayoral Appointment: Although the City Council's contract and budget approval powers may affect the mayor's practical ability to provide a particular compensation amount to an administrative assistant or establish other employment conditions, they do not obviate his authority to fill that position without Council approval. Under 7-3-212, a mayor may appoint an administrative assistant without the approval of the City Council. 41 A.G. Op. 45 (1986).

Reapportionment — Holdover Aldermen: There is no provision in the Montana Constitution or statutes that authorizes the shortening of an alderman's term of office. The fact that ward boundaries may change as a result of reapportionment and that some voters may be represented for 2 years by an alderman for whom they had no opportunity to vote has not justified a deviation from state law, the shortening of terms, in other jurisdictions. Where state law provides for the length of term of an elected official and for the staggering of terms to insure continuity and stability, those requirements are paramount to the temporary disenfranchisement that necessarily follows a reapportionment. Montana state law regarding 4-year staggered terms for aldermen and the absence of any applicable statute authorizing the removal of incumbents from office after reapportionment determine that an alderman elected to a 4-year term in 1982 need not run for reelection in 1983 as a result of reapportionment and redistricting. 40 A.G. Op. 1 (1983).

Attorney General's Opinions

Appointment of City Judge by Third-Class City: Under this section, the governing body of a third-class city has the authority to determine by ordinance how a City Judge is selected. However, nothing in statute precludes the city from amending the ordinance in order to provide for the election of the judge. Therefore, when a city of the third class adopts a commission-manager form of government, the city is not bound by 7-3-4462, which requires election of a City Judge, but may continue to appoint its judge under an ordinance passed pursuant to this section. 45 A.G. 1981 Amendment: Substantially rewritten based upon 2-16-501; deleted former subsection (1) relating to qualifying for office; inserted introductory clause regarding when an office becomes vacant; inserted (1) through (4) and (8) through (11); and amended (5) through (7) to conform to inserted material (see 1981 Session Law for text).

Attorney General's Opinions

Vacancy Not Created by Holdover Town Attorney: The general rule of law is that an officer must hold over until a successor is appointed and qualified, unless holding over is prohibited by express statutory language or by clear implication. The policy underlying the common-law rule is the strong public interest in continuing the work of important governmental offices when a qualified officer is holding over pending appointment and approval of a successor. With regard to the office of town attorney, absent statutory prohibition, a vacancy in the office of town attorney is not created when the attorney holds over following expiration of the term of office. Therefore, a qualified town attorney lawfully holding over in the office continues to hold office until a successor is nominated by the mayor and approved by the town council. 47 A.G. Op. 16 (1998).

Loss of Office Caused by Change of Residency — Urban Renewal Agency Commissioner: Under 2-16-501, a member of a board of commissioners of an urban renewal agency loses his seat on the board if he ceases to be a resident of the municipality that created the board. (See 1997 amendment.) 41 A.G. Op. 1 (1985).

1981 Amendment: In (1) substituted language relating to filling a vacancy of an elective office at the next general municipal election and appointing a successor within 30 days for "the council, by a majority vote of the members, may fill the same for the unexpired term and until the qualification of the successor"; and deleted "but if the council shall fail to fill such vacancy before the time for the next election, the qualified electors of such city or ward may nominate and elect a successor to such office" after "vacancy exists" in (2).

Case Notes

Filling Vacancy — Right to Vote: Having been rightfully chosen by the City Council to fill a vacancy in its own body and after taking and subscribing the constitutional oath, an alderman had the right to have his vote on the question of filling another vacancy, caused by death, recorded, even though a certificate of election had not been issued to him and irrespective of the mayor's refusal to recognize him or of the fact that an action to determine his official status was then pending. State ex rel. Wilson v. Willis, 47 M 548, 133 P 962 (1913).

Majority Vote: The provision of this section, requiring "a majority vote of the members" of the City Council, that is, a majority of those constituting the actual membership of the body at the time, to fill a vacancy in an elective city office, and not 7-5-4121, making "a majority of the whole number of the members elected" requisite for such purpose, is applicable in case a vacancy in its own body caused by resignation or death is to be filled. State ex rel. Wilson v. Willis, 47 M 548, 133 P 962 (1913), distinguished in State ex rel. O'Hern v. Loud, 92 M 307, 14 P2d 432 (1932).

Attorney General's Opinions

Term of Appointment of Vacancy in Office of City Judge — Commission-Manager Form of Government: Under the specific provisions of 7-3-4462, a person who is appointed to fill a vacancy in the office of City Judge under a commission-manager form of city government shall serve the remainder of the existing term. 52 A.G. Op. 2 (2007).

7-4-4113. Removal of appointed officer.Case Notes

Misconduct — Intent Involved: To justify removal of an officer for misconduct, it is not necessary that the actions made the basis of the charge against him must have been willful; the official doing of an act may constitute misconduct, although there was no corrupt or malicious motive. Bailey v. Examining and Trial Bd., 45 M 197, 122 P 572 (1912); State ex rel. Ryan v. Bd.

of Aldermen, 45 M 188, 122 P 569 (1912); State ex rel. Rowe v. District Court, 44 M 318, 119 P 1103 (1911); State ex rel. Wynne v. Examining and Trial Bd., 43 M 389, 117 P 77 (1911); Leggatt v. Prideaux, 16 M 205, 40 P 377 (1895).

Misconduct of Alderman: An alderman was properly found guilty of misconduct in office and removed, on the grounds that in his capacity as an attorney at law he defended one charged with conducting business without paying a license tax and accepted a retainer to prosecute a suit against the town for damages and an injunction in regard to a sewer. (Decided prior to 1974 amendment inserting "nonelected" before "officer"—annotator.) State ex rel. Ryan v. Bd. of Aldermen, 45 M 188, 122 P 569 (1912).

City Judge:

The office of Police Judge (now City Judge) is a creature not of the constitution but of the statute, and the incumbent thereof is not liable to impeachment. He is, however, a city officer and may therefore, in a proper case, be removed by the City Council. State ex rel. Working v. Mayor, 43 M 61, 114 P 777 (1911).

Prohibition does not lie at the suit of a Police Judge (now City Judge) of a city to prohibit the City Council from proceeding to remove him from office, where written charges have not been filed against him as required by this section. State ex rel. Working v. Mayor, 43 M 61, 114 P 777 (1911).

Construction of Section: This section is in consonance with Art. V, sec. 18, 1889 Mont. Const. (similar to Art. V, sec. 13(1), 1972 Mont. Const.), subjecting officers not liable to impeachment to removal in the manner provided by law, and is a proper exercise of the legislative authority therein granted. State ex rel. Working v. Mayor, 43 M 61, 114 P 777 (1911).

7-4-4201. Salary of officers.

Attorney General's Opinions

Increase of Officer's Salary During His Term: This section does not prohibit a City Council from increasing the salary of a municipal officer during the officer's term of office. It is clear from the title and substance of Ch. 221, L. 1979, that the Legislature intended to make a change in this section by deleting the prohibition against increasing or diminishing a municipal officer's salary during his term of office. 38 A.G. Op. 45 (1979).

Prohibition Against Salary Changes Not Revived by Contemporaneous Amendments: The enactment of Ch. 428 and Ch. 443, L. 1979, which amended former subsection (2) of 7-4-4201, did not revive the prohibition against changing the salary of a municipal officer during his term. The Legislature's express deletion of that prohibition in Ch. 221, L. 1979, was in effect a direct repeal of former subsection (2). Neither Ch. 428 nor Ch. 443, L. 1979, expressly or impliedly repeals Ch. 221, L. 1979, and it is not possible for the Legislature to put life into a dead statute by amendment of it. 38 A.G. Case Notes

Nomination and Appointment of Nonelective Officers:

The nominee of a Mayor for a city office (City Engineer) who was not confirmed by a majority of the City Council as required by statute and ordinance does not assume the status of an officer. State ex rel. Sandquist v. Rogers, 93 M 355, 18 P2d 617 (1933).

The Town Clerk is an appointive officer, and the Mayor of a city or town has power "to nominate, and, with the consent of the council, to appoint all nonelective officers of the city or town, provided for by the council". The power to nominate to fill a nonelective office also includes like authority when a vacancy arises therein, but in either event the appointment is not effective until concurred in by a majority of the City or Town Council. State ex rel. Peterson v. Peck, 91 M 5, 4 P2d 1086 (1931).

Status of Mayor Generally: While the Mayor of a city is not, strictly speaking, a member of the Council in the sense that an Alderman is, yet he is such to the extent of the powers committed to him under this section and 7-5-4102(2). State ex rel. O'Hern v. Loud, 92 M 307, 14 P2d 432 (1932).

Police Officers — Appointment and Suspension: Insofar as the method of appointment and suspension of members of the police force is concerned, this section is repealed by the Metropolitan Police Law (Ch. 136, L. 1907; codified in Title 7, ch. 32). State ex rel. Wynne v. Quinn, 40 M 472, 107 P 506 (1910).

Administrative Assistant — Mayoral Appointment: Although the City Council's contract and budget approval powers may affect the mayor's practical ability to provide a particular compensation amount to an administrative assistant or establish other employment conditions, they do not obviate his authority to fill that position without Council approval. Constitutionality of Freeholder Requirement — Enactment Void: The freeholder requirement of this section (prior to 1979 amendment) was unconstitutional since it bore no relation to a person's qualifications and ability to serve as City Councilman, resulting in an invidious discrimination violative of equal protection. Thus, appellant's false swearing as to freeholder status in his filed declaration of nomination did not constitute a violation of the election laws. Sadler v. Connolly, 175 M 484, 575 P2d 51 (1978), distinguished in Johnson v. Killingsworth, 271 M 1, 894 P2d 272, 52 St. Rep. 274 (1995).

Attorney General's Opinions

Reapportionment — Holdover Aldermen: There is no provision in the Montana Constitution or statutes that authorizes the shortening of an alderman's term of office. The fact that ward boundaries may change as a result of reapportionment and that some voters may be represented for 2 years by an alderman for whom they had no opportunity to vote has not justified a deviation from state law, the shortening of terms, in other jurisdictions. Where state law provides for the length of term of an elected official and for the staggering of terms to insure continuity and stability, those requirements are paramount to the temporary disenfranchisement that necessarily follows a reapportionment. Montana state law regarding 4-year staggered terms for aldermen and the absence of any applicable statute authorizing the removal of incumbents from office after reapportionment determine that an alderman elected to a 4-year term in 1982 need not run for reelection in 1983 as a result of reapportionment and redistricting. 40 A.G. Reception of Reports: Where accountants are employed to audit the books of a city and their contract calls for a report to the city, but before it is made two copies thereof are handed to the Mayor, at his request, one of which he presents to the City Council and the other he receives as his own, the Mayor's duty is fully discharged. After seeing that the copy presented to the Council finds its way into the hands of the City Clerk and is by him filed among the records of his office, the Mayor has a right to retain the other copy among his private papers. Butte v. Nevin, 46 M 380, 128 P 600 (1912).

Compensation of President: The Council may or may not elect a president. When elected, he must be held to know whether provision has been made for his compensation; if none has been made in the mode prescribed by law, then he is entitled to none and has no legal claim against the city therefor. *McGillic v. Guidelines for Distinguishing Between Legislative and Administrative Acts of Local Government — Initiative and Referendum Power Reserved for Legislative Acts Only: Beginning with Billings v. Nore, 148 M 96, 417 P2d 458 (1966), the Supreme Court recognized a distinction between legislative acts, which are subject to the powers of initiative and referendum, and administrative or quasi-judicial acts, which are not. Because local governments are empowered by Art. XI, sec. 4, Mont. Const., to exercise legislative, administrative, and other powers, the question arose as to whether this section unconstitutionally limits local government referendum power to resolutions and ordinances within the legislative jurisdiction. In order to clarify the distinction between legislative and administrative acts of a local government, the Supreme Court adopted the following guidelines in Wichita v. Kans. Taxpayers Network, 874 P2d 667 (Kans. 1994): (1) An ordinance that makes new law is legislative, while an ordinance that executes an existing law is administrative. Permanency and generality are key features of a legislative ordinance. (2) Acts that declare public purpose and provide ways and means to accomplish that purpose generally may be classified as legislative. Acts that deal with a small segment of an overall policy question generally are administrative. (3) Decisions that require specialized training and experience in municipal government and intimate knowledge of the fiscal and other affairs of a city in order to make a rational choice may properly be characterized as administrative, even though they may also be said to involve the establishment of a policy. (4) No act of a governing body is likely to be solely administrative or legislative, and the operation of the initiative and referendum statute is restricted to measures that are quite clearly and fully legislative and not principally executive or administrative. In the present case, an ordinance that implemented the use of water meters as part of a town's water system improvement plan was an administrative act that was not subject to referendum. The District Court properly declared a referendum challenging the ordinance invalid. The Supreme Court affirmed the constitutionality of this section. Whitehall v. Preece, 1998 MT 53, 288 M 55, 956 P2d 743, 55 St. Rep. 219 (1998), overruling Chouteau County v. Grossman, 172 M 373, 563 P2d 1125 (1977), and Dieruf v. Bozeman, 173 M 447, 568 P2d 127 (1977), to the extent that those decisions stand for the rule that a local government's act is administrative based solely on a statutory grant of authority.

Statute of Limitations Applicable to Suit to Determine Validity of Initiative or Referendum: A suit to determine the validity and constitutionality of a petition for initiative or referendum must be initiated within 14 days of the date on which the petition is approved as to form by the local government attorney, as set out in 7-5-135. Whitehall v. Preece, 1998 MT 53, 288 M 55, 956 P2d 743, 55 St. Rep. 219 (1998).

Rezoning Ordinance Subject to Referendum — No Distinction Between Zoning and Rezoning for Referendum Purposes: A community group filed a petition seeking a referendum to repeal a rezoning ordinance. Plaintiff, the owner of historic land that it wanted to develop, filed a declaratory judgment action against the city, seeking to have the referendum process refused. The community group was allowed to intervene. The motion for summary judgment was denied; the referendum was held; and the voters supported repeal of the ordinance. The Supreme Court held that the District Court correctly interpreted this section to mean that referendum by the people is appropriate for both zoning ordinances and rezoning ordinances. The Supreme Court overruled specific language in prior cases that distinguished between zoning and rezoning ordinances. The Greens at Fort Missoula, LLC v. Missoula, 271 M 398, 897 P2d 1078, 52 St. Rep. 501 (1995).

Resolution Creating Special Improvement District — Not Subject to Referendum: A resolution creating a municipal special improvement district that encompasses less area than the municipal limits is not subject to referendum because the resolution affects only the people within the improvement district rather than the people of the municipality as a whole. The Supreme Court further held that the resolution creating a special improvement district is part of an administrative procedure, not a legislative action subject to referendum. Shelby v. Sandholm, 208 M 77, 676 P2d 178, 41 St. Rep. 186 (1984), distinguished in The Greens at Fort Missoula, LLC v. Missoula, 271 M 398, 897 P2d 1078, 52 St. Rep. 501 (1995).

Attorney General's Opinions

Merger of Fire Services Between City and County With General Government Powers Not Allowed: A proposed city initiative would have merged a city fire department and a rural county fire district into a new fire protection district with an urban and a rural division. However, both the city and county were local government units with general government powers and had not been consolidated as allowed by law. Under the provisions of the initiative, neither fire department would maintain its own identity; therefore, the proposed merger would abrogate the city fire department as a separate entity and would be an invalid exercise of general government powers. This opinion does not preclude the provision of fire protection services in a cooperative fashion through an interlocal agreement that city voters may, by initiative, require the city governing body to pursue. 43 A.G. Op. 56 (1990).

Case Notes

Equitable Tolling and Estoppel Inapplicable to Stay Statutory Deadlines for Collecting Petition Signatures: The Flathead County Board of County Commissioners adopted a resolution approving a developer's amendment to the county master plan that would allow the building of a regional shopping mall. Plaintiff organization was then formed to put the resolution to a vote of the qualified county electors through the initiative and referendum process, but plaintiff failed to gather enough valid signatures within the statutory deadlines. During the signature-gathering period, the Flathead County Attorney determined that only qualified electors in the area covered by the master plan, rather than all qualified county electors, could sign the petition and vote on any resulting referendum. Plaintiff filed suit, seeking a writ of mandamus requiring the County Commissioners to proceed with the process or an alternative writ seeking relief through a declaratory judgment. The alternative writ was issued and then quashed and dismissed. Plaintiff contended that equitable tolling should have tolled the statute of limitations on gathering signatures because the County Commissioners were urged to file suit to determine which voters were eligible to sign the petition and vote on the resulting referendum. However, the County Commissioners declined to file suit, so the period to collect signatures was not tolled, and plaintiff's equitable tolling argument failed. Plaintiff also argued that the County Commissioners should be equitably estopped from using the statutory deadlines to defeat the qualified electors' exercise of their petition rights. The estoppel argument also failed because plaintiff failed to prove the first element of estoppel—that the County Commissioners misrepresented a material fact. The elements of neither equitable tolling nor estoppel having been proved, the District Court's quashing of plaintiff's writ of mandamus was affirmed. Let the 1991 Amendment: In (2) deleted second sentence requiring review of sample petition by election administrator; in (3), at end of first sentence, deleted "for preparation of the ballot statement" and in second sentence, after "shall", inserted "review the sample petition for form and compliance with 7-5-131 and 7-5-132 and"; in (5), after "notice", inserted "and a statement of the reasons for rejection" and increased time period for rejection notice from 10 days to 21 days; and made minor changes in style.

Case Notes

Equitable Tolling and Estoppel Inapplicable to Stay Statutory Deadlines for Collecting Petition Signatures: The Flathead County Board of County Commissioners adopted a resolution approving a developer's amendment to the county master plan that would allow the building of a regional shopping mall. Plaintiff organization was then formed to put the resolution to a vote of the qualified county electors through the initiative and referendum process, but plaintiff failed to gather enough valid signatures within the statutory deadlines. During the signature-gathering period, the Flathead County Attorney determined that only qualified electors in the area covered by the master plan, rather than all qualified county electors, could sign the petition and vote on any resulting referendum. Plaintiff filed suit, seeking a writ of mandamus requiring the County Commissioners to proceed with the process or an alternative writ seeking relief through a declaratory judgment. The alternative writ was issued and then quashed and dismissed. Plaintiff contended that equitable tolling should have tolled the statute of limitations on gathering signatures because the County Commissioners were urged to file suit to determine which voters were eligible to sign the petition and vote on the resulting referendum. However, the County Commissioners declined to file suit, so the period to collect signatures was not tolled, and plaintiff's equitable tolling argument failed. Plaintiff also argued that the County Commissioners should be equitably estopped from using the statutory deadlines to defeat the qualified electors' exercise of their petition rights. The estoppel argument also failed because plaintiff failed to prove the first element of estoppel—that the County Commissioners misrepresented a material fact. The elements of neither equitable tolling nor estoppel having been proved, the District Court's quashing of plaintiff's writ of mandamus was affirmed. Let the People Vote v. Flathead County Bd. of County Comm'rs, 2005 MT 225, 328 M 361, 120 P3d 385 (2005).

Statute of Limitations Applicable to Suit to Determine Validity of Initiative or Referendum: A suit to determine the validity and constitutionality of a petition for initiative or referendum must be initiated within 14 days of the date on which the petition is approved as to form by the local government attorney, as set out in 7-5-135. Whitehall v. Preece, 1998 MT 53, 288 M 55, 956 P2d 743, 55 St. Rep. 219 (1998).

Attorney General's Opinions

Initiative Inappropriate Process for Alteration of Method of Establishment and Collection of County Solid Waste Management District Service Charges: The initiative process may not be used to amend the resolution creating a county solid waste management district when the district encompasses an area smaller than the entire county and the initiative petition seeks to alter the method of establishing and collecting service charges. Such a proposed action is administrative in character rather than a legislative act subject to initiative or referendum. 45 A.G. Op. 5 (1993).

Power of County Election Administrator to Reject Initiative Petition if Subject Matter Outside Scope of Initiative Process: A county election administrator, upon the advice of the County Attorney, may reject a sample initiative petition when it does not involve a matter subject to the initiative or referendum process. 45 A.G. Op. 5 (1993).

(2) The complaint shall name as defendants not less than 10 or more than 20 of the petitioners. In addition to the names of the defendants, to the caption of the complaint there shall be added the words: "And all petitioners whose names appear on the petition for an ordinance filed on the ... day of, in the year ...", stating the date of filing. The summons shall be similarly directed and shall be served on the defendants named therein and in addition shall be published"; inserted (2) providing that an action under this section takes precedence over other District Court matters; inserted (3) concerning defendant's costs and attorney fees; and inserted (4) regarding time period for collecting petition signatures.

Equitable Tolling and Estoppel Inapplicable to Stay Statutory Deadlines for Collecting Petition Signatures: The Flathead County Board of County Commissioners adopted a resolution approving a developer's amendment to the county master plan that would allow the building of a regional shopping mall. Plaintiff contended that equitable tolling should have tolled the statute of limitations on gathering signatures because the County Commissioners were urged to file suit to determine which voters were eligible to sign the petition and vote on the resulting referendum. However, the County Commissioners declined to file suit, so the period to collect signatures was not tolled, and plaintiff's equitable tolling argument failed. Plaintiff also argued that the County Commissioners should be equitably estopped from using the statutory deadlines to defeat the qualified electors' exercise of their petition rights. The estoppel argument also failed because plaintiff failed to prove the first element of estoppel—that the County Commissioners misrepresented a material fact. The elements of neither equitable tolling nor estoppel having been proved, the District Court's quashing of plaintiff's writ of mandamus was affirmed. Let the People Vote v. Flathead County Bd. of County Comm'rs, 2005 MT 225, 328 M 361, 120 P3d 385 (2005).

District Court Authority to Determine Constitutionality of Proposed County Ordinance: In 1994, Ravalli County voters passed three ordinances, seeking to control obscenity and the display and distribution of obscene material to minors. The ordinances were subsequently held unconstitutional, but in 2002, defendant again filed two proposed ordinances with the Ravalli

County Clerk and Recorder, seeking to proscribe the same conduct. The county asked the District Court to rule on the constitutionality of the proposed ordinances pursuant to this section, but the court declined on grounds that: (1) the proposed ordinances were legislative rather than administrative and therefore valid under the Montana Constitution; (2) this section did not vest a District Court with jurisdiction to determine the constitutionality of an ordinance prior to adoption; (3) a suit is not a method by which a party may have a District Court prematurely consider the constitutionality of the subject matter of a proposed initiative or referendum prior to placement of the measure on the ballot; (4) ruling on a proposed ordinance would force the court to issue an advisory opinion on constitutionality in the absence of any defined basis for a constitutional attack; and (5) under Hardy v. Progressive Specialty Ins. Co., 2003 MT 85, 315 M 107, 67 P3d 892 (2003), a preliminary ruling would allow the county to avoid the burden of showing the unconstitutionality of a legislative enactment beyond a reasonable doubt. The county appealed, and the Supreme Court reversed. The burden of proof requirement articulated in Hardy applies to constitutional challenges to existing statutes, not to proposed initiatives and referenda. Although the constitutionality of an enacted legislative statute is prima facie presumed, there is no presumption of validity of a proposed statute. Under the plain meaning of this section, a District Court must, after conducting any appropriate briefing and factfinding, determine whether a proposed ordinance would be constitutional and valid if passed. The case was remanded for substantive District Court review of the proposed ordinances. Ravalli County v. Erickson, 2004 MT 35, 320 M 31, 85 P3d 772 (2004).

Guidelines for Distinguishing Between Legislative and Administrative Acts of Local Government — Initiative and Referendum Power Reserved for Legislative Acts Only: Beginning with Billings v. Nore, 148 M 96, 417 P2d 458 (1966), the Supreme Court recognized a distinction between legislative acts, which are subject to the powers of initiative and referendum, and administrative or quasi-judicial acts, which are not. Because local governments are empowered by Art. XI, sec. 4, Mont. Const., to exercise legislative, administrative, and other powers, the question arose as to whether 7-5-131 unconstitutionally limits local government referendum power to resolutions and ordinances within the legislative jurisdiction. In order to clarify the distinction between legislative and administrative acts of a local government, the Supreme Court adopted the following guidelines in Wichita v. Kans. Taxpayers Network, 874 P2d 667 (Kans. 1994): (1) An ordinance that makes new law is legislative, while an ordinance that executes an existing law is administrative. Permanency and generality are key features of a legislative ordinance. (2) Acts that declare public purpose and provide ways and means to accomplish that purpose generally may be classified as legislative. Acts that deal with a small segment of an overall policy question generally are administrative. (3) Decisions that require specialized training and experience in municipal government and intimate knowledge of the fiscal and other affairs of a city in order to make a rational choice may properly be characterized as administrative, even though they may also be said to involve the establishment of a policy. (4) No act of a governing body is likely to be solely administrative or legislative, and the operation of the initiative and referendum statute is restricted to measures that are quite clearly and fully legislative and not principally executive or administrative. In the present case, an ordinance that implemented the use of water meters as part of a town's water system improvement plan was an administrative act that was not subject to referendum. The District Court properly declared a referendum challenging the ordinance invalid. The Supreme Court affirmed the constitutionality of 7-5-131. Whitehall v. Preece, 1998 MT 53, 288 M 55, 956 P2d 743, 55 St. Rep. 219 (1998), overruling Chouteau County v. Grossman, 172 M 373, 563 P2d 1125 (1977), and Dieruf v. Bozeman, 173 M 447, 568 P2d 127 (1977), to the extent that those decisions stand for the rule that a local government's act is administrative based solely on a statutory grant of authority.

Statute of Limitations Applicable to Suit to Determine Validity of Initiative or Referendum: A suit to determine the validity and constitutionality of a petition for initiative or referendum must be initiated within 14 days of the date on which the petition is approved as to form by the local government attorney, as set out in this section. *Whitehall v. Attorney General's Opinions

Self-Government Powers: Under a form of government with local self-government powers, the replacement of former county officers with department supervisors is a legitimate exercise of such local self-government powers. Section 7-4-2503 does not apply to self-government units since it may be superseded by ordinance or resolution of the Commission and is not prohibited by 7-1-114(g). 37 A.G. Op. 68 (1977).

Part 21 Conduct of County Government

7-5-2101. General authority of county commissioners.

Attorney General's Opinions

County May Offer Employee Payments in Lieu of Participation in Group Health Plan: In contrast to state employees, a Board of County Commissioners may, in exercising its general authority to manage county business and set employee compensation, offer payment to a county employee in lieu of the employee's participation in a group health plan. 51 A.G. Op. 11 (2005).

Termination of Payments in Lieu of Participation in Group Health Plan for Nonunion County Employee: The Board of County Commissioners may terminate payments in lieu of participation in a group health plan for a nonunion county employee only if termination is consistent with the county's employment agreement with the employee. 51 A.G. Op. 11 (2005).

When Collective Bargaining Agreement That Includes Payments in Lieu of Group Health Plan Participation May Be Altered: When a collective bargaining agreement includes a provision for payments to county employees in lieu of participation in a group health plan, that provision may not be altered by the Board of County Commissioners without the written agreement of the collective bargaining unit. 51 A.G. Op. 11 (2005). See also 43 A.G. Op. 79 (1990).

No Authority of Board of County Commissioners to Reduce County Auditor Office to Part-Time Position: Montana statutes contemplate a full-time County Auditor with a full-time salary in every county with a population of greater than 15,000. Although County Commissions do have the authority to consolidate certain county offices, including the County Auditor's office, no existing statute contemplates a reduction of the office of County Auditor to a part-time position. Had the Legislature intended to expressly authorize County Commissions to reduce the office, it would have adopted legislation similar to that for County Attorneys and County Superintendents. The authority in 7-6-2412 extends to the imposition of additional County Auditor duties, not to the reduction of hours worked. There is no express or implied authority for counties with general powers to reduce the office of County Auditor to a half-time position. 47 A.G. Op. 18 (1998).

County Commissioner and County Coordinator of Disaster and Emergency Services Incompatible — Positions Not to Be Held Simultaneously: The Board of County Commissioners has the power of supervision, revision, and removal over the position of county coordinator of disaster and emergency services. Therefore, under the common-law doctrine of incompatible public offices, the office of County Commissioner and the position of county coordinator of disaster and emergency services are incompatible and one person may not hold both jobs simultaneously. 46 A.G. Op. 26 (1996).

Provision of Office Space and Equipment by County for Part-Time County Attorney: A county governing body may satisfy its obligation to provide office space for a part-time County Attorney by providing space in a county building or, if no suitable space is available, by renting office space. Use of the space for the County Attorney's private practice is allowed only through a written agreement between the county and the County Attorney leasing the use of the space for private business purposes. Alternatively, the governing body may allow a claim by the County Attorney for the rental of office space needed to conduct the county's business if suitable office space is not available in county buildings. A county governing body may satisfy its obligation to provide necessary equipment for a part-time County Attorney by providing the use of the equipment owned by the county or, if no suitable equipment is available, by renting equipment. Use of the equipment for the County Attorney's private practice is allowed only through a written agreement between the county and the County Attorney leasing the use of the equipment for private business purposes. 46 A.G. Op. 10 (1995), followed in 46 A.G. Op. 20 (1996).

Authority of County to Issue General Obligation Bonds for Demolition of Abandoned County Building: Under its general duty to care for and maintain its property, a county, through its Board of County Commissioners, may issue general obligation bonds to fund demolition of a county-owned building that has been abandoned and poses a threat to the public safety and welfare. 44 A.G. Op. 31 (1992).

Lack of County Authority to Implement Employee Safety Incentive Bonus Program: A county with general government powers has no inherent authority within its statutory system to implement an employee incentive award program whereby county employees are paid bonuses for maintaining accident-free periods in their departments. 42 A.G. Op. 111 (1988).

Act Allowing Private Parties to Contract for Jails Not in Conflict With Local Government Regulatory Statutes: The act allowing counties to contract with private parties for the building, maintenance, and operation of jails, enacted as Chapter 447, L. 1985, does not directly conflict with other Montana statutes regulating the indebtedness, contracts, jail facilities, or interlocal agreements of local governments. However, Chapter 447 is subject to the various applicable limitations contained in those statutes. 42 A.G. Op. 81 (1988).

County Buildings — Use of Rent for Costs: If no sale of the building is being attempted, a Board of County Commissioners may use money obtained from tenants of a county building to defray the operational and maintenance costs of the building. 40 A.G. Op. 33 (1984).

County Regulatory Power — District Courts: Montana's District Courts are clothed with inherent and statutory power to do all that is necessary to render their jurisdiction effective, including the power to hire necessary court personnel and control them; but it appears that requiring District Court personnel to also abide by county policies and regulations is not an undue interference with the judicial branch. The scope of the judicial authority in this matter in relation to county authority is not an appropriate matter for an Attorney General opinion and would be more appropriately disposed of by either an understanding between the court and the county or a judgment in a court of proper jurisdiction. 39 A.G. Op. 38 (1981).

County Regulatory Power — Personnel Policies: Personnel policies established by a Board of County Commissioners, including a requirement that employees submit timesheets, are within the statutory and implied powers of the Board as necessary for the administration of county business, and one receiving a county paycheck must abide by the personnel policies of the Board. 39 A.G. Op. 38 (1981).

Method of Exercising County Powers When None Specified: Where powers are conferred by statute on a Board of County Commissioners but the mode in which the authority is to be exercised is not indicated, the Board, in its discretion, may select any appropriate mode or course of procedure. 39 A.G. Op. 38 (1981).

When Commissioners May Waive Privilege of Pleading Statute of Limitations: The Commissioners, under this section, may decline to plead the Statute of Limitations in an action on a claim against the county, whenever in their opinion the facts showing that bar of the statute could not be established. Therefore, they may stipulate in an agreed statement that the claim is not barred. The Statute of Limitations grants a personal privilege that may be waived; it must be pleaded to be available as a defense. Weir v. Silver Bow County, 113 M 237, 124 P2d 1003 (1942).

Attorney General's Opinions

Authority of County Commissioners to Employ Private Attorney: A County Attorney may not unreasonably withhold his consent to the employment of another attorney by the Board of County Commissioners to perform legal services in connection with the civil business of the county. The decision of a County Attorney to withhold his consent is subject to the supervisory authority of the Attorney General. 41 A.G. Op. 34 (1985).

7-5-2106. Control of conflict of interest.Attorney General's Opinions

Definitions — Incorporation: Since the Legislature is presumed not to perform useless acts, the definitions of "be interested in" and "contract" contained in 2-2-201 are incorporated into and are applicable to 7-5-2106 and 7-5-4109, which relate to the same subject matter, conflicts of interest for local government officials. 40 A.G. Op. 28 (1983).

Disclosure — Abstinence From Voting — When Contract Voidable: Where a local government official has a conflict of interest, such as a substantial interest in a business bidding on a local government contract, the official must comply with the disclosure and abstinence from voting provisions of 2-2-125, now repealed and 2-2-131, even though the interest may be permissible under the exceptions contained in 2-2-201. If the interest is not permissible under the exceptions listed in 2-2-201, the contract is voidable and abstinence from voting will not exonerate the official. (See 1995 amendments to 2-2-125, now repealed and 2-2-131.) 40 A.G. Op. 28 (1983).

County Commissioners — Fiduciary Duty: A County Commissioner who is a voting member of the board of an organization that actually receives county contract funds does not have a prohibited conflict of interest under 7-5-2106 unless the Commissioner receives a personal pecuniary or proprietary benefit from the contract. He does, however, breach his fiduciary duty under 2-2-125(2)(b) (now repealed) by acting officially to award county contracts to the organization unless he complies with the voluntary disclosure requirements of 2-2-125(3) (now repealed). (See 1995 amendments to 2-2-125, now repealed and 2-2-131.) 38 A.G. Op. 55 (1979).

County Commissioners — Prohibited Interests: A County Commissioner who is a voting member of a board that channels county contract funds to other organizations but does not itself derive any economic benefit from the contract does not have a prohibited interest in the contract under 7-5-2106 and does not breach his fiduciary duty under 2-2-125(2)(b) (now repealed) by acting officially to allocate funds to that board for subsequent disbursement. (See 1995 amendments to 2-2-125, (now repealed) and 2-2-131.) 38 A.G. Op. 55 (1979).

7-5-2107. Employment of personnel by county commissioners.Case Notes

Contract Providing Monthly Payments Not Establishment of Employment Relationship: A county contract for provision of certain legal services expressly provided independent contractor status because: (1) the county had no right to control the firm that was awarded the contract; (2) the firm was customarily engaged in independent practice; and (3) the contract was unnecessary for the firm to continue its business. Because an independent contract was indicated by these facts, the veterans' preference did not apply to hiring of the contractor, despite the contention that a contract provision for monthly payments established an employment relationship. Hamner v. Butte-Silver Bow County, 233 M 271, 760 P2d 76, 45 St. Rep. 1481 (1988).

Attorney General's Opinions

County May Offer Employee Payments in Lieu of Participation in Group Health Plan: In contrast to state employees, a Board of County Commissioners may, in exercising its general authority to manage county business and set employee compensation, offer payment to a county employee in lieu of the employee's participation in a group health plan. 51 A.G. Termination of Payments in Lieu of Participation in Group Health Plan for Nonunion County Employee: The Board of County Commissioners may terminate payments in lieu of participation in a group health plan for a nonunion county employee only if termination is consistent with the county's employment agreement with the employee. 51 A.G. Op. 11 (2005).

When Collective Bargaining Agreement That Includes Payments in Lieu of Group Health Plan Participation May Be Altered: When a collective bargaining agreement includes a provision for payments to county employees in lieu of participation in a group health plan, that provision may not be altered by the Board of County Commissioners without the written agreement of the collective bargaining unit. 51 A.G. Record of Board Proceedings: The County Clerk and Recorder is not required to attend the meetings of the Board of County Commissioners and take the original notes of the proceedings, unless the Board so requests. The Clerk and Recorder's responsibilities, as they relate to the proceedings of the Board, are to record the minutes of the proceedings into the minute book and to make the book available for public examination upon request. The Board is responsible for the preparation, content, and publication of the minutes. The Board may employ its own personnel to take the original notes during the meetings pursuant to this section. 41 A.G. Op. 19 (1985).

District Court Employees as County Employees: District Court employees are paid by the county in which the court is located, receive the same county benefits as all other county employees, and are therefore county employees. 39 A.G. Op. 38 (1981).

Persons Considered County Employees: An employee who under state statutes receives a county payroll check and county fringe benefits, such as health insurance, unemployment insurance, workers' compensation, and state retirement benefits, is considered a county employee. 39 A.G. Op. 38 (1981).

Soil Conservation District Employees as County Employees: Although soil conservation districts are distinct governmental entities covering more than one county and the statutes governing the districts do not expressly designate district personnel as county employees to be included on the county payroll, if a county does include district personnel on its payroll, giving them the same benefits received by other county employees, to that extent district personnel must be considered county employees. 39 A.G. Op. 38 (1981).

No Salary Limitation as to Assistants to County Commissioners: The salaries of administrative assistants employed by a Board of County Commissioners are not limited by 7-4-2505, since County Commissioners are not included in the definitive list of county officers to which that section applies. Salaries of the administrative assistants may be set pursuant to 7-5-2107 which contains no limitation as to amount. 38 A.G. Op. 43 (1979).

7-5-2108. County work week.

Full-Time District Court Reporters Subject to Statutory Workweek Requirement — Recordkeeping Required — Designation of Court Reporter's "Workstation": A District Court reporter who is treated as a full-time salaried county employee is subject to the statutory 40-hour

workweek requirement in this section, and recordkeeping to document a court reporter's working hours, including overtime, annual leave, and sick leave, must be as determined by the District Court Judge who employs the court reporter. However, any method used to fulfill these requirements must comport with the District Court Judge's authority to control court assistants because allowing a Board of County Commissioners to enforce county personnel policies on court reporters would infringe on that authority. Any mandatory location of work for a court reporter that is set by anyone but the District Court Judge would interfere with the necessary flexibility of the judge. Thus, a court reporter's "workstation" is wherever that reporter is required to be to perform the duties for the judge for whom that court reporter works. Bd. of County Comm'rs v. District Court, 2000 MT 258, 301 M 496, 10 P3d 805, 57 St. Rep. 1061 (2000).

Attorney General's Opinions

Secretarial Services for Private Practice of County Attorney: A secretary employed by the county to assist a County Attorney may work on the County Attorney's private business during time when the secretary's services are not needed on county business. The County Attorney must account for the time that the secretary spends on private business and reimburse the county for any county-compensated time spent on the County Attorney's private business. A claim by a County Attorney for secretarial services reasonably required for the conduct of the County Attorney's official duties is a legitimate claim against the county. The reasonableness of the claim is a question of fact vested in the sound discretion of the county governing body. 46 A.G. Op. 10 (1995). See also 46 A.G. Op. 20 (1996), in which the Attorney General held that a County Attorney may not compel the County Commissioners to authorize the hiring as a county employee of a legal secretary for the County Attorney absent a showing that any other arrangement would prevent the County Attorney from performing the minimum statutory duties.

District Court Employees' Workweek: District Court employees are paid by the county in which the court is situated and are considered county employees; therefore, they are salaried county employees under this section and must work a 40-hour week if required. 39 A.G. Op. 38 (1981).

Salary Computation for Portion of Month: The salary of a county employee employed on a 40-hour workweek is determined for a portion of a month by multiplying the monthly salary by 12 and dividing the annual salary thus determined by 52 weeks to determine the weekly rate of pay or by 2,080 hours to determine the hourly rate of pay. 34 A.G. 7-5-2122. Meetings of board of county commissioners.

Case Notes

Notice of Public Meeting Held Insufficient: Where two of three County Commissioners held a telephone meeting to discuss approval of a preliminary subdivision plat and were required to give notice of the meeting, the Board failed to comply in that county newspaper article did not supply sufficient facts concerning the time and place of the meeting to permit further public comment, nor was 2 days' posted public notice ever given. Bd. of Trustees v. County Comm'rs, 186 M 148, 606 P2d 1069, 37 St. Rep. 175 (1980).

Telephone Conversation as Constituting a "Meeting" — Notice Required to Be Given: Where two of three County Commissioners discussed by telephone the approval of a preliminary plat of a subdivision, a "meeting" as defined in 2-3-202 took place, and the Commissioners were subject to the requirement that notice of the meeting be given in accordance with statute. Bd. of Trustees v. County Comm'rs, 186 M 148, 606 P2d 1069, 37 St. Rep. 175 (1980).

Attorney General's Opinions

Applicability of Open Meeting and Public Participation Laws to County Commission Meetings — Notice Required in Matters of Significant Public Interest: The gathering of a quorum of County Commissioners to discuss, either among themselves or with members of the public, issues over which the County Commission has authority is a meeting subject to open meeting laws. Meetings involving the consideration of matters of significant public interest, meaning decisions involving more than a ministerial act requiring no exercise of judgment, are subject to public participation mandates, including notice requirements and the opportunity for public participation in the decisionmaking process. Thus, a County Commission that established the hours of 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, as its regular meeting time for public notice purposes, did not comply with Montana's constitutional and statutory public participation provisions. 47 A.G. Op. 13 (1998). See also 42 A.G. Op. 51 (1988).

County Commission Meeting as "Meeting" Under Open Meetings Law: A regularly scheduled meeting between a Board of County Commissioners and its staff is a "meeting" within the terms of the open meetings law, Title 2, ch. 3, part 2. 41 A.G. Op. 38 (1985).

7-5-2123. Publication of board proceedings and annual financial statement.

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 299 in (1)(b), at beginning of first sentence, deleted "annually" and inserted second sentence requiring notice of availability if financial statement is not published annually; in (2), in second sentence after first "statement", inserted "or notice of the availability of the financial statement"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1989 Amendment: At end of (1)(b) inserted "in full and complete detail or in summary form".

1985 Amendment: In (1)(a) inserted "in full and complete detail or in summary form or by reference, with the full and complete text made available on request"; and at beginning of (2) inserted "in full, in summary, or by reference".

Attorney General's Opinions

Annual Statement of Financial Condition to Be Published in Full: The Board of County Commissioners is obligated to publish the County Clerk's annual statement of financial condition "annually in a newspaper in full" (see 1995 amendment). The statement may not be published in summary form. 42 A.G. Op. 54 (1988). See 1989 amendment that allows statement to be published in summary form.

Publication Mandatory: This section requires a Board of County Commissioners, at the adjournment of each session of the Board, to publish in a newspaper a complete list of all claims ordered paid (prior to 1985 amendment—Annotator) and a fair summary of its proceedings. (See 1995 amendment.) 39 A.G. Op. 77 (1982).

7-5-2125. Open meetings.

Method of Acceptance of Bid by County Commissioners — Vote Recorded in Minutes Held Sufficient: Where the Commissioners of the defendant county voted to accept the plaintiff's bid for a rock crusher but did not issue a written notice of bid award, as was usually done, informing the successful bidder of the acceptance of his bid, the Supreme Court held that the acceptance motion approved by the Commission and recorded in the Commission minutes constituted an acceptance of the bid and that there was no statutory provision for the procedure argued by the county. Modern Mach. v. Flathead County, 202 M 140, 656 P2d 206, 39 St. Rep. 2383 (1982).

Evidentiary Effect of Minute Book: This section providing that a Board of County Commissioners must cause a minute book to be kept in which must be recorded all its orders, decisions, and proceedings does not make such record the only evidence admissible to prove the action of the Board or prohibit oral testimony as to what was actually done. Proof of action has the same effect as though shown by a minute entry. State ex rel. Rankin v. Madison St. Bank, 77 M 498, 251 P 548 (1926).

2007 Amendment: Chapter 61 made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2007.

Clause Not Codified: A part of section 16-907, R.C.M. 1947, stating that the County Clerk is the Clerk for the Board of Commissioners, was not codified because it is redundant with 7-4-2611(1). This clause was not repealed and is still valid law. It may be referred to as sec. 4217, Pol. C. 1895. 7-5-2132. Destruction of county records.Compiler's Comments

1993 Amendment: Chapter 420 near beginning, before "approval", inserted "written", after "approval of the" substituted reference to local government records destruction subcommittee for "department of commerce", after "may destroy" deleted "old worthless reports, papers, or records in his office that have served their purpose and that are substantiated by permanent", and at end inserted reference to records meeting the local government records retention schedules that are no longer needed; and deleted (2) authorizing County Commissioners to adopt retention schedules and destroy documents (see 1993 Session Law for text). Amendment effective April 20, 1993.

1985 Amendment: In (2) substituted (a) and (b) relating to retention schedules for "Any claim, warrant, voucher, bond, or treasurer's general receipt may be destroyed by any county officer after a period of 25 years."

1983 Amendment: Substituted reference to department of commerce for reference to department of administration.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "department of administration" for "department of community affairs" in (1).

Transfer of Function: The function of the Department of Commerce in this section was transferred from the Department of Administration by sec. 1, Ch. 287, L. 1983. Those functions were transferred to the Department of Administration from the Department of Community Affairs by sec. 7, Ch. 274, L. 1981.

Restrictions on Purchasing Contracts: County purchasing contracts were affected by several amendments of existing statutes during the 1981 legislative session. The effect is that after October 1, 1981:

(1) purchases for amounts of $10,000 or less (threshold amount increased by 1991 amendment) may be accomplished without competitive bidding;

(2) purchases for amounts between $10,000 and $25,000 (threshold amount increased by 1991 amendment) may, at the discretion of the county governing body, be accomplished through competitive advertised bidding, competitive nonadvertised bidding, or public auction;

(3) purchases for amounts exceeding $25,000 (threshold amount increased by 1991 amendment) must be accomplished through competitive advertised bidding only. 39 A.G. Op. 27 (1981).

(b) The contract for printed forms, materials, and supplies referred to in subsection (2)(a) or subsection (2)(c) shall be let:

(i) to a commercial printing establishment or establishments, as the case may be, which has been in business in the county for at least 1 year and whose competitive bid is not more than 5% higher than that of the lowest responsible commercial printing establishment bidder doing business outside the county; or

(ii) if no establishment qualifies under subsection (2)(b)(i), to the lowest responsible commercial printing establishment bidder.

(c) Contracts for printed forms, materials, and supplies may be awarded on an annual basis or may be awarded for a specific printing job"; in (3) substituted current language concerning the maintenance of a list of bidders for county printing for "A contract may not call for payment by the county of any prices in excess of the maximum fixed by the board of county printing"; deleted (4) that read: "(4) Nothing in this part shall limit or restrict the power of a board of county commissioners to call for competitive bids from persons or firms qualified to bid on county printing under the terms of this part or to let contracts at prices less than the maximum fixed by the board of county printing"; and made minor changes in style.

1989 Amendment: At beginning of (1) deleted "Except as provided in subsection (2)", after "contract" substituted "for" for "with one newspaper to do", and at beginning of second sentence inserted "advertising required by law shall be awarded to a"; at beginning of (2) deleted "In any county in which no newspaper owns or operates a commercial printing establishment, the county commissioners shall and in counties of the first class"; in (2)(b), after "(2)(a) or", deleted "one separated under"; at beginning of (2)(c) deleted "The board of county commissioners for counties of the first class may award separate" and after "supplies" deleted "required by the counties. The separate contracts"; and made minor changes in phraseology and punctuation.

1985 Amendment: In (2)(b) in lead-in, inserted the reference to printed forms, materials, and supplies and changed a reference to (2)(b) to (2)(c); and in (2)(b)(i) after "1 year", inserted remainder of (2)(b)(i) and (2)(b)(ii) relating to 5% in-county bidding preference.

1981 Amendments: Chapter 70 inserted "or one separated under subsection (2)(b)" at the beginning of the last sentence in (2)(a); inserted (2)(b) relating to printed forms, materials, and supplies; and made minor changes in phraseology.

Chapter 393 substituted the second sentence in (1) that reads: "The newspaper shall be one that is published in the county and of general bona fide and paid circulation with the second-class mailing privilege and has been published as such at least once a week in the county for the 12 months preceding the awarding of the contract." for "The newspaper shall be: (a) of general circulation; (b) published at least once a week; (c) published in the county; (d) published continuously in the county for the 12 months preceding the awarding of the contract."

Part 41Conduct of Municipal Government*7-5-4101. General powers of municipal council.*Case Notes

"General Welfare" Clause.	870
General Powers	870
Interpretation of Powers	871

"GENERAL WELFARE" CLAUSE

Roominghouses — Regulation: The business of conducting a roominghouse, though a legitimate one, is so far concerned with the health, morals, and welfare of the public that it is within the police power of a city to regulate it under the authority conferred by this section, denominated the "general welfare clause". State ex rel. Altop v. Billings, 79 M 25, 255 P 11 (1927).

Delegation of Authority — Scope of Discretion — Licenses: A city ordinance which vests in its officials a discretion to grant or refuse to grant a license to carry on a lawful business, to be valid, need not, where the ordinance relates to the administration of a police regulation necessary to protect the general welfare, morals, and safety of the public, prescribe all the conditions upon which such license shall be granted or refused. The fact that in instances it may be exercised arbitrarily, in the absence of specific directions, is not an argument against its validity, since in such a case the person discriminated against may apply to the courts for relief. State ex rel. Altop v. Billings, 79 M 25, 255 P 11 (1927), distinguished in Bennett v. Stow, 144 M 599, 399 P2d 221 (1965).

GENERAL POWERS

Municipality's Authority to Adopt Ordinance Limiting University Students' Rights to Park on City Streets: A university student association challenged the legality of a city ordinance limiting parking in residential areas near the university to residents of those areas. The Supreme Court held that municipalities have the power to regulate parking and that regulating parking to relieve congestion in certain residential neighborhoods was a reasonable exercise of governmental authority. Assoc. Students v. Missoula, 261 M 231, 862 P2d 380, 50 St. Rep. 1301 (1993).

Parking Ordinance — Vicarious Criminal Responsibility: A city may, in the exercise of its police power, enact a parking ordinance that provides that the registered owner of a motor vehicle is vicariously criminally responsible for illegal parking by another unless it is shown that the vehicle was being used without the owner's consent. Such an ordinance does not violate due process restrictions (overruling a contrary holding in St. v. Jetty, 176 M 519, 579 P2d 1228 (1978)), but the ordinance must conform to the absolute liability requirements of 45-2-104. Missoula v. Shea, 202 M 286, 661 P2d 410, 40 St. Rep. 91 (1983).

Unconstitutional Parking Ordinance — Presumption That Owner Parked Vehicle — Escalating Fines for Parking Violations:

In striking down a parking ordinance, the Supreme Court held that to make the owner of a vehicle prima facie liable upon proof that his vehicle has been parked illegally is equivalent to a presumption that the owner parked the vehicle. The effect of the presumption is to violate constitutional due process requirements by shifting the burden of persuasion to defendant and contradicting the presumption of innocence. Missoula v. Shea, 202 M 286, 661 P2d 410, 40 St. Rep. 91 (1983).

An escalating fine schedule for parking violations where the amount to be paid depends on the length in the delay in paying after being cited is in violation of the basic principle of law that punishment must be for the violation and proportional to the gravity of the offense and hence is violative of Art. II, sec. 28, Mont. Const., which provides that laws for punishment of crime shall be founded on principles of prevention and reformation. Missoula v. Shea, 202 M 286, 661 P2d 410, 40 St. Rep. 91 (1983).

Estoppel to Repudiate Acts of Officers: Although a municipal corporation is not bound by acts or statements of its officers made in excess of their authority, where an innocent party has been induced into a course of action by the conduct of municipal officers and because of such reliance would suffer a substantial loss, the municipality will not be permitted to deny the validity of its officers' actions. State ex rel. Barker v. Stevensville, 164 M 378, 523 P2d 1388 (1974).

Flat Rate Fees — City Employees' Services: Under its power to provide for the general welfare of its inhabitants, a city may provide for a flat rate charge to property owners for services of its employees in tapping into the water main. Leischner v. Knight, 135 M 109, 337 P2d 359 (1959).

Regulation of Alcoholic Beverages: Notwithstanding repeal of the state prohibition laws a city has the power to prohibit, by ordinance, traffic in intoxicating liquors under its general powers granted it by this section and the specific provision of 7-32-4302, under which it may pass ordinances to prevent acts or conduct calculated to disturb the public peace or which are offensive to public morals. State ex rel. Moreland v. Police Court, 87 M 17, 285 P 178 (1930).

Taxation: A city has no inherent power to levy taxes on property within its corporate limits, its power in that respect being limited to that conferred by statute, which must be strictly construed. First Nat'l Bank of Glendive v. Sorenson, 65 M 1, 210 P 900 (1922).

Proprietary Capacity — Municipal Power Plant: When a city is engaged in operating a municipal power plant, under an authority granted by general law, it acts in a proprietary or business capacity and stands upon the same footing as a private individual or business corporation similarly situated. Milligan v. Miles City, 51 M 374, 153 P 276 (1915).

Reduction in Force — Police:

Under its general legislative power the Council of a city or town may provide for the appointment of as many policemen, including a Chief of Police in case of a city and a Marshal in case of a town, as may be necessary to preserve the peace and enforce the ordinances. Grush v. Bishop, 46 M 97, 126 P 619 (1912).

As a City Council has, under this section and 7-6-4302, the sole power to determine the amount that shall be expended in carrying on the city government, it and not the Mayor has the power to reduce the police force for economical reasons or when it becomes unnecessarily large. State ex rel. Rowling v. Butte, 43 M 331, 117 P 604 (1911), distinguished in State ex rel. Gebhardt v. City Council, 102 M 27, 55 P2d 671 (1936).

INTERPRETATION OF POWERS

Arbitrary Denial of Building Permit by City Council — City, City Council, and Individual Council Members Liable: In an action under 43 U.S.C. 1983, the court of appeals upheld the District Court's holding that the Billings City Council's refusal to issue a building permit after the applicant had satisfied all the requirements for issuing the permit was an arbitrary and capricious action that deprived the applicant of his substantive due process rights. The city, City Council, and individual members of the City Council have no immunity from such action and are all liable for damages. Bateson v. Geisse, 857 F2d 1300 (9th Cir. 1988).

Rules of Construction: Within the scope of its powers delegated to it by the Legislature, a City Council has the same right to enact binding ordinances as has the Legislature to enact statutes, and practically the same rules of construction apply when the validity of an ordinance or a statute is under consideration by the courts. Missoula v. Swanberg, 116 M 232, 149 P2d 248 (1944).

Arbitrary Class — Equal Protection: A city ordinance that prohibits the installation of plumbing called "Durham work", made of certain material, in one- or two-story buildings and permits its installation in all others over two stories high is arbitrary and unreasonable class legislation and therefore invalid as in conflict with this section in the absence of evidence showing that the prohibited kind of material is detrimental to the health and safety of the people of the municipality. Missoula v. Swanberg, 116 M 232, 149 P2d 248 (1944).

Subject to State and Federal Constitutions: Laws enacted in the exercise of the police power, whether by municipal corporations acting in pursuance of the laws of the state or by the state itself, must be reasonable and are always subject to the provisions of both the federal and state constitutions and judicial scrutiny. Betty v. Sidney, 79 M 314, 257 P 1007 (1927).

Reasonableness of Ordinance: The question of the reasonableness of an ordinance is, in the first instance, for the determination of a City or Town Council, and in the absence of a clear showing to the contrary its reasonableness will be presumed. Betty v. Sidney, 79 M 314, 257 P 1007 (1927).

Authorized Act Resulting in Nuisance — Liability: In grants of authority to municipal corporations, authority to commit a nuisance will not be implied but must be expressed, since in the use of their private property cities are subject to the same rules as private individuals. When the use and enjoyment of a legislative grant does not necessarily and naturally create a nuisance but the nuisance results from the method of the use and enjoyment, the grant constitutes no defense. Lennon v. Butte, 67 M 101, 214 P 1101 (1923).

Express or Implied Authority: The statute creating a municipality or under which it exists is the charter of its powers, and it has only such authority as is conferred expressly and such as is necessarily implied or is indispensable in order properly to accomplish the purpose of its organization. State ex rel. Butte v. Police Court, 65 M 94, 210 P 1059 (1922).

Attorney General's Opinions

Doctrine of Incompatible Positions Precluding Public Works Director From Holding Office on City Council: An individual serving in the dual roles of public works director and City Council member would be in the position as City Council member of controlling actions and decisions of that individual's supervisor, the public works director, which could directly affect that individual's job duties and compensation. Therefore, under the common-law doctrine of incompatible public offices, the office of City Council member and the office or position of public works director are incompatible and one person may not hold both jobs simultaneously. 47 A.G. Op. 19 (1998). See also 41 A.G. Op. 81 (1986), and 46 A.G. Op. 26 (1996).

Firefighters — Receipt of Compensatory Time Off: A firefighter may receive compensatory time off for bonus hours worked in excess of 40 in 1 week, and under 7-5-4101 the governing body of a city has the authority to manage the affairs of the city, including entering into a contract providing compensatory time off for firefighters. 39 A.G. Op. 35 (1981), followed in 45 A.G. Op. 21 (1994).

Local Governments — Borrowing From Financial Institutions Permitted: A county, city, or town with general government or self-government powers can incur indebtedness by borrowing money directly from a financial institution. This authority to borrow does not change the debt limitations on the local government. 38 A.G. Op. 14 (1979).

Police Dispatch Services: A county may contract with a city or town to provide the municipal police department with police dispatch services operated through the County Sheriff's office. 37 A.G. Op. 10 (1977).

Case Notes

Tie Vote — Mayor to Cast Deciding Vote:

In quo warranto proceedings, under this section providing that the Mayor of a city shall be the presiding officer of the Council and decide by his vote all ties, it was held that where the Council was evenly divided on the question of confirmation of the Mayor's appointee to the office of City Attorney, he had the right to cast the decisive vote. State ex rel. O'Hern v. Loud, 92 M 307, 14 P2d 432 (1932), explained in State ex rel. Easbey v. Highway Patrol Bd., 140 M 383, 372 P2d 930 (1962).

Under the law as it existed in 1895, the Mayor was deemed to be a constituent part of the Council, and where there was a tie vote of the Aldermen on the confirmation of an officer, he had the right to vote for confirmation. State ex rel. Young v. Yates, 19 M 239, 47 P 1004 (1897).

Attorney General's Opinions

Administrative Assistant — Mayoral Appointment: Although the City Council's contract and budget approval powers may affect the mayor's practical ability to provide a particular compensation amount to an administrative assistant or establish other employment conditions, they do not obviate his authority to fill that position without Council approval. Under 7-3-212, a mayor may appoint an administrative assistant without the approval of the City Council. 41 A.G. Op. 45 (1986).

Case Notes

Imposition of Fine: Under the rule of statutory construction that a specific provision is paramount to a general one, held, in a prosecution for maintaining a nuisance, that the specific provision of this section, empowering a city to impose a fine upon persons maintaining a nuisance, is controlling, as against the power conferred by 7-5-4207 to impose fines and jail penalties for the violation of city ordinances generally. *Bozeman v. Case Notes

City Ordinance Not Conclusive Presumption of Necessity — Standard of Proof: A city ordinance adopted pursuant to this section did not establish a conclusive presumption that the taking of private property for a water system was necessary. The controlling statutes are in Title 7, chapter 13, part 44, and absent an agreement to purchase, 7-13-4404 requires that the standard of proof outlined in 70-30-111 be met before private property may be taken for a public use. Since the District Court has the power to determine whether a condemnation is necessary, the votes of the people and the city council cannot be considered as dispositive of the issue of necessity; however, the public interest as expressed in these votes must be considered and weighed with the other factors in determining whether acquisition is necessary. Missoula v. Mtn. Water Co., 228 M 404, 743 P2d 590, 44 St. Rep. 1633 (1987).

Areawide Condemnation: City's only authority to condemn on an "area" basis is 7-15-4259. Passage of city ordinance declaring condemnation for urban renewal of blighted areas did not create conclusive presumption of public use and necessity. Helena v. DeWolf, 162 M 57, 508 P2d 122 (1973).

Control of Floodwaters: Under this section a city may condemn lands for constructing a sewer, waterway, or drain ditch outside the corporate limits of the municipality "or for any other municipal and public use". Thus the city has the power of eminent domain for a project to divert floodwaters into a channel away from the city in order to protect it from overflows. Hansen v. Havre, 112 M 207, 114 P2d 1053 (1941).

Right to Condemn Property:

Authority to condemn property for a public use must be clearly expressed in the law before such right will be allowed. State ex rel. McLeod v. District Court, 67 M 164, 215 P 240 (1923).

In the absence of legislative authority empowering it so to do, a city has no right to condemn land outside of its corporate limits for a public highway leading to a park owned by it. State ex rel. McLeod v. District Court, 67 M 164, 215 P 240 (1923).

Vesting of Fee to Land: Under section 11-606, R.C.M. 1947 (since repealed), the fee to the land covered by a street once established is vested in the public. The form of dedication required of the owner, when the plat of a city or town or an addition thereto is recorded, is equivalent to a deed, but as the respective rights of the abutting owners and of the public are dependent upon the fact of dedication, it is not important to inquire where the fee is vested. Kipp v. Davis-Daly Copper Co., 41 M 509, 110 P 237 (1910).

Water Supply — Prior Attempt at Consent Required: In condemnation proceedings to acquire title to property for a water supply, it is not necessary to allege or prove that the city had endeavored to obtain the consent of the owners of the property to the taking thereof. Helena v. Rogan, 27 M 135, 69 P 709 (1902).

Case Notes

Where Franchised Utility in No Position to Complain: A utility operating under a nonexclusive city franchise sought to enjoin a city from selling bonds for the purpose of securing its own gas distributing system, on ground of unlawful competition. The utility could not question the legality of any other contract entered into by the city in connection with the enterprise and hence was in no position to complain that the city’s contract with a contracting firm relating to a supply of natural gas was illegal because a city employee, not served with summons, was interested in the contract contrary to this section. Montana-Dakota Util. Co. v. Havre, 109 M 164, 94 P2d 660 (1939).

Subsequent Interest: This section is not applicable to a Mayor who was not interested in a contract made with the city but who agreed, after the contract was accepted and filed with the proper official, to take stock in a corporation succeeding to the rights of the original contractor. State ex rel. Great Falls Water Works v. Great Falls, 19 M 518, 49 P 15 (1897).

Attorney General’s Opinions

City Employee as Councilman — No Conflict of Interest: There is no inherent conflict of interest when a city employee is also an elected city councilman in a council-mayor form of municipal government. The opportunity to commit the breach of a fiduciary duty does not constitute a conflict of interest. 41 A.G. Op. 81 (1986).

Definitions — Incorporation: Since the Legislature is presumed not to perform useless acts, the definitions of “be interested in” and “contract” contained in 2-2-201 are incorporated into and are applicable to 7-5-2106 and 7-5-4109, which relate to the same subject matter, conflicts of interest for local government officials. 40 A.G. Op. 28 (1983).

Disclosure — Abstinence From Voting — When Contract Voidable: Where a local government official has a conflict of interest, such as a substantial interest in a business bidding on a local government contract, the official must comply with the disclosure and abstinence from voting provisions of 2-2-125 (now repealed) and 2-2-131, even though the interest may be permissible under the exceptions contained in 2-2-201. If the interest is not permissible under the exceptions listed in 2-2-201, the contract is voidable and abstinence from voting will not exonerate the official. 40 A.G. Op. 28 (1983).

Control of Conflict of Interest — Elected City Official Prohibited From Selling Supplies to City: A business operated by an elected city official or owned by a corporation in which the official is a major stockholder may not sell supplies to the city. The crucial factor in determining whether a conflict of interest lies and applying conflict of interest statutes is the presence of a pecuniary or proprietary interest. A formal contract is not required to find a conflict of interest. 38 A.G. Op. 79 (1980).

Case Notes

City Authority to Plant Trees: Plaintiff filed suit against the city to prevent the planting of trees in the boulevard area of the sidewalk in front on his property. The District Court dismissed plaintiff’s complaint for failure to state a cause of action because the City Council has broad discretion under 7-14-4101 to alter and maintain city streets and avenues, including the planting of trees. A statement by the City Council Public Works Committee that no trees would be planted if plaintiff objected did not create a contract binding on the city. The elements of a contract are missing here, and there was no action by the City Council as required by this section to create a contract. Duncan v. Missoula, 239 M 201, 779 P2d 519, 46 St. Rep. 1619 (1989).

Failure to Record: Town could not deny the validity of a sewage project contract due to an alleged technical defect in failing to record in minutes of Town Council the aye and no vote on the approval of the contract as required by this section where the town in all of its affirmative acts recognized the contract. St. Eng’r. Serv., Inc. v. Kevin, 148 M 312, 420 P2d 433 (1966).

Filling Vacancy: Subsection (2) of this section does not apply to an election by a City Council to fill a vacancy in its own body, caused by resignation or death. Attorney General’s Opinions

Number of Town Council Members Necessary to Constitute Quorum When Mayor Resigns: Regarding the question of what constitutes a quorum of municipal council members when the mayor resigns and the mayoral duties are assumed by one of the municipal council members, at common law, the general rule is that the total number of all of the duly elected and qualified members of the municipal council is taken as the basis. Although the mayor or chief executive may be included in the count under some statutes, the mayor is not made a member of the council and is not included in the number on which a quorum is reckoned. However, even though the mayor is not counted in the determination of a quorum, a member of the municipal council who acts as mayor or presiding officer pro tempore in absence of the mayor is counted in determining whether a quorum is present and retains the right to vote as a member of the council. Thus, the president of the council, when serving as acting mayor in the absence of the mayor, may vote on a measure with the other members of the council and then, as acting mayor, cast the deciding vote in case of a tie. 47 A.G. Op. 20 (1998).

Town With Weak-Mayor Government Not Authorized to Adopt Statutory Quorum Provisions: A town with a weak-mayor form of municipal government does not have authority to adopt by ordinance the quorum provisions of 7-3-4221. Those provisions would conflict with this section, which states that a majority of the members of the town council constitute a quorum and does not include the mayor as a member of the town council for the determination. 47 A.G. Op. 20 (1998).

Case Notes

Interpretation of Uniform Building Code Ordinance Matter of Law — Violation May Constitute Negligence Per Se: Chambers was injured after falling into a pit at the Helena garbage transfer station. A Uniform Building Code (UBC) ordinance required guardrails on most landings and ramps, except on the loading side of loading docks. The District Court held that the pit did not fit the loading dock exception and that the city's failure to install guardrails was negligence per se. The city argued that interpretation of the UBC ordinance was a finding of fact that the trial court improperly removed from the province of the jury because the court made credibility determinations and weighed the evidence. Chambers maintained that, like statutes, interpretation of a UBC ordinance is a question of law. The Supreme Court agreed with Chambers. Violation of a UBC ordinance is a matter of law, violation of which may constitute negligence per se, and in this case, it was undisputed that the city was subject to the ordinance and that there were no guardrails installed along the transfer station pit. Chambers was a member of the class of persons that the ordinance was designed to protect and met the elements of negligence per se. Further, pursuant to Montana pattern jury instructions, it is up to the jury to decide whether a statute has been violated. Once the trial court determined that the city was negligent per se, the jury instruction should not have been given because there were no more undisputed issues regarding violation of the statute. The only remaining determination was whether the loading dock exception applied to the pit, and that was a statutory interpretation for the court to decide. The plain language of the UBC ordinance and its exception did not include a pit design such as that used at the transfer station, so the trial court correctly interpreted the ordinance and held the city negligent per se. Chambers v. Helena, 2002 MT 142, 310 M 241, 49 P3d 587 (2002).

One Subject — Wholesale Adoption of State Misdemeanors: A town ordinance that, in effect, adopted all state laws defining misdemeanors and made them town ordinances was invalid as violating the prohibition against passage of an ordinance containing more than one subject. White Sulphur Springs v. Voise, 136 M 1, 334 P2d 855 (1959).

One Subject — Establishing Police Department: An ordinance establishing a police department, repealing a series of ordinances dealing therewith and those relating to the location and conduct of the city jail, held not open to the objection that it was void as in contravention of the provisions of this section. State ex rel. Dwyer v. Mayor, 69 M 232, 221 P 524 (1923).

One Subject — Liberal Construction: The restriction placed by this section upon the City Council in enacting ordinances to the effect that none shall be passed containing more than one subject which shall be clearly expressed in its title, like that imposed upon the Legislature in enacting a statute, must be liberally construed. The ordinance will be sustained unless it appears beyond a reasonable doubt that it does not meet the requirement. State ex rel. Dwyer v. Mayor, 69 M 232, 221 P 524 (1923).

Resolution of Intention — Approval by Mayor: A resolution of intention is not valid unless approved by the Mayor. All proceedings taken under an unapproved resolution of intention are void. Hinzeman v. Deer Lodge, 58 M 369, 193 P 395 (1920).

One Subject — Special Election on Bonds: An ordinance calling for a special election for the authorization or rejection of an increase of the city's indebtedness by the issuance of water and sewer bonds was not obnoxious to the prohibition contained in this section that no ordinance shall be passed containing more than one subject. The general subject of the ordinance was the incurring of the indebtedness, and the different purposes named in it as making the indebtedness necessary were matters of detail for the information of the voters. Carlson v. Helena, 39 M 82, 102 P 39 (1909).

One Subject — General Rule: The observance of the limitation imposed by this section relative to ordinances containing more than one subject, which must be clearly expressed in its title, is mandatory and renders void any ordinance which violates it. But whatever is germane, incidental, or necessary to the main or general subject of an ordinance may be included in it and is not a separate subject. Carlson v. Helena, 39 M 82, 102 P 39 (1909). Resolution Creating Special Improvement District — Not Subject to Referendum:

A resolution creating a municipal special improvement district that encompasses less area than the municipal limits is not subject to referendum because the resolution affects only the people within the improvement district rather than the people of the municipality as a whole. The Supreme Court further held that the resolution creating a special improvement district is part of an administrative procedure, not a legislative action subject to referendum. Shelby v. Sandholm, 208 M 77, 676 P2d 178, 41 St. Rep. 186 (1984), distinguished in The Greens at Fort Missoula, LLC v. Missoula, 271 M 398, 897 P2d 1078, 52 St. Rep. 501 (1995).

Emergency Measure Excepted From Referendum: It was contended that to compel a city to pass an ordinance or resolution for the rezoning of the city and vacation of streets by mandamus at the instance of the city housing authority would destroy the exercise of right of referendum by the city inhabitants because the ordinance or resolution would be effective immediately. The Supreme Court held that the housing authorities being an emergency measure, this section as originally enacted specifically provides that an emergency measure is excepted from the provisions of the Referendum Act (Ch. 167, L. 1907). State ex rel. Great Falls Housing Authority v. Great Falls, 110 M 318, 100 P2d 915 (1940).

Bond Issues: This statute, being a general statute, held not controlling where a city seeks to sell bonds for the acquisition of a self-supporting gas distribution system under authority of Ch. 141, L. 1935. Section 15 specifically provides that if any of the provisions of the chapter are inconsistent with any other statute, the provisions of the chapter are controlling. Montana-Dakota Util. Co. v. Havre, 109 M 164, 94 P2d 660 (1939).

Increase in Salary — Date: The provision of section 11-732, R.C.M. 1947 (since completely rewritten), that the salary of a city officer shall not be increased or diminished during his term of office, means the terms the officer is then serving. Where the salary of a Mayor was increased by ordinance near the close of his first term, the increase could not, under this section, become effective until after his second term had commenced. The increase was made during his prior term and not during the term he was then serving. Broadwater v. Kendig, 80 M 515, 261 P 264 (1927).

Bond Ordinance Approved by Voters: This section has no application to an ordinance providing for the issuance of water and sewer bonds after sanction of the taxpayers affected thereby has been obtained. The law has to do with matters of general legislation on which all electors, whether taxpayers or not, may vote, while the question whether bonds shall be issued can be submitted to taxpayers only. Nuisance — Section Not Applicable: Under the rule of statutory construction that a specific provision is paramount to a general one, held, in a prosecution for maintaining a nuisance, that the specific provision of 7-5-4104, empowering a city to impose a fine upon persons maintaining a nuisance, is controlling, as against the power conferred by this section to impose fines and jail penalties for the violation of a city ordinance generally. Mandatory Seatbelt Ordinance: Under Montana law and the Montana Constitution, a municipality with self-governing powers may enact a mandatory seatbelt ordinance that provides for a fine or jail sentence for violation of the ordinance as long as the fine or penalty does

Validity of Ordinance Allowing Escalating Penalty for Failure to Obtain Business License: A Lewistown city ordinance that allows an escalating monthly penalty for failure to obtain a local business license is valid despite Missoula v. Shea, 202 M 286, 661 P2d 410, 40 St. Rep. 91 (1983). The Shea case determined that escalating penalties for parking violations were criminal penalties and violative of Art. II, sec. 28, Mont. Const. In analyzing the Lewistown ordinance, the Attorney General observed that the crucial issue is whether the penalty imposed is civil or criminal in nature. Applying the five factors outlined in Brown v. Multnomah County District Court, 570 P2d 52 (Ore. 1977), he concluded that the instant ordinance imposed civil penalties and that the ordinance was valid. 40 A.G. Op. 75 (1984).

Green Waste Compost Program Contract Exempt From Bidding Process — Not Reviewable in Absence of Bad Faith, Fraud, or Corruption: Heritage argued that the city of Helena awarded a contract without soliciting bids. The Supreme Court held that the contract was for construction, repair, or maintenance in an amount less than $25,000 and involved technical skills and therefore was exempt from the bidding process. The Supreme Court also stated that in following *Baker v. Case Notes

When Claim for Relief Accrues for Failure of Construction Contract to Be Awarded to Lowest Bidder — No Negligence by Engineering Firm in Handling of Bidding Process on Public Works Contract: The city of Glasgow hired an engineering firm to prepare plans, specifications, and bid documents for a municipal sewer improvement project, including review of bid results and bid award recommendations. Debcon, Inc. (Debcon), submitted the lowest bid, but the engineering firm's review showed significant mathematical errors in Debcon's bid and some question as to the ability of Debcon to perform. The engineering firm recommended that the contract be awarded to a different bidder, and Debcon sued both the city and the engineering firm, alleging negligence in the award of the construction contract. The District Court concluded that Debcon lacked standing to assert a duty of care owed to it by the city and that the negligence claim against the engineering firm must also fail as a matter of law because the firm owed no duty of care to Debcon, an essential element for asserting negligence as a claim for relief. Debcon did not appeal the judgment in favor of the city, but did appeal the judgment in favor of the firm. The Supreme Court cited a long line of cases back to 1910 for the proposition that, absent a duty, no breach of duty can be established and no negligence action can be maintained. An unsuccessful bidder has no standing in mandamus or otherwise to control the discretion in the award of a contract to the lowest responsible bidder, which may not be the lowest pecuniary bidder. A claim for relief from the award of a public contract accrues under the following conditions: (1) plaintiff must timely assert its claim as an aggrieved taxpayer; (2) the claim must seek a remedy, such as an injunction, writ of mandamus, or declaratory judgment, that will protect the rights of the aggrieved taxpayer from the potential harm that will occur; and (3) plaintiff must then show that the process by which the public works contract was awarded resulted from an abuse of discretion, i.e., that discretion was tainted by an act of bad faith, fraud, corruption, or arbitrariness. The Supreme Court in this case declined to follow Debcon's contention that a new duty of care should be constructed from whole cloth that would allow Debcon, as the aggrieved low bidder, to recover lost profits or other expectancy damages under a negligence theory. The District Court properly concluded that the engineering firm, serving as project engineer for the city of Glasgow, did not owe Debcon, as a failed bidder, a duty of care in its handling of the public works contract bidding process under a negligence theory. Debcon's claim for relief was a claim for which relief could not be granted as a matter of law. Further, Debcon did not enjoy contractual privity with the engineering firm, so absent a statutory provision that would sustain a bad faith claim, a claim of bad faith did not lie. Summary judgment in favor of the engineering firm was proper. Debcon, Inc. v. Glasgow, 2001 MT 124, 305 M 391, 28 P3d 478 (2001), following O'Brien v. Great Falls, 163 M 307, 516 P2d 1149 (1973), and followed, with regard to standing to challenge the letting of a contract to provide public school transportation, in Hickey v. Baker School District No. 12, 2002 MT 322, 313 M 162, 60 P3d 966 (2002).

Green Waste Compost Program Contract Exempt From Bidding Process — Not Reviewable in Absence of Bad Faith, Fraud, or Corruption: Heritage argued that the city of Helena awarded a contract without soliciting bids. The Supreme Court held that the contract was for construction, repair, or maintenance in an amount less than $25,000 and involved technical skills and therefore was exempt from the bidding process. The Supreme Court also stated that in following Baker v. St., 218 M 235, 707 P2d 20 (1985), an agency's decision in awarding a contract is not reviewable in the absence of a showing of bad faith, fraud, or corruption. Heritage Commercial Contractors, Inc. v. Helena, 272 M 90, 899 P2d 1076, 52 St. Rep. 676 (1995).

No Recovery Under Void Public Contracts: Contracts not let on competitive bidding when required under this section are not only void but in actions to recover the reasonable value of property where restoration cannot be made excepting at cost exceeding the price (buried water pipe in the instant case), the courts will refuse to enforce the claim, leaving the parties where they placed themselves unlawfully. Quasi or constructive contracts based on unjust enrichment and enforced by action ex contractu rest on equitable principles. This section was enacted for economy and protection of the public. Builders Supply Co. v. Helena, 116 M 368, 154 P2d 270 (1944), reversing the dictum in Missoula Street Ry. v. Missoula, 47 M 85, 130 P 771 (1913).

Letting Contract to Higher Bidder Held Warranted: A City Council received two bids for firefighting equipment, one for $3,155.55 and the other for $3,500, both bidders substantially meeting the specifications stated in the advertisement for bids. After conducting a fair investigation into the relative merits of both and witnessing a demonstration of the equipment offered by the successful bidder, who also offered continuous servicing not offered by the unsuccessful one, there were substantial and plausible reasons justifying the letting of the contract to the higher bidder. Koich v. Cvar, 111 M 463, 110 P2d 964 (1941).

Lowest Responsible Bidder:

The "lowest responsible bidder", within the meaning of this statute, does not mean merely the one whose pecuniary ability to perform the contract is deemed the best; it also means the one who is most likely in regard of skill, ability, and integrity to do faithful and conscientious work and promptly to fulfill the contract according to its letter and spirit. The City Council has a broad discretion in determining what bid answers that requirement, the members thereof not being purely ministerial officers but in that connection exercising quasi-judicial functions. Koich v. Cvar, 111 M 463, 110 P2d 964 (1941).

Under the exclusive rather than directory nature of the limitation upon the power of cities to let contracts prescribed by this section, a contract entered into by a city with a street railway company, according to the terms of which the latter was to be paid the cost of removing and replacing its tracks on certain streets to enable the former to lay sewers, was void, it not having been let to the lowest responsible bidder as required by the statute. Commonwealth Pub. Serv. Co. v. Deer Lodge, 96 M 48, 29 P2d 667 (1934); Missoula Street Ry. v. Missoula, 47 M 85, 130 P 771 (1913), reversed in part in Builders Supply Co. v. Helena, 116 M 368, 154 P2d 270 (1944).

To successfully attack the letting of a contract for a municipal improvement, it must be shown that the contract was not let to the lowest responsible bidder, that there was not any opportunity afforded for competitive bidding, or that there was collusion or bad faith on the part of the Council or such gross mistake as to preclude the exercise of sound judgment. O'Brien v. Drinkenberg, 41 M 538, 111 P 137 (1910).

Waterworks Construction Contract: A contract with a city for the construction of a system of waterworks is governed by the provisions of this section, 7-5-4308, and 7-5-4309 (now repealed). Forsyth v. Crellin, 210 F 835 (9th Cir. 1914).

Specific Processes — Use in Construction: Where a City Council incorporated in a resolution ordering the paving of a street, as well as in the call for bids, the requirement that in the construction of the pavement certain patented processes and compounds should be used, and the company controlling the patent agreed that the cost of such material, which constituted only a part of the gross cost of the improvement, should be the same to all bidders, while in other respects, such as the cost of labor, other materials, etc., the principle of competition was retained, the proceedings were not void as being violative of this section. Ford v. Great Falls, 46 M 292, 127 P 1004 (1912).

Purpose of Section — Public Protection: This section is designed to prevent favoritism and to secure to the public the best possible return for the expenditure of the funds which the property owners are required to furnish through the payment of taxes and assessments. Ford v. Great Falls, 46 M 292, 127 P 1004 (1912).

Construction of Section — Source of Funds: The requirement of this section extends to and includes expenditures made from the general revenues of the municipality, as well as from funds derived from special assessments. Ford v. Great Falls, 46 M 292, 127 P 1004 (1912).

Attorney General's Opinions

Municipality May Choose Competitive Bidding Method for Certain Municipal Government Purchases: When making municipal government purchases, a municipality may use the competitive advertised bidding process set out in this section or the municipality may choose to participate in cooperative purchasing with the Department of Administration without first seeking its own competitive bids, as allowed in Title 18, ch. 4, part 4. 51 A.G. Op. 15 (2006).

Lease-Purchase Must Be Bid: A lease of equipment with an option to purchase at the end of 5 years is within the purpose of 7-5-4302 and is subject to the requirement that it be competitively bid. 41 A.G. Op. 78 (1986).

Subcontracts: This section clearly applies only to contracts that the City Council directly enters into and does not apply to subcontracts that the prime contractor with the city may subsequently enter into. 40 A.G. Op. 32 (1984).

Contract for Employment of Construction Manager: A contract for the employment of a construction manager that calls only for the application of the contractor's technical expertise and experience in a supervisory capacity and does not involve the procurement of supplies or actual construction is exempt by 7-5-4301(2) from the bidding requirements of this section, as a contract for professional and technical services. 37 A.G. Op. 175 (1978).

Competitive Bidding Requirements Mandatory: A local government unit with self-government powers cannot supersede by the passage of a resolution or ordinance the competitive bidding requirements set forth in 7-5-4302. 37 A.G. Op. 175 (1978).

Purchase by City of Real Property With Existing Buildings: Under applicable Montana statutes, a municipality is not required to submit a proposed purchase of real estate and existing buildings to voters for approval and may purchase them to house its fire department using current appropriations and without incurring indebtedness or issuing bonds to finance such purchase. 37 A.G. Op. 31 (1977).

Case Notes

Development and Use Agreement Not Precluding City From Entering Agreement for Construction Project on Public Property — Franchise Agreement Outside Scope of Citizen Group's Agreement With City: A citizen's group entered a franchise agreement with a professional baseball organization to bring a team to Missoula. After two potential sites were rejected, the city of Missoula accepted a gift of property upon which to construct a baseball facility and granted the citizen group the right to finance and construct the stadium on the property and to convey the completed facility to the city. The citizen group moved to enjoin the city from development of the proposed civic baseball stadium because of the city's failure to comply with statutory requirements for planning, funding, and managing the facility. All claims were dismissed on summary judgment, and the citizen group appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. The development and use agreements in this case did not preclude the city from executing an agreement with another entity for the construction of a similar facility on public property or from leasing a city-owned facility for baseball games or any other purpose. Any franchise agreement between the baseball organization and the citizen group was outside the scope of the group's agreement with the city, so the voter-approval provisions of this section did not apply. The citizen group's argument that the city was required to comply with urban renewal laws also failed. The decision whether to proceed with development under the urban renewal statutes was up to the city, and the fact that the city designated the capital improvements associated with the stadium construction as an urban renewal project did not require that the citizen group's building project come under the same purview. Rather, under 7-16-4106, the city is permitted to obtain an athletic field and civic stadium through purchase, donation, or condemnation and to regulate its use, but nothing in the statute prohibits the city from designating a stadium project as an urban renewal project or mandates that the project be designated as an urban renewal project. The District Court properly found that the city appropriately exercised its administrative authority in accepting the gift property and then leasing the site to the citizen group for purposes of constructing a stadium using private financial resources. The citizen group failed to raise a genuine issue of material fact that would preclude summary judgment. Fair Play Missoula, Inc. v. Missoula, 2002 MT 179, 311 M 22, 52 P3d 926 (2002).

Construction of Section: The word "franchise" in this section is used in the same sense as it is in Art. XII, sec. 16 and 17, 1889 Mont. Const. [no comparable provision in 1972 Mont. Const.], where it is classed as property and subject to taxation as such. Glodt v. Missoula, 121 M 178, 190 P2d 545 (1948).

Parking Meters — Conditional Sale Paid With Percentage of Revenue: The purchase of parking meters under a conditional sales contract whereby the city determines the location, controls the use and operation, and collects the revenues, the vendor to be paid from a percentage of the revenues, and after the total price is paid the meters to become the property of the city, did not constitute the granting of a franchise. Glodt v. Missoula, 121 M 178, 190 P2d 545 (1948).

Approval by Qualified Electors: A city is prohibited from granting a franchise to a gas company to lay its mains in city streets until the application for it has first been submitted to and approved by the qualified electors. State ex rel. Billings v. Billings Gas Co., 55 M 102, 173 P 799 (1918).

Under Ch. 137, L. 1925, amendatory of this section, title to money deposited by a school district with the County Treasurer passes to the county. The money becomes county funds. The county becomes the debtor of the school district, and upon redeposit thereof in county depositories, the county is liable to the district for their loss occasioned by such depositories becoming insolvent, such loss being the loss of county and not school district funds. State ex rel. School District v. McGraw, 74 M 152, 240 P 812 (1925).

Attorney General's Opinions

Distribution of Interest on Protested Tax Payments: Interest accrued on amounts held in a protest fund established under 15-1-402 is not "public money" under 7-6-201 through 7-6-206 and therefore must be distributed to the affected taxing units in the same proportion as the tax amounts in the fund are paid to those units. 41 A.G. Op. 60 (1986).

1997 Amendment: Chapter 131 at beginning of (4) inserted exception clause; inserted (5) limiting maturity dates to 10 years, with an average of 6 years; and made minor changes in style.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 406 substituted current text concerning eligible federal investments for former text that read: "(1) A local governing body may invest public money not necessary for immediate use by the county, city, or town in:

- (a) direct obligations of the United States government;
- (b) securities issued by agencies of the United States;
- (c) securities guaranteed by the United States or by an agency of the United States but not issued by agencies of the United States; or
- (d) mutual funds that invest only in:
 - (i) government obligations;
 - (ii) securities issued by agencies of the United States; or
 - (iii) securities guaranteed by the United States or by an agency of the United States but not issued by agencies of the United States.

(2) The local governing body may invest in these obligations either directly or in the form of securities of or other interests in an open-end or closed-end management type investment company or investment trust registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a-1 through 80a-64), as amended, if:

- (a) the portfolio of the investment company or investment trust is limited to United States government obligations and repurchase agreements fully collateralized by United States government obligations; and
- (b) the investment company or investment trust takes delivery of the collateral for any repurchase agreement, either directly or through an authorized custodian." Amendment effective April 13, 1995.

Saving Clause: Section 4, Ch. 406, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

Applicability: Section 5, Ch. 406, L. 1995, provided: "This act does not apply to and does not require the sale of securities that were legal investments before [the effective date of this act] [effective April 13, 1995]. Upon the liquidation of an investment authorized prior to [the effective date of this act] [effective April 13, 1995], the proceeds must be invested pursuant to [this act]."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 271 inserted (1)(c) relating to securities guaranteed but not issued by the United States; and inserted (1)(d) relating to mutual funds that invest only in government obligations and in securities issued or guaranteed by the United States.

1989 Amendment: Inserted (2) relating to investments in a qualifying investment company or investment trust; and made minor changes in phraseology and style.

1985 Amendment: At end deleted "payable within not to exceed 180 days from the time of such investment" and inserted "and securities issued by agencies of the United States".

Attorney General's Opinions

Local Government Investment in Securities Not Issued by Agencies of the United States Prohibited: Consistent with the prior holding in 42 A.G. Op. 25 (1987) and with subsequent amendment to this section, a local government may invest public money in a mutual fund that invests, or obtains through repurchase agreements fully collateralized by the United States government, direct obligations of the United States and securities issued by agencies of the United States. However, a local government may not invest public money in a mutual fund that invests in government obligations or securities that are guaranteed but not issued by agencies of the United States. (See 1993 and 1995 amendments.) 44 A.G. Op. 22 (1991).

Allowable Securities Investments: The following are considered "agencies of the United States" and are permissible entities for securities investments under this section: (1) Government National Mortgage Association; (2) Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation; (3) Federal Home Loan Bank Board; (4) Federal National Mortgage Association; and (5) Farm Credit System banks. Also, treasury investment growth receipts represent investments in direct obligations of the U.S. government permissible under this section. However, mortgage-backed certificates issued by a private entity but guaranteed by the Government National Mortgage Association are not permissible investments. 42 A.G. Op. 25 (1987). See 1989 amendment that allows the local government body to invest in certain investment companies.

Limitation of Investment in Mutual Funds: A County Treasurer may not invest in private mutual funds even though the funds may be limited to investments in which the Treasurer could directly invest under this section because the actual security being purchased is an interest in an investment company. 42 A.G. Op. 25 (1987). See 1989 amendment that allows the local government body to invest in certain investment companies.

Attorney General's Opinions

Levy for Juvenile Detention Facility Not Subject to Voter Approval Unless Increase Sought in Previous Levy: House Bill No. 74, passed by the 1991 Legislature and approved as Ch. 745, L. 1991, does not require that a levy for juvenile detention facilities be approved by the voters subsequent to initial voter approval unless there is a proposal to increase the amount of the previously approved levy. If a governing body decides at any time that an increase in mills is necessary, it must follow the procedures outlined in 7-6-2531 (now repealed). 44 A.G. Op. 14 (1991).

Resort Tax*Part Attorney General's Opinions

Municipal Tiered Resort Tax Allowed: Resort tax statutes neither prohibit nor explicitly permit a differential tax schedule. However, a differential tax structure is not inconsistent with concerns revealed in the legislative history and may arguably further the express statutory purposes by taxing at a higher rate those businesses drawing more of their customers from tourists than those businesses serving a greater proportion of local residents. Therefore, a municipality with self-governing powers may establish a tiered resort tax schedule providing different tax rates for similar goods or services according to the character of the business in which the goods or services are offered, as long as none of the tax rates exceed 3%. 48 A.G. Op. 25 (2000).

1991 Amendment: In introductory clause extended reference to 7-6-4469 (renumbered 7-6-1509); in definition of luxuries, in second sentence, inserted "appliances, hardware supplies and tools"; and inserted definition of resort area. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 729, L. 1985, which enacted 7-6-4461 through 7-6-4467 (renumbered 7-6-1501 through 7-6-1507), provided: "WHEREAS, many municipalities in the State of Montana rely upon tourism for the bulk of their livelihood; and

WHEREAS, the tourist industry tends to be seasonally cyclical; and

WHEREAS, such cycles are reflected in demands for services and capital expenditures that do not occur for a community with a steady economy; and

WHEREAS, tourist income, tending to be spent for services and consumables originating in communities other than the resort community, is not translated into taxable real property; and

WHEREAS, the resort community must provide services not only for tourists but for its own residents, and those services are not commensurate with the taxable value of the resort community as compared with steady income municipalities of similar populations.

THEREFORE, it is the intent of this act to rectify this inequity by providing for a resort tax that may be locally enacted which would tax tourists to reimburse the resort community for the services provided to tourists."

Part 21

Office of County Treasurer

Part Case Notes

Property Tax Refund — County Treasurer Not Agent of Department of Revenue: The District Court properly refused a taxpayer's motion to compel a County Treasurer to sign and comply with the terms of a settlement agreement between the Department of Revenue and the taxpayer in a suit over property taxes. A tax refund was at stake, but the taxpayer had failed to comply with the provisions of 15-1-401. The Supreme Court held that rather than being a mere agent of the Department of Revenue, the Treasurer represents a significant part of the tax refund process and cannot be compelled to sign an agreement entitling a taxpayer to a refund without his compliance with 15-1-401. Eagle Communications, Inc. v. County Treasurer, 211 M 195, 685 P2d 912, 41 St. Rep. 1303 (1984).

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 278 deleted former (1)(d) that read: "(d) may not enter money received for the current year on the treasurer's account with the county for the past fiscal year until after the treasurer's annual settlement for the past year has been made with the county clerk"; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) This section does not apply to a county that has adopted the alternative accounting method provided for in Title 7, chapter 6, part 6"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Applicability: Section 64, Ch. 278, L. 2001, provided: “[This act] applies to special purpose districts beginning July 1, 2002.”

1995 Amendment: Chapter 430 inserted (2) providing exception for county that has adopted alternative accounting method provided in Title 7, chapter 6, part 6; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 13, 1995.

Case Notes

Bond Payment by Warrant: It was contended that holders of county bonds cannot be required to accept county warrants in payment of principal and interest due on the bonds. The Supreme Court held that such is the manner in which under this section counties discharge their obligations. If there are no funds to pay the warrants but no showing that the bondholders cannot cash them without a discount, it cannot be said that the obligation of the county to such holders is in any manner impaired. Great N. Ry. v. Phillips County, 112 M 542, 118 P2d 754 (1941).

Ministerial Officer: The County Treasurer is a ministerial officer, without authority other than that conferred on him by statute, and he is not required to perform any duties not imposed on him by law. Rosebud County v. Smith, 92 M 75, 9 P2d 1071 (1932).

Warrants:

Where the petition for Writ of Mandate to compel a County Treasurer to register warrants shows on its face that the warrants were not properly made out, signed, or executed, it does not state facts sufficient to justify the granting of the Writ, since such a warrant is no warrant at all, and upon its presentation the officer may entirely disregard it. State ex rel. Lockwood v. Tyler, 64 M 124, 208 P 1081 (1922).

The owner of a warrant which the Treasurer refuses to pay cannot obtain a money judgment against the county in an action on the warrant. Greeley v. Cascade County, 22 M 580, 57 P 274 (1899).

Accounting for Funds: The duty of a County Treasurer to account for and pay over the money paid directly to him by members of the public, as revenue due the county, or directed by a court or by statute to be deposited with him for safekeeping, is clearly statutory, and his liability for dereliction in this respect is a liability created by statute. Gallatin County v. USF&G Co., 50 M 55, 144 P 1085 (1914), distinguished in School District v. Pondera County, 89 M 342, 297 P 498 (1931).

Payment of Juror's Certificates: The phrase, “or as otherwise provided by law”, in subsection (5) includes juror's certificates, and the restrictions as to the power of payment by the Treasurer applies as well to them as to other claims against the county. Silver Bow County v. Davies, 40 M 418, 107 P 81 (1910); In re Farrell, 36 M 254, 92 P 785 (1907).

Disbursement of County Funds: The provisions of this section are mandatory. The use of the word “only” in subsection (5) limits the power of the Treasurer to pay out the money of the county, both as to the amount and the precedent conditions of payment. Silver Bow County v. Davies, 40 M 418, 107 P 81 (1910); In re Farrell, 36 M 254, 92 P 785 (1907).

Duty of County Treasurer to Break Out Amount Received as Payment for City Special Improvement District Assessments: A County Treasurer, when remitting taxes to a city, must break out the amount received from taxpayers as payment for the city's special improvement district assessments. 43 A.G. Op. 48 (1989).

Timeliness of Mailed Property Tax Payments — Postmark: Property tax payments deposited in the United States mail on or before payment deadlines enumerated in 15-16-102, as shown by the postmark on the envelope received by the Treasurer's office, are considered timely paid irrespective of the date upon which such payment is actually received by the County Treasurer. 40 A.G. Op. 12 (1983).

7-6-2113. Effect of failure to make treasurer's report.

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 278 in first sentence near middle after “report as required in” substituted “7-6-612” for “7-6-2112”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Applicability: Section 64, Ch. 278, L. 2001, provided: “[This act] applies to special purpose districts beginning July 1, 2002.”
